WEST WARREN.

Cloth Stolen From Cotton Mills.

Daniel Marshton was brought before Judge Curtis in the district court at East Brookfield last Friday morning on a charge of stealing cloth from the cotton mills. He was fined $20 which he paid. He was also discharged from the cotton mills and ordered to vacate the tenement owned by the cotton mills. Marshton, who is a Pole, conducted the boarding place where the four Polish women boarded who were before Judge Curtis on Thursday morning of last week, charged with stealing cloth. As Marshton was supposed to know of the stolen goods being in his house, he was considered implicated.

Store Broken Into.

The jewelry store of Felix Labrie in the Lombard block on Main street was robbed Friday night of about $70 worth of jewelry. A large show window was broken, but the hole was not large enough for a man to pass through, and as the curtain was down the thief must have reached his hand under the curtain to get the jewelry.

Miss Grace A. Woodruff of Newark, N. J., is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. Carroll Bliss on Main street.

WARE.

Horse Falls Through Bridge.

A peculiar accident occurred at West Ware Wednesday afternoon. A few minutes before the south-bound train on the Athol branch reached the bridge across the Swift river a young horse belonging to Mr. Connolly broke out of the pasture beside the track, ran on the bridge, and fell with his forelegs between the stringers. The train stopped just before reaching the animal and 40 minutes were spent in prying the unfortunate animal from its position. A gang of section men were nearby, and three competent horsemen aboard the train took up the direction of this difficult engineering feat. The animal was finally taken up and led off none the worse for the accident.

Descoteau—Berthiaume.

Miss Angelina Descoteau and J. Albert Berthiaume were married Tuesday morning by Rev. William Lucey in Mt. Carmel church. The bride was gowned in white crepe de chine and carried bride roses. A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the groom on North street after the ceremony, and there was a reception to friends and relatives until 6 p. m. Mr. and Mrs. Berthiaume left in the evening for a trip to Montreal and Quebec, after which they will reside in Ware. Mr. Berthiaume is employed in the clothing store of P. O. L'Heureux, while the bride has been one of the singers in the choir of Mt. Carmel church for some time.

Was Thrown From Carriage.

Mrs. George H. Coney was thrown out of her carriage on East street Monday noon and was badly shaken up and considerably bruised about her head and chest. The horse which she was driving became frightened by an automobile belonging to the Ware and Gilbertville transportation company, and turning into another team caused a wheel to break. The carriage was otherwise damaged, but the horse was stopped without harm. Mrs. Coney was removed to her home on Church street, where Dr. W. W. Miner attended her.

Will Not Have Clerk.

The overseers of the poor held a meeting Wednesday evening. They rescinded the vote of the previous week whereby Daniel E. Moran was appointed clerk for a month with a salary of $50. This vote to rescind was carried by Messrs. Girard and Casey against the opposition of Mr. Farrar. Mr. Moran states that he will claim his salary for the month.

Clearing up the Wreck.

The work of clearing up the wreckage resulting from the freight collision of last Friday afternoon commenced immediately after the accident, and was pushed rapidly until the last engine was on the rails early Sunday afternoon, and the work was entirely completed by Monday noon. The delay in traffic was only for a few hours, as the side track was pushed out from the wreckage and soon put into use for the regular travel. The work was under the personal direction of Supt. Nash, who kept things moving every minute. Hundreds of people watched the work all day Saturday and Sunday, and it was an interesting sight to see the box cars and especially the two engines brought on to the rails by the wreck train engine.

The damage to the cars and engines will not be as serious as at first thought. The loss on the engines, as estimated by Supt. Nash, will be in the vicinity of $1000. Several of the box cars and the tender of the north-bound engine were smashed beyond repair and there will be a considerable loss on goods damaged in the cars. Had the whole of the south-bound train been attached to the engine the breakage of cars and engine would have been much worse; as it was the force of the heavy north-bound train drove the south-bound engine, tender and one car far up the tracks so that much of the force was lost.

John Broadfoot was in the box car which was being unloaded and had a narrow escape from serious injury. He received a few bruises from being knocked from one end of the car to the other. The remains of Charles Gregg, fireman of the north-bound freight, who was the only person killed, was taken to New London, Ct., where his parents live, on the 7.10 train Friday night.

So far as known no action has been taken in regard to fixing the blame, but without doubt an investigation will be held later. The responsibility seems to rest at present on the flagman. He claimed immediately after the accident that he did not have time to get beyond the Academy bridge, but it is known that he had ample time to get up the tracks far enough to have stopped the train. It has been stated since the accident that the flagman was seen and talked with on the track in the vicinity of the Squier coal yards; if this is true, there would apparently be no excuse for his not being seen by the engineer if he was attending to his duty. If a hearing is held possibly more light will be shown on the matter.

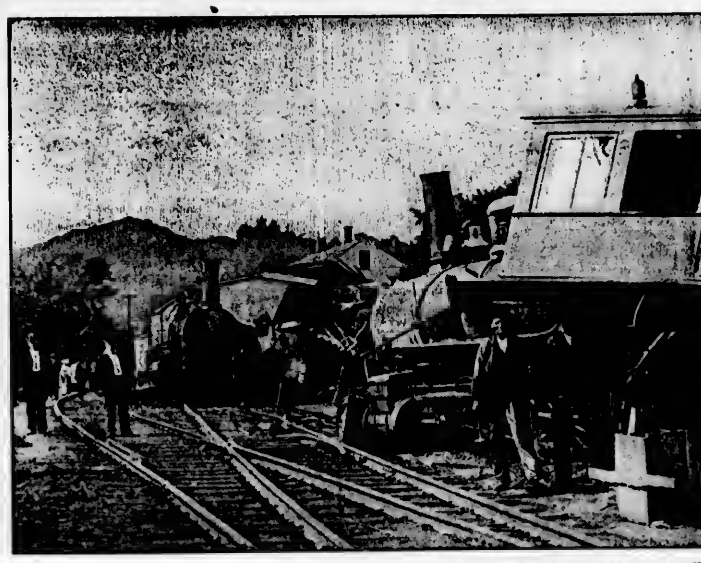
Nearly 90 of the residents of Green street and Lincoln street held a basket picnic on Dr. G. E. Fuller's lawn Tuesday afternoon and evening, it being a very pleasant occasion. In the evening there was an extensive display of fireworks.

The death of Mary G. Acker occurred at Swansea last week. Miss Acker was 20 years old and tuberculosis consumption was the cause of her death. She was well known to many people here, as this town was her home for several years. Burial was at Palmer Sunday.

Miss Catherine Murphy, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Murphy of Windsor Locks, Ct., died in the hospital at Hartford Wednesday night of appendicitis. Mr. and Mrs. Murphy have the sympathy of a large circle of relatives and friends in Monson, where they are well known. Miss Murphy was a graduate of the class of 1905 of the high school at Windsor Locks and was one of the most popular members of the class. Several from here attended the funeral.

The Central Vermont railroad has been severely critized this week for their failure to provide a sufficient number of cars for the special train from Stafford to Monson Tuesday afternoon. As it was two box cars were put into service and were well filled. Last year this same thing was done, but it was overlooked as it was not known how many would go, but this year there seems no excuse as it was expected there would be a large crowd and suitable accommodations should have been provided.



Wreck of two freight trains at Monson last Friday.

BRIMFIELD.

OUR BOSTON LETTER.

regard to international arbitration adopted by the Massachusetts state board of trade. The Department is always glad to receive evidence of the growing tendency of the people of the world to seek for and welcome any practical means of extending the sway of peace and averting the arbitrament of war in the settlement of differences between governments."

Though we hear much of the military and naval arms of the state to-day, with the opening of the Westfield camp to-day, yet there are strong forces busy for peace and they are making evident progress against the savagery and immorality of war. We have had our very quiet Fourth, showing that noise is not necessary to patriotism, and it will soon be proved that fighting is no more necessary.

To-day there opens in Baltimore the great international convention of the Christian Endeavor Society, but the founder, Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark, will not be present. For weeks he has been broken down with nervous prostration. For a while he was at Clifton Springs, N. Y., and when the season permitted, he went to his own place at Pine Point, near Portland, Me. He hoped to be able to attend the convention, but the last report from him was that he is in pretty bad shape, and it looks as if he would be laid aside for a long time. In part the trouble is caused by grip, but, back of that lies a vast amount of hard work, extending over many years, and now he must pay the penalty. With all the vast wealth which is held by a few men, illustrated especially in the Rockefeller case, in view of his gift of $10,000,000 to education, it seems rather a mis-distribution of funds that such work as Dr. Clark is doing should suffer so for lack of means. Every year there must be raised by the society $10,000 for the extension of the organization, for expenses and salaries of workers in different countries. The central organization has been so short of funds that Dr. Clark has written for papers and books when he has been traveling, in addition to his regular work for the society. He has been overworked and has broken down in consequence. Others in the responsible center of things are also hard worked and it is this pressure which is behind the effort to raise an endowment of $1,000 000. Next year the society will be 25 years old. There are about 4,000,000 members. It is proposed that each member shall give 25 cents, or one cent for every year of the society's life and thus get $1,000,000, whose income will relieve the present burdens immensely. The society has been very prosperous and to-day has more branch societies and a larger total membership than at any previous time, statements to the contrary notwithstanding. More societies are in existence in this country than ever before and the membership in this country is larger than before. In the states in the northern Mississippi valley there has been a great gain during the last two years. In foreign countries the advance has been great, particularly in Japan and China. In Japan the movement is in the hands of the Japanese themselves, who print their own paper in Japanese and send out their own organizers. In one instance the society has received a money gift from a Roman Catholic church.

Dr. Benjamin F. Trueblood, secretary of the American Peace Society, has returned from a trip to the West, where he went after the arbitration conference at Lake Mohonk, and he reports that he has added a good list of members to the society and delivered addresses where there was interest in the peace movement. The cause is spreading the more the war between Russia and Japan is protracted. That war has been a marked influence in the extension of peace principles and in making the peace effort popular.

Where the internal situation of Russia is understood there is not so much expectation of immediate revolution, owing to the immense obstacles in distance, communication and organization. The policy of the government in forbidding any private citizen to have a gun has made the Russian peasants a totally different class from our New England farmers at the outbreak of the Revolution, who were perfectly familiar with firearms and were good marksmen, besides being, many of them, practical soldiers in the French and Indian war. The Russians are badly handicapped, compared with our grandfathers, but reform ideas are making progress.

Gov. Douglas has returned from Monument Beach to the state house to-day and will probably be able to go to the Westfield camp on Friday, which will be governor's day, though he has some cough remaining.

LANDON.

Forming Characters.

No human being can come into this world without increasing or diminishing the sum total of human happiness not only of the present but every subsequent age of humanity. No one can detach himself from this connection. There is no sequestered spot in the universe, no dark niche along the disk of nonexistence to which he can retreat from his relations to others, where he can withdraw the influence of his existence upon the moral destiny of the world. Everywhere his presence or absence will be felt. Everywhere he will have companions who will be better or worse for his influence. It is an old saying and one of fearful and fathomless import that we are forming characters for eternity. Forming characters! Whose? Our own or others? Both, and in that momentous fact lie the peril and responsibility of our existence. Who is sufficient for the thought? Thousands of my fellow beings will yearly enter eternity with characters differing from those they would have carried thither had I never lived. The sunlight of that world will reveal my finger marks in their primacy formations and in their successive strata of thought and life.—Elihu Burritt.

Hunting Foxes With Eagles.

The hunting of foxes with eagles takes place among the Kirghese in the southwest district of Siberia in the autumn and early winter, when the foxes' coats are ruddy and perfect. The eagles are powerful birds, of such weight that a small wooden support is carried by the eagle bearer. A well grown bird of more than usually fierce temperament will occasionally kill a wolf. Directly any game is seen the birds make their flight and swoop down with great precision.

"One of these birds has to my knowledge," writes our correspondent, "killed seventeen foxes in six weeks. I can vouch for this killing of foxes by eagles, for I personally took photographs and saw the whole sport from beginning to end.

"Years ago I wrote a letter to the Field, telling how foxes swarm up small pine trees in Florida when a 'kill' appears imminent. I have frequently seen them do so, but I was politely told what an Ananias I must be."—London Sphere.

Insisted on the Contract.

Many of the best Patti stories are concerned with her early girlhood in the United States, when she was beginning to realize the great hold she had on the public with her voice. After a concert in which she took part in Ohio on one occasion a supper was given to the singers, at which many notabilities, including Judge Matthews, were present. Supper over, Judge Matthews pressed little Adelina to sing. Adelina, however, showed no inclination to oblige, so Matthews in desperation said, "Sing, and I'll do anything you like." "Anything?" asked Patti. "Anything," repeated the grave lawyer decisively. So the little girl sung "Home, Sweet Home." Hardly had she given the last note, however, than she said, "Now, Mr. Matthews, please stand on your head!" "You're joking, child," gasped the judge. "A bargain's a bargain," murmured the future diva. "Well," said Matthews, "here goes." And up went his feet amid the frantic applause of the company.

One Thing Certain.

"Of course, heat causes metals to expand. There's no doubt of that. Don't you believe it?"

"Well, at any rate, I know that a hot old time doesn't cause a five dollar gold piece to expand to any great extent."—Philadelphia Press.

Setting Him Right.

Husband—Well, madam, you've got your wish—you've married a rich husband. Wife—No, dear, I've married a rich man, but a poor husband.

One Dollar Saved Represents Ten Dollars Earned.

The average man does not save to exceed ten per cent of his earnings. He must spend nine dollars in living expenses for every dollar saved. That being the case he cannot be too careful about unnecessary expenses. Very often a few cents properly invested, like buying seeds for his garden, will save several dollars outlay later on. It is the same in buying Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It costs but a few cents, and a bottle of it in the house often saves a doctor's bill of several dollars. For sale by the Quimby Pharmacy, Palmer.

Billy Wharton's coming did not surprise Joe in the least. She had known something out of the common was going to happen ever since Saturday, when she had seen the new moon clear, had a black cat follow her home and then dreamed of getting safe across a clear running stream. All these were omens of good luck. It was the best sort of luck to have a boarder in the big front room upstairs, a gentleman evidently craving quiet, solitude and country fare. Mrs. Greer, Joe's stepmother, had been set against boarders. She would have none of them even yet but for that dreadful doctor's bill. She had been at death's door last winter, her first real illness. Though the doctor was in no hurry for his fee, her independence chafed mightily against having him wait.

Therefore Joe had had no new summer frocks. Therefore also she was not going to picnics and parties and things—anywhere, indeed, but to church, where the wearing of old clothes might be regarded as a sign of piety rather than poverty. The board money would change all that. In fancy Joe saw herself brave in new winter finery, holding up her head with the best. Her head had not really been drooped, for she was by nature spirited and full of fun. But the stepmoth*er was a little morbid on the point of Joe's lacks. In fear, it might be said,* she neglected the girl, who, it was well known, she did not love. Still they had got on fairly together until the epoch of Ransom Farley.

It was Mrs. Greer's nephew and prospective heir; hence it seemed to him but right and natural that he should marry Joe, who held a mortgage on the farm. Mrs. Greer had fetched her husband and his daughter home with her to live, and the Greer estate had been turned into cash and used to free the homestead from sundry incumbrances. Thus common interest had kept the two women together after Squire Greer died. Ransom thought it beautifully fit that they should go on living together and letting him take care of them. At least that was his way of saying it. Joe snapped that the caretaking would be all the other way. She had hated Ransom as a pink and white curly haired model child. She did not hate him less now that, although his curls were cropped and his complexion was somewhat tanned, he still held himself to the model standard.

Joe was slim and dusky—lithe as a sapling, with floss silk hair and eyes outflashing black diamonds. Wild roses blushed in her olive cheeks, her lips were cherry red and her voice full of flute notes. Billy Wharton had a weakness for pretty girls. He made love to all fate threw in his way. Naturally he made love to Joe. Naturally also he made her love him. He was the man of her dreams, in every way the opposite of Ransom and very unlike any of the farmer lads or callow city youngsters with whom she had been brought in contact. But because she loved Billy with heart and soul and strength she flouted him, laughed at him, made a pretense of quarreling and so kept him puzzled as to her frame of mind. Puzzling over a very pretty girl is bad for the affections if the puzzler wishes to escape free, but Billy did not know that in time. He tried all a man might to read this maiden riddle. He had been quite fair, he thought—had told her at the outset he couldn't afford to marry until he was gray and bald.

"I've nothing in the world now but myself," he had said. "And, though space rates give a decentish living for one, it's little short of criminal undertaking to make them furnish rations for two." Then straightway he had made Joe guide him to the deepest pool of the trout brook and stay with him at the stream side all through a summer morning. In course of the talk there she had somehow gathered that a long time ahead when certain lives and leases lapsed Billy would have a snug maintenance. Possibly the information had its weight. Possibly also it went over her head. Certainly, when in the sixth week of Billy's stay at the farmhouse Ransom was pleased to grow furiously jealous of him, Joe decided something must be done—and did it.

"Did you know there was a wedding coming off Sunday?" she asked of Billy Thursday at noon. Billy pulled out pencil and notebook, putting on his most professional air as he asked:

"Will you give me the names of the victims, please, Miss Greer? Also any other particulars of interest?"

"No! Go ask the preacher," Joe said, smiling mysteriously.

Billy went, but came back more than ever mystified. "The wedding is a fact," he said, "but a solitary fact. Brother Jones knows no more than we do—only that he has been asked to hold himself in readiness at the close of the morning service. Furthermore, he says you asked him. Confess, young lady. You are getting up a fine hoax."

"See if I am," Joe retorted, her head higher than common. She ran off almost instantly and was well nigh unapproachable throughout the next two days. But Saturday evening she walked with Billy all up and down the yard, the moon shedding silver flecks upon them, the roses in the garden filling the air with perfume. As they walked Billy held her hand, and insensibly, it seemed, she drooped toward him. Neither said very much. As the clock struck 10 Joe drew away from him with a little shudder, saying very low, "Maybe this is our last walk together."

But Billy, quite beyond prudence, flung his arms about her and kissed her full on the mouth, saying thickly, "It shall not be—I want you—always."

He slept little that night, but fell into a heavy doze at daylight. It lasted until it was almost time for church. The sight of her set his heart beating madly. She was all in white, bridelike indeed, with a knot of pale roses nodding on her breast. By their rising and falling he knew she was strangely stirred, yet when she motioned him to follow and sit beside her he obeyed, although Ransom Farley, whom he cordially disliked, was at her other elbow. All through the service she sat statue still notwithstanding he felt the tension of her mood increase. After the prayer and the closing hymn there was a general stir of people half rising or craning their necks to see who might be going up to the altar.

"I'm going to marry—somebody. Which shall it be?" Joe breathed rather than whispered in Billy's ear, glancing alternately at him and at Farley. He understood. With almost a bound he was up and in the aisle, holding her hand tight and almost dragging her forward. And then before he knew what was happening he heard the solemn, "I pronounce you man and wife."

The church buzzed like a hive, but through the buzzing Billy heard Farley Ransom shrieking hysterically, "I'll make you sorry for this, sir, before you are much older!"

Joe looked up at him, flushing a lovely scarlet. "It was the only way," she said. "I had to marry you now. You never would have come back."

Lovers of Coffee.

The London Globe doubts whether there is anywhere in the world a place more addicted to coffee than the little island of Groix, about nine miles distant from Lorient. The customs' records show that the annual consumption of coffee in the island is about 90,000 pounds. Now, the population is 5,300, and, as the men pass practically their whole lives afloat as seamen, this large quantity must be consumed by about 3,000 women, children and old men. It works out at thirty pounds a head per annum.

WHY IT SUCCEEDS.

Because It's For One Thing Only, And Palmer Is Learning This.

Nothing can be good for everything.

Doing one thing well brings success.

Doan's Kidney Pills do one thing only.

They're for sick kidneys.

They cure backache, every kidney ill.

Here is Palmer evidence to prove it.

Mrs. P. J. Sullivan of Pearl street, says:—"While I never had occasion to use Doan's Kidney Pills myself, my husband used them and they did him a lot of good. He had a weakness of the kidneys and heavy aching pain in his back for a long time. I have seen him so lame and sore across his back in the morning that he could not get out of bed without assistance. He tried other remedies but they did not do him any good. He got Doan's Kidney Pills at LeGro's drug store, used four boxes according to directions and they removed the lameness and righted the kidney secretions."

There is a superstition which says that engaged couples who are photographed together never get married. Superstition is gradually dying down, so that few would be kept back by an old woman's saying. There is, however, one thing which should keep engaged couples from being photographed together, and that is the thought that if either or both should marry some one else the fewer tokens there are of previous love affairs the greater is the chance of happiness in the final choice.

The game on the Fourth was with the Gilbertville team, which was defeated the second Saturday before. The game ended at the beginning of the last half of the eighth inning, when Gilbertville kicked on a decision of the umpire and refused to play. The score stood 9 to 6 in Palmer's favor at the end of the seventh. Gilbertville made one run in her half. Crowther, the first man up for Palmer, hit a long fly to left field which landed close inside the foul line, but safe, as stated by spectators who stood close by, then rolled out. Crowther sprinted to third and reached there just ahead of the ball. The Gilbertvilles at first demanded that he be declared out at third, and when it was refused they demanded that the fly be declared a foul. This was also refused and they declined to play further. The manager of the Palmer team offered to allow any man whom the Gilbertville manager would select to umpire the balance of the game and start the inning over, but the Gilbertville man made no move to order his players back and did not even decline the offer made him; in fact, he never went near his men in the matter, but remained on the side line until the team left the field. At the beginning of the kick the Gilbertville contingent on the grounds swarmed on the field, and they apparently had the controlling influence over the players. It was freely talked by Gilbertville visitors that if their team got behind and there was a chance to kick they would do so and leave the field. Palmer played a very pretty game, making four runs in the second inning and three in the third after two men were out. Martens was the particular star of the game; he got two doubles and a single in four times up, and made a beautiful one-hand catch of a hot liner in the fifth; in the sixth he made a one-hand catch of a hot ball after a hard run, and without stopping turned and compacted a pretty double play by a throw to first. Crowther, Allaire, Shaw and Loman did good work. The score:

Palmer Crescents 9, North Wilbraham Invincibles 8.

The Palmer Crescents defeated the North Wilbraham Invincibles last Saturday at the latter place by a score of 9 to 8. The game was interesting from start to finish. The Palmer team held the home team 7 to 2 until the eighth inning, when the home team brought in six runs on errors. The features of the game were the pitching of Smith for the Crescents, he striking out 17 men, and the heavy hitting of the Crescents. The score:

Monson 3, Stafford 0.

The Monson baseball team went to Stafford Springs, Ct., Tuesday morning by special train and covered themselves with glory by defeating the Stafford team 3 to 0 in an interesting game on the fair grounds. The team was accompanied by nearly 200 rooters. A misjudged fly by Mack in center-field gave Cartmill credit for a two-base hit and errors by McClelland and Smith gave the Monsons their three runs. For the afternoon game there were 330 tickets sold for the special train, and every team at the livery stable was let to people to drive to Monson. The crowd was so large that two box cars were put on to accommodate it. The score:

Monson 7, Stafford 6.

The Monson baseball team won its second game Tuesday afternoon with the Stafford, Ct., team on Flynt Park in Monson, making three games won out of the four played with that team this season. Up to the fifth inning the Stafford team had things all its own way, the score standing 6 to 0. Bailey, who pitched the first four innings, was hit badly and on safe hits the Staffords succeeded in making six runs in the third and fourth innings. In the fifth Cartmill was put in, and allowed but three hits and no runs. At the close of the ninth the game was a tie. In the tenth neither side scored, and in the eleventh the Staffords failed to make good and the Monsons scored, which finished the game. Cobb pitched a good game for the visitors, but was batted freely. The fielding of both games was excellent. A large and enthusiastic crowd was in attendance, and the game throughout was the most exciting played on the park this season, and was devoid of any unpleasant features. The score:

CHOLERA INFANTUM.

Child Not Expected to Live from One Hour to Another, but Cured by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Ruth, the little daughter of E. N. Dewey of Agnewville, Va., was seriously ill of cholera infantum last summer. "We gave her up and did not expect her to live from one hour to another," he says. "I happened to think of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and got a bottle of it from the store. In five hours I saw a change for the better. We kept on giving it and before she had taken the half of one small bottle she was well." This remedy is for sale by the Quimby Pharmacy, Palmer.

QUEEN OF DIAMONDS

By MARGARET RICHARDS

Copyright, 1905, by E. M. Doane

The usually cheery face of Mme. Fontaine, "palmist and card reader," was overcast. Even the invitingly clean little room where madame received the anxious seekers after wisdom shared in the pervading gloom. A crudely drawn hand covered with cabalistic signs had become detached from the wall and lay unheeded in one corner; the cards by whose aid coming events were evoked were pushed carelessly aside. It was evident that misfortune had fallen upon this faithful priestess of the future.

Nora McCabe had always been a wonder at "cuttin' the cards," and it was when Pat McCabe died (an event which the cards neglected to mention), leaving her with five little children, that Mme. Fontaine had sprung into existence. Having an average amount of quick Irish wit and more than an average understanding of human nature, Nora had prospered and as Mme. Fontaine she avoided tragedy and dealt mostly in romantic and glowing generalities.

But of late the fates had not shown madame the consideration due so faithful a follower. There had been a falling off in the number of people who came to explore the misty paths of the future under her expert guidance. Four of the children were too young to do much besides consume unlimited supplies of bread and butter, and the day before Jimmy, the eldest, had been brought home with a broken leg. In short, the outlook was serious.

"Though it isn't always ye can expect to be havin' the luck," sighed Nora, stooping to pick up the hand that pointed a mutely protesting finger at her from the corner.

Quite unconscious of the radiant picture she made against her dull surrounding, a girl, tall, graceful, tailor made, came swiftly along the shabby street. If her courage almost failed her, she made no sign as she walked steadily on. All the girls had been to Mme. Fontaine. Had she not told Margaret Doane that she would be married within a year, and was not Margaret even now on her wedding journey? To be sure, she had told Louise Henderson the same thing, and there was not even an admirer in Lou's horizon; but, then, every one makes mistakes sometimes, and Louise always was hopeless. She did not really believe in it. Oh, dear, no! But she did so want to know if John really were very angry. He might have known she did not care for that stupid Captain Carstairs.

With flushed face and trembling but determined fingers she pressed the button under the card bearing the legend "Mme. Fontaine" and soon stood quaking inwardly, but outwardly serene, before the door of the modest little flat.

Eleanor Robinson was called the prettiest girl in the Westchester set, and more critical eyes than madame's would have brightened at the radiant vision she made as she entered the little room and with shining eyes bent eagerly forward over the well known table upon which madame's experienced fingers had already placed the queen of diamonds.

"That's yerself," explained the woman as she deftly shuffled the cards, "and this," laying a heart above it, "is good luck to yerself an' yer wish, an' here's an offer, an' a foine offer it is, with money too. It looks like a marriage offer, an' 'tis from"— But whom it was from must forever remain a mystery, for a shrill voice from the next room called madame, and in her anxious haste Nora overturned the little table, and the fortunes of the queen of diamonds came to an ignominious ending on the floor.

"I'm that worried I don't know what I'm doin'," said madame as she came back, and, half crying, stooped to pick up the cards. "My Jimmy has his leg broke, an' him gettin' along so nice an' Mr. Chetwood sayin' his wages should be raised this Saturday comin'."

"Mr. Chetwood!" interrupted the girl in a strained voice. And madame's keen eyes noted the warm wave of color that flooded her face.

"Yes, miss," she returned, "Mr. Chetwood, the lawyer. It was a foine place for Jimmy, an' him likin' it an' gettin' into Mr. Chetwood's ways. An' now his leg's broke, an' no knowin' when he'll git another place," she added dejectedly, and in spite of herself a tear splashed on the recovered queen.

The girl rose. "I don't believe I care to have my fortune told today," she said nervously. "I—I've changed my mind, but I shall come to see you again," she said, her blue eyes sweet with sympathy. She took a bill from her bag and laid it on the table.

"Take these, too, for Jimmy," she said, loosening the violets from her furs. And with a smile and a quick little nod she was gone.

It was hours later that a tall, broad shouldered man knocked at madame's door and inquired for Jimmy McCabe. A few minutes later John Chetwood was holding Jimmy's grimy little hand and smiling down on the little freckled face that grinned back at him sheepishly.

"We cannot do without Jimmy, Mrs. McCabe," he said pleasantly, "so I shall depend on you to send him back as soon as possible." He took some bills from his pocket and continued: "I want you to take good care of him. No! No! That's all right!" as she tried to thank him. "You may pay it back when Jimmy wins his first case, or you might tell my fortune." He laughed good humoredly, looking quizzically at the weird hands decorating the little room beyond.

Madame gasped. Her warm Irish heart was full of gratitude to the two who had been so good to her. If only she could do something for them!

He watched her with amused interest as she slowly spread out the cards on the little table.

"Ye have success to yerself an' yer wish," she began in the time worn formula, "an' there's a light woman, the queen of diamonds," she added, her eyes fastened on the cards.

John Chetwood threw back his head and laughed delightedly. "I thought it was always a dark woman," he said.

"She's tall almost as yerself," Nora went on, "an' it's like one of the saints she is, with her sweet face an' eyes as blue as—as the violets," she continued.

The quick start of surprise John Chetwood gave did not escape madame's shrewd eyes, and she went on rapidly:

"She loves ye—there's somethin' come between ye—but she loves ye. Never mind what's been, say I—go to her; she's waitin' for ye. I see the weddin' card."

John Chetwood rose abruptly. "That's a great fortune. We'll have to look into that, Mr. Jimmy," he said, but his laughter was forced, and the lines on his face deepened as he ran lightly down the stairs.

He hesitated outside the shabby little flat. She lived to the north. A few blocks to the west his friends were waiting for him. He had tried to keep away from her. It was evident she cared for Carstairs, and he would keep his disappointment to himself and let no knowledge of it shadow her. What could that woman know about it? Nothing! Queer, though, about the violets. No; of course he didn't believe it, but he squared his shoulders and turned to the north.

The Human Nature Picture.

"You can talk all you want about the beauties of landscape pictures, etc.," said a well known Kansas City art dealer, "but it is the picture with the human nature in it that attracts the crowd. Put a human nature picture in a window with landscapes and it will be the only one noticed. Not long ago I noticed a number of small boys standing around our window. They stayed so long I went out to see what was attracting them. It was a picture of two cowboys leaving a newly made grave on the prairie, one of them leading a horse with an empty saddle. Over the grave stood a dog. Finally one of the boys said, 'Come on, fellers; we gotta go home.' 'I ain't done lookin' yet,' replied another, evidently his small brother. 'Well, come on; we've gotta go. You can come back tomorrow an' see it some more,' came from the first. 'Tomorrow mornin'?' asked the smaller boy. 'Yes.' 'All right,' he said, and off they went. During the day I noticed perhaps a dozen people bringing their friends up to see that painting. The picture that 'gets next' to a person is the one the big majority of people love."—Kansas City Times.

The Critic and the Lady.

Talleyrand, the noted Frenchman, possessed wit of so high an order that it has stood well the test of time, and his jokes are still good. The author of "Juniper Hall" gives two of his sayings to Mme. de Stael.

He was a great admirer of Mme. Recamier and Mme. de Stael, the one for her beauty, the other for her wit. Mme. de Stael asked him one day if he found himself with both of them in the sea on a plank, and could only save one, which it would be, to which he replied.

"Ah! Mme. de Stael knows so many things, doubtless she knows how to swim."

When "Delphine" appeared, it was said that Mme. de Stael had described herself as Delphine and that Talleyrand was the original of Mme. de Vernon.

Meeting the authoress soon afterward, Talleyrand remarked in his most gentle tone of voice:

"I hear that both you and I appear in your new book, but disguised as women."

A Czar and a Wheelbarrow.

When Czar Peter the Great visited England in 1698 William III. hired Sayes Court, the manor house of Deptford, for use as his court and palace, near the King's dockyard, where he proposed to instruct himself in shipbuilding and to work as a shipwright. During his tenancy the czar every morning either wheeled his favorite Menzikoff or was himself wheeled in a barrow in every direction over the cherished beds, walks and borders, trampling all into one general wreck. A path was broken through Mr. Evelyn's famous and almost impregnable holly hedge, which was 400 feet long, 9 feet high and 5 feet thick. In short, he did so much damage during his three months' residence from January to April 21 that Mr. Evelyn had as compensation £150 from the government.

Insects That Love Heights.

"On peaks where even bird life ceases," said an Alpine traveler, "and the eternal snow seems to have frightened all life away, I have always found insects. No matter how high I might climb in those awful solitudes, beetles and other bugs could be seen. The beetles dwell under the rocks and in holes in the earth. Their wings are small or missing entirely, for the snow circumscribes their wanderings, and they generally stay in one place all their lives. Even on the ice fields, where there is not a single outcropping of rock, but everything is white and frozen, there is a great six legged insect of cylindrical shape and coal black in color. It seems to be as comfortable in the snow as other insects are in a flower garden."

The First English Lighthouse.

It is to the Romans, who left so many marks of their presence in England, that Britons owe the first lighthouse. This was, and is still, the Pharos watch tower to the south of the keep of Dover castle. This is remarkable as the only remaining specimen of Roman work in the castle and as the earliest piece of regular masonry now existing in Great Britain. It consists of a casing of flints and tufa, with bonding courses of large Roman tiles filled with smaller stones. Its shape is octagonal outside, but square inside, the inner room measuring fourteen feet and the walls being ten feet thick. Repaired again and again, it was used at one time as a government storehouse.—London Chronicle.

"Is the house you now live in your own?"

"Not now."

"You have sold it?"

"No; got married."

THE TERROR

[Original.]

Russell Thurston was a genius. Now, there are nine chances in ten that a genius will be eccentric. Thurston was very eccentric. He built a house at least a quarter of a mile from any other house, with only one door, which he kept always locked. He lived alone on the upper floor, where he painted his wonderful works of art. The bell connecting with the door was in his room, and when it rang he would go to the window, from whence he could look down and learn who wanted to see him. If the caller was a man and came on business, Thurston would open the door by electricity. When goods were delivered they were placed in a box large enough to hold a piano. Thurston would hoist the box by a rope and pulley and take it in at the window. If a woman called, the artist would simply say "Busy," and down would go the window with a bang.

There was a girl in the neighborhood who from the number of her conquests had gained the sobriquet of "the Terror." Perhaps it is as well to refer to her solely by this name, since she is now a quiet married woman and the mother of children. The Terror, having brought down every other man of her acquaintance, found it impossible to bag Thurston simply because she couldn't get at him. But on being twitted upon there being one man independent of her she made a bet that she would bring Thurston to his knees within sixty days.

Soon after this there was a ring at Thurston's bell, and, looking out of the window, he saw the Terror with a companion standing below.

"We would like to see some of your pictures," said the Terror, with her sweetest smile.

"Busy," replied Thurston and slammed down the sash.

The next day two men called, saying that they had an order on him from the superintendent of buildings to permit them to inspect the house. Thurston told them to put the order in the box. He pulled it up and, recognizing it as a forgery, lowered it with the usual remark, "Busy." The men went away, one of them throwing off an ulster and revealing a woman's attire. The Terror waved an adieu to him.

Thurston after this attempt by the same woman began to fear for his safety. Such persistence was unusual. He sat down at his easel, but the absorption in his work necessary to its perfection had gone out of him. He was the more alarmed because there was something in the face, the manner, the voice of the woman that made him feel very queer. If he should become enthralled what would become of him as an artist? He had no faith in a man loving a woman and his art at the same time. He went to bed that night to dream that the Terror in the person of a witch on a broomstick rode past his window.

A week after this the bell rang one day, and on putting his head out of his window he saw the Terror below with a woman friend.

"What do you want?" he asked.

"I want you to paint my portrait."

"Not in my line."

The window went down, and Thurston went back to his easel. He was thoroughly frightened. He had entered into conversation with a woman seeking admittance, something he had never done before. Making a solemn resolution not to speak one word to her should she call again, he tried to work, but soon threw down his brushes to smoke. He was terror stricken at finding himself saying mentally:

"I hope she will."

The Terror did call again, but the moment Thurston recognized her he slammed the window. He was much pleased at the strength of his resolution.

One afternoon he called at his grocer's and gave an order. On looking up he saw the Terror in the back of the store. He slipped out, congratulating himself that she had not seen him.

The next morning there was a ring at the bell, and the butcher sent up a beefsteak. Then the grocer's wagon drove up to the house, the elevating box was loaded, and Thurston began to pull. He had ordered a number of packages, including several cases of wine. Nevertheless the load seemed heavy. He had no sooner got it to the window than two girls sprang into his room. One of them was the Terror.

There was a ring of laughter such as had never been heard in that studio before, though it came from the Terror's companion. The Terror herself had no sooner effected an entrance than she seemed to repent her act.

"Pardon two foolish girls," she said, "who have heard so much of your studio and your uncompromising attitude to women that we couldn't help wanting to be the only girls to enter it. All we ask is to be allowed for a few minutes to look at your pictures, and if you will not permit that we will go at once."

Thurston looked at the girl who confronted him with a wee bit of shame, a scarcely perceptible blush, a trace of assurance that was fast dying out, a concealed mirth and a great deal of reverence, which she really felt for the famous artist. He saw all these and knew he was beaten. He took his visitors to his different finished and unfinished works, explained his objects in them and asked a bit of information here and there as to their views upon certain points. He talked delightfully about art and finally brought out refreshments. After having spent two hours in the studio the girls departed.

There was a quibble about the bet, the losing party maintaining that it was the Terror who was caught. However, it was finally paid as a wedding present.

IN STRICT CONFIDENCE.

Women Obtain Mrs. Pinkham's Advice and Help.

She Has Guided Thousands to Health.—How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cured Mrs. Fred Seydel.

Mrs F. Seydel

It is a great satisfaction for a woman to feel that she can write to another telling her the most private and confidential details about her illness, and know that her letter will be seen by a woman only, a woman full of sympathy for her sick sisters, and above all, a woman who has had more experience in treating female ills than any living person.

Over one hundred thousand cases of female diseases come before Mrs. Pinkham every year, some personally, others by mail, and this has been going on for twenty years, day after day.

Surely women are wise in seeking advice from a woman of such experience, especially when it is absolutely free.

Mrs. Pinkham never violates the confidence of women, and every testimonial letter published is done so with the written consent or request of the writer, in order that other sick women may be benefited as they have been.

Mrs. Fred Seydel, of 412 North 54th Street, West Philadelphia, Pa., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Over a year ago I wrote you a letter asking advice, as I had female ills and could not carry a child to maturity. I received your kind letter of instructions and followed your advice. I am not only a well woman in consequence, but have a beautiful baby girl. I wish every suffering woman in the land would write you for advice, as you have done so much for me."

Just as surely as Mrs. Seydel was cured, will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure every woman suffering from any form of female ills.

No other medicine in all the world has such a record of cures of female troubles as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Therefore no prudent woman will accept any substitute which a druggist may offer.

If you are sick, write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice. It is free and always helpful.

DR. KENNEDY'S
Breaks no Hearts, Excuses no Crimes.

Dr. David Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is not a disguised enemy of the human race; where it cannot help, it does not harm. It is composed of vegetable ingredients and does not heat or inflame the blood but cools and purifies it. In all cases of Kidney troubles, Liver complaints, Constipation of the Bowels, and the delicate derangements which afflict women, the action of Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is beyond praise. Thousands of grateful people voluntarily testify to this, in letters to Dr. Kennedy; and with a warmth and fullness of words which mere business certificates never possess. It makes no drunkards—excuses no crimes—breaks no hearts. In its coming there is hope, and in its wings there is healing. We challenge a trial and are confident of the result. Your druggist has it. The Antalgica

was introduced to the public in 1848, since which time thousands of bottles have been sold each year to an appreciative public, which is a good evidence of its merits. It is adapted to so many ailments it should be in every household, for it cures all kinds of pains both internal and external. For Bronchial affections it is unrivaled by any article in the market. It is a sure cure for Cholera Morbus and Dysentery, if taken in season, also for Coughs. It is an effective remedy for rheumatic pains, stiff joints, swelled limbs, sprains, cramps, tooth ache and many other ills to which the flesh is heir. Try it and it will do you good. It is sold at 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle by The Quimby Pharmacy, LeGro's Drug Store and the proprietor,

THE ALCOHOL EXPLODED.

Lively Fire Started in Business Section of Palmer.

DRUG AND FRUIT STORES VICTIMS.

Latter Completely Ruined. Good Work of Firemen Prevents Serious Losses.

What might easily have been a serious fire, but which was so creditably handled by the fire department that the loss, compared with the possibilities, was only nominal, occurred in the heart of the business section of Palmer Saturday afternoon. The fire started in the rear of LeGro's drug store and rapidly communicated to the fruit store of Antonio Franceskette, which was directly in front of where the fire originated, and the fireman had a hard fight for about 30 minutes.

It was about 2 45 in the afternoon when Joseph Routhier, clerk in C. A. LeGro's drug store, went into the storeroom at one side of the main store to draw some alcohol into a large bottle. The place is very dark and he was using a siphon to draw from the barrel into the bottle; wishing to see if the bottle was full he lighted a match and discovered that it was already overflowing. He threw the match behind him, safe as he supposed, but there was evidently a much larger amount of alcohol on the floor than he was aware of, for the match fell into it and it immediately blazed up. The fire followed the alcohol on the floor to the bottle, and then up the rubber tube used as a siphon into the barrel, where it immediately exploded, blowing both heads out of the barrel. When Routhier saw the first flash of the fire he yelled and jumped up and back, to which act, and the fact that there was very little alcohol in the barrel, he probably owes his life, as his injuries consist of slight burns on one hand. Had the barrel been full of alcohol he would have been covered with the burning fluid and roasted to death. The room used by Mr. LeGro as a storeroom was the back half of the store adjoining his, the front half being occupied by Franceskett's fruit store, and the alcohol barrel was standing with one end next the partition dividing the two. The force of the explosion broke some small windows near the ceiling, and in an instant the fruit store was a mass of flames. So quickly did the burning alcohol enter that the proprietor, who was standing at the rear of the store, had to grope his way along the floor in order to get out. Some customers also had a narrow escape.

In the meantime E. C. Gould, another of Mr. LeGro's clerks, who was in the main store, had gone to the door of the storeroom and finding that Routhier was all right had started for the fire alarm box which was on the corner in front of the store; it failed to work when he pulled it. A. W. Holbrook, who does business directly across the street, was one of the first outsiders to see the fire, and drove at once to the engine house and pulled the box there, but it also failed to strike. He then drove to Chief Bills's market and took him to the engine house, where an alarm was rung from the tower. Fire extinguishers had been made good use of during this time, and had materially helped to keep the flames confined to the room where they started and the fruit store, through which they were shooting and extending clear across the wide sidewalk. The firemen arrived in a very few moments, some of them being on the street when the fire started and going to the engine house even before the alarm was sounded. Three lines of hose were laid, two from the hydrant at the corner of Main and Walnut streets across the street from the fire, and one from the corner of Walnut and Pleasant streets, only a block distant. One of the streams was carried in at the front of the fruit store and another in through the rear door of the drug store storeroom; the third was taken in through the drug store office window and through the door from the main store to the storeroom. This brought an attack on three sides, and Chief Bills directed that the streams be sent against the ceiling, so as to prevent the fire from working up and through. The water was thus made to do double duty, first on the ceiling and then falling on the fire on the shelves beneath. It was not long before the fire was under control, being confined to the fruit store and the drug store storeroom. It was a hot blaze while it lasted. The hydrant at the corner of Main and Walnut streets was shut down after a while, and on attempting to open it again it was found to be broken. It was dug up and investigation showed that a stone had evidently been put in through the outlet at the top some time when the hydrant was open, and had dropped to the bottom; it nearly filled the space between the side of the hydrant and the shut-off rod in the center, and plainly showed the marks where the valve had ground against it in the opening and shutting. Trouble was had with this hydrant at the time of the lunch cart fire, and the stone was probably the cause.

The loss by the fire cannot be determined yet. The damage to the building is at least $500. Franceskette's loss is $1000, with $700 insurance. So fierce was the fire in his store, and the deluge of water was so great that nothing of value remained, the stock being practically a total loss, unless it might be a few boxes of tobacco which had not been opened and into which the water did not penetrate. Mr. LeGro does not attempt to estimate his loss yet, as very little has been done in the way of clearing up. The greater portion of his damage is from water, and will be considerable.

The failure of the fire alarm to work is attributed to the wires coming in contact with limbs of trees and the green leaves, this making a ground which lessened the current of the batteries to such an extent that it was not powerful enough to work the system. The trees through which the wires run have been trimmed up this week, the branches interfering with the wires being cut away.

The block in which the fire started is in the heart of the business section, and had the flames secured a good start a large amount of damage might have resulted. In addition to the stores of LeGro and Franceskette the ground floor is occupied by Anthier & Son, paints and wall papers, Fred Thompson, market, and H. Letters, barber. The three upper floors are occupied by the Nassowanno hotel. Next the Nassowanno block on the east is Strong's block, separated by a space of about four feet, and east of this is the Feeney property, consisting of wooden buildings.

The J. F. Gallivan Building Company has the contract to build a cotton mill at Columbus, Ga., with power plant, storehouses and the usual buildings.

MONDAY'S SEVERE STORM.

Does Considerable Damage in Palmer and Other Towns.

A large number of the towns in this vicinity were visited by a severe electrical storm Monday afternoon, and considerable damage was done in several places.

Palmer did not suffer nearly so much as some of the other towns, neither was the storm so severe here. The rain began falling about 4, accompanied by lightning and thunder in generous amounts, and quantities of water fell. It was heavier in some parts of the town than others, and at Forest Lake junction the lightning struck a two-tenement house owned by the Thorndike Company, which was formerly the schoolhouse there. It struck the chimney at one end and went from there into the roof, making a hole about three by six feet; after running along the roof a short distance the lightning seemed to split and one branch slid down the roof to a dormer window, and after smashing the casing at one side disappeared. The other branch ran along the building to the other side, then down the roof and off, doing little damage. The house was occupied by Joseph Chabot and Arthur Lord, and no one was injured. At the epileptic hospital a large elm tree near the woman's building was struck, and a large oak tree near the horse barn. West of Palmer Irving Green had 10 chickens killed by lightning; when found their feathers were perfectly dry, thus disproving the old belief that feathers are a protection when lightning is about. The electric road had five cars burned out by the lightning, and all its block signals and telephones put out of commission. The telephone lines were also much in trouble for a time.

The storm in West Warren was an unusually severe one and several persons narrowly escaped injury by lightning. A two-story frame dwelling on the corner of Main and North streets was struck by a bolt of lightning soon after the storm broke. The glass in the upper-story windows was broken, the clapboards torn off and the plastering was knocked off the walls in various places in the upstairs rooms. The lightning then passed down through the flooring into rooms on the first floor, occupied as a grocery and general store by Mrs. H. H. Hebert & Sons, where there were three persons, J. Hormisdas Hebert, manager of the store, and two customers, Mrs. Oliver Dumas of No. 4 village and Henry Boisvert of Main street, all of whom were within from one to four feet of the path taken by the electric bolt. Mr. Hebert was lifted bodily from the floor and sent flying toward the ceiling. Boisvert was thrown forcibly to the floor, and received burns on the nose and face, while Mrs. Dumas fainted from the shock, and it was more than an hour before she was sufficiently revived to be able to proceed to her home. The labels were torn off more than 300 packages of canned goods, the screen door between the front and rear rooms torn off and shattered and sheathing ripped off from the inside wall. The damage done is estimated at between $600 and $700 The store was filled with a blue smoke, but investigation failed to disclose any blaze and the charged air gradually cleared. The effect of the electric current was felt in all the nearby buildings, and several persons in buildings nearby were knocked down. Four boys sitting in a doorway about 350 feet from where the lightning struck were tumbled pell mell into the street, receiving many severe bruises with contact from the tar sidewalk. During the storm an oak tree on the Ware road, a quarter of a mile from West Warren, was struck and fell across the road, delaying all traffic until removed after the storm.

In Wilbraham the telephone pole in front of the Collins place was struck by lightning, and the corner of a henhouse belonging to Ira G. Potter was also badly damaged by a bolt.

FATAL FALL FROM ROOF.

James Stebbins of Wilbraham Killed Tuesday Morning.

James Stephens of Wilbraham was fatally injured Tuesday morning about 9 o'clock and died about half an hour later. He was engaged in doing repair work on the cupola of Rich hall at Wesleyan Academy and the ladder on which he stood slipped, throwing him from the cupola to the roof of the ell, a distance of between 40 and 50 feet. His injuries proved fatal and he died soon after.

Mr. Stephens had resided in Wilbraham nearly 35 years, and his death was a great shock to the community. He was born in Birmingham, Eng., 57 years ago, and was the son of Isaac and Mary Randall Stephens. He came to this country 35 years ago, and had since had charge of the repair work at Wesleyan Academy. He was a member of the Memorial Methodist church, being a member of the official board and a class leader for many years. He leaves a widow, eight sons and five daughters. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon, and was under the direction of Newton lodge of Masons. Prayer was offered at the house at 2 o'clock, with services at the Memorial Methodist church at 2.30 Burial was in the family lot in Woodlawn Dell cemetery.

Barn Burned in Hampden.

The barn on the farm of Thomas H. Ingraham in Hampden was burned early Sunday morning. The barn is situated on the Springfield road, about three miles west of the village. Mrs. Ingraham was awakened by the crackling of the flames and aroused the family, but nothing could be done to save the building. All the live stock was in the pasture. About three tons of hay and farming tools, wagons, etc., were burned. The insurance on the barn was $800, and $300 on the contents. The loss is estimated at about $1500. The origin of the fire is unknown.

OLDEST RESIDENT DEAD.

Robert Wright, a Long-time Resident of Wilbraham.

PASSES AWAY AT RIPE AGE OF 94.

For 61 Years a Trustee of Wesleyan Academy, and Prominent in Town Affairs.

Robert Russell Wright, 94, the oldest resident of Wilbraham, died at his home on Main street in that town Sunday morning at 3.30, after a two-months' illness with bronchial trouble.

Mr. Wright was born January 21, 1811, in South Wilbraham, which is now Hampden. He received his education in his native town, and taught for a time in this state and Ohio. He was married in 1838 to Louise W. Carpenter of Monson, who died in 1851, leaving two sons and two daughters. In 1855 he married Eliza S. Rice, who died some years later.

In the spring of 1839 Mr. Wright came to Wilbraham Center to live and was in business many years. He was elected a trustee of Wesleyan Academy in 1853, and during his 61 years as trustee of the school he attended the annual meetings consecutively 59 years, having a deep interest in the welfare of the institution. He was a prominent member of the Memorial Methodist church, being a member of the official board for many years. In politics he was a Republican and voted every year since he was 21. Mr. Wright retained his faculties to a remarkable degree to the time of his death and was deeply interested in the welfare of the town and the citizens.

Mr. Wright leaves two daughters and one son, Emily E. Wright of Wilbraham, Mrs. J. W. Kellogg of East Orange, N. J., and Robert R. Wright, ex-mayor of Denver, and one brother, George Wright of Springfield. He also leaves six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Dr. W. R. Newhall officiating, assisted by Rev. A. L. Howe. Prayer was offered at the house at 2 o'clock, with services at the Memorial Methodist church at 2.30. Burial was in the family lot in Woodlawn Dell cemetery.

Fire in Car Loaded With Oil.

The Palmer firemen were called out at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening for a fire in a car loaded with oil in the Boston and Albany freight yard. The car had been sidetracked because of a hot bearing, and the blaze had worked up into the car along the oil which had leaked from the [illegible] with which it was loaded. It stood only a short distance from the oil warehouse of E. A. Buck & Co., and gave the firemen a lively fight for a time. Two streams were played on the flames, which were practically confined to the car in which they started, although two other cars caught fire and were slightly scorched.

HOLLAND.

Henry Shaw of Boston, visiting agent for state aid, was in town Tuesday.

Louisa Howlett of Easthampton is spending the summer with relatives here.

Harold Breckinridge of Sturbridge visited Franklin Hebard the first of the week.

May Drake of Wales has been the guest of her friend, Charlotte Roper, the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Pierson are furnishing a tenement for housekeeping at L. M. Howlett's.

Marion Webster of Union, Ct., has been visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Blodgett.

Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Moore have been receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter, July 5.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bennett of Palmer were guests at the home of Mrs. Bennett's brother, C. F. Roper, last week.

Charles and Erwin Bennett of Hampden are spending a few weeks with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Bennett.

F. A. Blodgett of Wilbraham is spending part of his vacation with his sisters, Mrs. J. F. Hebard and Mrs. W. L. Webber.

Mrs. Emily Brown, who recently sold her farm to Fred Adams of Fiskdale, has moved her household goods to the home of O. L. Howlett.

BELCHERTOWN.

Everett Clapp.

Everett Clapp, 83, died at Westerleigh, Staten Island, N. Y., last week Thursday. Mr. Clapp was a native of Belchertown and had spent his early life in that place. Mr. Clapp retired from active business several years ago. During his life in New York he was a charter member of the Union League Club, mayor of the city of Yonkers, president of the Palisade bank, vice president of the Star Arms Company, treasurer and general manager of the Western Transportation Company and president of the Clapp Memorial library at Belchertown. Mrs. Clapp died several years ago. [illegible] son, Leffingwell K. Clapp, and a grandson, with his brother, D. P. Clapp of Brooklyn, N. Y., are the only immediate relatives. The funeral was held Saturday afternoon at Westerleigh and burial was in Greenwood.

The assessors have announced the tax rate to be $17 80 per thousand, 99 cents higher than last year.

L. V. Cook, a former Belchertown resident, and his wife were in town last Friday and Saturday for a visit with friends.

The body of Mary Dickinson, wife of James Marshall of Middletown, Ct., was brought here Tuesday for burial. Mrs. Marshall was a native of Belchertown and the youngest daughter of Franklin Dickinson.

Our Boston Letter

It tells about

Department Store Matters and Hot Weather Politics.

BOSTON, July 12, 1905

It comes from the inside of one of the establishments named that the clerks in the Jordan Marsh Company and in Shepard, Norwell & Company, before going on their vacations this summer, signed a contract or agreement with their employers not to leave them before February in any event. The reason for this arrangement, so it is said by a man on the inside, is to prevent any of the clerks from taking their vacation at the expense of their present employers and then, immediately after, entering the service of the Henry Siegel Company, the new monster establishment on Washington and Essex streets. It is not said that the clerks were required or forced against their wills to sign the agreement, but that they did it. This shows what a disturbance the entrance of the Siegel Company into the field is expected to create. Within this shopping district are a certain number of people. These people trade at existing stores. Henry Siegel will not bring in a new constituency, but must draw from the present one, and it will take a pretty heavy draft to support such an establishment as he has built house room for. At the same time, Houghton & Dutton are finishing their big new block where the Congregational House stood till recently, and this will give accommodations for much more new business for them. In the mean time, White is having a big "reconstruction sale," shifting things around generally, which seems to be one of the devices of the trade, to seem to be up with the times. A "removal sale" is going on at the venerable firm of Chandler & Company on Winter street, which is going over to Chartler's old stand on Tremont street fronting the Common, and the department stores are preparing for strenuous times when the new competitor fairly opens his guns.

At the same time the crowding of more business into the small center of the city and the erection of tall office buildings continues. Right across the street from the post office the Rialto building is coming down, and on the further corner of the block diagonally across the street another building is undergoing demolition. Several new buildings within a stone's throw have been in use less than a year. These buildings which are being removed, be it remembered, were built since the big fire of 1872 and so are just about 30 years old. Of course they are not worn out by any manner of means, nor unsightly, nor unsafe, nor anything else wrong except being out of date and smaller than is profitable to keep in such a situation. So down they come, making room for skyscrapers to be as full of offices as a pigeon loft is full of pigeon holes. But the detestable condition of New York can never be duplicated in Boston as long as the present law stands, for no building can be over 125 feet high in the prescribed district, not counting the ornaments at the top, nor can any building be more than two and a half times the width of the street upon which it fronts. So the city is largely protected and can retain some sort of appearance as a place where health and beauty are not wholly forgotten in the rush for the almighty dollar. The business section is gradually undergoing a transformation, and now the new subway is being added in order to promote the concentration of business within the small space into which it is trying to crowd itself, without spreading out as would be most desirable from every point of view but the dollar's, and perhaps from that. Meanwhile the city cultivates parks and breathing spaces and does what it can to protect the health of body and soul in such unhealthful surroundings.

It has been quite a sight, yesterday and to-day, to see the candidates for the degree of M. D. hard at work on the fourth floor of the state house in the corridor where they were forced by lack of sufficient committee room. Of the 180 applications for the degree, six were women. Five sat side by side at one of the end tables, so that they did not mix with the men any more than was necessary. The average age of the 180 is said to be about 28 years. The young men were not abashed by the presence of the women so but that they peeled themselves for their work as if it were an athletic contest,—not quite as much as for a boat race, but coats were almost off, vests followed suit in many instances, and some went further and rolled up their sleeves, perhaps imagining that the examination papers were to be treated like a case in surgery. Dr. Edwin B. Harvey of Westboro, the chairman of the board of registration in medicine, says that the board insists upon making the examinations a little more searching every year. This compels the medical schools to give thorough instruction if they wish their graduates to pass the examinations, and the consequence is that the public is being better and better protected against incompetent doctors. Our system of registration in medicine, which was opposed desperately in the Legislature by every quack and charlatan and many tolerable physicians in the state, has established itself so firmly that the people would doubtless oppose strongly any effort to return to the old order of things. The law was necessary to protect the public against the quacks of other states, who were being driven out of their former quarters by legislation, and we simply had to keep up our end in the struggle for a better educated medical profession. Thus far the law has abundantly justified itself. The applicants this year have been an exceptionally promising set, with less of the careless and more of the scientific aspect in face and bearing.

It will be noticed that the Christian Endeavor endowment, of which mention was made last week, emerges from the Baltimore convention in the form of a proposition for a fund of $2,000,000, part of which is to be used for the central building in Boston. At present the headquarters are on the sixth floor of Tremont Temple, while the editorial rooms of their paper are on the seventh floor. For such a world-wide movement they occupy small and inaccessible quarters, and if they succeed in their $2,000,000 plan they will doubtless have one of the handsomest buildings in the city. In the meantime, to accompany this stimulating proposition, comes the announcement this morning that Boston is likely to have a hippodrome costing $1,000,000. Both of these enterprises would add to our cosmopolitan population and aspect.

Following yesterday's meeting of the Democratic state committee there is to be said to-day that Josiah Quincy, chairman of the committee of 15 appointed to wait on the governor and try to induce him to run again, says that he shall write to the governor at once, asking when it will be convenient for him to receive the committee. Thus far there are no signs whether

The Journal.

FRIDAY EVENING, JULY 14, 1905.

DON'T CARE FOR MORE.

If the belief of many—that fires run in bunches of three—has any foundation in fact, it behooves the fire department to be on the qui vive until after the next alarm at least, for we've had two within a week. No objection will be offered however if the third is cut out this time.

WANT IT ON MAIN STREET.

The fire of last Saturday afternoon demonstrated the desirability of having the small hose jumper located on Main street. This the prudential committee of the fire district was instructed to do if possible when the new hose wagon arrives, and they will doubtless do their best to carry out the wishes of the voters.

FIREMEN DID WELL.

That the firemen are deserving of praise for the manner in which the LeGro drug store fire was handled no one will deny. Blazing alcohol, thrown by an exploding barrel to all parts of the room in which it was stored as well as through a partition into another room on the first floor of a business block, offers ideal conditions for a big blaze and enormous loss. That it was confined to the place where it started was wholly due to the quick and effective work of the fire department, for which the boys are entitled to a large measure of credit.

HE'S WORTH KEEPING.

Friends of Representative A. D. Norcross of Monson, when they nominated him from the First Hampden district, were sure that he would prove not the least of the aggregation under the gilded dome. That their views were good is evidenced by the following from "Practical Politics," a Boston paper devoted to political matters of the state in general and those of the state house in particular. It issued a biographical number last week, containing cuts and sketches of every member of the Legislature, and of Mr. Norcross it said:

> The really striking semblance which he bears to Mark Twain has ceased to be a subject of comment to those who have become acquainted with Arthur D. Norcross of Monson. Meanwhile there has grown up a very decided admiration for his ability and his ideals.
> Somehow the matter of ideals is the last thing one looks for in legislators. His business moves, the amount of his money, his hobbies, all become a subject for general comment, but the inquiry as what ideals a member of the general court may have is rarely put.
> Yet in the case of Mr. Norcross it is recognized that he has them. He has first of all a firm belief in the honesty of the general court, and also the belief that no man should vote on a bill for other people unless he understands it himself.
> Last year a member of the lobby approached him at one time asking him to vote for a certain matter. "But why?" asked Norcross.
> "Because," said the man, "a lot of your friends are going to vote for it and we thought you might like to be with them."
> It was a fatal remark.
> Norcross, as is his custom, had made a private study of the measure, but he was a little undecided about it. When he found that a paid advocate of the measure could only bring forward as a reason for its passage that some other men were going to vote for it, he decided it could go over, and voted accordingly.
> The studying of measures is his practice and he is without doubt one of the best posted men at all times on the internal structure of measures under discussion. He is on the labor and prison committees, and clerk of the latter.

Mr. Norcross has served his constituency very acceptably for two years, being named first by his own town, Monson, and last year by Palmer. It is the plan of the Republicans of the district to send him again to the House this fall, and then next year, when the senatorial nomination comes to Eastern Hampden, to nominate him for senator.

REPORTS from the mobilization of troops just ended at Westfield indicate that a generous amount of lawlessness was indulged in by a certain contingent among the men. Beginning with refusing to pay their fare on the electric cars, they indulged in various forms of rowdyism and nuisance, ending with the theft of several hundred dollars' worth of whips from some of the factories as souvenirs. It is not an inspiring condition. The militia is looked upon by most people as intended to maintain order instead of creating disorder, but evidentally a goodly number have lost sight of their obligation, and it might be well to weed such out of the companies. Fortunately they are not counted as in the ascendancy.

THE narrow escape from a serious mixup on Knox street last evening, when a horse which had been left unhitched became scared at an auto, calls attention to the practice, which has become almost universal of late, of leaving horses without hitching in all parts of the village. Particularly is this noticeable on Main street, where animals of all dispositions are left at all times of the day in all places. Only this morning a high-spirited animal was left standing for some time on one of the busiest corners with no one near. Electric cars and automobiles are passing through the business section of the village at all times, and it is decidedly unsafe to leave horses unhitched in that locality.

THAT the weather of the past week has been fierce all will agree. Even the oldest inhabitant scarcely remembers the time when the mercury ranged from 90 to 95 degrees in the shade for six days at a time without any let-up. To-day there is a little more air stirring, but the atmosphere is not much better than during the six days preceding. It is a condition to try the patience of humans to the utmost, and a good time in which to be careful of what one eats and drinks.

AN opportunity to do a large amount of good with a little money is offered by the "penny a day" banks which the Salvation Army has recently placed in numerous places about town. They are small tin affairs securely sealed, and are left with the invitation to contribute at least a penny a day. The money is to be used in giving poor children of the large cities a taste of fresh air in the country or at the shore. Money thus given is certain to be used to good effect.

COL. A. H. Goetting of Springfield has announced that he is a candidate for the Republican nomination for lieutenant-governor. Col. Goetting has many friends in Western Massachusetts who hope that he may win out, and his declaration some time ago that he does not consider the second place on the ticket as a stepping-stone for higher honors will tend to win him support in many quarters.

No doubt those who are anxious to have Gov. Douglas run again will advance—to them—good and valid reasons why he should be a candidate once more, but it is not unreasonable to presume that the Governor went over the matter fully before he made his statement that he would not again be a candidate, and that he will stick to that decision.

Tax Rate Will Be Lower.

The assessors have so far completed their work as to be able to announce the tax rate, which will be $16.10 on $1000, a decrease of 90 cents from last year. The fire district rate will be 2 15, an increase of 15 cents over last year. Residents of the fire district will pay an aggregate of $18.25, or 75 cents less than last year.

LOCAL NOTICES.

Fancy shirtwaists and skirts made, also ladies' repair work done at the Stebbins house at the head of Pearl street.

PALMER NEWS.

Automobile Tourists.

The Glidden tourist party, consisting of 33 touring cars bearing more than one hundred automobile enthusiasts, passed though Palmer Wednesday on their way to the White Mountains. The party left New York Tuesday morning, spending Tuesday night in Hartford, Wednesday night in Boston, and expected to reach Portsmouth, N. H., last night, and to make the trip from that place to the White Mountains to-day. This is not a speed contest, but simply a 1000-mile reliability tour for a trophy offered by Charles J. Glidden. The first car went through Palmer about 7 o'clock Wednesday morning, and small pieces of white paper were scattered by the occupants to indicate the route to the cars following. Numerous conditions are made for the trophy, one being that the car shall be driven by the owner or a driver approved by the Glidden committee, and not changed unless such operator is incapacitated during the contest, the owner being a passenger in the car. Cars are privileged to start each morning between 6 and 10 o'clock, but neither before nor after the hours designated, except with the penalty of a discredit mark. Each car to retain a perfect score must register before 9 o'clock at each night stop, and on arrival must take its place immediately behind the car in front until it can be properly recorded. Each car shall have prominently displayed an official number on each side, or on front and rear of car, numbers to be allotted in order of entry. The party will spend four days in the mountains and will return home by an entirely different route from that outward bound.

Was a Former Palmer Boy.

"Practical Politics," a Boston publication, had the following to say in its biographical number last week of Charles A. Andrews, representative to the General Court from the city of Holyoke; Mr. Andrews was formerly a resident of Palmer and a graduate of the Palmer high school:

> Holyoke's representative for two years on the ways and means committee, Charles A. Andrews, has made his influence felt both in the committee room and on the floor of the House. He is an insurance man, with the knowledge of financial matters without which no man in these days of close competition in insurance can hope to be successful. Mr. Andrews has invariably been on what he believed to be the right, if not always popular, side of public questions. Notably was this true in regard to the veteran's gratuity bill, the adverse report thereon from the ways and means committee having been placed in the hands of Mr. Andrews to defend on the floor of the House. He was facing certain defeat when he addressed the Legislature, but he made an earnest and logical presentation of the case from the point of view of the committee.
> In the matter of the Hampden Electric company, the incorporation of which was believed to be detrimental in some respects to the city of Holyoke, Mr. Andrews secured the adoption of amendments to protect the cities of Holyoke and Chicopee, both of which have municipal plants. For his work on this bill he received high praise in the newspapers in his city and the western part of the state. Rep. Andrews is a native of Holyoke, his date of birth being July 2, 1872, and is a graduate of Amherst. Prior to taking up the insurance business he was a teacher in the public schools of Holyoke.

Stole a $50 Bill.

Clemens Majocha of Bondsville was brought into the district court yesterday morning, charged with the larceny of $50 from John Kohart. He was found guilty and sent to the house of correction for six months. Majocha and Kobart boarded in the same house in Bondsville, and the latter was preparing to go to Poland for a visit. He was given $50 by a countryman who wished to send that amount to relatives in Poland. He sewed the money in the inside pocket of a vest, which he packed in a trunk in his room. The following morning he found the trunk open, the pocket cut open and the money gone. The landlady had seen Majocha come from the room and he was suspected of the theft. He was charged with it, but protested his innocence. Officer Collins was then called upon and demanded the return of the money from Majocha, who finally gave it up, stating that he had found it in the room on a shelf and had intended to return it.

Excursion to Block Island.

Lovers of seashore should make their plans to take in the grand excursion to Watch Hill and Block Island to be run by the Central Vermont railroad to New London and the steamer "Block Island" Thursday, July 27th. For the round trip from Three Rivers, Palmer, Monson and South Monson to either point only $1 for adults and 75 cents for children, tickets at these rates being good only July 27. Tickets good to return until July 31 inclusive will be sold at $1 50 for adults, $1 for children. Special train will start from Three Rivers about 7.25 a. m., Palmer about 7.30, stopping at Monson and South Monson. A special will also be run returning from New London at 5 p. m., on arrival of steamer that day. Electric cars will be run from Bondsville, Ware, Thorndike and Forest Lake to connect with the special train going and returning. See flyers for exact time of special train and further particulars.

Stafford Springs and Palmer To-morrow.

The ball game on the driving park to-morrow afternoon will be between the Palmer and Stafford Springs teams, and will be well worth seeing, judging from the record of both. The Palmers have played eight games and are yet to be defeated; the Stafford team is the strongest in Northern Connecticut, and has defeated all the strong teams in this vicinity, though the Monson team has a record of defeating the Staffords twice on the Fourth. Changes which have been contemplated for some time have been made in the Palmer team, and they will try hard to send Stafford home defeated. Lovers of baseball will have an opportunity to see some good playing to-morrow. The game will be umpired by "Eddie" Carolin of Springfield, an umpire in the Connecticut state league.

Will Increase Storage Capacity.

The Palmer Water Company announces that it has plans partially perfected for the increasing of its storage capacity of water to a point which will place it beyond the possibility of a repetition of last year's experience, when the supply reached so low a point, considerably below 1,000,000 gallons. Some surveys have been made about the reservoir, and more will be made later. While the company has not definitely decided the full extent of the changes, in a general way it is proposed to raise the present dam several feet, thus making a deeper reservoir as well as flowing considerably more ground than at present. The exact extent of the increase has not yet been figured.

Chicken Thieves at Palmer Center.

A resident of Palmer Center complains that he lost 75 chickens by thieves in one night recently, and others also report the loss of fowls. Reports of similar depredations have come from this section before, and an effort will doubtless be made now to capture the guilty parties.

Haynes & Co., the "always reliable" clothiers of Springfield, advertise that during July and August they will close Monday evening, and at 12.30 Wednesday afternoon.

Much complaint is heard of the large amount of malicious mischief indulged in of late by boys and even young men. The band stand on the common has suffered a good deal of late, and pickets have been torn from fences in numerous places. Some of those who have suffered are thinking seriously of making an example of some of the offenders in the hope that a stop may be put to the work.

THREE RIVERS.

Death of Mrs. C. S. Russell.

Ellen Josephine Russell, 48, wife of Charles S. Russell, died at the House of Mercy hospital in Springfield Tuesday morning. She was born in St. Albans, Vt., in 1857, and in 1876 she was married to Charles S. Russell, when they came to Three Rivers, where she lived until two years ago when they moved to Springfield. She however retained an interest in Three Rivers, and her death is a source of much regret to the people of this village. She is survived by a husband, Charles S., of Springfield, a father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Perro of Three Rivers, a brother, William Perro of Boston, and three children, Raymond of Springfield, Walter of Lebanon, N. H., and Mrs. B. A. Green of Three Rivers. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon in the Baptist church, Rev. D. C. York officiating; burial was in the Four Corners cemetery.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hopfe died Sunday morning. The funeral was held Monday afternoon at the home, Rev. E. B. Marshall officiating, and burial was in Pine Grove cemetery in Warren. Mr. Hopfe left his family in West Warren in March and went to Oklahoma and is preparing a home for his wife and family. Since his departure two of his five children have died.

WALES.

A dance was held at the pavilion last Saturday night.

The ten-years-old son of Edmund Rood was severely burned on the Fourth.

Mrs. C. M. Thompson entertained her daughter, Mrs. C. Parker, and family of Warren last Sunday.

Clarence Corbin of Worcester is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Corbin for a few days.

Andrew Motts had the top of one of his fingers amputated this week as the result of a bruise sustained some time ago.

Miss Lydia P. Fiske and Jack Midgal were quietly married at the Baptist parsonage Wednesday evening by Rev. E. B. Dolan.

HAMPDEN.

Heavy Taxpayers.

The total valuation of the town of Hampden for the year 1905 is $373 645. The tax rate is $14 50 on $1000. The following pay a tax of $50 or over: John Bartlett, $84; heirs A. C. Burleigh, $171; S. D. Beebe, $71; G. T. Ballard, $52; A. F. Ballard, $72; heirs Silas Chapin, $61; N. M. Carew, $85; S. P. Chapin, $54; E. A. Day, $119; J. N. Isham, $93; E. C. Kibbe, $52; A. W. Lee, $67; Mrs J. W. Leonard, $118; D. R. McCray, $73; heirs J. B. Morris, $64; James W. Mulroney, $51; Phoenix Spinning Company (non-resident), $82; W. J. Sessions, $145; heirs Sumner Sessions, $54; Sumner Smith, $70; E. H. Temple, $100; Thresher brothers, $178; M. H. Warren, $58; heirs Edward Wall, $57; C. N. Whitaker, $64; Henry Warner, $54.

NORTH WILBRAHAM.

Station Broken Into.

The North Wilbraham depot was broken into sometime Wednesday night, entrance being gained by breaking the glass out of the upper sash and unfastening the catch of a window in the ticket office. The top sash was then pushed down and the thief climbed over the top, as the lower part of the window is covered with an iron grating. Nothing was taken from the office except a hat belonging to the ticket agent, C. D. Spencer, for which a dark blue cap was left. It is thought that the burglars were frightened away before further damage could be done.

Officer A. F. Friend has received the warrant for unpaid dog taxes, which contains 41 names, and will proceed at once to collect each tax, with 50 cents extra for his trouble, or kill the dogs and prosecute their owners.

WILBRAHAM.

C. E. Officers Elected.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Congregational church has elected the following officers for the next six months: President, Miss Dora A. Bliss; vice president, Luther Bruner; corresponding and recording secretary, Miss Carrie A. Moody; treasurer, Miss Dora Miller; prayermeeting committee, Luther Bruner, Allen J. Robb and Miss Dora Miller; lookout committee, Miss Edith Bodurtha, Miss Olive Bryant, Miss Carrie A. Moody; social committee, Mrs. L. J. Potter, Miss Helen Wade, Miss Eva Gebo; flower committee, Miss Dora Miller, Miss Maud B. Hubbard, Chester Bryant; music committee, Miss Dora A. Bliss, Miss Eva Gebo, Mrs. L. J. Potter; organist, Miss Dora A. Bliss; chorister, Miss Eva Gebo. The society has voted to contribute toward a baby organ, which is to be purchased by the Springfield Christian Endeavor Union, and to be used in the work taken up by them at the hospitals, and to contribute toward the coal bill of the rescue mission.

Dr. Sarah Frances Whiting of Wellesley college will spend the remainder of the summer with Miss Louise Manning Hodgkins at her summer home on Main street.

William B. Peltus of Mobile, Ala., traveling secretary of the Y. M. C. A., and wife and Miss Louise DeForest of Sendai, Japan, will spend the summer in town with Mrs. N. M. Flagg on Main street.

WARREN.

Mrs. James M. Reilly and children have gone to Beverly, where they will remain during the summer.

Milton Lathe had two fingers badly lacerated Tuesday while sawing wood with a power circular saw.

John Pinkneuk, employed at the Sayles & Jenks Manufacturing Company, was caught in a belt Wednesday afternoon and thrown, striking on his head. He received bad cuts on his forehead and head.

District Deputy R. W. Nelligan and suite of Amherst installed these officers of Nenameseck tribe of Red Men Monday night: Sachem, Thomas Fay of Gilbertville; S. S., Thomas J. Riley; J. S., Charles A. Currier; P., Henry J. Sullivan.

Joseph, the two-years-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Ethier, had a narrow escape from drowning Tuesday afternoon. While playing near the house the child uncovered a well and fell in. Rollo Brosseau climbed down the 15 feet and rescued the child, who received a good drenching, but was otherwise unharmed.

Edward L. Benson, 62, was found dead at his home in South Warren Wednesday morning by neighbors who had called to see him. Dr. C. A. Deland, medical examiner, was called and decided that the man died of heart disease, from which he had suffered for some time. Mr. Benson had lived alone for some time, and leaves no near relatives. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon, and burial was in Sturbridge.

WARE.

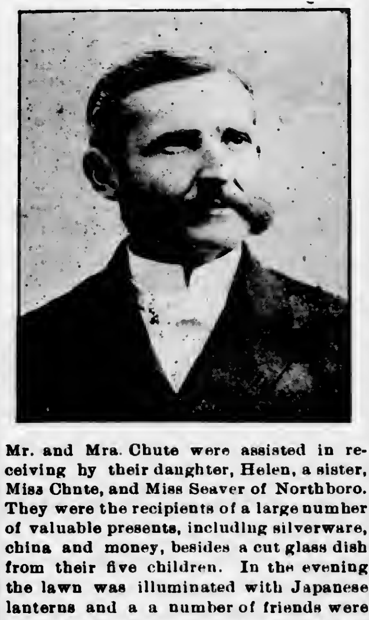
Were Stealing Switch Lights.

Marcin Gumula, 28, of Ware, employed by the Otis Company, and Stanislaw Dobolek, 22, of Bondsville, employed by the Boston Duck Company, two Poles, were arrested soon after midnight Saturday for removing one of the freight yard switch lights belonging to the Boston and Albany railroad in Ware. They were met near the East street bridge by Henry Sullivan and Patrick Houlihan, who were on their way home, and their arrest is due to Mr. Sullivan, who is the section foreman of the Boston and Maine in Ware. He noticed that the two men had something which showed red and white before being positive what it was. As they came near him they crossed the road and left the switch light. He followed them to a house on Water street and then returned and notified the police and the two men were locked up by Officers Buckley and Rennison. The light was taken to the room of Henry N. Fisherdick at the Hampshire House and identified by him. The men were brought before Judge Davis in the district court Monday morning and pleaded not guilty. They denied all knowledge of the light and a large number of witnesses were called. The defense argued there was a mistake made in the identification of the two men, but Judge Davis found probable cause and held the men in the sum of $300 to appear before the grand jury, which sits in December in Northampton.

Frank Gwazty of West Warren is also wanted in connection with the theft. During the hearing Monday several witnesses testified that a man from West Warren had visited the house prior to the arrests of Dovolek and Gumula, and had left in a hurry before the police arrived, and Gwazty is suspected of being the guilty party. He was arrested Tuesday morning for drunkenness and sentenced to six months in the house of correction.

25th Wedding Anniversary.

Rev. and Mrs. Chute celebrated the 25th anniversary of their marriage at their home in Ware Center last Friday afternoon. The house was prettily decorated for the occasion with ferns and cut flowers.



Mr. and Mrs. Chute were assisted in receiving by their daughter, Helen, a sister, Miss Chute, and Miss Seaver of Northboro. They were the recipients of a large number of valuable presents, including silverware, china and money, besides a cut glass dish from their five children. In the evening the lawn was illuminated with Japanese lanterns and a a number of friends were entertained. Refreshments were served during the afternoon and evening.

Tax Rate Increased.

The assessors have announced the tax rate to be $19.70 on $1000, or 90 cents more than last year. The total levy is $10,7051.91, as against $103.603 67 last year. There were $1000 less offsets this year than last. The corporation tax was $6827.61, against $8130 15 last year, the street railway tax is $583 99 and bank tax $246.21. The levy this year is divided as follows: State tax, $6000; grade crossing, $1288; state highway, $10.95; county, $8376; town, $91,340; The levy in 1904 was: State, $3750; grade crossing, $1334; highway, $114; county, $1025; town, $88,380. Last year the grade crossing tax was included in the town item, so that for comparison the town item this year should be $92,628.

Was Buried in Corn.

Lester, the 15-years-old son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Snow of Pleasant street, narrowly escaped suffocation Wednesday afternoon, being buried in a corn slide at his father's mill. Snow, with two other boys, Joseph and Louis Largess, fell into the corn slide while it was drawing, and the corn piled over the boys. The two Largess boys succeeded in getting out with the assistance of some of the help at the mill, but Snow was completely buried, the slide having to be opened before he could be removed. He was taken out unconscious. Dr. W. W. Miner was summoned and revived the boy, who sustained no serious injuries.

Auto Line Suspended.

The Ware and Gilbertville transportation company, which operates automobiles between these towns, is out of business for the present. A writ of replevin was served by the Knox Automobile Company of Springfield this week to secure one of the machines, and E. C. Meyers has been made keeper of the machine.

Brown—Ovilgie.

The marriage of Miss May Ovilgie of South street and Everett E. Brown took place at the home of the groom on the Palmer road Monday morning at 11, Rev. E. L. Chute officiating. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a few immediate relatives. The couple left at noon for Greensboro.

John Haley of South street is taking a month's vacation, which he is spending in Lawrence and Hartford, Ct.

At a meeting of the committee on the Fourth of July celebration Tuesday night the treasurer, George Haley, rendered his report. The total receipts from contributions were $428, and the expenses $403; the fireworks display cost $150, while $174 was given as prizes, leaving a balance of $24 in the treasury. It was voted to give a trolly ride to Forest Lake to all the children in town some day next week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Granville Gilbert gave a reception at their home on Chestnut street from 4 30 to 6.30 last Friday afternoon in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Ely Morse, who were recently married in Ware, and who are to sail next Wednesday for a year's stay in Europe. The occasion was a most pleasant one, and over 100 invited guests were received. The Philharmonic orchestra of Springfield furnished music.

The Ware Young Men's Union, which has been in existence nearly 15 years, has voted to disband, and will close up its affairs as soon as possible and turn its books over to the corporation which has stood behind it and made up all deficiencies in the past. The total liabilities have not been given out, but it is believed the property, including gymnasium apparatus, piano, furniture and fixtures, will offset all bills.

John O. Bryan was elected financial secretary and John A. Riley recording secretary of Ware aerie of Eagles at the regular meeting Monday night to fill the vacancy left by Ernest L. Leporte, resigned. Dr. A. A. Auger was elected aerie physician, and Louis S. Charbonneau trustee for three months. These officers were installed by Deputy James M. Reilly. George Haley was elected delegate to the grand convention which takes place in Denver, Col., in August.

The officers of Court Ware of Foresters were installed Monday night by District Deputy John Connors of Palmer and suite. Victory court, Companions of the Forest, attended the installation, after which Ernest J. Lefort, retiring financial secretary, was presented with a solid gold past chief ranger's jewel by the members of the Foresters. Mr. Leforte will leave next month for Greensboro, S. C., to take a position as boss dyer in a large mill. A dance followed and refreshments were served.

The store of C. C. Hitchcock & Co on Main street was entered Sunday night and $17 taken from a desk drawer. On Thursday night of last week the store was entered and $12 or $13 taken from the same drawer. An investigation was made by Chief of Police Fitzgerald, who found three Polish boys, Wallo J[illegible]z, Albert Basac and Wallo Bradnez, to be the guilty parties. The boys made a confession of the[illegible] and refunded most of the m[illegible]alance being paid by their paren[illegible]. They were brought into the district court yesterday morning on the charges of breaking, entering and larceny and the cases were continued until next Thursday morning for a hearing, the state agent being unable to be present at the court yesterday.

OUR BOSTON LETTER.

Gov. Douglas will reconsider his determination not to run. The most that they say at the Democratic headquarters is that if he had not said he would not run, he would not say so now,—which is perhaps a safe speculation. It appears that the one thing which did more to excite the Irish Catholic Democrats against the governor than anything else was his appointment of a son of the late Gov. Wolcott as associate medical examiner. The affair over the chairmanship of the Boston board of police is said to have been less important. Seven Democrats were candidates for the place which Wolcott got and they felt very sore, and doubtless every one of the seven felt that he was slighted, and that counted more than the friends of the one man who secured the place.

At the Republican state headquarters to-day they have had the pleasure of a visit for the first time since his illness by Major Thomas Talbot, the chairman of the state committee, and they expect now that he will be able to come in frequently. His recovery from his typhoid fever has been faster than they expected, though the case was mild. Next week, at some day yet to be fixed, they will have a meeting of the committee in order to fix the time and place for the Republican state convention, to decide who shall be the presiding officer and who shall be chairman and members at large of the committee on resolutions. A long list is under consideration for the last positions, and none of the names are given out. There is no doubt that the committee will select Congressman-elect John W. Weeks of Newton as chairman of the convention. They will decide, according to appearances, that the state convention be held in Tremont Temple on Friday, Oct. 6. Before long the Democratic state committee will perform similar service, and their convention must be held about the same date.

The Republican prospects to-day give Guild the nomination for the head of the ticket without a struggle. Eben S. Draper and Councilor Hall of Taunton are entered for second place, with the chances apparently largely in favor of Draper, while of the candidates for attorney-general, the most promising at this stage of the game is Dana Malone of Greenfield, as has been the case for two or three weeks. Without a doubt there will be a hot contest over this position, and ex-Mayor Champlin of Cambridge is going to make a large showing, according to present figures, but this situation will clear up a great deal before the convention. Eugene N. Foss continues to make a great deal of disturbance in the eyes of the public, but he has yet to prove that he is anywhere near as strong at the polls.

Resorts and Tours, Illustrated 1905. A Vacation Directory and Encyclopaedia Free.

"Resorts and Tours, illustrated" for 1905 is really a vacation directory and encyclopaedia for the traveler. It contains 90 pages of delightful descriptive reading, beautiful half-tone illustrations and a list of about 1500 resorts; also complete information regarding rates, hotels, railroad routes, etc. Send a postal card to the General Passenger Department, Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston, requesting one and we'll mail it free.

One Dollar Saved Represents Ten Dollars Earned.

The average man does not save to exceed ten per cent of his earnings. He must spend nine dollars in living expenses for every dollar saved. That being the case he cannot be too careful about unnecessary expenses. Very often a few cents properly invested, like buying seeds for his garden, will save several dollars outlay later on. It is the same in buying Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It costs but a few cents, and a bottle of it in the house often saves a doctor's bill of several dollars. ENGLISH CIVIL SERVICE.

The Pay In It Is Small, but the Positions Are Eagerly Sought.

"Once a civil servant always a civil servant," appears to be the motto of the English civil service, for unless one proves dishonest or an extraordinarily poor workman he is retained in service until the age limit is reached and the salary list is exchanged for the pension roll.

Unlike the civil service in the United States, there is no strong partisanship. Appointees hold their position no matter which party may be in power.

The pay is not large, even in view of the small cost of living in England. Fifteen dollars is about the limit of weekly payment in the postoffice department, though some of the executive positions pay as high as $2,000 a year. The excise department is a favored branch, the pay starting at $250 a year. This is raised by a yearly increase of $25 until the pay reaches $400, and after a year is jumped to $575. From there on the pay jumps rapidly to $1,250 yearly, and if the officer is fortunate in at last arriving at the dignity of collector he draws $4,000 yearly.

Parliamentary clerkships run from $500 to $3,000 a year, and the navy department will run a clerk up to $3,000 if he reaches the importance of fleet paymaster.

In spite of the small salaries the places are eagerly sought, since it means a life position, with a pension for one's declining years.

VERA SASSULITCH.

The Way the Great Russian Woman Spy Blinded the Nihilists.

When the famous General Trepoff was only at the beginning of his career Vera Sassulitch was his invaluable assistant.

Trepoff was the detested enemy of the nihilists, and he was very anxious to obtain inside information as to their doings and plans. Suddenly one day in 1878 he was fired at while driving through the streets of St. Petersburg by no other than Vera Sassulitch. She was at once seized by the soldiery and was charged with the attempted murder of Trepoff, being tried in the ordinary manner; but, to the amazement of the public, she was acquitted!

On her release the nihilists gathered about her, desiring to admit such a friend of the people to their closest acquaintance. In this way she was admitted to all their private circles and was made acquainted with their secrets. These she at once communicated to the Russian government. The truth was that the whole business, including the attempt on his life, was faked by Trepoff himself, and it was simply a clever ruse to get from the nihilists what could not be got in any other way. Thereafter Vera Sassulitch played the part of government spy on innumerable occasions.

STRONG TESTIMONY.

This Is Palmer Testimony And Will Stand Investigation.

If you doubt the following and wish to investigate, you haven't to go to some other state in the Union to prove it. It's not a long story published in Palmer newspapers about a resident of Kalamazoo, Mich., or Tampa, Fla., It's about a resident of Palmer and given in her own words. No stronger proof can be had.

Mrs. A. Peterson, living in the northeast part of the town says "Mr. LeGro recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to me some time ago and I used them, obtaining remarkably good results. Before I took them for over two years I had attacks of dull heavy aching in the small of my back just across my kidneys. If I sat in one position for any length of time I became so stiff and lame that I could hardly get up, and if I stooped it caused sharp twinges in my back so bad that they made me cry out. I tried other remedies but they did me no good. Doan's Kidney Pills helped me from the first and finally removed the backache. I have had no return of the trouble. Should I ever have a reoccurrence I now know what to do. I recommended them to a lady friend of mine, Mrs. L. Lafarr, out in the carpet mill district. She used them and told me afterwards that they cured her of a severe backache."

An Immense Purchase of Atlantic Mills Sheets.

Every woman knows the excellent quality of Atlantic Mills Cotton. It is a cotton that can always be depended upon for satisfactory service. We have just made the largest purchase of Sheets in our history, a price that enables us to present the best Sheet values we have had to offer for years. They are made of Atlantic Mills Cotton, torn before being hemmed, finished with 3-inch and 1-inch hems, laundered ready for use. They bear the familiar tiger label which guarantees them full standard quality and size. This is an opportunity that will be seized with alacrity by thrifty housekeepers to purchase a supply for city or country homes. The values should also appeal with equal force to hotel and boarding-house managers.

Doctors and Attendants 4, Palmer Crescents 3.

The Palmer Crescents were defeated by the doctors and attendants at the epileptic hospital last Saturday by a close score of 4 to 3. The visitors held the home team 3 to 3 until the seventh inning, when a run was made on a wild throw. The feature of the game was the work of the Crescent battery, getting 23 putouts of the possible 27. The score by innings:

Notes.

The Ludlow team won an easy victory over Chicopee Falls by the score of 17 to 3 at Ludlow Saturday.

The Indian Orchard team lost its ninth consecutive game Saturday to the Northampton Y. M. C. A. team, 6 to 1.

The Three Rivers Juniors and the Enfield Juniors will play baseball on the Athol station grounds to-morrow afternoon.

The Ludlow Juniors were defeated by the Our Boys' baseball nine of Thompsonville by the score of 7 to 3 in a game at Ludlow Saturday.

Two games have been arranged between the Palmers and the Stafford Springs, the first to be played on the Palmer park to-morrow afternoon, and the other at Stafford Springs the following week. The Stafford Springs team is the strongest aggregation of ball players in Northern Connecticut, and the game will be a good one.

SYDNEY SMITH.

As a Country Parson and as a Peacemaking Magistrate.

For twenty years Sydney Smith remained in Yorkshire, and, though his ideas of clerical duty were not those of today, yet it will not be denied that he was a vigorous country parson, entering into the pursuits and the daily life of his humble neighbors and doing his utmost to improve their lot. His descriptions of his life and surroundings at Foston are among the most delightful of his humorous writings. Every one has heard of Annie Kay, the little country girl, "made like a milestone," who, christened Bunch, "became the best butler in the county;" of the rawboned riding horse Calamity, which "flung me over his head into a neighboring parish as if I had been a shuttlecock, and I feel grateful that it was not into a neighboring planet;" of the ancient green chariot named the Immortal, "at which the village boys cheered and the village dogs barked;" of his four draft oxen—Tug and Lug, Haul and Crawl—of which "Tug and Lug took to fainting and required buckets of sal volatile and Haul and Crawl to lie down in the mud." As a magistrate Sydney Smith became famous for making up local quarrels and for dealing gently with poachers. The game laws, like a good Whig, he could not abide, and it stirred his honest wrath to reflect that "for every ten pheasants which fluttered in the wood one English peasant was rotting in jail." Like Charles Kingsley at Eversley in after years, he refrained from shooting. "If you shoot," he said, "the squire and the poacher will both consider you as their natural enemies, and I thought it more clerical to be at peace with both."—Rev. Canon Vaughan in Longman's Magazine.

BORN FOR A LAWYER.

Why His Mother Recommended Him to Colonel Ingersoll.

Among the stories which Colonel Bob Ingersoll delighted to tell was the following, says the writer of "America's Most Popular Men:"

While studying law with a firm out west the colonel found himself alone in the office one day. He was interrupted by the entrance of a raw boned, sharp featured countrywoman, who ambled into the room leading a freckle faced, watery eyed ten-year-old boy by the hand.

"Air you the lawyer?" she began.

On being answered in the affirmative she went on to say that she had brought her boy Jim to town for the purpose of binding him out at the "lawyerin' trade." She was morally certain, she averred, that Jim was a born lawyer and that all he needed was a chance.

"But, madam," objected the colonel, "he is entirely too young to begin the study of law."

"Too young, indeed!" sniffed the fond mother contemptuously. "You don't know Jim. He was born for a lawyer."

Much amused, the colonel asked her on what grounds she based her hopes of a future at the bar for her darling child.

"Why," said she, "when he was only seven years old he struck work, and he wouldn't do another lick if he got killed for it. When he was eight he got sassy and put on more airs than a prize horse at a country fair, and now, Lor' bless me, he jest freezes on to everything he can lay his hands on."

AN ODD REVENGE.

The Visit Hans Christian Andersen Paid His Old Dean.

Among the many amusing things Hans Christian Andersen treated us to was a little anecdote which, curiously enough, since it was so very characteristic of him, he omitted from his autobiography. He mentions in his "Life's Story" that during the autumn of 1844 he was a daily guest of the Danish royal family at Fohr, and was on terms of intimacy both with them and with the family of the Duke of Augustenborg. He told us the following incident about his stay there: It had been one of the mortifications of his younger days that the dean of the diocese, who in his day had confirmed him, had treated him badly, and put the affront on him of placing him, as a poor boy, down in the bottom of the church, among the curate's poor candidates, although he properly belonged up above, among the dean's own. He chanced to hear that this man now held a post in the island of Fohr. "So I asked the king," said Andersen, "if I might for once have one of the royal carriages, with coachman and footman in red livery, the same as the royal family themselves used, placed at my disposal, to pay a visit. The king smiled and said, 'With pleasure.' So I drove out in the royal carriage, with panached horses, and coachman and footman, to pay a visit to my old diocesan dean. The carriage waited outside while I was in the house. That was my revenge." It seems to me that we have Andersen's whole self, his romantic bent, his old humiliations and his vehement, half childish greed of honor, in this little story.—George Brandes in Contemporary Review.

A Girl of the Russian Revolution

[Original.]

Vera Nicholevna, the daughter of a Russian noble, began her revolutionary career by simply teaching the peasants. Finding that she could not do that under the present system of government, she joined those who are trying to overthrow that government.

One day Vera received an order from the revolutionary society of which she was a member to go to a little shop in St. Petersburg in the rear of pretentious buildings by which it was nearly hidden, get a bomb and carry it to a certain house at the other end of the city. She secured the bomb, made her exit and as she did so saw a man watching her from a window. Hurrying along she mingled with the crowds in the street before the watcher could emerge from his position. She judged at once that the shop had been watched and the man who had seen her come out was one of the police. The bomb, which she carried in her pocket, she could not get rid of. Revolutionary documents she might have dropped, but to drop a bomb meant an explosion. She did not doubt that if the man whom she was trying to evade found her she would be arrested and searched. For this reason she kept to the most densely crowded streets, moving in a tortuous course. Finally, turning, she looked back, and the very marrow of her bones froze at seeing her follower but a short distance behind on the other side of the street. He looked away, pretending not to have noticed her. Then she knew that he not only wished to capture her, but to discover the place to which she would go.

At this very time the guardian spirit that presided over the destiny of Harold Willetts, a young Chicagoan, led him to emerge from the building where he occupied apartments and stand in the doorway looking out on the street, swinging his cane meditatively. A young girl who was passing surprised him by suddenly turning and making straight through the door into the hall. There was suppresed excitement on her face, which led him to follow her. As soon as they were both inside she locked the door, then said something rapidly to him in Russian, which he did not understand. He told her in French that he spoke that language, and she at once adopted it.

"You are not a Russian?" she said. "What nationality are you?"

"American."

All foreigners consider Americans as sympathizers with any one struggling for liberty, and the girl at once gave him her confidence.

"I am a revolutionist, and I am followed. In a few moments a man will be here to arrest me. I would care nothing for that, but I carry a bomb. Help me to get rid of it."

Willetts had been noted for his deference and chivalrous treatment of women, but this appeal staggered him. Here was a girl, a very pretty one, who was asking him to mix himself up in a revolutionary matter from the consequences of which even the president of the United States could not save him if caught red handed. Nevertheless he had in him the blood of those who resisted the tyranny of King George III., and he rose to the emergency.

"Give me the bomb," he said, "and go out by the rear door."

She handed him a glass globe, ran to the rear door and passed out just as there was a knock at the door in front. Willetts, instead of opening it, hurried up to his room. He knew that he had but little time to select a hiding place for the bomb and different receptacles passed in review with lightning speed. A pair of riding boots stood in a closet, and he carefully laid the explosive in one of them. Then he started downstairs. A man was in the hall talking to a servant who had just admitted him. He at once recognized Willetts and asked what had become of the girl who had gone back into the house with him. Willetts, not understanding the Russian language, could not reply, and the man, hurrying upstairs, searched the house, at one time standing directly over the bomb. Foiled, he at last went away.

Willetts placed the bomb in his trunk and waited to hear from the girl. After waiting several weeks without any communication he wrapped the bomb in paper, tied a stone to it and dropped it in the river Neva.

The next winter found the young Chicagoan again in St. Petersburg, and, being on intimate terms with the American minister, he received many invitations through that official's influence. One evening at a ball given by one of the uncles of the emperor, being presented to the hostess, Willetts saw among the ladies of her suit the girl whom he had relieved of the bomb and saved from Siberia. The moment she saw him the roses left her cheeks, but with an effort she regained her composure without having attracted attention. Later Willetts was led up to her and formally presented. After a dance with her he led her to a window seat.

Vera told him that she had neither dared to go to him nor write to him. She felt that she owed him more than her life and had regretted that she had not before been able to express her gratitude. Willetts, who had been dreaming of her ever since the episode of her escape, begged her to permit him to call upon her. She resolutely refused, giving as a reason that she was consecrated to a work in which he could have no part.

Willetts never saw her again, but since his return to America the daughter of a noble answering to her description has been caught in a conspiracy to assassinate a grand duke. But as usual in such cases no information of what disposal has been made of her has been forthcoming.

CHOLERA INFANTUM.

Child Not Expected to Live from One Hour to Another, but Cured by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Ruth, the little daughter of E. N. Dewey of Agnewville, Va., was seriously ill of cholera infantum last summer. "We gave her up and did not expect her to live from one hour to another," he says. "I happened to think of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and got a bottle of it from the store. In five hours I saw a change for the better. We kept on giving it and before she had taken the half of one small bottle she was well." This remedy is for sale by the Quimby Pharmacy, Palmer.

In the Sunshine With Great Preachers

Beecher's Quickness of Repartee—Talmage and His Caricatures—Parkhurst on Strict Denominationalism. Beecher and Ingersoll

By MARSHALL P. WILDER.

From "The Sunny Side of the Street," by Marshall P. Wilder. Copyright, 1905, by Funk & Wagnalls Company.

Marshall P. Wilder.

NAT GOODWIN once nicknamed me "the theological comedian" because many of my entertainments were given in churches. On such occasions a minister would generally preface the proceedings with prayer—whether that I or the people might be strengthened for the ordeal I never was able to discover, but the ministers always laughed at every joke I cracked, so there is a very warm spot in my heart for them.

One of the first of the profession I ever met was Henry Ward Beecher. I became well acquainted with him, and he was always friendly, fatherly and merry when I met him. I had the pleasure of traveling through Scotland and Ireland with him, and no man could have been better company.

Beecher In Glasgow.

We spent one Sunday together in Glasgow, and the depression of that city on the holy day cannot be imagined. I have heard that some Scotchmen get full of bad whisky on Saturday night for the sole purpose of being properly dismal on Sunday, but perhaps that is not true. But the street cars do not run; there is no sign of animation; the very houses look as dull as if they were untenanted. To a person accustomed to the cheer and bright faces of Americans on Sunday the town seemed enveloped in the gloom of death.

In the morning I awoke very early. I veritably believe that the appalling silence disturbed my slumbers. I felt so lonely and dismal that I instinctively went over to Mr. Beecher's room; better a drowsy American than a whole city full of wide awake Scotchmen on a Scotch Sunday. Mr. Beecher was also awake, though in bed, and in spite of the morning being quite chilly he lay with one toe uncovered.

"Mr. Beecher, aren't you afraid of catching cold?" I said.

"Oh, no," he replied. "I always sleep that way." I was greatly mystified at this and asked him the reason. He laughed—and what a laugh he had! It was as big and solid and enduring as the Berkshire hills amid which he was born. Then he replied:

"Marshall, that toe is the key to the situation."

A Dry Irishman.

In Ireland we went about a good deal together in jaunting cars and extracted a lot of high grade Hibernian wit from the drivers.

One day we were driven to our hotel in Belfast through a drizzling rain. When I paid the driver I said:

"Are you wet, Pat?" With a merry twinkle of his eye he replied:

"Sure, your honor, if I was as wet outside as I am inside I'd be as dry as a bone."

Mr. Beecher's quickness at repartee, of which Americans knew well, was entirely equal to Irish demands upon it. One day in Ireland, after he had made an address to a Sunday school, a bewitching young colleen came up to where we stood chatting and said:

"Mr. Beecher, you have won my heart."

"Well," replied the great man quickly, with a sunburst of a smile, "you can't get along without a heart, so suppose you take mine?"

Beecher and Ingersoll.

Which reminds me of the day when he and Colonel Bob Ingersoll were on the platform together at a public meeting and Beecher went over and shook hands heartily with the great agnostic, though he knew that the act would bring a storm of criticism from people with narrow guage souls. Then Ingersoll brought up one of his daughters and introduced her, saying:

"Mr. Beecher, here is a girl who never read the Bible." Bob delighted in shocking ministers, but he missed his fun that time, for Beecher quickly replied:

"If all heathen were so charming I am sure we should all become missionaries."

After the war Beecher made a lecture tour of the south and appeared at Mozart hall, Richmond, with an address entitled, "The North and the South." He was rather doubtful as to the reception he would have, but he knew what he wanted and was determined to get it. No applause welcomed him as he appeared on the platform, but a few hisses were heard in the gallery. In the better rows of seats were some grim ex-Confederates—General Fitz-Hugh Lee, General Rosser, ex-Governor Smith, Governor Cameron and others. Beecher fixed his eye directly on Lee and said (I quote a newspaper report of the incident):

"I have seen pictures of General Fitz-Hugh Lee, sir, and I assume you are the man. Am I right?"

The general, slightly taken back by this direct address, nodded stiffly, while the audience bent forward, breathless with curiosity as to what was going to follow.

Beecher In the South.

"Then," said Mr. Beecher, his face lighting up, "I want to offer you this right hand, which, in its own way, fought against you and yours years ago, but which I would now willingly sacrifice to make the sunny south prosperous and happy. Will you take it, general?" There was a moment's hesitation, a moment of deathlike stillness in the hall, and then Fitz-Hugh Lee was on his feet, his hand was extended across the footlights and was quickly met by the warm grasp of the preacher's. At first there was a murmur, half of surprise and half of doubtfulness, from the audience, then there was a hesitating clapping of hands, and before Beecher had unloosed the hand of Robert E. Lee's nephew there were cheers such as were never before heard in old Mozart, though it had been the scene of many a war and political meet. But this was only the beginning of the enthusiasm. When the noise subsided Mr. Beecher continued:

"When I go back home I shall proudly tell that I have grasped the hand of the nephew of the great southern chieftain; I shall tell my people that I went to the Confederate capital with a heart full of love for the people whom my principles once obliged me to oppose and that I was met halfway by the brave southerners, who can forgive as well as they can fight."

Five minutes of applause followed, and then Mr. Beecher, having gained the hearts of his audience, began his lecture and was applauded to the echo. That night he entered his carriage and drove to his hotel amid shouts such as have never greeted a northern man in Richmond since the war.

Wit of Ingersoll.

Ingersoll himself was as quick as the quickest at repartee. One day a malignant believer in an awful time for the wicked after death asked him:

"Are you trying to abolish hell?"

"Yes," said Ingersoll.

"Well, you can't do it."

"You'll be sorry if I don't," the colonel replied.

Agnostic though he was, Ingersoll is frequently quoted by preachers, for in one respect he was very like the best of them—he never wearied of urging men to right living, not through fear of eternal punishment, but because goodness is its own excuse for being. No pastor was ever more severe than he in condemnation of everything mean and wicked in human life. In his lighter moments he was one of the merriest companions that any one could meet. No matter what he had to say, he would illustrate it with a story. One day he was talking of people who have a knack of saying the right thing at the wrong time and told the following as a sample:

A well to do merchant out west lived in a town not remarkable for much but malaria and funerals. His wives had a way of dying, and whenever he lost one he went into another county and married again. A loquacious lady in the healthy county kindly assisted him in finding young women who were willing to marry him and take the chances. About six months after burying his fourth wife he appeared again in the healthy county, called on his friend and was greeted with:

"How's your wife, Mr. Thompson?"

"She's dead," he replied sadly.

"What! Dead again?" the woman cried.

Talmage and Cartoonists.

The late T. De Witt Talmage never lost a chance to emphasize a point with a good story. As I knew him to be a good man and a first rate fellow, I used to be indignant at newspaper abuse of him, and particularly with some caricatures that were made of his expressive features. I took occasion to tell him of this, but he replied:

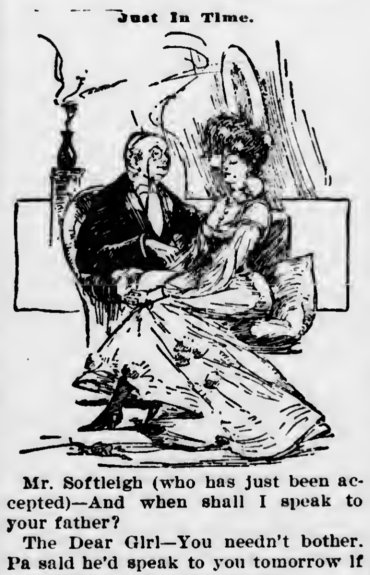
"Marshall, I'm as thick skinned as a rhinoceros, and I never mind what is said about me. Some of the caricatures annoy me, but only because they pain people I love—my wife and family. You see, my boy, it doesn't pay to be too sensitive, for it breaks a man up, and that's the worst thing that can happen to him if he has any duties in the world. Besides, everything depends on the point of view. Once a German family emigrated to America and settled in Milwaukee. The oldest son, in his teens, concluded he would start out for himself. He 'fetched up' in New York and without any money, so he wrote home: 'Dear father, I am sick and lonely and without a single cent. Send me some money quick. Your son John.' The old man couldn't read, so he took the letter to a friend, a great strapping butcher with a loud, gruff voice and an arrogant manner of reading. When the letter was read to him the father was furious and declared he would not send his son a cent, not even to keep him from starving. But on his way home he kept thinking about the letter and wanting to hear it again, so he took it to another friend, a consumptive undertaker, who had a gentle voice with an appealing inflection in it. When this man read the letter the father burst into tears and exclaimed: 'My poor boy! I shall send him all the money he wants.' You see, the same thing viewed from a different point takes on a different color."

A Parkhurst Story.

Rev. Dr. Parkhurst of New York is a delightful talker, full of anecdotes and reminiscences. He has no patience with narrow, hidebound denominationalists. He defined them by telling me a story of a minister who preached a sermon so touching that all his hearers were melted to tears—all but one man. When asked how he had succeeded in keeping his eyes dry the man replied:

"Well, you see, this isn't my church."

Just In Time.



Mr. Softleigh (who has just been accepted)—And when shall I speak to your father?

The Dear Girl—You needn't bother. Pa said he'd speak to you tomorrow if you didn't speak to me tonight.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

SIR JOSHUA REYNOLDS.

The Famous Painter Was the Son of a Devonshire Rector.

Sir Joshua Reynolds was born at Plympton, four miles from Plymouth, in Devonshire, in 1723. His father, rector of the grammar school, early trained him in classical studies, intending his son to be an apothecary, but he displayed such an inclination for drawing, diligently copying the prints which fell in his way, that the father yielded and sent him to London as a student of art. After two years he returned to Devonshire and established himself as a portrait painter in Plymouth, where he was taken up by Commodore Keppel, who, being appointed to the Mediterranean station, invited the young painter to accompany him in his ship, the Centurion. Thus he was able to visit Rome, spending two years there in very close study, especially of the works of Raphael and Michael Angelo.

It was while painting in the corridors of the Vatican that he contracted a cold which brought on the deafness that afterward afflicted him during the rest of his life. Leaving Rome, he visited Parma, where he fell under Correggio's influence, then Florence and Venice, in the latter city studying the works of the great colorists. On his way home he stopped in Paris, making acquaintance with the work of Rubens. Arrived in London, he settled in St. Martin's lane, and painted a portrait of his patron, Commodore (then Lord) Keppel, which laid the foundation of his fortune. Later he established himself in Leicester square, where his house, 47, may still be seen.—St. Nicholas.

Speak Good of the Living.

Few will be found to dispute the spirit of the old Latin proverb "De mortuis nil nisi bonum." Is it not a pity, however, that we are all so inclined to offer fulsome adulation of the dead, about whom, while living, nothing was too vile to say? This is not to be understood as criticising unfavorably the natural tendency to forget the faults and foibles and to remember only the virtues of the people who have "gone on before," but it does seem too bad that more even justice, greater toleration and charity cannot be shown to the living.—Success.

Fishermen's Patron Saint.

St. Peter, of course, is the fisherman; but anglers may find a saint of their own in St. Zeno, who is commemorated on April 12. Verona's patron saint is conventionally represented holding a fishing rod, with a fish at the end of the line, the reference being to the tradition that he used to enjoy fishing in the Adige during his episcopate. He must have commanded good sport if he exercised as much control over that river in life as he is said to have done two centuries after his death. In 589 Italy was visited by terrific floods, and the Adige threatened to swamp much of Verona. But the faithful gathered in St. Zeno's church by the river, and, though the water rose to the windows outside, none of it could pass the doors, and after twenty-four hours of prayer it subsided. This rests on the authority of Gregory the Great.—London Chronicle.

Four Facts For Sick Women To Consider

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has an Unequalled Record of Cures—Mrs. Pinkham's Advice Is Confidential, Free, and always Helpful

FIRST.—That almost every operation in our hospitals performed upon women becomes necessary through neglect of such symptoms as backache, irregular and painful menstruation, leucorrhœa, displacements of the uterus, pain in the side, burning sensation in the stomach, bearing-down pains, nervousness, dizziness and sleeplessness.

SECOND.—The medicine that holds the record for the largest number of absolute cures of female ills is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It regulates, strengthens and cures diseases of the female organism as nothing else can.

For thirty years it has been helping women to be strong, curing backache, nervousness, kidney troubles, all uterine and ovarian inflammation, weakness and displacements, regulating menstruation perfectly and overcoming its pains. It has also proved itself invaluable in preparing for childbirth and the change of life.

THIRD.—The great volume of unsolicited and grateful testimonials on file at the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., many of which are from time to time published by permission, give absolute evidence of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's advice.

FOURTH.—Every ailing woman in the United States is asked to accept the following invitation. It is free, will bring you health and may save your life.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women.—Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. From symptoms given, your trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised. Out of the vast volume of experience in treating female ills Mrs Pinkham probably has the very knowledge that will help your case. Surely, any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.

The Antalgica
Or Vegetable Pain Reliever

was introduced to the public in 1848, since which time thousands of bottles have been sold each year to an appreciative public, which is a good evidence of its merits. It is adapted to so many ailments it should be in every household, for it cures all kinds of pains both internal and external. For Bronchial affections it is unrivaled by any article in the market. It is a sure cure for Cholera Morbus and Dysentery, if taken in season, also for Coughs. The Smart Set
A Magazine of Cleverness.

Magazines should have a well-defined purpose.

Genuine entertainment, amusement and mental recreation are the motives of The Smart Set, the Most Successful of Magazines.

Its novels (a complete one in each number) are by the most brilliant authors of both hemispheres.

Its short stories are matchless—clean and full of human interest.

Its poetry covering the entire field of verse—pathos, love, humor, tenderness—is by the most popular poets, men and women, of the day.

Its jokes, witticisms, sketches, etc., are admittedly the most mirth-provoking.

WHO PAY THE MOST TAXES.

Assessors Have Nearly Completed Their Work.

TAX RATE IS LESS THAN LAST YEAR.

Total Valuation is Slightly More. Those Who Pay a Tax of $50 or Over.

The assessors have nearly completed their work, and find the total valuation of the town to be $3,293,299, an increase of $35,380 over last year. The value of the personal estate is $1,041,194, which is $13,530 less than last year, and the real estate value is $2,231,205, an increase of $41,110. The resident bank stock valuation increases from $14,100 last year to $20,900. The tax rate last year was $17 on $1000, while this year it drops to $16.10. Those who pay a tax of $50 or over are:

West Warren Store Robbed.

The jewelry store of Felix J. Labrie in the Lombard block on Main street in West Warren was broken into about 1 15 Friday morning, and a quantity of jewelry, among which were 10 brooches and a gentleman's watch fob, valued at about $10, was taken. Entrance was gained by breaking out one of the panes of glass from a front show window and raising the inside curtain. This is the second time this store has been entered this month, the first break being made on the night of July 2, when about $80 worth of merchandise was stolen, none of which has yet been recovered. The last break was effected in a similar manner to the first one, the window pane being smashed with a stone from the outside. The sound of crashing glass was heard by Joseph L. A. Faneuf, who lives next door, and after calling his son, he went out to investigate. They saw a man coming over Albany street from the direction of the Boston and Albany station. Upon seeing them, he ran up Main street and through the yard of John S. Tongne, thence to the Boston and Albany railroad, where he disappeared from view. They were unable to trace him further. Many of the townspeople think the burglary is the work of some one in town, or else some one well acquainted with the place.

BREAK IN WATER MAIN.

Section of P. W. Co's. Pipe on Main Street Gives Away.

There was another "bust," and a bad one, in the main of the Palmer Water Company on Main street last Friday. People who were at the electric car waiting room about 3 45 noticed that the street in front of the Holbrook Company's store suddenly developed volcanic tendencies, and while they were wondering what had happened and whether they had better fly for safety, the conditions suddenly changed and instead of a volcano a guyser made its appearance. And it was a very active guyser. Its height was not great, but the volume of water was something like a small flood; and this at a time when water could not afford to be wasted. Fortunately the gates were easily found and the water was soon shut off.

The work of repair was begun at once, and continued without cessation until the broken pipe was removed and a new piece installed, the water being turned on again about 2 30 Saturday morning. The credit for the quick repair is wholly due to F. D. Barton, manager of the E. Brown Company, and his men; Mr. Barton personally superintended the work, making no stop even for the heavy rain which fell during the evening.

The break was a bad one, a side of one of the large cement pipes having given away completely, making a large hole. The broken pipe was replaced with one of iron. There have been numerous breaks in the main near this point in recent years, the last one being about 7 o'clock on the morning of Jan. 15 On this occasion the water was not turned on again until evening.

The break came at a bad time for the Journal. Its presses are run by a water motor, and the motor had just been opened for running off the edition of the paper; before the belt could be thrown on the press however the motor began to slow up, and soon stopped. Investigation soon disclosed the cause of the stoppage, as the break was only about 300 feet from the Journal office. The shut-off valves of the water company are so arranged that when they were shut to prevent waste at the break there is no way of getting water to the Journal's motor. Consequently a long-unused shaft and balance wheel had to be fitted into place and man power resorted to. It was no easy task to find the men, and after found it was no easy task for them to do the work. The ordinary speed of the press with power is about 1000 an hour, but with hand power it was not more than 500 or 600, if as much as that. The result was that many of the papers were late in reaching their destination, though all were printed and mailed that night.

Ware's Heavy Taxpayers.

The assessors of the town of Ware have nearly completed their work, and have determined the total valuation this year to be $4 379,550, as against $4,365,040 last year, or a gain of $12,510. The gross tax levy amounts to $107,015, but the fees from liquor licenses and other offsets leave only $89,515 to be raised by taxation, and of this $4148 is assessed on polls, leaving $85,367 as the total levy on property this year. The rate per thousand has been fixed at $19 70, with $1.78 additional for property assessed in the fire district, as the fire tax. The following figures are without the fire tax, which would add very nearly 9 per [illegible] to each total, and would place several [illegible]ers in the $100 class that are not given. The list of those paying a tax over $100 is:

25th Wedding Anniversary at Brimfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Parker were pleasantly surprised at their home Saturday afternoon by about 40 of their friends, the occasion being the 25th anniversary of their marriage. They were presented with an oak sideboard, the presentation being made by Charles S. Tarbell. The gift was accepted in behalf of the recipients by Rev. Samuel Eaton, as Mr. Parker, on account of his frail health, was unable to respond. A poem composed for the occasion was read by Melvin Booth. Refreshments consisting of cake and ice cream was served by neighbors under the large trees on the lawn and a most enjoyable time was had by all. The poem:

To-day we meet our friends to greet, and help them on their way:
With hand and heart to take a part on this, their wedding day.
We take review to see if true, this anniversary;
The date is right and clear and bright; next comes the history.
In early life as man and wife, in eighteen hundred eighty
They wooed and wed, the record said, and sure 'tis true and weighty.
Their hearts were light that July night, if days were warm and long;
May this, the same, be true to fame, and filled with mirth and song.
Their years of joy, with some alloy, as comes the lot of all;
Their purpose high, as time goes by, responds to duty's call.
Two children bright have made home light, for daughters just a pair
To skip about with many a shout, have chased away dull care.
But one is not, nor yet forgot sweet memory of love;
An angel came his own to claim as gently as a dove.
A mother dear to-day is here, to cheer and bless their home,
With sunshine still their hearts to fill, perchance the mists should come.
So do our best as wedding guests, to cheer them while we stay.
May you be spared and well prepared for future years of five and twenty,
And may the Lord his blessing add, both rich and plenty.

AN 80-MILE ELECTRIC RIDE.

Enjoyable Day's Outing for Party of Newspaper Men.

ALONG NORTH SHORE AND VICINITY.

Also Visiting Lowell and Lawrence. Boston and Northern Road the Host.

Never was a monthly meeting and outing more enjoyed than the one last Monday. In compliance with the usual request, some 50 members and friends of the association assembled at the corner of Portland and Hanover streets, Boston, at 9.30 a. m., notwithstanding the uncertainty of the weather. Here two large open double-truck cars of the Boston & Northern Street railway were in waiting, and at 9.45 the party started on a trip which covered 80 miles of electric lines, and forming a perfect figure eight.

The run from Boston was over the Lynn marshes, where the party was treated to occasional glimpses of the beach and the billows as they rolled in. From Lynn to Salem the beauty of the scenery commenced to attract the eye, the view being an ever-changing one. Through Lafayette street, Salem, the ride is long to be remembered. This is one of the most beautiful street car thoroughfares in the country. Huge trees line either side of the street, and between them peep out entrances to many beautiful private residences. Probably there is not a city in the Union of its size which is better known than the "Witch City." Founded in 1626, four years before Boston was born, it led that city for some time in importance, and for two centuries it held a position only second to it. From Salem the party was taken through Peabody, an interesting and quaint old town. The town was named for George Peabody, a noted London banker and philanthropist, who was born here. It was he who founded the Peabody Institute and gave to it the magnificent portrait of Queen Victoria. From here to Wakefield the scenery was such that the use of a newspaper was not necessary to beguile away the time, for it was both delightful and picturesque. The car then followed along the shores of the beautiful Quannapowitt lake, with its many winding turns, affording a beautiful view until Reading was reached at 1 15 p. m. The party was then escorted to the beautiful residence of Treasurer Charles A. Loring, where luncheon was served. Everything was done for the comfort and pleasure of the guests, and Mrs. Loring proved a most proficient hostess for the occasion. The business meeting was called by President Wilson, while the ladies and invited guests strolled around the beautiful grounds, ornamented by walks and flower beds. Before leaving here a unanimous vote of thanks was extended to Mr. and Mrs. Loring for the cordial welcome and delightful hospitality which the party had had bestowed upon them.

After feeling thoroughly refreshed the party boarded the cars at 3 15 and resumed their trip to Lowell, through the beautiful residential district of Wilmington, with its pretty farm houses, and along the shore of Silver Lake, with its many summer camps. Crossing the Shawsheen river and entering Tewksbury, the car went by the great "carnation farms," where millions of the fragrant blossoms are raised for the city markets every year. In the town of Tewksbury are located the great buildings of the state almshouse. From Tewksbury a short route brought the party to Lowell, famous the world over as the city of spindles, and on entering the city a fine view was afforded of the residential section. The trip from Lowell to Lawrence down the Merrimac valley was perhaps the finest of the entire excursion, for nowhere in the wide world is there a river of equal length which combines so much of utility, beauty and history, as the Merrimac. Its beauties have been celebrated in song and story. Leaving Merrimac Square, Lowell, the car proceeded along a high bank, affording a magnificent water view and overlooking the great mills through Elsmere, into Old Dracut with its ancient "Varnum's Landing." Along the river bank is Glen Forest, a popular summer park maintained by the Boston & Northern Street Railway Company. Here entertainments of a high order are given every afternoon and evening during the summer months. The ground is noted for the grandeur of its wooded shores, natural pine groves and smooth waters. Lawrence was reached at 5 55 p. m., and the car remained just long enough for Representative Cole of Andover to telephone ahead to the Hilton Ice Cream Farm in Andover for a real summer night's supper, composed of all kinds of ices, which were all ready upon the arrival of the party. Mr. Cole received a hearty vote of thanks for his thoughtfulness, as the day was exceedingly warm and such refreshments were gratefully partaken of. The great Lawrence dam, one thousand feet long and a fall of 28 feet, was an enjoyable sight. Andover, a very famous place, was next reached. It is the town in which "America" was written, and is also the home of several college and seminary buildings. From Andover the return trip was made through Reading, Wakefield, Melrose, formerly a part of Malden, the Middlesex Fells reservation and Pine Banks Park, to Malden. In Malden there are many beautiful buildings, among them the Memorial building, containing the public library of 30,000 volumes, and also the art gallery. The party was then taken over the hills of Everett, and through Chelsea to Boston, arriving at the starting point at 8.30 p. m. Every one in the party was highly delighted with the trip, it being a combination which afforded a fine view of the ocean, the beautiful inland scenery and the Merrimac river valley.

R. H. Derrah, general passenger agent of the Boston & Northern Street Railway, joined the party at Reading, and upon their arrival in Lowell many members of the party were fortunate in obtaining little books, which exactly described the trip taken, as well as the route ahead. These folders are very handy for individual traveling, and the company is very glad to send them to any one interested in trolley trips.

WALES.

Mrs. Annis Shaw of Monson spent Sunday in town.

L. H. Thompson has taken the tax book and is ready to receive taxes.

C. G. Needham is driving the mail team in the absence of Mr. St. John.

Clarence Corbin of Worcester is the guest of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Corbin.

The women of the M. E. church held a social Wednesday evening in the vestry. There were tableaux, and ice cream and cake were served.

The Old Home Week committee has issued notices for the services which will commence July 30 and end August 6. Picnics will be held August 5.

NEW ALIEN HUNTING LAW.

License Must Be Procured if Hunter Is Not a Citizen.

The new alien license law relative to hunting in this state, which became a law by the passage of an act at the last session of the Legislature and which is now in force, will be of interest to many in this section, particularly those foreign-born residents who have been in the habit of hunting and killing our song and insectivorous birds. By the new law all foreign and unnaturalized persons desirous of hunting must have a license, which can be secured from the town clerks in their respective cities and towns. The fee for such a license is $15. The license must give a description of the person to whom it is issued, and it must be shown to any of the deputy fish and game commissioners or any police officer who demands it. A person to whom a license is issued must needs walk pretty nearly straight so far as the game laws are concerned, for if he violates any of the fish and game laws or hunts upon the Sabbath Day the license shall be revoked. The act reads:

> Sec. 1. It shall be unlawful for any unnaturalized foreign-born person to hunt anywhere within the limits of the Commonwealth, unless he is licensed so to do as hereinafter provided.
> Sec. 2. City and town clerks shall upon the application of any unnaturalized, foreign-born person who is a resident of the city or town in which the application is made, and upon the payment of a fee of fifteen dollars, issue to such person a license upon a form to be supplied by the commissioners on fisheries and game, bearing the name, age and place of residence of the licensee, with a description of him as near as may be, and authorizing the said licensee to hunt and to kill game on any lands in which such hunting or killing is not forbidden by law or by written or printed notices posted thereon by the owner, lessee or occupant thereof. Such license shall be good only for that period of the year when game may lawfully be killed, and shall authorize the hunting or killing of game only under such restrictions and for such purposes as are imposed or authorized by law. The said license shall not be transferable, and shall be exhibited upon demand to any of the commissioners on fisheries and game or their deputies and to any game warden or deputy game warden, and to any sheriff, constable, police officer or other officers qualified to serve process. The fees received for the said license shall annually be paid into the treasury of the Commonwealth.
> Sec. 3. A license granted hereunder shall be revoked by the city or town clerk issuing the same in case the licensee is convicted of a violation of the fish and game laws or of hunting upon Sunday in violation of the law.
> Sec. 4. It shall be the duty of the commissioners on fisheries and game, upon request by any city or town clerk, to supply such clerk with license forms prepared in accordance with provisions of this act.

Warren's Heavy Taxpayers.

The assessors of Warren have completed their work so far as to determine the total valuation this year, which is $1,762,743, a gain over last year of $23,594. The gross tax levy amounts to $48,415, but the fees from licenses and other offsets leave only $40,268 to be raised by taxation, and of this $2370 is assessed on polls, leaving $37,898 as the total levy on property this year. The rate per thousand is $21.50 for this year. Those paying a tax of $100 or over are as follows:

Young Polish Thieves in Ware.

Another case of breaking and entering by Polish boys was reported to Ware police Monday. The store of John Lubelczyk on Water street was entered some time during Sunday evening and $2 taken. Chief of Police Fitzgerald made an examination of the boys in the vicinity of the building, and finally rounded up Wallo Badnez and Stanislaw Gryzwocz, aged seven and eight, as the guilty ones. Young Badnez, who finally confessed and implicated the other boy, was out on bail for a break in the store of C. C. Hitchcock & Co. and had two complaints to answer to at a juvenile session of the district court in Ware yesterday morning, when he and four other Polish boys, Albert Klenk, Wollo Jez, John Gallos and Stanislaw Gryzwocz, were all found guilty of breaking and entering and also of larceny. The cases of the last three were ordered continued to September 5 for sentence, but Boduez and Klenk were ordered committed to the state board of charity. An appeal was entered by the parents of Badnez and Klenk, and they recognized in the sum of $100 each to the superior court in December at Northampton. The boys are all about 8 years of age. The evidence showed that Badnez, Klenk and Jez entered the store of C. Hitchcock & Co. on the night of July 6 by a cellar window and took about $12 from the money drawer. On the night of July 9, the first two of these three, with young Gallos, entered the same store by a rear window and took about $16 in change and a lot of jack-knives. Most of the money was recovered and half of the knives. Then on Sunday night Badnez and Gryzwocz entered Lubelczyk's store and took $2.

LUDLOW.

Alexander Graham.

Alexander Graham, 58, died last week Thursday after a four-months' illness. He was a native of Scotland, and came to Ludlow about 12 years ago, where he was employed as a watchman. He leaves a widow, four sons, John, William, George and Alexander, two daughters, Betsey and Annie, all at home. The funeral was held from the home Sunday afternoon, Rev. C. A. Butterfield officiating.

PALMER NEWS.

District Court.

John Dillisky was one of Monday's victims, and was assessed $5 for drunkenness, which he paid. One other "drunk" was placed on probation until Sept. 3.

Tuesday morning Otis Beebe was called to account for vagrancy. He had been sleeping in various places and had become somewhat of a nuisance. He was given board on York street in Springfield for 60 days.

Wednesday found Felix Boyle of North Wilbraham charged with drunkenness; a fine of $5 was imposed and he was given until Sept. 2 to raise the money. One other "drunk" was placed on probation. Jacob M. Price of Ware was charged with peddling in Thorndike without a license. In his behalf it was claimed that he was a poor man with a large family and scant income, and that he made only one sale in Thorndike, that being of some goods which were ordered previously. It was shown that he had been arrested a few years ago for the same offense, and had also peddled considerable there of late, and the usual fine—$50—was imposed. An appeal was taken and sureties furnished.

Palmer Lets Furkey Go.

Furkey, the pitcher who has been in the box for the Palmer baseball team every game this season—nine—with the exception of two innings, has been allowed to depart for other scenes of action, if he so desires. Furkey came to Palmer last evening and informed Manager Carpenter that he did not propose to pitch to-morrow's game with Stafford, nor any other, unless he was given a substantial increase in salary. The directors of the baseball association were called together this morning, and it did not take them long to decide against any holdup, and it was unanimously decided to decline to accede to Furkey's demand. This does not mean that the team will be without a pitcher to-morrow; the directors have felt for some time that improvement could be made in that position and have had their eyes open; the result is that the team will go to Stafford to-morrow with two new men, either of whom can be used in the box if desired.

A Decided Improvement.

There are many patrons of the electric cars who have a fondness for riding on the front seat, next the motorman, but that is the most uncomfortable seat on the car, owing to the iron rods placed just about shoulder height to protect the glass in the windows between that and the body of the car from possible breakage. These rods catch the passenger on the shoulders and force him—or her—to either a bolt upright position or one decidedly conducive to round shoulders: either is provokingly uncomfortable, and the wonder has often been expressed that the car builders did not take notice of this and do away with it. The Springfield street railway company has apparently recognized the annoying feature at any rate, these rods have been removed from the cars which run through to Palmer, if on no others, and the change is a noticeable one for the better. It is now up to the Springfield and Eastern to follow suit from its cars.

"The Dazzler."

An exhilarating comedy set to music and called "The Dazzler" will be the next attraction at Forest Lake, where it will begin a one week's engagement next Monday. "The Dazzler" has been offered with much success in every city in the United States and Canada. The company to appear here is under the management of Joseph J. Flynn, and is composed of many artists well known to amusement lovers. Prominent on the program will be found Jack Reidy, Emile Huesel, P. W. Maguire, Elmer Kingsland, Hester Armstrong, Elsie Currier, Leonie Val Dez and Retta Macker. During the action of the comedy several vaudeville acts will be introduced, as well as a series of new musical numbers by the entire company. The comedy brass band finish of the entertainment is said to be one of the big hits of the present summer season.

Excursion Next Week—Markets to Close.

The Central Vermont railroad will run an excursion to Watch Hill and Block Island next Thursday, the fare for the round trip being $1. There will be no merchants' excursion this year, and this excursion has been arranged by the railroad to take its place. No attempt has been made to have the stores of the place close for the day, but the meat market proprietors have announced that their places of business will not be open that day. It is also probable that the grocers will be asked to close also, and the other merchants will be given an opportunity to sign the agreement if they choose. What their disposition in the matter will be is not known.

Ware Children at Forest Lake.

The children in Ware were given an unusual treat yesterday, when they were given a free ride to Forest Lake, with free admission to the show in the afternoon. The plan originated with the committee in charge of the Fourth of July celebration in Ware, who had $25 left over from the funds appropriated for this celebration, and $35 was contributed by C. E. Stevens. Rev. J. H. Murphy, F. M. Sibley and F. D. Gilmore each contributed $5 each, which placed the steam launch at the disposal of the committee for the afternoon, and all the children were given free rides.

THREE RIVERS.

Celery plants at J. T. Geer's Nursery.

Baseball Team May Reorganize.

There has been some talk recently of reorganizing the Three Rivers baseball team, which has played and won several games this season, but which at present seems to be without a manager. There is certainly plenty of baseball enthusiasm in the village as well as an abundance of good material for a winning team, while the treasury of the present organization is in good condition. It seems hardly just to raise money by subscription at the beginning of the season and then have no games. The present trouble seems to lie in the fact that several managers have been elected and discharged until no one knows who is manager or who is running the team.

Springs Are Getting Low.

On account of the lack of rain the springs on Baptist Hill are very low, and as the water supply for the village is from these springs some concern is felt. The Company's springs, it is understood, are in good condition, but those furnishing water to residents on the east side of the river are very low. The people who are supplied with water by the Ruggles Company have been without water for over two weeks.

Albert Grise has returned to Chicago.

The baseball game between the Three Rivers Juniors and the Enfield Juniors which was to have been played last Saturday will be played to-morrow on the Athol station grounds.

The subject of the sermon at the Union church Sunday morning will be "The Measure of Attainment." The evening topic will be the third in the series on "The Enemies of the Church."

Work has been begun on the new post office building. When completed the building will have two front openings, one for the people entering the office and the other for those going out, thus avoiding the confusion which is caused at present, when the office is crowded at the evening mail.

Tuesday was the warmest day Three Rivers has experienced for some time. The temperature at the Quaboag House reached 96, at Cedilotte's store it was 97, and at W. F. Fillmore's grain store the mercury stood at 97, most of the day. Probably the warmest place in the village was the mule room of the mill, where it was 105.

WARREN.

Mrs. Edward Price.

Mrs. Jane S. Price, 62, wife of Edward Price, died Saturday evening after an extended illness. Mrs. Price had been a resident of Warren for over 30 years, and had been actively associated with the Methodist church. She leaves, besides her husband, three daughters, Mrs. Bessie M. Gilbert, Mrs. Jennie P. Harwood, Miss Flora Price, and three sons, Edwin, Henry E. and William A. The funeral was held from her late home on Southbridge street Tuesday afternoon, and burial was in Pine Grove cemetery.

Set Fire to Hay.

Walter, the six-years-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fenton, was painfully burned Sunday by setting fire to some hay in the cellar of his home on Richardson street. The boy secured some matches and set fire to the hay, which as it blazed up cut off his means of escape and at the same time threatened to burn the house. Mrs. Fenton rushed in and dragged the boy outside, and neighbors hearing the outcry hastened to put out the fire with a few pails of water. The boy received painful burns on his hands and face.

Station Broken Into.

An attempt was made to rob the ticket office at the Boston and Albany passenger station some time during last week Thursday night. Entrance was gained by breaking a pane of glass and unfastening the catch. The cash drawer was broken open, but no money was obtained. Three piles of partially burned papers were left on the floor, but no damage was caused by them, probably because of its being a hardwood floor.

Keith's Theatre.

Unquestionably the strongest and best balanced vaudeville program of the entire summer season is bulletined from Keith's for the week of July 24. Conspicuous on the program will be Maud Harrison, one of the latest recruits from the "legitimate," and company, in a one-act comedy sketch, "The Lady Across the Hall"; Paul Valadon, who will present a series of original problems, including the latest mystery, "The Drum That Can't Be Beaten"; the Williams and Walker Glee Club, an organization consisting of fifteen colored vocalists, which was one of the big features of Williams and Walkers' "In Dahomey," last season. Other entertainers on the big program will be Elmer Tenley, a clever monologue comedian, the Four Livingstones, skilful acrobats and tumblers; Barry and Halvers, comedians, acrobats and dancers; Hedrix and Prescott, vocalists and dancers; Grace Leonard, "the modern Vesta Tilley," and Arminta and Burke, skilful trapeze artists and horizontal ladder experts. The Fadettes will make an entire change of selections, and a complete new list of motion pictures will be exhibited in the kinotograph.

Our Boston Letter

It tells about

Early political picnics — The various Republican candidates for Lieut.-Governor—Date for the state convention —The late Gen. Blackmar.

BOSTON, July 19, 1905.

With the progress of the summer, the ripening of the clams and the development of various vegetable attractions, the time for the summer political picnic has come also. Saturday last the Norfolk club, at the Hotel Pemberton, gave opportunity for Candidates Draper, Hall, Guild and French to declare themselves. Tomorrow Candidate S. O. Bigney of Attleboro, manufacturer of jewelry and aspirant for the seat to be vacated by Fred S. Hall, who is trying to slip in where Curtis Guild Jr. now sits, will entertain such of the newspaper men of Boston as choose to go at the Atlantic club house at Nantasket "where the Hon. William W. Davis will endeavor to make your pod measurement larger than ever before in your newspaper career," and on Saturday, at Bass Point in Nahant, the Lincoln club of Boston, under the presidency of Representative Seiberlich of Boston, who is running for the Senate, will bring forth Michael J. Murray, formerly of Fitchburg, who is a possible Republican candidate for the mayorality of Boston, and various candidates for important office. William H. Moody is one of the advertised attractions, but there is a hole left for his nonappearance, in case he finds that it is impossible to attend. Several days ago it was said that every committee for attorney general had bought a ticket, with the exception of Scott Peters of Haverhill. This therefore includes Dana Malone, Asa P. French, Sanderson and Champlin, so that there ought to be plenty of good speaking, to say nothing of the quiet political work which is possible at such a gathering.

Perhaps all's fair in politics, as it is in love and war, and the spectator can look on and see the victim go in for defeat without feeling much compunction. But there is one exception, and that is in the case of Col. Goetting, Republican candidate for lieutenant governor. He has one plank in his platform which he finds is very popular, and that is that the second place on the ticket gives the holder no monopoly of the first place, as Guild has a cinch on first place, and as it was had by Bates before him, and Crane before him and Wolcott before him, time out of mind, back to the days of Byron Weston of Dalton, who held second place and did not expect and did not get first. Goetting finds strong support for this plank, and mistakenly construes it into support for him as candidate for second place. It is a pity that some one who is near enough to the colonel does not, in a kindly spirit, tell him the truth that his candidacy is looked upon as a joke by about every person who talks about it. At the Republican state headquarters, where he was chairman for six years, or twice as long as any other chairman, there is a quiet curl of the lip when he is named. The political leaders smile in their sleeves when the good-natured colonel is named as candidate for second place, and they all know that he does not stand a ghost of a show. The one man of prominence, Congressman Gillett, who has come out for him, is out of the country and will be in the Philippines till the campaign is over. It is a pity to see him going ahead, sending out circulars, or his friends for him, traveling from city to city, deluding himself with the idea that he is to be taken seriously, when every practical man knows otherwise. It is the one sorrowful sight of the campaign. When the campaign comes down to business, doubtless the colonel will drop out of sight, but it is a pity to prolong the agony.

The real contest for second place on the Republican ticket will come between Draper and Hall, yet if the nomination were to occur to-day, there is probably no doubt that Draper would get it by an overwhelming vote. Hall is a very "good fellow" as such men go in politics, but the machine is unquestionably with Draper. The influences which make state tickets are with him and it would not be at all surprising if Hall were left as pitiable an object as Goetting by the time of the convention. It all depends upon the stiffness of the reciprocity fight. Senator Crane, proclaiming himself a reciprocity man, is for Draper. He has thus far persuaded the Foss committee, against Foss's will, not to indorse any candidate. If he can win in defering action, then the reciprocity men will go into the convention with the barren and ridiculous consolation of a meaningless plank, while Draper carries off the votes, perfectly ready to stand upon any platform which the convention may build for him, getting the real oyster, while Hall gets the shells, unless the convention gives one of them to Goetting. That is the way the situation seems. Then the stand pat men at Washington will say truly that their candidate, Draper, got the real thing and that shows that the stand pat element really controls the state. This will be true and Foss and his friends will have done their hollering and spent their money for the sake of advertising themselves, while the Home Market club will have won a substantial victory. Unless the reciprocity men make a fight in the open, it is very evident that their entire movement in this state will continue in its present condition of athletic decreptitude until the cows come home, respected neither by their opponents nor by the public at large.

On Friday the Republican state committee will meet to arrange the preliminaries of the Republican state convention. At that time it is expected that there will be made public the apportionment of delegates for the state convention. The figures have been made already, but the work needs the official stamp of the committee. The basis of the convention will be the same as last year, namely, the vote for governor, but as there was such a prodigious slump in the Bates vote, the convention must inevitably consist of materially fewer delegates than before. The chairman of the convention is expected to be Congressman John W. Weeks of Newton, and it is intimated that Hon. Rockwood Hoar of Worcester will be the builder of the party platform, though there is questioning whether he will equal his accomplished father in such business. The date and place of the convention seem to be fixed already, namely, October 6, Friday, in Tremont Temple. With Ex-Governor Bates to nominate Lieut.-Gov. Guild for the first place, there will be some rousements for the listeners.

On the Democratic side the darkness over the first place on the ticket remains undispelled. Next Monday, at 2 p. m., by appointment, Josiah and his skilfully selected committee of 15 will meet Gov. Douglas for the sake of urging him to take a nomination for a second term. But there is not an indication of any relaxation of the original decision. It is true that the decision is put upon personal grounds, and that leaves the way open to appeal to him on public grounds and to ask him what right he has to put personal considerations above the call of the people, conceding that the call of the Democracy, as represented by the committee of 15, is the voice of the people. Of course it would not look well for Douglas to sacrifice party or public to his personal considerations. But his brief interview the other day with Congressman Sullivan showed that he is still determined to retire. If he does, then may come the turn of John R. Thayer and the robust Worcester Democracy.

One who has been familiar for 20 years with Gen. Wilmon W. Blackmar, the deceased head of the Grand Army for the country, says to-day that without doubt he gave his life for the organization. He was anxious to inspect it in detail. He undertook fatigue which he was unable to bear and death inevitably followed. The honor of the office was prized by Gen. Blackmar more than any other thing he could have secured, far more than the election to Congress which he failed to get. He was emphatically proud of this Grand Army membership. He owned for many years, and till his death, the chair in which Gen. Grant sat when he made the terms of Lee's surrender. Blackmar was there and some of the articles were bought of the owner of the house as relics, this chair among them. Gen. Capehart had it first, but afterwards transferred it to Blackmar. It is said by a personal friend that Blackmar came through the war, though a young man, without contracting any of the vices so common in army life and that he was absolutely pure in word and habit when he came out, and ever afterward.

To-morrow Edwin D. Mead, Mrs. Mead, Edward Ginn and others will sail on the Arabic for Liverpool. They will attend the International Peace Congress at Lucerne, beginning September 19. The Meads will attend before that the International Association of Unitarians. They go expecting to do what they can to promote the peace of the world, and they have large encouragement from the popular sentiment against war as illustrated by its last dreadful example.

LANDON.

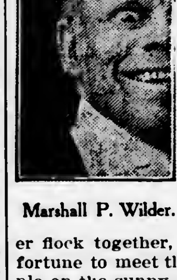
"If you are a worker and promise to work all the time, we want you," is the salutation that prospective students of the Springfield Business School, the oldest and largest business teaching institution of Western New England, receive from Mr. Griffin, principal. The school is famous throughout the country for the success of its students and their placing in positions. While Mr. Griffin, the principal, has provided expert teachers in every department of his school, he claims that the secret of the success of his school is due entirely to the high grade pupils. No incentive whatever is given to scholars who are not well up in their studies at the public schools and if, after talking with the prospective student, Mr. Griffin feels that he cannot place him or her, he is frank in so stating. Catalog containing views of the school with full information regarding studies, etc., will be mailed on application.

Wit and Humor of the Actors

Who Joseph Jefferson Was --- Pete Dailey's Audience --- May Irwin's Horrible Example --- Stuart Robson Wept --- Evans and Hoey

By MARSHALL P. WILDER

From "The Sunny Side of the Street," by Marshall P. Wilder. Copyright, 1905, by Funk & Wagnalls Company.



Marshall P. Wilder.

I LIVE on the sunny side of the street; shady folks live on the other. I always preferred the sunshine and have tried to put other people there, if only for an hour or two at a time, even if I had to do it after sunset from a platform under the gaslight, with my name billed at the door as entertainer.

As birds of a feather flock together, it has been my good fortune to meet thousands of other people on the sunny side of the street, and I shall endeavor to distribute some of the sunshine which these fine fellows unloaded on me.

Joseph Jefferson took delight in telling of a new playmate of one of his sons, who asked another boy who young Jefferson was and was told:

"Oh, his father works in a theater somewhere."

Pete Dailey, while enjoying a short vacation, visited a New York theater when business was dull. Being asked afterward how large the audience was, he replied, "I could lick all three of them."

On meeting a friend who was "fleshing up" he exclaimed, "You are getting so stout that I thought some one was with you."

May Irwin's Joke.

I have been the subject of some actors' jokes and enjoyed the fun as much as any one. May Irwin had two sons who early in life were susceptible to the seductive cigarette, against which she cautioned them earnestly. I entered a restaurant one day where she and her sons were dining, and she called me over and gave me an opportunity to become acquainted with the little fellows. After I left them one turned to his mother and asked:

"What makes that little man so short?"

"Smoking cigarettes," she replied. And they never smoked again.

Willie Collier invited me one summer to his beautiful home at St. James, on Long Island. He was out when I arrived, and when he returned Mrs. Collier said to him:

"You're going to have Marshall P. Wilder for dinner," and Willie replied:

"I'd rather have lamb."

When an acquaintance said to Augustus Thomas after being wearied by a play: "That was the slowest performance I ever saw. Strange, too, for it had a run of 100 nights in London!" Thomas replied:

"That's the trouble. It's exhausted its speed."

Cried For an Hour.

Stuart Robson had been a close neighbor and friend for many years to Lawrence Barrett. His bosom friend, Marshall Lewis, fell in love with Barrett's charming daughter Millie, and Robson pretended to think it was the greatest joke in the world.

"Why don't you go in and win and marry her, Marshall?" he used to say in the squeaky voice which was not for the stage alone. "I'll tell you what I'll do. The day you marry Millie Barrett I'll give you $5,000."

This went on for some time until, to Robson's astonishment and chagrin, Miss Barrett accepted Lewis.

By the way, when Barrett learned of it he exclaimed: "My dear boy, you don't know what you're doing. You are robbing me of my only remaining daughter."

"Not at all," Lewis replied, with a slap on the back of his father-in-law elect. "I'm merely giving you another son."

When the marriage day came Robson did not attend the ceremony, but he sent his daughter Alicia in his place, and gave her a check for $5,000 drawn to Lewis' order, but with emphatic orders not to part from it until Lewis and Miss Barrett were pronounced man and wife. When Alicia returned her father asked her if she had given Lewis the check.

The girl replied, "Yes, father."

"What did he do and say?" Robson inquired impatiently.

"Why, father, he was so overcome that he cried for a minute after I gave it to him."

"Egad!" squeaked Robson. "Was that all? Why, I cried for an hour when I wrote it."

Ezry and His Hog.

Henry Dixey is an adept at the leisurely tale, which is a word picture from start to finish. Here is a sample:

In one of the country stores, where they sell everything from a silk dress and a tub of butter to a hot drink and a cold meal, a lot of farmers were sitting around the stove one cold winter day, when in came Farmer Evans, who was greeted with:

"How d' do, Ezry?"

"How d' do, boys?" After awhile he continued, "Waal, I've killed my hog."

"That so? How much did he weigh?"

Farmer Evans stroked his chin whiskers meditatively and replied, "Waal, guess."

"'Bout three hundred," said one farmer.

"No."

"Two seventy-five?" ventured another.

"No."

"I guess about three twenty-five," said a third.

"No."

Then all together demanded, "Well, how much did he weigh?"

"Dunno. Hain't weighed him yet."

Other men kept dropping in and hugging the stove, for the day was cold and snowy outside.

An Order For Oysters.

In came Cy Hopkins, wrapped in a big overcoat, yet almost frozen to death, but there wasn't room enough around that stove to warm his little finger.

But he didn't get mad about it; he just said to Bill Stebbins, who kept the store, "Bill, got any raw oysters?"

"Yes, Cy."

"Well, just open a dozen and feed 'em to my hoss."

Well, Stebbins never was scared by an order from a man whose credit was good, as Cy's was, so he opened the oysters an' took them out, an' the whole crowd followed to see a horse eat oysters. Then Cy picked out the best seat near the stove and dropped into it as if he had come to stay, as he had.

Pretty soon the crowd came back, and the storekeeper said, "Why, Cy, your hoss won't eat them oysters."

"Won't he? Well, then, bring 'em here an' I'll eat 'em myself."

Evans and Hoey.

When Charley Evans and Bill Hoey traveled together, they had no end of good natured banter between them.

Once when Hoey saw Evans mixing lemon juice and water for a gargle he asked, "What are you doing that for, Charley?"

"Oh, for my singing."

"Suppose you put some in your ear, then maybe you'll be able to find the key."

While they were crossing the ocean Evans came on deck one day dressed in the latest summer fashion—duck trousers, straw hat, etc.—and asked Hoey, "How do you like me, Bill?"

"Well, all you need to do now is to have your ears pierced," was the reply.

Evans always carried the money for both, and the two men had a fancy for wearing trousers of the same material, though of different sizes, for Evans was slighter than his partner. One day Hoey fell on hard luck. He had been to the Derby races, where a pickpocket relieved him of his watch and his money too. They were to start for America next morning, and Evans had plenty of money and return tickets also, yet Hoey was so cut up by his losses that he went to bed early and tried to drop asleep. This did not work, so after tossing for several hours, by which time Evans had retired, he got up and began to dress himself. But, to his horror, his figure seemed to have swelled in the night.

This was the last straw. He woke his partner and with tears in his eyes and his voice, too, he said, "Charley, besides all my hard luck today, I'm getting dropsy."

"Bill," said Evans, after a glance, "go into the other room and take off my pants!"

Hoyt and the Broker.

A certain diamond broker called on the late Charles Hoyt with a large bill.

While Hoyt was drawing a check the broker said, "Charley, a dear friend of mine was robbed yesterday."

"Is that so? Why, what did you sell him?"

W. S. Gilbert, although not an actor, is a playwright and extremely critical. A London favorite had the best part in one of Gilbert's pieces, but the author thought him slow. Going behind the scenes after the performance, Gilbert noted that the actor's brow was perspiring, so he said:

"Well, at all events, your skin has been acting."

Gilbert can give evasive answers that cut like a knife. A player of the title part of Hamlet asked Gilbert's opinion of the performance.

"You are funny, without being vulgar," was the reply.

Forbes Robertson, who essayed the same part, asked Gilbert, "What do you think of Hamlet?"

Gilbert answered: "Wonderful play, old man. Most wonderful play ever written."

Irving and Mansfield.

E. S. Willard tells the following story of Charles Glenny of Irving's Lyceum company: "The Merchant of Venice" was in rehearsal, and Glenny did not repeat the lines, "Take me to the gallows, not to the font," to the liking of Irving, so the latter said in the kindly manner he always maintained at rehearsals:

"No, no, Mr. Glenny, not that way. Walk over and touch me and say, 'Take me to the gallows, not to the font.' The line was rehearsed several times, but unsuccessfully.

Finally Irving became discouraged and said, "Ah, well; touch me."

Irving witnessed Richard Mansfield's performance of "Richard III." in London, and by invitation went back to see the actor in his dressing room. Mansfield had been almost exhausted and was fanning himself, but Irving's approach revived him, and natural anticipation of a compliment from so exalted a source was absolutely stimulating.

But for the time being all Irving did was to slap Mansfield playfully on the back and exclaim in the inimitable Irving tone, "Aha! You sweat!"

Matrimony and Theology.

Matrimony should end all doctrinal quibbles. If the man happen to be born a pagan and the woman something else, let them compromise their differences and become, both of them, of the same faith. Let them cast lots if there be no other way.—From "The Bishop's Niece," by George H. Picard.

POINT LACE.

The Result of the Genius of Barbara Uttman of Saxony.

A little known example of inventive genius in woman is that afforded by Barbara Uttman of Saxony and her point lace so long in fashionable use all over the world. She invented the process and apparatus for manufacturing this beautiful handiwork, which has since given employment to millions of operators and which, in its line, has never been excelled. The apparatus looks like a long pincushion bristling with pins arranged to outline the pattern or design. The operator manages from ten to fifty peculiar spools, allowing the thread to feed over the pins alternately until the design is completed. The spools or bobbins are purposely of different colors, so as to be easily distinguishable. The process is slow and difficult to learn. Miss Uttman founded schools where thousands learned it. Since her time, when inventive ability was rare even among men, her ideas have been incorporated in the construction of machinery by which the lace is produced at wonderful lower rates, and yet Barbara Uttman's lace still surpasses all.—London Queen.

Too Rich a Haul.

When General Trepoff was chief of police in Moscow, before the establishment of the state liquor monopoly, he was told from the highest quarters to suppress the orgies at popular resorts in the town. A few days later the police raided the principal restaurants after midnight, and the next morning General Trepoff asked of his august master directions for the prosecution of one member of the imperial family, two judges of the high court, a mayor and deputy mayor, several generals and many women well known in Moscow society, who, among others, had been arrested in the raid. The matter ended there.

Has the Most Legs.

The little creature which bears the distinction of owning more legs and feet than any other known organized being is the milleped, which literally means "thousand footed." There are several species of these curious worms, all possessing the characteristic of having a many segmented body, each segment provided with a pair of legs. Unlike the centipeds—"hundred footed"—they are perfectly harmless.

A Healthy Puppy.

"There's only one good thing about that young puppy that came to see you last night," said the irascible father, "and that is he's healthy."

"I'm surprised to hear you admit that much," replied the dutiful daughter.

"I wouldn't except for the fact that when you met him in the hall last night I heard you say, 'Oh, George, how cold your nose is!'"

One Dollar Saved Represents Ten Dollars Earned.

The average man does not save to exceed ten per cent of his earnings. He must spend nine dollars in living expenses for every dollar saved. That being the case he cannot be too careful about unnecessary expenses. Very often a few cents properly invested, like buying seeds for his garden, will save several dollars outlay later on. It is the same in buying Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It costs but a few cents, and a bottle of it in the house often saves a doctor's bill of several dollars. Charles Gilman residing on the Ware road, says: "While I do not want it to be understood that I have been completely cured by Doan's Kidney Pills, you can say for me that they have done me a world of good and I can recommend them to anyone as a good reliable remedy. I have been troubled off and on for some time with dull, heavy, aching pains through my kidneys and loins, and I have had also spells of dizziness in my head. If I bent over to lift anything it hurt me and caused my back to ache severely. Mr. LeGro recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to me and I commenced to use them some weeks ago. The pain has already left me and I am not troubled with dizziness as formerly. I can stoop without feeling twinges, in fact to tell the truth I feel better than I have in many a long day."

PALMERS LOSE FIRST GAME.

Stafford Springs Does the Trick; Score 10-5, 13 Innings.

The Palmer baseball team met its first defeat of the season last Saturday, when an aggregation of players from Stafford Springs, Ct, assisted by errors on the part of the Palmers, succeeded in winning by a score of 10 to 5. It took thirteen innings to do the trick however, in which was some of the prettiest ball playing ever seen in Palmer—as well as some which would go about as far the other way, both teams sharing in both divisions.

Stafford started the scoring in the first with a base on balls, a sacrifice hit and two base hits, which with a stolen base and some bad errors on the part of Palmer netted four runs. Palmer scored five times in the third by a base on balls, four single hits and a couple of errors on the part of Stafford. There was no other run getting until the seventh, when Stafford tied the score. The next five innings produced some snappy playing on both sides, several good opportunities to score being nipped by clever playing and sharp fielding in which the honors were about even.

Thirteen is considered an unlucky number, and this inning certainly proved the superstition, so far as Palmer was concerned. Collins, the first man up for Stafford, hit the ball safe; Cobb struck out; a two-bagger by Smith, a three-bagger by Kelliher, singles by McClelland and Reynolds and another two-bagger by Hurley netted five runs. For Palmer Foster and Lewis started off with singles and it looked as though there might be a run or two, but the hope died when the following batters failed to hit safely, and the side was retired without a run. The score:

St. Johns 32, Foresters 12.

The game of the West-end baseball league at West Warren Saturday was between the St. John the Baptist Society and the Foresters, the former winning 32 to 12. The St. Johns brought in six runs in the first inning and had the game almost their own way. Numerous errors were made on both sides. The score by innings:

St. John, 6 2 4 3 5 0 3 1 8—32
Foresters, 1 0 0 0 0 6 3 0 2—12

Batteries: Gravel and Methot: Sheehan and Stone. Time, 2h. Umpire, Brodeur. Attendance, 300.

Notes.

The game to-morrow will be with the Stafford team at Stafford.

The Ludlows defeated the Easthampton team 7 to 6 in a ten-inning game at Ludlow Saturday. The game was interesting all through.

The Indian Orchard baseball association, at a meeting last Friday night, voted to change the name of the team to the Father Mathew baseball team.

The Monson baseball team will play the Indian Orchard team on Flynt Park in Monson to-morrow afternoon at 3.30 Cartmill and Peloquin will be the battery for the home team and O'Leary and Clark for the Indian Orchards.

The South Manchester, Ct., baseball team will play the Monson team on Flynt Park Saturday, July 29th. This will be one of the best games of the season. In the game at South Manchester early in the season the Monson team was defeated in a very close game.

Bondsville Country Club Defeated.

The Bondsville Country Club team was defeated on the home links Saturday afternoon by the Rockrimmon team of Springfield by a score of 14 to 1, Nassau system of counting. This being the first game played between these two teams much interest was shown, and for the first half it was a close contest; but on the last nine holes the Springfields gained steadily. Frank Convery of the home team was the only player to hold his man down. The score:

THE LASTING BRICKS.

Once Made, These Cakes of Baked Clay Are Good For All Time.

From the time the clay is dug out of its bed until it finds its permanent place in some building's walls as a brick it is handled not less than a hundred times and by more than a score of different individuals.

Take into account the persons and processes directly and indirectly interested in brickmaking, masonry building and inhabiting such buildings, and the human mind is baffled by figures reaching into the trillions—and a trillion is written 1,000,000,000,000!

Once made, a brick is practically indestructible. Nearly every brick that has ever been made by man from the beginning of time is still in existence on this earth. The men who made and laid them and who directed these operations have long since been gathered into dust. Some of them have doubtless contributed in their bodies to the making of more bricks. But the steadfast and enduring square of baked clay persists and will until the heavens and earth are shriveled like a scroll.

Upon inscriptions in bricks our earliest knowledge of human history depends. Kings whose glory has passed so utterly that all but their names have perished still owe the perpetuation of these names to a mark in the perdurable brick.—Chicago Journal.

THE ALLIGATOR'S JAWS.

They Will Open If You Stick Your Fingers In His Eyes.

"If ever you have the luck to be caught by an alligator put a finger in each eye," says an old Australian hunter. "That will have the effect of making him open his jaws, and then you can make the most of your opportunity. There are several known instances of the escape of natives by that means. Alligators prefer their food high, so the chances are if you are caught you will be deposited on the bottom somewhere. I heard of one native escaping even then. When crossing the rivers the natives carry stout sticks, so if encountered by an alligator they can ward him off by shoving a stick down his throat.

"That alligators have enormous strength I have evidence besides my own experience. At Port Essington a buffalo was drinking in a stream when an alligator nailed it by the head and drowned it. Soon afterward a horse was caught while drinking at the same spot. It dragged the alligator about forty yards before the brute let go. Mr. Robinson anchored the body of a horse a little distance out from a cliff close to his camp. In due time he had his chance and shot a fifteen foot alligator."

A Blood Sucking Earthworm.

South Africa is the home of a species of earthworm, a creature closely related to our common angleworm, who is not only a giant among the denizens of the soil, but which is reputed to have a taste for human blood. There are two species of this uncanny wiggler—one of a dark red color and the other almost black. They are larger than one's finger and from three to four inches in length.

A Bold Girl.

Her Mother—If you marry him you need never expect me to come to see you.

Daughter—Will you put that into writing?

"What for?"

"I want to give it to Fred as a wedding present."

Force of Habit.

"A thousand stars are looking down on you this night!" said the poetical young man to the girl.

And she unconsciously put her hands up to arrange the position of her hat.

Art of Telling a Humorous Tale—Mark Twain a Past Master—"The Golden Arm"—At Senator Depew's Expense

By MARSHALL P. WILDER

From "The Sunny Side of the Street," by Marshall P. Wilder. Copyright, 1905, by Funk & Wagnalls Company.

Marshall P. Wilder.

THE act of telling a humorous story—by word of mouth, understand, not in print—was created in America and has remained at home in spite of many earnest endeavors to domesticate it abroad and even to counterfeit it.

The late Artemus Ward, who a generation ago carried a tidal wave of humor from Maine to California, had a long, serious face and would drawl along without giving the slightest indication of what was coming. When the joke was unloaded and the audience got hold of it he would look up with seemingly innocent wonder as to what people were laughing at. It was worth a ten mile walk after dark on a corduroy road to hear him say, "I once knew a man in New Zealand who hadn't a tooth in his head"—here he would pause for some time, look reminiscent and continue — "and yet he could beat a bass drum better than any other man I ever knew."

"The Golden Arm."

Mark Twain is another famous humorist who can use a serious countenance and hesitating voice with wonderful effect in a story. His tale of "The Golden Arm" was the best thing of its kind I ever heard. Here it is as he gave it:

"Once 'pon a time dey wuz a mons'us mean man, en' he live 'way out in de prairie all 'lone by himself, 'cep't he had a wife. En' bimeby she died, en' he took en' toted her 'way out da' in de prairie en' buried her. Well, she had a golden arm, all solid gold f'om de shoulder down. He wuz pow'ful mean—pow'ful—en' dat night he couldn't sleep 'coze he wanted dat golden arm so bad.

"When it come midnight he couldn't stan' it no mo', so he got up, he did, en' tuk his lantern en' shoved out troo de storm en' dug her up en' got de golden arm, en' he bent his head down 'gin de wind en' plowed en' plowed en' plowed troo de snow. Den all on a sudden he stop" (make a considerable pause here and look startled and take a listening attitude) "en' say: 'My lan'! What's dat?' En' he listen en' listen, en' de wind say" (set your teeth together and imitate the wailing and wheezing singsong of the wind), "'Buzz-z-zzz!' en' den way back yonder whah de grave is he hear a voice all mix up in de win'—can't hardly tell 'em 'part: Bzzz-zzz—w-h-o—g-o-t—m-y g-o-l-d-e-n arm?' (You must begin to shiver violently now.)

"En' he begin to shiver en' shake en' say: 'Oh, my! Oh, my lan'!' En' de win' blow de lantern out, en' de snow en' de sleet blow in his face en' 'most choke him, en' he start a-plowin' knee deep toward home, mos' dead, he so sk'yeerd, en' pooty soon he hear de voice again, en'" (pause) "it 'us comin' after him: 'Buzzzz-zzz—w-h-o—g-o-t m-y g-o-l-d-e-n—arm?'

She'll Fetch a Yelp.

"When he git to de pasture he hear it ag'in—closter, now, en' a-comin' back dah in de dark en' de storm" (repeat the wind and the voice). "When he git to de house he rush upstairs, en' jump in de bed, en' kiver up head en' years, en' lay dah a-shiverin' en' a-shakin', en' den 'way out dah he hear it ag'in, en' a-comin'! En' bimeby he hear" (pause—awed; listening attitude) "—at—pat—pat—pat—hit's a-comin' upstairs! Den he hear de latch, en' he knows it's in de room.

"Den pooty soon he knows it's—standin' by de bed!" (Pause.) "Den he knows it's a-bendin' down over him—en' he cain't sca'cely git his breaf! Den—den he seem to feel somethin' c-o-l-d, right down neah agin his head! (Pause.)

"Den de voice say, right at his year, 'W-h-o g-o-t m-y g-o-l-d-e-n arm?'" You must wail it out plaintively and accusingly; then you stare steadily and impressively into the face of the farthest gone auditor—a girl, preferably—and let that awe inspiring pause begin to build itself in the deep hush. When it has reached exactly the right length, jump suddenly toward that girl and yell, "'You've got it!'"

If you have got the pause right, she'll fetch a dear little yelp and spring right out of her shoes. But you must get the pause right, and you will find it the most troublesome and aggravating and uncertain thing you ever undertook.

One on Depew.

Senator Chauncey M. Depew can tell a new story every day of the year and add two or three by way of good measure. He was billed to make a speech, and the editor of the local paper called at his hotel to argue politics with him. The editor quoted newspaper statements frequently to support his arguments, but Depew replied, "Oh, you can't believe everything the newspapers say."

After the speechmaking ended the editor and Mr. Depew met again in the center of a crowd of listeners.

"Well, my friend," the genial Chauncey asked, "what did you think of my speech?"

The editor hesitated a moment before he inquired solemnly, "Are you the genuine Chauncey M. Depew?"

"Certainly. Do you doubt it?"

Again the editor hesitated. He regarded the speaker as if he were sizing him up and asked, "Are you the man all the newspapers have been saying is the finest speaker, the greatest talker, the sharpest stumper and the brightest wit before the public?"

Depew modestly blushed at this array of compliments, but replied, "I guess I am he, but why do you ask?"

"Oh, because one can't believe everything the newspapers say."

And Depew made haste to shake hands with the editor and call it square.

CHOLERA INFANTUM.

Child Not Expected to Live from One Hour to Another, but Cured by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Ruth, the little daughter of E. N. Dewey of Agnewville, Va., was seriously ill of cholera infantum last summer. "We gave her up and did not expect her to live from one hour to another," he says. "I happened to think of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and got a bottle of it from the store. In five hours I saw a change for the better. We kept on giving it and before she had taken the half of one small bottle she was well." This remedy is for sale by the Quimby Pharmacy, Palmer.

Sousa's Ham Story.

Bandmaster Sousa can always cap an improbable story with a bigger one. After listening to an extraordinary yarn about some man's appetite he told the following, which he attributed to a southern negro:

"Down on our fahm we'ze got a man by de name o' Jim. Now, Jim's de champion ham eater of all de country roun'. Unc' Henry hed cha'ge o' de fahm, an' ev'ybody 'spected Unc' Henry, an' when Unc' Henry tol' any o' us to do anythin' we jus' done it 'ithout stoppin' to ask any questions, 'cause we had conf'dence in him. We knowed he wouldn't ever tell us to do anythin' dat we hadn't orter.

"But dat Jim—w'y, folks come f'om all de country roun' jes' to see Jim eat ham, fo' de way he could tuck ham away was amazin'—it suttinly was. How you would laugh to see Jim a-settin' by de fence one day a-eatin' one ham after another like ez ef dey was cakes or biscuits! 'Twas 'ez easy to him as pickin' teeth, an' he'd got down eight hams, an' de ninth was a follerin', but I reckon it wuz f'om a middlin' old hawg, for some gris'le got in his throat an' choked him an' stopped his breath, so we wuz afeared dat we wuz a-goin' to lose Jim.

"But up got Unc' Henry sort o' easy-like, an' he went over to de fence, an' he tuk a slab, an' he walk t'ward Jim, an' he sez, 'Jim, git down on all fours!' Dat slab looked mighty big, it did, an' right in front o' Jim was a big pile o' stones, but Jim had conf'dence in Unc' Henry, so he got down on all fours an' waited, a' de gris'le in his throat, why, dat waited too. An' Unc' Henry palited Jim's coat tails an' h'isted de slab an' fetched it down wid a mighty swish an' give Jim a hit, an' Jim went head first on to dat pile o' stones, but he had conf'dence in Unc' Henry, so he knowed he wouldn't be knocked through de stones, but would stop ez soon ez he hit 'em. An' when he struck dem stones dat piece o' gris'le 'lowed it had bizness somewhar else. An' Jim riz up an' hollered, 'Gimme anudder ham!'"

Buffalo Bill's Yarn.

One evening Colonel Cody told this story to two or three friends with whom he was spending the evening. When he was General Sheridan's chief of scouts there was "a little affair" in camp at which every one present got well filled up but Cody. He had determined to keep sober and succeeded. Toward morning he went to the cottage where he lived, rapped on the window and made himself known, and his wife, who refused to open the door, said:

"Go away, whoever you are. Colonel Cody isn't home yet." At this point of the story Cody laughed and continued:

"Boys, I'd gone home sober, and my wife didn't know me! I went back to the camp, got as full as any one else, returned to my house, approached the door unsteadily, fumbled the latch, and my wife's voice greeted me, saying:

"'Is that you, Willie?'"

Irving's Absentmindedness.

Sir Henry Irving can turn even his peculiarities to account in story telling. Like any other man of affairs, he had sudden and long periods of absentmindedness. One day while we were driving together he turned to me and said:

"Marshall, I have a story you can add to your repertory—a very quaint one." Then he went into deep thought and we had gone fully a block before he spoke again. Then he said:

"And you know"—

Then we went another block, then farther, but suddenly he asked:

"Now, wasn't that droll?" It certainly was, no matter what it was, if he said so, but he still owes me the story, for he had told it only to himself.

General Miles is loaded to the muzzle with good stories. Here are some that he gave me one day in quick succession:

Two by General Miles.

A darky approached a fish stand kept by another darky and asked: "Got any fresh fish?"

"'Cose I has. What you tink I's sellin'—shoes?"

"Oh, I knows you's sellin' fish, but is dey fresh?"

"'Cose dey's fresh. Hyah!—quit smellin' o' dem fish!"

"I ain't smellin' 'em."

"What you doin', den?"

"I's jus' whisperin' to 'em, dat's all."

"An' what you whisperin' to dem fish?"

"Oh, I's jus' askin' 'em how's all deyre relations dat they lef' in de ocean."

"An' what dey say?"

"Dey say it's so long since dey seen 'em dat dey forgits."

An Irishman said: "Last night at 2 o'clock in the marnin' whin I was walkin' up and down the flure wid me bare feet on the oilcloth wid a cryin' child on aich arm I cuddent help rememberin' that me father wanted me to be a priest, but I thought I knew better than he did."

A Job In the Senate Chamber

By Frank H. Sweet

Copyright, 1905, by Frank H. Sweet

She went up the middle steps and turned around the corner to the right. A long line was extending back from the door, expectant, impatient, though the visitors' gallery would not be open to the public until 12. She drew from her belt the one remaining link of former opulence. It still lacked ten minutes, and she slipped the watch back with a scarcely breathed sigh. Why had she come here at all, she thought accusingly? She would be better visiting the stores in search of a position as clerk; there were surely some business houses she had not yet been in. And—and besides—

Her eyes were brighter, and a flush came and descended to her lips in a soft, evanescent smile that was more like the smile of the old days before the wistfulness came.

She had been standing at the postoffice door, and he had looked precisely as he had that day when he parted from them in the Arizona canyon, he a penniless prospector and her father an extensive mine owner. And he had not forgotten. Even before she saw him he had sprung from a carriage, without regard to his horses, and was coming up the postoffice steps with outstretched hands.

"Good heavens! You here, Muriel—Miss Ashburton," he had cried, with a gladness in his voice which he did not attempt to conceal and which brought an answering color to her face and light to her eyes. There had been nothing between them except a look and hand pressure, but she had often thought of him in these later dreary years and was glad to know he had remembered her. "I looked for you everywhere—everywhere," he had continued, "but without a clew. I was afraid you had gone from my life. But pardon me; we cannot talk here, and I have a great deal to say. May I call on you at once—this evening? Is your father here?"

"My father is dead," she had managed to say. Her brain had been in a whirl, her heart in a tumult. What did it all mean? What was this impetuous madman saying, implying? By a strong effort she had controlled herself.

"Yes, you may call," she had answered in a low voice. "I—I will be glad to see you." And she had given him the number of the house in which she rented one small room.

"Thank you. I will be there early. I would ask to go back with you now, but I have an appointment which is already overdue. Isn't it providential, though, this meeting? I have been in Washington only three days, and to turn up against you like this!"

"Have you employment here?" she had asked for want of something better to say.

"Yes, temporarily; a job in the senate chamber. You remember I was a jack of all trades, from a farm boy to an impecunious prospector, with occasional dabs at fresco painting and journalism to help me through college. But I will not detain you here in the wind any longer."

She had watched him spring into the carriage and drive away, an odd light in her eyes and a warm color in her cheeks. As she went down the sidewalk she laughed softly. Eight years before she would not have been like this. Evidently he was without any regular employment, just doing some temporary work in the senate chamber—fresco painting probably, for he had spoken of being familiar with that. At first, from his being in the carriage holding the horses, she had thought he might be a coachman, waiting for his employer's return. But, after all, what did it matter? Coachman or painter or impecunious prospector, he was warm hearted and honest and ambitious. She could read that in his eyes and in the strong, full grasp of his hands. And he had remembered her and—and cared for her. It was beautiful to know that in the hurrying, indifferent world there was one who still thought of her and cared for her a little. The manner or lack of employment was such a small matter compared with that. Knowledge of life soon leveled such petty distinctions.

Almost unconsciously her steps had turned toward the capitol. The only alternative seemed a continuation of her search for employment, and, somehow, she shrank from that just now, even though she had been restricting herself to a single meal a day for a week. She would celebrate the finding of a friend. It was opening day at the senate chamber and would be unusually interesting, and perhaps she might see this friend himself or some of the work he had been doing.

There was a sudden stir in the line ahead of her, and she felt herself being pushed forward. The door was open at last, and foot by foot, yard by yard, she was being impelled toward it. But when she entered every seat was taken, and she could only crowd herself into the narrow space behind the last row. She could see the chaplain and a few of the senators on the far side of the chamber and upon the few desks in sight a gorgeous display of flowers.

Presently she heard the opening prayer and bowed her head. Then there was a confusion of voices, with quick, crisp sentences from one desk and another, followed by a short recess in which there was a great shaking of hands and introductions among the senators. At the end of fifteen or twenty minutes some of those in the visitors' gallery began to rise and leave. They had witnessed the opening and were now going home to lunch. Soon she was able to step down to a vacant seat in one of the front rows.

She had now a good view of the chamber, and her gaze swept curiously from desk to desk. Many of the senators she recognized from pictures she had seen in current periodicals. Suddenly she started and half arose. She had not thought to see him down there; if she met him at all it would be in one of the corridors, and probably at work. But there he was, at one of the desks, examining some papers. What did it mean? He had no right to be in there now, while the senate was in session.

An hour later she descended to the next floor, still dazed and wondering. As she left the elevator she met him face to face.

"What! you here, Muriel—Miss Ashburton?" he cried. "This is splendid! Now we can have that talk without waiting until evening. I know a cozy little table down in a corner of the cafe where we can be all by ourselves. We will talk while we eat our lunch. Come."

She was looking at him with wide eyes.

"Why were you in there, at a desk?" she demanded.

"In the senate chamber? Oh, that's my job. You see, when I left you that day I went straight to one of the new towns and opened a law office. My father was a lawyer, and I had studied with him. Somehow the people seemed to like my ways, and last year they hatched up a plot to send me here. But come, we can talk better at the table. I have a proposition for your consideration, and," his voice suddenly becoming grave, "I hope you will be able to see your way to accede to it. Come."

And she, after a moment's bewildered, ecstatic hesitation, went.

An Animal Cemetery.

In spite of much agitation upon the subject at various times, lovers of animals have never succeeded in establishing in this country a cemetery as elaborate as those in several European capitals.

The largest and most beautiful animal cemetery is La Necropole Zoologique, in Paris, or, rather, in the suburb of Asnieres. Here a large plot of ground is laid out for the interment of dogs and other animals, and here are erected monuments in every way as handsome as those over the graves of human beings in other cities of the dead.

Some famous dogs have sculptures to mark their memories, and dog kennels in marble are favorite vaults. For $2.50 a grave is leased for three years, and this fee includes the services of a dog undertaker, uniformed and mounted on a tricycle. For $100 a grave may be leased in perpetuity, and between these extremes may be found prices to suit all purposes. The cemetery occupies an entire island in the Seine, and, apart from the rental of graves, the company owning the property makes a handsome profit out of the sale of admission tickets to visitors.

The Race He Won.

In the old whaling days a New Bedford captain fell in with a lot of his "townies" in the Pacific, says the Chicago Record-Herald, and after a landing for water on the coast of South America, began a boat race off shore toward the ships. The old skipper kept muttering to his crew to take it easy. The others jeered him as he fell behind, but he took it cheerfully.

"The race I'm after is the race home," he said. He pointed to a little bight in the rocks into which the crew could just see.

"Ever see that rock in there before?" he asked. "No, I guess not. That's a cow whale and her calf up there on the shore. It's her nursery."

When the others were far enough away to give him a clear field he made for the shore. He got the cow and the calf. The others said very little about the race he did not win, for he was the first man back to New Bedford.

Ups and Downs of Santa Cruz.

Probably no other of the West Indian islands has had such a checkered career as Santa Cruz. In turn it has belonged to Spain, which abandoned it; to England and Holland jointly; to England alone; to Spain again, which fell upon the colonists and destroyed or deported them all; to France, which took it from Spain; to the Knights of Malta, who received it as a gift from France; to a private company of adventurers. Then it was resumed possession of by France, but abandoned, so that in 1720 it was uninhabited. Then it became a no man's land until 1727, when France took it again, and presently sold it to a Danish company, which sold it in turn to the king of Denmark. In 1801 England took it once more, gave it back to Denmark, repented and took it away again in a few months, held it for eight years, and then returned it to Denmark, which holds it still.

Plucky Oglethorpe.

Of General Oglethorpe, the founder of the state of Georgia, Boswell, Dr. Johnson's biographer, relates this story: "When a very young man, only fifteen, serving under Prince Eugene of Savoy, he was sitting at table in company with a prince of the house of Wurttemberg, who took up a glass of wine and by a fillip made some of it fly into Oglethorpe's face. The young soldier was in a dilemma. He durst not challenge so distinguished a personage, yet he must notice the affront. Therefore, keeping his eye fixed on his highness and smiling at the time, as if he took what had been done in jest, Oglethorpe exclaimed, 'That's a good joke, but we do it much better in England.' Whereupon he flung a whole glassful of wine in the prince's face. The affair ended in good humor."

Cure For The Blues
ONE MEDICINE THAT HAS NEVER FAILED
Health Fully Restored and the Joy of Life Regained

When a cheerful, brave, light-hearted woman is suddenly plunged into that perfection of misery, the BLUES, it is a sad picture. It is usually this way: She has been feeling "out of sorts" for some time; head has ached and back also; has slept poorly, been quite nervous, and nearly fainted once or twice; head dizzy, and heart-beats very fast; then that bearing-down feeling, and during her menstrual period she is exceedingly despondent. Nothing pleases her. Her doctor says: "Cheer up: you have dyspepsia; you will be all right soon."

Mrs Rosa Adams

But she doesn't get "all right," and hope vanishes; then come the brooding, morbid, melancholy, everlasting BLUES.

Don't wait until your sufferings have driven you to despair, with your nerves all shattered and your courage gone, but take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. See what it did for Mrs. Rosa Adams, of 819 12th Street, Louisville, Ky., niece of the late General Roger Hanson, C.S.A. She writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I cannot tell you with pen and ink what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered with female troubles, extreme lassitude, 'the blues,' nervousness and that all-gone feeling. I was advised to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it not only cured my female derangement, but it has restored me to perfect health and strength. The buoyancy of my younger days has returned, and I do not suffer any longer with despondency, as I did before. I consider Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a boon to sick and suffering women."

If you have some derangement of the female organism write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice.

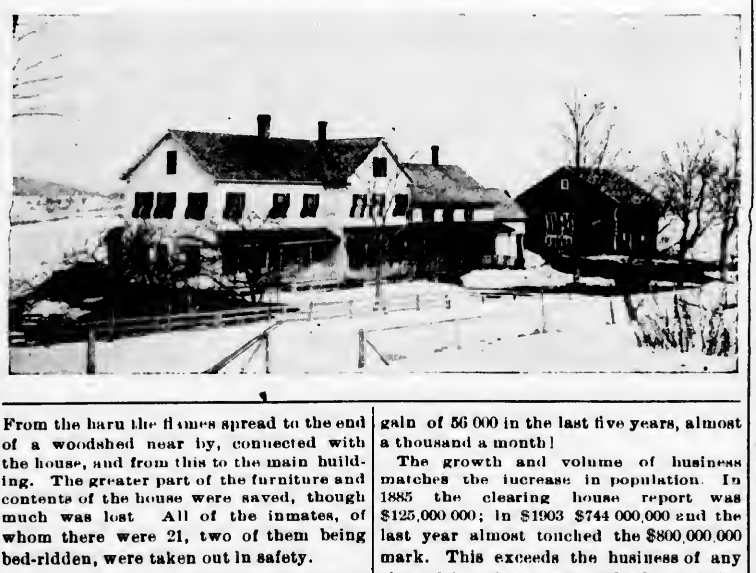
ALMSHOUSE BURNED.

Buildings on Palmer Town Farm Destroyed Tuesday.

ALL INMATES GOTTEN OUT SAFELY.

Fire Started in Barn, From Unknown Cause. Loss $12,000, Partially Insured.

The buildings on the Palmer town farm were wholly destroyed by fire on Tuesday morning, the fire starting a little before 9 o'clock. The fire started in the barn, and this, with the entire contents with the exception of the live stock, was soon burned.



From the barn the flames spread to the end of a woodshed near by, connected with the house, and from this to the main building. The greater part of the furniture and contents of the house were saved, though much was lost. All of the inmates, of whom there were 21, two of them being bed-ridden, were taken out in safety.

The fire was discovered by Cullen Carter, one of the inmates, who was at work in a small garden beyond the barn. He heard a crackling sound, and looking around saw a large volume of smoke coming from the gable window of the barn. He at once shouted that the barn was on fire, and attracted the attention of Frank Bifield, who was working in a field near by. He at once ran to the barn and turned the three horses out: the cattle were all out at pasture. When he reached the barn there was some fire spreading down from the haymow, but the seat of the fire was evidently on the top of the mow in the corner furthest from the house and nearest the road. There was nothing which could be done to save the structure, and the attention of all who were able to work was given to getting the inmates out of the house. This was soon accomplished and the work of removing the furniture begun, with the assistance of neighbors who had by this time arrived. By beginning at the end nearest the barn much of the contents of the house was saved, though many things were overlooked and some could not be removed.

At the first discovery of the fire the department at Palmer was telephoned to for aid, the alarm being rung at two minutes past nine. Mr. and Mrs. Perkins, the warden and matron, had just left on the 9 o'clock electric for a trip to Mount Tom with friends, leaving the farm in charge of Frank Bifield, the hired man, and Mary Hurley, the domestic, both of whom were thoroughly competent and trustworthy, this arrangement having the entire approval of the overseers. Mr. and Mrs. Perkins were stopped at the foot of State street in Springfield by a telephone message and returned at once. Meanwhile the firemen and the steamer had arrived, the latter being set beside a small artificial pond in a field at the rear of the house. The soft soil allowed the heavy machine to sink down until the grate rested on the ground; the machine then had to be jacked up as much as possible and the earth shoveled away from beneath in order to secure a draft for the fire. All this took time, and meanwhile the house was burning. By the time the engine had been adjusted and a stream secured there was no hope of saving the structure, and it was wholly burned.

Quarters for the inmates was the problem on hand, and a vacant house belonging to Packard Trumble at Palmer Center, about a quarter of a mile from the burned buildings, was secured. It contains 10 rooms and has recently been painted and renovated internally. Here the greater part of the inmates were and are quartered, and will probably remain until definite action is taken regarding rebuilding. The house is not large enough to accommodate all however, and three are being boarded at the Monson town farm; another, who was a boarder, was removed yesterday to the House of Mercy hospital in Springfield. They all stood the excitement nicely, and none are the worse for the event.

The origin of the fire is a mystery. The whereabouts of every inmate at the time of the fire is accounted for and renders it impossible that it could have been started by any of them; its location precludes any suggestion of that nature. Mrs. Perkins, the matron, was up Monday night until 4 a. m., with a sick patient, and noticed that the dog, which has never before made any disturbance, was uneasy all night, barking and growling. She thought nothing of it until after the fire, but is now inclined to believe that there was someone about the premises or in the barn. The loss on the buildings and contents is estimated at $12,000, with insurance of something over $9600. The loss on hay will be heavy; the crop had been unusually good this year and was all in the barn. The only live stock lost were three shoats and a number of hens.

The present town farm was bought by the town in 1863, when it was voted "To sell the town farm near Blanchardville and purchase the farm of Ralph Green near the old Center for the use of the town; price $2500." It was a poor bargain. The farm at the Center is sterile, while that disposed of so many years ago—known recently as the "Hawley Keith" farm—is composed of much better land. In 1879 it was voted to build a new house and barn on the poor farm, the original buildings having been burned, and the main part of the house destroyed this week and the wing next the barn were built. A few years ago the woman's wing further from the barn was constructed. The farm has also been added to from time to time, but the tillable acreage is very small, and the soil very poor, making it impossible to secure a low weekly cost per inmate.

Gloucester Minister Called.

The First Congregational church at Ludlow Center voted Monday night to extend a call to Rev. Rufus P. Hibbard, formerly of Trinity church in Gloucester.

A BIG WESTERN CITY.

Some Interesting Matters Concerning Minneapolis, Minn.

Hezekiah Butterworth calls Minneapolis the "Crystal City," and well it deserves the name. No city on the continent has within its limits and at its doors so many and such beautiful lakes of the sparkling northern water. "Flour City," however, is the familiar name, but it sounds commercial. While this latter title rightfully belongs to this queen of the northwest, there are many things here besides flour mills.

The completion of the Minnesota state census recalls attention to the "Metropolis of the Northwest." No other municipality in this region is making such rapid progress in population and business. In 1880 the population was 46,887; in 1890, 164,738; in 1900, 202,718; and in the enumeration just completed, 258,000. Here is a gain of 56 000 in the last five years, almost a thousand a month!

The growth and volume of business matches the increase in population. In 1885 the clearing house report was $125,000 000; in $1903 $744 000,000 and the last year almost touched the $800,000,000 mark. This exceeds the business of any city of its class, and, indeed, outstrips many cities that are larger. Of course the three great departments of manufacture and trade are grain, flour and lumber. Minneapolis is the largest primary wheat market in the world, the actual wheat sales alone being about 100,000,000 bushels a year. This enormous quantity is used not only to supply the mills and elevators of this city, but fully one-fifth of the total amount is sent to mills outside of the city and even to other states. The new chamber of commerce is one of the most commodious and beautiful business buildings in the world, and houses thousands of people during the day. The great flour mills have a daily capacity of 80,000 barrels, "Pillsbury A" alone being able to turn out 12,400 barrels. These mills are now practically combined into three groups: The Pillsbury-Washburn Company with five mills, the Washburn-Crosby, five, and the Northwestern Consolidated Milling Company with eight. Besides these there are four independent companies. The mills employ about 2000 men and put out fifteen to eighteen million barrels of flour annually.

Minneapolis takes the lead as a lumber market. The St. Anthony Falls water power and proximity to the great northern forests were great advantages. Although the water power is now utilized by the milling and electric power interests and the saw mills have retreated to the northern section of the city, using their own waste to generate steam power, the city retains her precedence in the lumber trade. The mills have an annual capacity of 750 000,000 feet, and actually put out about 560,000,000 each year. Ruthlessly the hand of man and his gigantic machinery are stripping the northern country of the primeval forests and in a very short time these will be only a wilderness of stumps and under-brush.

The rapid growth of population, trade and manufacture has been accompanied by the erection of modern public buildings and business blocks. Standing beside the chamber of commerce, already mentioned, is the court house and city hall, one of the largest and most beautiful structures of its kind in the country. It is constructed of native red granite, finished rock-faced and of massive proportions. It occupies an entire block, is 300 feet square enclosing a court 130 feet square. One-half of the building is occupied by the county and the other by the city offices. The entire edifice rises five stories and is surmounted by a tower 50 feet square and rising 400 feet from the ground. An observation story is fitted up in this tower 335 feet above the street, while 100 feet below the observatory is the clock, the size of which may be imagined when it is said that the dials are twenty-three feet in diameter. The interior finish is in harmony with the architectural conception of the building. Marble wainscoting, tile and mosaic floors, with quarter-sawed oak in the offices, complete the appointments of a truly wonderful building. The entire cost is $3,500,000

The schools of Minneapolis are far-famed. Over sixty buildings, constructed of cream-colored pressed brick, house 40,000 children. The schools are named after the presidents, statesmen, great soldiers and literary men of the United States. There are four high schools and a fifth is about to be erected. Central high is one of the largest high schools in the country, enrolling about 1800 pupils. Here, too, is the state university, with its magnificent buildings and 3800 students. At the head is Cyrus Northrop, who stands in the front rank of university presidents. Close by is the state agricultural college, organically connected with the university and possessing a splendid equipment which includes a government agricultural experiment station.

More than one hundred churches, many of them beautiful architectural adornments to the city, stand for the religious culture of our people. The moral tone of the city, as well as its intellectual standard, is exceptionally high, despite the humiliating municipal régime of a few years ago.

Scores of palatial residences, distributed throughout the city, beautify its avenues and evince the presence of great wealth and fine culture. Perhaps the most notable is "Fair Oaks" the home of Gen. W. D. Washburn, one time United States senator. This massive, yet beautiful mansion, is built of a native pink lime stone, and stands in the middle of two entire city squares laid out like a park. The cost of this place is said to have been close to a million dollars. Interior finishing and adornment are costly and impressive.

One of the best public libraries in America is in Minneapolis, housed in a beautiful and commodious structure of red granite and pressed brick. It early enjoyed the services of Herbert Putnam, now the librarian of Congress. For some years James Hosmer, the author of several important volumes on American history, was INQUEST IS HELD.

On Death of Man Killed in Monson Railroad Wreck.

NO TORPEDOES AND NO FLAGMAN OUT

So Engineer of North-bound Freight Says. Flagman Not Seen Since Wreck.

An inquest on the death of Charles Gregg of New London, who was killed in a railroad wreck in Monson June 30, was held in the district court in Palmer Wednesday. Judge Kenefick will consider the evidence and enter his findings later.

Testimony was given at the inquest by the crews of the trains which were in the collision. The conductor and engineer of the north-bound freight have been discharged, and the conductor was not present. The engineer testified that he was running regular and was due in Monson at 1.15. He left State Line six minutes late and was running at the rate of about 20 or 25 miles an hour as he approached the Monson depot. He was looking out ahead and could have seen a flagman had there been one. No torpedoes were heard. As his locomotive rounded the curve just before reaching the depot he saw the locomotive on the track, and called to Gregg, the fireman who was standing in the gangway just behind him, to jump, but Gregg shook his head. The engineer rushed passed Gregg and jumped, escaping with only slight bruises. When he jumped the locomotives were four car lengths apart, which gave Gregg a chance to jump. He saw the body when it was taken out of the wreck. It was pinned between the boiler butt and the tender.

The south-bound train was running extra from Palmer, and had instructions to keep out of the way of regulars unless protected by a flag. The train was run upon a siding at Monson and the locomotive and one car were run out upon the main line in front of the depot to unload freight. They had been there 40 minutes when the accident occurred. A flagman, T. F. Reed, who cannot be found, was sent out when they reached the depot, with instructions to go 800 yards from his train. Had he obeyed his orders he would have been in the vicinity of Squier's coal yard. He was seen after the wreck, and is said to have stated that he waved his flag in front of the north-bound freight, and that he had to climb the ledge to escape being run over. The only ledge in the locality is near the depot, far from the place he should have been. No torpedoes were used.

It was testified that two torpedoes upon the track, not more than 200 feet apart, are a signal to bring the train under control and to run at a rate of not more than six or eight miles an hour. Under such speed the north-bound train could have been stopped in a distance of 100 feet. Supt. Nash, who was summoned, gave information in regard to the system of the road in sending orders and running trains. He stated that all trains are ordered to run past stations at a speed which will enable them to stop at the train order board.

A GREAT NEW ENGLAND PRODUCTION.

"The Pearl and the Pumpkin" Now Running at the Colonial Theatre in Boston.

At the Colonial Theatre in Boston Klaw & Erlanger's wonderful production of "The Pearl and the Pumpkin," which is full of New England scenes, characters, and incidents, is now running. Visitors to Boston should not fail to witness this extraordinary attraction, which is the most fascinating entertainment ever placed before the public. Performances are given every evening, with Saturday matinees. The Boston daily newspapers are devoting columns to the wonders and glories of "The Pearl and the Pumpkin." The Herald says: "The production is simply wonderful. It is a bewildering spectacle of beauty and splendor—a marvel." The Globe says: "It is beyond anything previously seen in Boston." The American says: "It is a magnificent disregard of money." The Post says: "No more pleasurable entertainment has ever been offered." The Journal says: "It is so new and odd that it is not to be classed with other spectacular presentments. It sets forth a Yankee fairy-land." Seats for "The Pearl and the Pumpkin," may be ordered from out of town by mail, accompanied by postoffice or express order. The scale of prices is $1.50, $1,75, 50 and 35 cents, and all seats are reserved. Orders should be address, Manager Colonial Theatre, Boston.

Fell From an Electric Car.

Mrs. Amelia Bouchey, 17, was seriously injured Monday morning while alighting from a Springfield and Eastern electric car near Ludlow.

Mrs. Bouchey, who is employed in North Wilbraham, was going from that place to her boarding place on Stony Hill. The car was moving at a good rate of speed when she signaled the conductor to stop, and without waiting she stepped off the moving car and was thrown heavily to the ground. Dr. M. B. Landers of Ludlow was called to attend her and immediately sent her to the House of Mercy hospital in Springfield. She has remained in an unconscious condition since the accident and no hope is held out for her recovery, as there is a bad fracture at the base of the skull.

Her husband has employment in Southbridge, and Mrs. Bouchey had given up her work to join her husband, and was on her way to her boarding place to prepare for the journey.

Ludlow Boy Shoots His Brother.

Arthur Brodeur of Ludlow was accidently shot by his small brother Joseph Saturday night, but was only slightly injured. The two boys were examining a loaded revolver which the younger boy was holding when he accidentally moved the trigger. The bullet struck Arthur in the breast about two inches above the heart, but on account of the weapon being in a vertical position the bullet made only two slight flesh wounds.

Charles Flynn of New Hampshire was fined $5 for drunkenness in the district court Monday morning.

Cleaning the Old Statehouse Front—Border Smuggling—The Lieutenant-Governor Nomination Situation—Other Interesting Matters.

BOSTON, July 26, 1905.

Sergeant-at-Arms Remington has burnished up the front of the Bulfinch state house so that it looks as new as the extension and now the whole is in keeping throughout. The beginning of the improvement was weeks ago when he had the sand blast process applied to every inch of the stone first story, the steps, the outside wall and the high posts at the new entrances. That freshened up the stone work and made it look as if it has just been laid, instead, some of it, having been there since 1795. This process is incredibly faster than the old way of redressing by hammering by hand. It does the work much better. It goes into every crevice and detail of the ornamental work, breaking off no fragments larger than dust and leaving the whole surface as if newly carved. Now comes the new yellow paint, to match the yellow bricks of the extension, but a shade lighter to allow for darkening by age. The tall columns of the portico, the brick caps over the windows and other brick ornamental parts have been painted a gray to match the granite of the steps and the whole is trim and fresh for the pleasure of the summer visitors who throng here constantly, as well as for the satisfaction of the dwellers on Beacon Hill.

Down on the Mexican border, there is a custom house under the United States flag, in order to prevent the importation of goods in violation of our Dingley tariff and I get such a description of the doings in sight of that sacred tariff station as illustrates what doubtless occurs all along the Mexican and Canadian borders and at every Atlantic and Pacific port of entry. She was a woman who was talking and she said: "We all love to smuggle. Every woman loves to. We feel just as we do when we are at a bargain sale. We feel as if we were getting goods below price. There is lots of smuggling down there right along. The government officers know it and shut their eyes to it. They've got to, for their own families are in it just as much as anybody else. If they catch a poor and friendless Mexican trying to bring in anything against the law, they come down on him hard, but everybody else goes right ahead and smuggles all the time. People go across the line and bring things back, sometimes right out openly and the officers will pretend that they don't see them." This was said without the slightest indication that there was anything wrong in smuggling. It seemed to be a game between the government and the smugglers. The government is trying to prevent the people from trading where they can trade with advantage and the people are trying to beat the government at its own game. It is a battle of wits and he who wins is the best man. The entire conversation was a revelation of the practical aspect of our system of collecting revenue on the border.

Chief Pidgin of the Bureau of Statistics of Labor sends out this week a circular showing opportunities for extending our trade abroad. The countries covered are Argentina, Australia, Brazil, Canada, China, Colombia, Germany, India, Ireland, Japan, Malta and the Netherlands. He gives points to our exporters and thus our state government is becoming a partner with the people in their business to the extent of going to the expense of telling them where good markets are probably to be found for particular kinds of articles. The main work of the Bureau, just now, is the census. The smaller places are coming in rapidly, but the larger cities will probably not be reported upon before September 1, and then it is not probable that their population can be told by wards, but only as a whole. All figures given out now are subject to verification.

William Lloyd Garrison is one of the purest and highest minded men one can meet in Boston in a year's search. He shows in a marked degree the effect of his father, the famous abolitionist, upon his mind. He is a staunch champion of principle, of truth as he sees it, and has utter scorn for the trimmers who sacrifice principle for expediency, for such expediency, he resolutely holds, is the very worst sort of inexpediency. In a conversation I was fortunate enough to have with him this week, he said that he believed that we should see a great deal better times than we have now, but only after we suffer some calamity to bring us back to our moral principles. Discussions of reform, he finds, are based more upon the personal advantage of the reformers than upon any devotion to truth. The public, as a whole, is not the subject of special consideration by men who are promoting ideas which are really for the public good, for it is their private profit which is the motive for reform. He is working away with his free trade broadsides, endeavoring to spread the ideas of the benefit to all by free markets and the upbuilding of commerce without interruption of tariff laws, but he finds that there is interest in the subject more as particular persons are damaged than as the truth is ignored. He tells how his father and the abolitionists, a small and despised band, worked for many years until they had leavened the North completely with their ideas of human liberty, and though they were always regarded as cranks, yet it was their work which brought about the possibility of the emancipation proclamation. One can realize, in talking with him, what a tremendous personal force there must have been in the father to have had it survive with such effect in the son, and get some sense of that declaration at the beginning of the anti-slavery struggle: "It will be heard."

One of the foremost reciprocity workers, not Eugene N. Foss, reveals to-day the reason why the committee of eleven is so slow in coming out for a particular candidate. Two candidates are in the field,—Councilor Hall and Col. Goetting. It is imperative that the reciprocity forces should be united under one candidate. It is clearly perceived by all intelligent students of the situation that Col. Goetting is not a strong candidate and that he really has no chance of securing the nomination for second place. At the same time, it is much better for him to learn this from his own investigation than it is to have any one tell him. So the reciprocity men are waiting for events to shape themselves so that the colonel will realize the truth and withdraw in favor of Hall, requesting his friends to give their support to Hall, as representative of the reciprocity for which the colonel himself stands and as most likely to win the nomination. As soon as this point is secure,—and before the colonel does it, if he waits too long,—the reciprocity men will doubtless declare for Hall. Here is an interesting fact that transpired within a few days. Seven prominent business Republicans happened

The Journal.

FRIDAY EVENING, JULY 28, 1905.

WHEW!

It beats the Dutch how the wind has blown since the street sprinkler stopped running Monday, when there was hardly a breath of air before. And how the dust has circulated about and into everything! We never miss the water till the 'voir runs dry.

HOPING.

Palmer and Monson are hoping for a favorable decision by the Warren selectmen on the second petition of the Worcester County Gas Company for permission to lay its pipes through that town. A new board has been chosen since the original petition was turned down, and another hearing was held last week. The vote showed about 100 to half a dozen in favor of the company, and a petition of 250 names has been presented, the names including many of the heaviest taxpayers. If the company can get through Warren then Palmer and Monson are to have gas, otherwise not.

CHEAPER.

Within the past two weeks the Palmer Water Company has had three breaks in its main within 500 feet on Main street—to be exact, three breaks in 11 days, on the 14th, 21st and 24th. In each case the old cement pipe has been replaced with iron. In view of the numerous breaks in the cement pipe in the same section previously, it might be cheaper in the long run if the company should replace all its Main street cement main with iron at one time. Should it do this, the section between Commercial and Thorndike streets should be enlarged from six to eight inches, the same size as the rest.

THEIR OWN FAULT.

The town of Leicester, which has had much trouble with automobilists exceeding the speed limit, took the Glidden tourists, en route from New York to the White Mountains, in hand when they passed through on the 12th, and by a skilfully arranged mechanism accurately timed a number of them running far ahead of the law allowance. On their return last Friday the offenders were taken into court and fined $15 each. The victims took their punishment with bad grace, seeming to think that they were of a privileged class and should be exempt from molestation under any circumstances. There is much sympathy with Judge Utley's statement that "I don't recognize any difference between these people and any others. They are not my guests, and neither are they the guests of the commonwealth. They came here knowing perfectly well that there was a law and knowing about what it was. I can see no excuse for their violating it. These rich people came here vaunting their wealth and spreading themselves around on races. They reviled the citizens of as good a town as there is under the sky because they wanted the law enforced. They abused the officers for enforcing the law and accused them of setting traps. These people oppose the automobile laws and the enforcement of them. If they want to lay out a race course to test their machines they must go outside of this state."

A number of this party passed through Palmer at a speed considerably in excess of the legal rate on their way east, but it was noted that they were very moderate on their return last Friday.

A POSSIBLE OPPORTUNITY.

The burning of the buildings on the Palmer town farm Tuesday, while a matter to be regretted, may prove to be a blessing in disguise, in that it gives the town an opportunity to materially better itself in the matter of caring for its poor without going to any great expense. The present town farm land is of the poorest kind; the acreage is ample, but only a small portion of it can be cultivated at all, and of this the majority is thin and sterile soil, yielding at best scant crops and those only by reason of intense fertilization, which must be by expensive commercial fertilizers principally, the land not being capable of producing sufficient crops to keep any number of cows. The report of the overseers of the poor last spring contained the following concerning the town farm: "A careful study of the situation has convinced the overseers that the greatest returns can be had from the building up of a dairy. * * * This source of income might be greatly increased were it not for the lack of good hay growing land and a scarcity of pasturage, there being very little of either."

Under these conditions the overseers are unanimous that it would be unwise for the town to put more money into buildings on the old location. They are of the opinion that the best interests of the town, from a financial standpoint, can be best conserved by the purchase of good land elsewhere which can be cultivated to advantage, and the erection of the new buildings there. There is no question but that if this were done the weekly cost per capita of keeping the poor at the town farm might be materially reduced, and it is doubtful if it can be done for much less than $2 50 per week on the present farm. In this connection it is surprising to learn how many of the voters have volunteered the suggestion since the fire that the present farm be dispensed with and a new one secured. They have been many, coming from business men and men with a knowledge of town affairs and what the present farm has been and is.

Another suggestion which is pertinent at this time is that the statutes allow the combining of two or more towns for the maintenance of an almshouse or town farm, and that the state board of charities recommends this in certain instances. It might be possible for Palmer to unite with some other nearby town in the project, the farm to be located where the conditions would seem to promise best results. The larger the number of inmates the lower the cost per capita for their maintenance, would probably be true, and cost is what the voters are looking at.

ANYONE who has noted the disposition of the crowds which collect at fires in the suburban districts, where everybody within range attends, must have noted that very many persons have apparently two codes of ethics regarding numerous portable small articles removed from a burning building, and that, analyzed, this code comes pretty nearly to meaning that

The question of morality
Is just one of locality.

For many persons who would be highly indignant at any suggestion of their entering their neighbors' houses and removing without permission anything for souvenirs or other purposes will without hesitation appropriate articles of personal property removed from a burning building and set supposedly safe for future removal. The fire at the town farm on Tuesday demonstrated this disposition on the part of some of the onlookers, and articles carefully placed in safety were soon after missing and have not yet been found. In fact, persons who would least be thought of in this connection have been reported as being seen removing the town's property.

ALL efforts to induce Gov. Douglas to change his mind and again be a candidate have proved unavailing, and he will retire to the manufacture of shoes solely after one term in the executive chair. The probable candidate of the Democrats is John R. Thayer of Worcester.

LOCAL NOTICES.

PALMER NEWS.

Fire District Taxes.

The assessors have figured the taxes for the fire district. Those paying a tax of $25 or over are: G. M. Atkins, $29; Mrs. Mary S. Brown, $27; E. A. Buck & Co., $43; G. E. Buck, $30; Boston and Albany Railroad Company, $71; John Converse heirs, $135; Central Massachusetts Electric Company, $88; John Feeney heirs, $26; Flynt Building and Construction Company, $33; Pinney estate, $28; E. G. Hastings, $38; C. D. Holbrook heirs, $28; Holden & Fuller, $57; Mrs. Mary Holden, $61; A. W. Holbrook, $29; F. F. Marcy, $30; Palmer Water Company, $43; Palmer Savings Bank, $87; H. W. McGregory, trustee, $47; Springfield and Eastern Street Railway Company, $110; W. E. Stone, $27; A. T. Wing, $58; Wright Wire Company, $83; W. W. Cross estate, $50; M. J. Whittall, $43.

Big Crowd Went.

The excursion over the C. V. road to Watch Hill and Block Island yesterday was a success in every way. The day was all that could be desired in the way of weather, and the shore dinner at Watch Hill is reported to have been of the best. A large number took the special train at Palmer, 352 tickets being sold. There was a considerable company on the train when it reached Palmer, and about 200 more were added at Monson. The trip to New London was made in good time, as was also the return trip. While some went to Block Island, the greater portion spent the day at Watch Hill. In Palmer the stores generally followed the initiative of the markets, and nearly every business place was closed. The town presented a holiday appearance, and there was "nothin' doin'."

Next Week's Lake Show.

The theatre performance at Forest Lake next week will be by Joseph J. Flynn's Orpheum vaudeville company. The program will be made up of sensational acts, some of which have been featured in the leading American vaudeville theatres during the past winter. Among the acts will be Estelle Wordette and company in a playlett, "The Honeymoon in the Catskills," assisted by Mr. Jules Kuselle, baritone. Another act will be that of the Maginleys, daring double trapeze performers. Kenney & Hollis will offer an original military act, and Al. Weston will sing some of the latest coon songs, while Henry T. Waite will render humorous imitations on his violin. There will be performances both afternoon and evening.

Fireman Hurt.

James Summers, a member of the fire department, was severely hurt in getting the apparatus out for the fire at the town farm Tuesday morning. He was standing in the door of the engine house when the jumper was run out; he did not see it and those with the apparatus did not see him, the jumper striking him and knocking him down. A severe gash was cut in his head and he was rendered unconscious for a time. The hurt was not a serious one however, and he is recovering; he will probably resume work to-morrow.

No Water For Street Sprinkling.

Frank J. Hamilton, proprietor of the street sprinkling cart, was notified on Monday by the Palmer Water Company that he could have no more water for sprinkling the streets until there had been sufficient rain to increase the volume of water in the company's reservoir. Main street is decidedly dusty when it goes unsprinkled, and with the rapid passage of electric cars through it the dust becomes a good deal of a nuisance.

Another Water Break.

Another leak developed in the cement main pipe of the Palmer Water Company on Main street in front of the Journal office last Friday afternoon. It was dug up and repaired early in the evening, and when the water was let on another leak developed in the next piece of pipe. This was removed and replaced with iron pipe, and the water was on for good about midnight.

Indian Orchards To-morrow.

The Indian Orchard ball team will try conclusions with the Palmers on the Palmer grounds to-morrow afternoon for the third time this season. The visitors were defeated in two previous games, but have secured several new players and added considerable new strength. It is said that Furkey will pitch for the Orchards.

One Toe Gone, Another Crushed.

William Wilcox of New London, a brakeman on the Central Vermont road, had one toe so badly crushed that it had to be amputated, and another somewhat less damaged in the Palmer yard Sunday afternoon. Wilcox was riding the cars while they were being pushed together to couple, and the shock was so great that it threw him between the bumpers.

Old Home Week Service.

A service in observance of Old Home Week will be held in the Congregational church Sunday evening at 6 o'clock, when the pastor, Rev. M. O. Patton, will give an address on "The Larger Patriotism." The three Endeavor societies connected with the church are invited to attend, as well as all others interested.

Mrs. Thomas Blanchard and son John, who have been in Southern California for some time, have gone to Saranac Lake, N. Y., where they will remain for the present.

H. C. Newell, dean of Piedmont University, Demorest, Ga., gave an entertaining and instructive talk in the Congregational church Sunday morning on the work of the university.

The body of Mrs. Abbie T. Nichols, 75, was brought to Thorndike yesterday for burial. She formerly resided in that village. She died at the home of her niece at South Hyannis, where she also leaves one brother.

Two members of the fire department had a narrow escape from injury at the town farm fire Tuesday. They were standing in the rear of the house when the large brick chimney fell. It struck almost squarely between them, but fortunately neither was hurt.

Maurice McCormick of Thorndike, who has been boarding for some time at the town farm, suffered a partial paralytic stroke a few days ago and for several days was very low. He recovered sufficiently however to be moved to the House of Mercy hospital in Springfield yesterday.

The stone crusher bought some time ago by the selectmen, and which was promised long ago, has at last been shipped and is expected to arrive at any time. It has already been nine days on the road. It will be set up in Bondsville, where a portion at least of Main street will be resurfaced.

The subject of the sermon at the Baptist church next Sunday morning will be "God, the Leader of Men;" Sunday school at 12; evening song service on the lawn in front of the church at 6 30, followed by the fourth sermon in the series on the book of Jonah, subject, "Jonah's Anger at Success."

The firemen announce that several hose spanners have been lost during the last two or three fires, and suggest that, as they are of no use to anyone but the firemen and of great importance to them, it would materially assist them in their work if the articles were returned. They were not purchased to distribute as souvenirs.

The first clambake of the season was served Wednesday afternoon by James Fenton to a party of 50, on the road to Ware. The bake was a decided success, there being plenty of good things for the inner man, and well cooked. A heavy shower before the "feed" was over dampened the clothing of the participants somewhat, but not their appetites for the good things of the bake.

Alexander Arno of Ludlow was brought into the district court Wednesday morning charged with an assault on his wife. The case was continued until yesterday, when she decided that she would not press the complaint, and the case was continued for three months. This morning John Golyzioski of Ludlow was arraigned for an assault on John Rohak with a dangerous weapon. He pleaded not guilty, and his plea being sustained by the evidence, he was discharged.

J. J. Flynn, manager of the theatre at Forest Lake, offers an additional attraction for to-morrow night, when a small porker will be given away to some member of the audience. Tickets with blanks for the holder's name have been given out to theatre patrons this week, and will be given to Saturday night patrons. Holders are requested to write their names on the tickets and deposit them in a box, from which one will be selected, and the pig awarded to the person whose name appears on the ticket. The conditions are that the holder shall be in the audience Saturday night, and shall take away the pig from the stage. The animal is on exhibition at Thompson's market.

WEST WARREN.

Houle—Harnois.

Miss Exella Houle and Adelard Harnois, both of West Warren, were married in St. Thomas's church Monday morning, Rev. Philias Trottier officiating. The couple were attended by Israel Harnois, a brother of the groom. The bride was attired in white flowered silk, and wore a white picture hat. After the ceremony the couple were driven to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ephriam Harnois on North street, where a wedding breakfast was served. The couple left on the evening train for Amherst, where they will spend a week, after which they will reside at the home of his brother on North street

Francis J. Foley is spending the week with his brother in New York.

Miss Aurore Girouard, assistant in the post office, has returned from a two-weeks' vacation in New Bedford.

Misses Emma and Ada Crouch of Holyoke are visiting at the home of their brother, Charles Crouch, on Crouch road.

A photograph gallery has been built on North street in the rear of Marcy's block for T. Gwozdz of Thorndike, who has opened for business.

Anthony Weisman has returned to his home in Clinton after visiting a part of the week with his father, John B. Weisman, on the Ware road.

The need of rain is badly felt in West Warren, as the water in the dead pond in No. 4 village is far below the water mark, the bottom of the pond being visible in many places. The Quaboag river in No. 4 village, which runs opposite the dead pond from which the supply of water is received to run No. 4 mill, is about as low as the dead pond.

BELCHERTOWN.

Death of Mrs. Fannie Pease Walker.

Mrs. Fannie Pease Walker, 84, widow of Asa M. Walker, died Sunday afternoon at the home of her son, F. D. Walker. She had been in poor health for several years, but until the last hot spell had been around the house as usual. Mrs. Walker was born in Granby July 16, 1821, the daughter of the late Asa and Rhoda Pease. She was the youngest of a family of 11 children, nine of whom were girls. Mrs. Walker was an old member of the Congregational church, a charter member of the Woman's Relief Corps, a member of the Social Circle and the Ladies' Aid Society, and was generally beloved and respected in the community. She had four children, one of whom, a daughter, died in early youth. Three sons, F. C. Walker, Col. M. P. Walker of Springfield and Postmaster F. D. Walker of Belchertown survive her. The funeral was held from the home of her son, Westview, Tuesday afternoon and burial was in the family lot in Mt. Hope cemetery.

After the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Towne, a few relatives and friends being present. Mr. and Mrs. Thayer will reside in Avon.

WARE.

Death of William Kennedy.

William Kennedy, 73, died at his home on Pleasant street last Friday after a long illness with dropsy. Mr. Kennedy was born in Scotland, in that part of Ayrshire near the home of Burns, and when a young man was employed as gardener in the care of the grounds at the Burns monument. In 1854 he came to this country and worked in Ware for two years with the Otis Company. He then returned to his native land and engaged in business for a brief time. In 1857 he married Mary Barclay of Greencastle, Ireland, and three years later he returned to Ware, and had lived there since, having been employed as finisher for 42 years for the George H. Gilbert Company. He always led a simple, honest life, devoted to his work, his church and to Eden lodge of Masons, in which he served as chaplain since some time in the '80s. He is survived by his widow, four children, three sons, James and John of New Haven, Ct., and William of Gloucester, and a daughter, Mrs. Ella Hawkins of Providence, R. I. He also leaves three brothers, Hugh and Thomas of Ware and James of Amsterdam, N. Y, and two sisters, Mrs. Agnes Brown of Ware and Mrs. David Grey of Mayhole, Scotland. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at 2, Prof. John E. Russell of Williamstown officiating. At the close of the service the body was escorted to Aspen Grove cemetery by 100 Masons, including a delegation from the chapter at Warren. Paul R. Bridgman, master of Eden lodge, assisted by A. B. Howard, as pastmaster, and William Wilson as chaplain, conducted the service at the grave, which was rendered doubly impressive by the singing near the end of "Nearer, My God, To Thee," by the circle of Masons.

Mr. and Mrs. John H. Schoonmaker and son, Arlan, are spending a two-weeks' vacation in Fiskdale.

George P. Campbell has sold his blacksmith shop on North street to Michael Smith.

The Hampshire and Worcester street railway will be sold at public auction in Worcester August 1.

Mrs. A. J. Mailloux, organist at Mt. Carmel church, has gone to Canada on account of ill health.

Mrs. A. G. Heath, the district nurse, is spending a two-weeks' vacation in the Berkshire hills and New York state.

Misses Katherine McGrath and B. A. McArdle will spend next month in Boston and Newton Lower Falls with Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Powers.

At a meeting of the school committee Monday Miss Marion Snyder of Gilbertville, who taught a portion of last year in the West Ware school, was appointed teacher for the district No. 7 on the Greenwich road.

The body of John Healy, 24, who died in the Mercy hospital in Springfield last week Thursday from heat prostration, was taken to Ware for burial Saturday morning. Mr. Healy was a nephew of P. J. McManus of Ware Center.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Brown, who were recently married, were presented with a dinner set and some silver knives, forks and spoons, at their home Wednesday evening, by a number of the patrons on Mr. Brown's route as a mail carrier.

A farewell reception was given Ernest J. Lefort, who has taken a position in Greensboro, N. C., in Dupont's hall Saturday evening by members of St. John's society and relatives. He was presented with a handsome dinner set of china, containing over 100 pieces, and valued at $50. Louis Lussier made the presentation speech. Music and recitations followed and later dancing.

The fire department were called out Saturday night about 10 30 for a fire in the old Connor block next to the store of B. Milos. The block is a three-tenement dwelling-house owned by John H. Schoonmaker and was occupied at the time by about 50 Poles. The fire started in a closet in the attic and had gained considerable headway before the firemen arrived. They had the flames under control in time for a recall about midnight. The damage to the building will amount to something less $500, while that to the tenants will be slight, as most of the household effects of each inmate were removed.

librarian. The building holds a museum of science and a school of art The historical and archaeological collections are notable.

It would be hard to find a city in the west so highly favored by nature. Within the boundaries of the corporation are no less than seven natural lakes, two of which are respectively two miles long by one mile wide. The Mississippi flows through the heart of the city, and St. Anthony Falls is close by its busiest streets. The outlet of these crystal lakes is Minnehaha Creek, charming in its sylvan windings, and paralleled throughout the city by a broad boulevard. At the southeastern extremity the Creek makes its graceful plunge in the far-famed Minnehaha Falls. The glade below these Falls is a beauty spot of forest and stream for half a mile, when the Creek joins the "Father of Waters." Two miles below Minnehaha is historic Fort Snelling, with its picturesque old tower standing on the sand stone cliff one hundred feet above the waters of the Mississippi and Minnesota rivers. The latter stream is remarkable for its narrowness and great depth. In many places it is not more than sixty feet wide, but is as many feet deep. Several of our city lakes are a part of the park system, all of which is connected by broad boulevards. Fifteen miles away is Lake Minnetonka, the great summer resort of the twin cities. This sheet of water is notable for the length of its shore line, the tortuous winding of which foots up 300 miles. The lake is one of peculiar charm and never seems large, although its extreme length is about twenty miles. The irregularity of its contour creates numbers of beautiful bays, promontories and ex*quisite inlets, which furnish delightful sites for villas and cottages.* Three railway lines connect the lake with the city, and an electric line will be completed in a month. Visitors to Minneapolis never fail to visit this justly famed watering place.

Strangers will look in vain for the St. Anthony Falls pictured in the older school books. The Falls are here, but greatly changed. Twenty-five years ago it was observed that the river was fast wearing away the ledge over which the water plunged fifty feet, and so nearly a million dollars was expended in building an "apron" down which incline the water glides with little noise, no beauty, yet without greatly decreasing its force, of which 40,000 horse power is utilized to run the big flour mills. The fall, with rapids below it, amount to about eighty-five feet, but the hand of man in the interest of business, has robbed this natural wonder of its beauty and grandeur.

At no time in its history has Minneapolis, the "Crystal City," been cleaner, more thrifty, progressive and financially solid than to-day. It is growing rapidly and soundly. Its people are of an unusually high order of intelligence and morality. The city still feels the impulse of the ideals of its first settlers, who were of the cream of Northern New England. These ideas are not obliterated by the addition of a large percentage of population from Northern Europe. Minnesota is fortunate in the character of its immigrants. They are chiefly of the hardy, industrious, moral peoples of Scandinavia, and they are rapidly coming to the front. John Lind, Senator Knute Nelson, and our present Governor Johnson are of this people and are public characters of just renown.

G. A. ROLLINS

OUR BOSTON LETTER.

to be lunching together and every one of them, except Eugene N. Foss, said that he should not vote for Draper for lieutenant governor if he were nominated. Foss has always said that he should stick by the party. But there are plenty of reciprocity Republicans who want to let the situation drift till the state convention is held, not having instructions given in the caucuses. Then, if Draper is nominated, as he doubtless would be, if the situation were to be the same as to-day, they would vote for the Democratic candidate, if the right man were nominated. A leading Republican, prominent in politics this year, tells me that if Moses Williams of Brookline, or a man of his type, were put up by the Democrats for second place, he would stand a good chance of election. Draper would be a heavy load for Guild to carry and might drag them both down to defeat, though the Republicans believe that there is no possible combination which can prevent Guild's election.

Gov. Douglas did just what his friends expected when he refused to change his announcement that he should not be a candidate for another term. Some people see in the Democratic operations, when they had no reason to expect anything else, only maneuvering for time. John R. Thayer is looked upon as the most probable candidate, and his attitude helps the supposition. But the Republicans say that Thayer will never put up his own money and that some one must finance the campaign. Gaston is not regarded as likely to do it, and Republican comment is that the Worcester liquor dealers will not do it. Nor can any candidate be elected without money. So they say that Guild cannot be beaten. Thayer says that the Democratic prospect is as good as it has been for 20 years and that with Draper second on the Republican ticket, it is possible for the Democrats to carry first and second places. Chairman Talbot of the Republican state committee says to-day that Thayer is the strongest candidate the Democrats have, but that he cannot beat Guild. Executive Clerk Edward C. Mansfield of the Republican headquarters is away on a vacation till Monday.

The only political event of importance this week is the French Canadian gathering at Lake Whalom in Fitchburg Saturday, which is social, religious and fraternal, but non-political, yet just the place where Lieut. Guild will fit. He is said to be making friends fast in that quarter and among Boston Irishmen.

It comes from the inside of the Boston Globe office, which printed to-day the statement that President Roosevelt has broken with Senator Lodge, that there is reason to believe that the statement is true. A prominent Republican tells me that he was present and heard Lodge tell Roosevelt that he would do what he could for the Newfoundland treaty and would try to bring his Gloucester constituents to favor it, but he really opposed and defeated it.

LANDON.

COSTLY DISHES.

Dining Services of Solid Gold and Dishes of Rare China.

I happened to be in Tiffany's and asked one of the head men if it is true that people really eat off gold plates.

He smiled and, turning to a young man, said, "Bring me an after dinner coffee set."

And presently the young man returned with a small tray holding three small pieces. They were gracefully fashioned and looked like gold. And the tray looked like gold.

"What do you think they are?" asked the head man.

"Silver gilt," I suggested.

"Hold it," he said and put the service in my hands.

"It's heavy," said I, "but—it can't be solid gold."

"That's what it is," he assured me and pointed to the mark. "These four pieces—the tray, the coffeepot, the cream pitcher and the sugar bowl—are eighteen carat gold, solid. The price is $3,000."

Not only is it true that a number of millionaires in America own plates of solid gold or silver gilt (which latter is considered good enough for European royalty), but there are rich families who boast sets of china costing from $3,000 to $5,000 a dozen, so that the breaking of a single plate means the loss of several hundred dollars.—Success.

LAPLAND BABIES.

For Their First Few Months They Live In Wicker Baskets.

Little Laplanders spend the first few months of their existence in baskets of wickerwork provided at the top with a conical framework too close for the baby to fall through and yet giving the infant plenty of light and air.

Before commencing her work for the day the Lapp mother places her child in the basket and hangs it on the limb of some nearby tree, occupation being found for the little one by stringing toys upon a cord passed across the top of the basket.

Thus provided, the child spends the entire day in the open and yet at the same time is guarded from the troubles and dangers of outdoor child life in other countries.

The basket idea curiously parallels the Indian idea of strapping the papoose into a carrying case, but the Lapp baby has the advantage over its Indian fellow in that its limbs are unconfined and a certain amount of liberty of movement is afforded.

The child is carried from place to place in the same basket, the cord by which it is attached to a tree being slung over the shoulder.

ARTIFICIAL FLIES.

The Peculiar Business of the Farmer Who Raises Them.

"I raise flies on my farm—artificial flies," he said, smiling. "I am, in fact, an artificial fly farmer.

"That confuses you, doesn't it? Yet it is simple enough. I raise birds that give those little delicate bright feathers that compose fishermen's flies. That is all.

"The finest birds I raise are golden pheasants. You have seen salmon flies? You know their beautiful toppings? Well, those toppings can only be got from the golden pheasant's crest.

"At a certain time of the year I gather my golden pheasants around me. I take one between my knees. I pluck out his crest. How mad he gets! I wrap the crest in silver paper. And so I go on till every bird has been plucked. Do you know what I get for these crests? I get $2.50 apiece for them.

"I raise mynahs, finches, mallards, jays and green parrots. I supply ten fly makers with all the feathers they can use."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Stories About William McKinley

The Martyr President's Simplicity. "Then I'm One of the Boys"---"Is William In?"---Captain Jack Philip's Father

By MARSHALL P. WILDER

From "The Sunny Side of the Street," by Marshall P. Wilder. Copyright, 1905, by Funk & Wagnalls Company.

Marshall P. Wilder.

SOME years ago while entering a New York hotel to call on Mme. Patti I chanced to meet in the corridor William McKinley, who was then governor of Ohio, though his New York acquaintances still called him "major." His was one of the big, broad natures that put all of a man's character in full view, and there was a great lot in McKinley's face that day—thoughtfulness, self reliance, strength, honesty. He greeted me very cordially, and as I was smiling broadly he asked:

"What pleases you, Marshall?"

"The fact that I am shaking hands with the future president of the United States," I replied.

"I'm One of the Boys."

Some years afterward when Mr. McKinley had fulfilled my prophecy I was the guest of D. A. Loring, at Lake Champlain, and the president and most of his cabinet were at the same hotel. Besides Mr. and Mrs. McKinley, there were Vice President and Mrs. Hobart, Secretary of War Alger and Mrs. Alger, Postmaster General Gary and Mrs. Gary, Cornelius N. Bliss, secretary of the interior, and others. Every one at the hotel treated the distinguished guest with the greatest consideration by letting him entirely alone, so that he got the rest he sorely needed.

One day I went into the bowling alley to spend half an hour or more with the boys who set up the pins. Boys are always my friends, and I was going to do some card and sleight of hand tricks for these little fellows. Just as I had gathered them about me and started to amuse them Mr. McKinley came to the door and looked in, smiled, came over to us and asked what was going on. I replied:

"Well, Mr. President, I was just doing some tricks to amuse the boys."

"Then I'm one of the boys," said the president of the United States. He sat down in the circle and was one of my most attentive auditors. When I had finished, he walked apart with me and said:

"Marshall, do you remember meeting me in the Windsor hotel, New York, and saying you were shaking hands with the future president of the United States?"

"I recall it very distinctly," I replied.

A Lover-like Devotion.

"I have just been thinking," he said, "of that—to me—strange prophecy. You must be possessed of some clairvoyant power." There are some things you can't tell a man to his face, so I didn't explain to him that a man with a character like his couldn't help becoming president when the whole country had come to know him.

I shall never forget what I saw of his lover-like devotion to his invalid wife, nor her evident gratitude for his every service, nor the sweet solicitude and pride with which she regarded him. One day his brother Abner arrived, went to the portion of the hotel reserved for the president, met Mrs. McKinley and asked:

"Is William in?"

"Yes," was the reply, "but I shall not let you see him for an hour. He is resting."

Jack Philip's Father.

A little incident that was described to me by an eyewitness brought out one of the qualities which endeared President McKinley to his fellow countrymen. While on a brief visit across the lake in Vermont he was driving through a small city, followed by a great procession of people who had turned out in his honor. While passing through the main street he noticed an old man seated on the piazza of a modest dwelling and asked the mayor, who was beside him in the carriage:

"Who is that old gentleman?"

"That is Mr. Philip, father of Captain Philip of the battleship Texas," was the reply.

The carriage stopped, and so did the mile or more of procession, while the president jumped out unassisted, ran up the steps, grasped the hand of the astonished and delighted old man and said:

"Mr. Philip, I want to congratulate you on having such a son as Captain Philip, and I feel that the thanks of the nation are due you for having given the world such a brave, patriotic man."

The old man, tremulous with gratification, could scarcely find words with which to thank the head of the nation for his appreciative attention, but the president's simple, friendly manner quickly put him at his ease, and the two men chatted freely for several minutes, the president evidently enjoying it keenly. Then, after a hearty invitation to visit him at the White House, Mr. McKinley got into his carriage, and the procession again started.

Happy Schooldays.

The Parson—Well, my boy, you seem in a great hurry to get to your school today. Boy—Yes, sir. Bill Jones is going ter git a bird of a licking this morning for playing hookey, and I don't want to miss it.—Puck.

Doff and Don.

Those English verbs "doff" and "don" are merely contractions of "do off" and "do on." Similarly to "dup," which means to "open" a door in Shakespeare, is to "do up"—to lift the latch.

Not There Yet.

Claude—Don't you think my mustache is becoming? Maude—Well, it may be coming, but it hasn't got there yet.—New York Times.

Making a life is larger than making a living. Many a man has made a good living who has made a poor life.

Mutual Concession.

Fred—So you are really going to marry that young widow, eh? Joe—Yes. Fred—She tells me you have promised to give up smoking. Joe—Yes; sort of mutual sacrifice, as it were. She agreed to give up her weeds if I would give up mine.

NUMBER 18.

Why Stephen Was No Pow

When George Ste ing the seat of Sir Drayton on one occasion er of "Famous British there happened to be presen land, the scientist, and Sir Follett, the famous advocate.

Stephenson discussed with Dr. B land one of his favorite theories as the formation of coal and, though undoubtedly in the right, was ultimately vanquished by the arguments and oratory of the doctor, who was a better master of tongue fence than himself. Next morning while pondering over his defeat in the solitude of the garden he was accosted by Sir William Follett and confided to that gentleman the story of his failure.

Sir William, acquainted with the details of the matter in dispute, agreed to take up the case and soon afterward attacked Dr. Buckland on the subject. A long discussion ensued, in which the man of law completely silenced the man of science, who was at last compelled to own himself vanquished. Sir Robert Peel, highly amused at this example of "tit for tat," then turned to the inventor and inquired, with a laugh:

"And what do you say on this matter, Mr. Stephenson?"

"Why," he replied, "I will only say this—that of all the powers above and under the earth there seems to me no power equal to the gift of the gab."

Why Touch-me-not.

The columbine, geranium and larkspur we think of together because they are all named after birds—the dove, the crane and the lark. The meaning of geranium is "crane's bill," and if you notice the seed-pods of a geranium you will see that they do look like the long bill of a crane. The touch-me-not gets its name from a peculiarity of the seed pod, too, but not a peculiarity of appearance. It is the pod you must not touch, for if you do it will burst, and out will fly the seeds.—St. Nicholas.

One Dollar Saved Represents Ten Dollars Earned.

The average man does not save to exceed ten per cent of his earnings. He must spend nine dollars in living expenses for every dollar saved. That being the case be cannot be too careful about unnecessary expenses. Very often a few cents properly invested, like buying seeds for his garden, will save several dollars outlay later on. It is the same in buying Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrho [illegible] edy. It costs but a few cents, and [illegible] it in the house often saves a [illegible] oill of several dollars. Mrs. George Taylor of Church street, Thorndike, Mass., two miles from Palmer, when interviewed recently, said: "Yes, I gave a testimonial to Doan's Kidney Pills some three years ago last April and all I can add to-day, is that my confidence in them has not been shaken in the least. When I commenced their use I could not turn over in bed, my back was o lame and sore. After I had taken them two days I could turn over and rest with some degree of pleasure. Besides the above symptoms I had distressing pains in my head. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at LeGro's drug store and used them and can truthfully say I never tried anything that did me half as much good."

BASEBALL.

Stafford Springs 10—Palmers 3.

About 100 baseball enthusiasts went from Palmer to Stafford last Saturday afternoon to see the second game between the Stafford Springs and Palmer teams. The former won, 10 to 3, and it wasn't much of a game at that. Linn, a pitcher from Northampton, wearing a "smile that won't come off," was in the box for Palmer. He was touched for two hits in the first inning, one in the second and two more in the third; in addition he gave a base on balls in each of the first two innings; these, with errors, yielded the home team five runs. In the fourth inning the Staffords secured six hits and had batted around when Linn, still wearing his smile, was taken out of the game and Miles of Easthampton put in. He quickly closed up the inning and stopped the run getting, and allowed only three hits in the remaining four innings. Palmer could do little with Cobb, Stafford's pitcher, securing only five hits during the game. The score:

Monson 12, Indian Orchard 10.

The Monson baseball team defeated for the third time the Indian Orchard team in the fourth game which these teams have played this season, on Flynt Park in Monson, Saturday afternoon by a score of 12 to 10. The visitors brought with them a new pitcher from whom they expected wonderful things but he failed to come up to their expectations and he was taken out in the first inning. Granfield was batted hard in the sixth and seventh innings and Furkey of Palmer was put in during the eighth, but it was too late to save the game. While there was some loose playing the game was very exciting. The score:

The Palmer Crescents were defeated Saturday in the first game in a series of three with the Thorndike Crescents by a score of 1 to 0. The teams were evenly matched and the game was interesting all the way through. The feature of the game was the slide of Holden for first base. The score:

Hibernians 16, Foresters 14.

The game of the West-end baseball league at West Warren Saturday was between the Hibernians and the Foresters, the latter winning 16 to 14. The Hibernians began bringing in runs from the start, and kept the Foresters from getting any until the sixth inning, the score being then 11 to 0, in favor of the Hibernians. In the sixth the Foresters succeeded in getting four runs against the Hibernians' two. The Foresters kept the Hibernians down the remainder of the game and began bringing in runs, which made the game more interesting, as it looked for a time as though the Foresters had a chance of winning. The score by innings:

										R.	H.	E.
Hibernians,	4	4	2	0	1	2	1	2		—16	10	5
Foresters,	0	0	0	0	0	4	2	7	1	—14	13	5

Batteries: Sheehan and Haley; Armour and Stone. Time, 2h. Umpire, Robertson. Attendance, 250.

Ware Juniors 21, Bondsville Ponies 11.

The Bondsville Ponies were defeated by the Ware Juniors at baseball last Saturday afternoon on the High street grounds. The defeat was the worst that the Bondsville boys have sustained this season, although Sullivan did some good work in the box. Errors on both sides seemed to be the chief feature of the game. The score:

Notes.

The game at Palmer to-morrow afternoon will be with the Indian Orchards. They have played here twice before this season, being defeated both times, but have materially strengthened their team, and are hoping to win with the aid of Furkey, who it is said will be in the box for them.

Got a Gold Brick.

The Springfield Republican has the following regarding the pitcher who started in the box for Indian Orchard in the game with the Monsons last Saturday:

Indian Orchard young men claimed they were humbugged last week by a "McDermont of Boston," who offered to show them pitching stunts. During the Bostonian's stay in Indian Orchard last winter it became rumored that he was a magnificent baseball pitcher. He left town last spring, but returned a week ago with clippings telling of games that he had pitched with a fast Boston team. One of the games was played in Providence before 2000 people, and "McDermont" held his opponents to one hit in 10 innings. Orchard enthusiasts waxed enthusiastic over this game, and suggested that "McDermont" pitch for them against Monson the 22d. "McDermont" said he was engaged to pitch in Providence for the team that he formerly held down to one hit, and that he was to receive $20 and his expenses. This offer was duplicated by the Orchard youths, and one of the enthusiasts was kind enough to furnish the pitcher a training table for a week. When the Orchard "sports" heard that "McDermont" was billed to pitch they began to wager on the game.

"McDermont," instead of "warming up" with the catcher before the Monson game, threw once or twice to the first baseman. The Orchards batted in two runs in their half of the first inning, and with their "find" to pitch they felt that the game was won. "McDermont" gave the first Monson man a base on balls. The next man got a hit. While the pitcher was winding his arm around to deliver the ball to the third Monson hitter the man on second ran to third. "McDermont" gave the third batter a base on balls. The Orchard management then speedily removed him from the box. After the game "McDermont" was given a chance to explain himself, but he was dumb. When Palmer was reached on the return "McDermont" took French leave and escaped to Boston on the first possible train.

HALF HOUR FOR LUNCH

[Copyright, 1904, by Temple Bailey.]

Jeanette's fingers flew over the keys of her typewriter, then there was a sharp click as she struck a final period and a sigh of relief as she drew the paper out with a whir.

"One, two, three—out goes she
And brews herself a cup of tea," she sang as she went to a file case and took out from certain odd corners a quaint blue teapot, a caddy, a sugar bowl, two cups and two spoons.

The man at the desk on the other side of the room settled back in his chair and dropped the pencil.

"You ought to be presiding over a home teakettle," he said, "instead of one in an office."

"Sufficient unto the day," interjected Jeanette as she measured the tea.

"But you really should think about it," persisted Francis Darcy, chief clerk in the law office in which Jeanette Melton did the typewriting.

"Oh, I'll think about it," said Jeanette airily, "and some day when the proper millionaire flits across my horizon I'll say goodby to these musty, fusty rooms and enter my proper sphere," and she lighted the alcohol lamp under her brass kettle and went to the window for the bottle of cream.

Darcy whirled around and looked at her keenly. "I didn't mean that," he said.

"Oh, didn't you?" asked Jeanette calmly. "In one breath you say one thing and contradict it in the next. Now, what do you really mean?"

She sat down to wait for the kettle to boil and fixed her teasing gray eyes on him.

"You know what I mean, Jennette," he began. "I don't want you to leave here until you are ready to come to me as my wife—to my home."

"In other words, you want me to transfer my tea making from the office to a flat. Oh, it's much nicer this way. You might get tired of me if we were married, and think how dreadful that would be! Now if you get tired of me you can get a new typewriter, but you couldn't get a new wife."

"And, besides," he said bitterly, "I am poor, and you don't want to marry a poor man, Jeanette."

"No," she said, "but if I loved"—and then she stopped as the door opened and the junior member of the firm looked in. The junior partner was young, rather floridly handsome and very well pleased with himself.

"Oh, put that away," he said, as he saw the tea arrangements, "and come out for lunch with me."

But Jeanette shook her head. "Don't ask me," she pleaded; "just think what I shall miss," and she laughed as she named them. "A chicken sandwich, a slice of homemade cake and tea—my own tea—home brewed," and she flashed a bright glance across at Francis, who sat tapping his foot gloomily.

But the eagerness of the junior partner was only increased by her refusal.

"You shall have a bird and salad and a soufle," he said, "and wine, if you will."

Darcy clinched his hand, but the junior partner heeded him no more than the fly which crawled on the wall. He wanted Miss Melton to lunch with him. She was fair and sweet and pretty, by Jove, as pretty as any girl in his own set.

"Come," he pleaded.

Jeanette glanced toward Darcy and met in his face only sternness. If he had but known that she wished to refuse; that she would rather drink a cup of tea with him than have all the fine lunches in Christendom. But he did not know, and she, missing the sympathy that she had looked for, said "yes" to the junior partner.

Darcy sat alone, therefore, and ate a part of his lunch. He did not drink his tea, for he could not touch the pretty cup that she offered him daily with so much grace. He stared at the blank wall and imagined Jeanette in the softly lighted dining room of the great hotel. He knew the junior partner would take her to a fashionable place. That was one thing in his favor—he was not ashamed to be seen with his typewriter. But it was the first time that Jeanette had gone.

"And it won't be the last," groaned poor Darcy, with his head on his desk.

"Yes, it will," said a soft voice behind him, and he whirled around to see Jeanette, all smiles and blushes, fresh as a rose.

"He asked me to marry him," she said without further remark.

Darcy's head dropped down on his desk.

Silence!

Then in the stillness came the "clickety, clickety-click" of Jeanette's typewriter. Darcy raised his head and picked up his pencil desperately. He might as well begin. Same old routine, same old work, same old struggle, and now Jeanette would be out of it, whirled into a gay life by the riches of the junior partner, and he would be alone—alone.

The typewriter was silent, and he heard the whir of paper being pulled out and then Miss Melton's step as she crossed the room. She laid a sheet of paper in front of him. On it was neatly typed, "But I refused him."

Darcy caught both of her hands in his.

"Oh, Jeanette, Jeanette!" he cried rapturously. "Why did you do it? Why did you refuse a rich man like that?"

"Because," said Jeanette demurely, "I'd rather make your tea."

"At the office or in our home, dear?"

"Both," said little Jeanette.

A Riddle Solved

[Original.]

Leonard Holt and Agnes Searle, two hardworking young people, were desirous of being married, but having nothing except what they earned from day to day Agnes, who was a farseeing girl, would not consent until they had accumulated enough for a start. One day, however, she surprised her lover by telling him she had concluded to do as he wished and work out the problem together instead of separately, and they were married.

The ceremony had been performed at her mother's, where they proposed to remain temporarily, and the couple went upstairs to their room. Agnes had a happy look on her face, which she strove in vain to hide. The cause was soon explained. Going to a cupboard, she took out a woolen stocking, bulging with something heavy in the foot, and swung it before her husband's face triumphantly.

"What is it?" asked Leonard.

"A windfall." Turning the stocking upside down, she poured its contents (gold coins) on the table. Leonard stared at them, while Agnes put her arms about his neck and gave him a hug.

"Where did they come from?"

"Agnes!" called a querulous voice from below.

"Poor mother," said the girl, her expressive face turning from delight to sympathy. "She is much depressed at losing me. I must go down and comfort her. Meanwhile you may count our treasure. Coming, mother!" And she ran downstairs.

When the young bride returned to her room the money was lying on the table just as she had left it, but her husband was nowhere to be seen.

"Leonard!" she called. "Leonard, dear! Where are you?"

There was no reply, and, thinking he was playfully hiding from her, she searched for him, but her husband was not to be found. There was a back staircase, by which he might have descended, and she went down, opened a door at its foot and called. There was no answer.

Agnes spent the night in an agony of dread. She thought she could not endure another such night, but she did, and many more, for her husband did not return to her. Slowly she became more hardened to her sorrow, but when four years had passed she had become no more reconciled to it than the night her husband had forsaken her. Meanwhile the money she had so joyfully turned over to him had all been used in buying comforts for her mother.

One day she received through the mail an envelope postmarked at a mining town on the Pacific coast. In it was a certificate of deposit in bank payable to her order for $1,000. Accompanying this was a bit of faded yellow paper on which was written in a man's handwriting, though unknown to her:

> Dearest Agnes—Replying to your last letter saying that you are willing to accept a stated sum, consenting at the same time to my expected marriage, I send it to you with this. After the honeymoon (?) I hope in a measure to resume my relations with you. Your loving B.

In vain did Agnes puzzle over these two singular inclosures. She could fathom neither. The money she would not use; the note she would have considered an insult had she not believed it was intended for some one else. She finally determined to send both back through the bank on which the certificate was drawn. She wrote a note calling the cashier's attention to the mistake, asking him to forward it to the depositor.

Exactly twelve days from the day she mailed her note with its inclosure there was a knock at the door, and, opening it, there stood her husband. She fell in a swoon, and he caught her in his arms.

When she revived she was lying on a sofa, while Leonard bent over her.

"Oh, sweetheart," he said, "I fear I have done you a great wrong."

"Why did you leave me?" she moaned, throwing her arms about his neck as if fearful to lose him again.

Then he told her that when she had gone down to her mother he had shaken the stocking to make sure that nothing more remained in it, and the note she had received by mail had fallen out. Taking it as evidence of her guilt, he had fled, resolved never to see her again. He had gone west and made money. Wishing that she, notwithstanding her sin, should share in his good fortune, he had sent her the $1,000 and to explain the cause of his having left her had inclosed the note. Her reply had come to him through the bank where he had deposited the money.

Then Agnes saw through the riddle and gave him the solution. The money she had given her husband had come to her as a legacy from an aunt for whom she had been named. She had heard strange stories about this aunt in her youth that were now confirmed by the letter which had evidently been kept with the money in the stocking.

"Four years of misery," said Leonard mournfully, "that might have been years of happiness gone out of our lives through my blundering stupidity."

"But," said the practical woman, "after all, Providence may have turned my aunt's sin into a benefit for us. Your going away under a misunderstanding has enabled you to concentrate your efforts in a better field than here and untrammeled by the cares of a family."

The honeymoon which had been interrupted four years before at its beginning was begun again, to last this time through their lives. The husband considered himself indebted to his wife for a great reparation and with this in view made a vow that his bearing toward his wife should never be different from the first day of their reunion. He kept his vow.

Keep Serene.

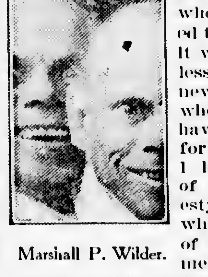
When you come to think of it, most of us do have a hard time keeping ourselves in order, temper, nerves, selfishness and longings, ambitions and desires all insisting to have a hearing, and down steps wisdom and orders control. Of course there are the cool headed, intellectual people to whom self sacrifice means nothing, and little they know of the fight of the other passionate half. Ill health and discontent are the fruits of the battle. Keep serene, say, "I shall control myself and be a cheerful philosopher," and all will go well.

King Edward and Fun In England

"How Are You, Little Chap?" --- Wonderful Tact of Great Britain's Sovereign---Richard Croker and the Alarm Clock

By MARSHALL P. WILDER

From "The Sunny Side of the Street," by Marshall P. Wilder. Copyright, 1905, by Funk & Wagnalls Company.



Marshall P. Wilder.

If all kings were as competent as the genial and tactful gentleman who recently ascended the British throne it would be a thankless job to start a new republic anywhere. Personally I have strong grounds for this opinion, for I had the pleasure of meeting his majesty many times while he was Prince of Wales, and these meetings were due entirely to his kindness of nature and generally were of his own initiative.

I don't imagine he knew it, but the Prince of Wales once lifted me out of as uncomfortable a fix as I ever got into in London. The Ancient and Honorable artillery, Boston's swell military organization, visited England in 1896 as guests of the Ancients and Honorables of London, who entertained them handsomely and had them presented to her majesty the queen. The Boston company in turn gave a great dinner to their hosts. Some Americans then in the city were invited, and I had the good fortune to be of the number.

The spectacle was brilliant in the extreme, nine out of every ten men present being in full dress uniform. The entire assemblage was gathered informally in two long, glittering rows, awaiting the Prince of Wales, who was always the soul of punctuality. I had many acquaintances in the two uniformed bodies, as well as among the nonmilitary guests, and was moving about from one to another. I was in conventional evening dress, and had a tiny American flag pinned to the lapel of my coat.

"How Are You, Little Chap?"

The master of ceremonies, whose manner was more consequential than that of any distinguished person in the room, seemed annoyed that any civilians were present, and he did his utmost to separate them from the soldiers. I had the misfortune to become his bete noire. Whenever he found me among the military men he gently but persistently pressed me away, but no sooner did he eject me in one direction than I reappeared from another and between two pairs of gayly appareled soldiers' legs, so I made the poor fellow nervous and fussy to the verge of distraction.

Exactly at 8 o'clock the Prince of Wales was announced and every one came to attention. He entered with the genial smile which was an inseparable part of him and shook hands with the American minister and other dignitaries. Soon he spied me, came across the room, greeted me very kindly and said:

"How are you, little chap?"

"Very well, thank you, sir," I replied.

"I am to hear you tomorrow night at the Duke of Devonshire's, I understand," he continued. "Won't you give us that mother-in-law pantomime of yours?"

"Certainly, sir," I answered. As the prince left me and ascended the stairs I saw the master of ceremonies, who had witnessed the meeting, was visibly disturbed. Soon he literally hovered about me and displayed a fixed and conciliatory smile. The guests began to follow the prince, and as they passed up the stairs many of them greeted me. Senator Depew remarked:

"Hello, Marshall, how are you?"

That dear old gentleman and English idol, John L. Toole, passed, blinked merrily at me and said:

"Glad to see you again, Marshall. How are you?"

An Army Celebrity.

Presently the master of ceremonies turned nervously to an English officer and asked, with an aggrieved tone in his voice:

"Who is this little chap, anyway? Everybody seems to know him."

The officer did not chance to know me, but an English sergeant who was of the attendant guard and was willing to impart information said: "He belongs to the American army. He's a marshal." The great functionary immediately regarded me with profound respect, not unmixed with wonder at the modesty of great American soldiers, for an officer of my supposedly exalted rank was entitled to follow close behind his royal highness.

Tact of King Edward.

King Edward has wonderful tact. This quality is not restricted to public purposes. His acquaintances know that it is untiringly exercised for the benefit of Queen Alexandra, of whose deafness he is never unmindful. Often, when I had the honor to entertain the royal family and their friends, it was my duty to face the king (then Prince of Wales). Sometimes this placed me —embarrassingly too—with my back to the greater part of the audience. But the prince was regardless of custom and his own royal prerogative when his consort's enjoyment was endangered. On one occasion when he saw that the princess was not hearing me distinctly he said softly to me, "Mr. Wilder, kindly turn your face toward the princess."

A Polite Princess.

And her royal highness is as tactful as he. The audience at a special entertainment given the shah of Persia in London included the most distinguished and wealthy people in the city. I was among those engaged to entertain the shah, beside whom sat the princess (now Queen Alexandra). As his Persian majesty was ignorant of the English language, it was not strange that he held his programme upside down. This might have occasioned a laugh and caused the shah some mortification had not the princess deftly turned her own programme upside down and kept it so during the performance.

Croker and the Clock.

During one of my visits to Richard Croker at Wantage his son Bert was fond of getting up early in the morning to hunt mushrooms, and in order to be awakened he would set an alarm clock. "Early morning" in England and at that season of the year was from 3 to 4 o'clock, for dawn comes much earlier than with us. His father did not wish him to arise so early, so he would go softly into Bert's room and turn off the alarm, to assure a full night's sleep for the boy. The fact that he could not hear the alarm worried Bert so greatly that he placed the clock directly over his head, hanging it to a string from the ceiling. But even in this position Mr. Croker succeeded in manipulating it, and he gleefully told me of it at the time.

Before starting from London for Wantage one day Mr. Croker asked me to go to a furniture dealer with him; he had some purchases to make. As we entered the place he said to me, "We've only half an hour in which to catch the train." But the way he bought furniture did not make him lose the train. He would say, pointing to a dresser:

"How much is that?"

"Six guineas, sir."

"Give me six of them."

Pointing to another:

"How much is that one?"

"Five guineas, sir."

"Well, seven of those," and so on.

With such rapid fire, even though he expended more than a thousand dollars, and not at haphazard either, there was ample time to catch the train. The incident, though slight in itself, is indicative of his quickness of decision, but it so utterly upset the dealer, accustomed to English deliberation, that he begged permission to wait until next day to prepare an itemized bill.

Past Masters of Sarcasm.

I went one day into a London restaurant where a great many people were dining, yet absolute silence prevailed instead of the buzz of chatter and laughter of a French or American restaurant. I asked a waiter:

"Doesn't any one ever laugh here?"

"Yes, sir," he replied. "Sometimes we 'ave complaints, sir."

The first natives to accost an American are the "cabbies," and they are a never failing source of amusement to me. They abound in natural wit and are past masters of sarcasm. One of the sharpest bits I ever heard was told about an old cabby and one of his younger fellows. The former was a master of whip and rein. He boasted that he knew every foot of London and declared that, although he had been in many tight places, he had never failed to drive out smoothly. One day, however, he lost control of his horse and ran into a young cabby's outfit. The younger man looked him over condescendingly, contemptuously, and then asked:

"Well? An' 'ow do you like London?"

A friend of mine once took a cab drawn by an animal which was bony in the extreme. The driver was hailed by the Jehu of a passing cab with:

"Oi saly, Bill, I see yer goin' to 'ave a new 'orse."

"'Oo told yer so?"

"W'y, I see y've got the framework there."

The Merciful Policeman.

Every summer when I revisit England some old acquaintance is sure to say, "Mr. Wilder, those stories you told last year are awfully funny." It has really taken him about a year to get at the points of the various tales. He doesn't lack appreciation of humor, but he is so accustomed to having it served in only one way that he is puzzled when it appears in a new form. One day I told an English audience about New York's fire department and its methods. Great interest was manifested, so I ventured to tell the old story of a fire in an india rubber factory. This factory was a large, tall building, and when the alarm of fire was given one of the employees found himself on the top floor, with burning stairs under him. His only chance was to jump, but the pavement was so far below his windows that death seemed inevitable. Suddenly he bethought himself of the elastic properties of rubber, of which the room was full. Could he envelop himself with it he might jump and strike the sidewalk softly. So he donned rubber coats, belting suits and everything else he could find until he made the serious mistake of putting on too much, for when he jumped he rebounded from the pavement again and again continued to do so for five days, when a merciful police officer came along and shot the poor fellow to save him from the awful fate of starving to death.

About half an hour after I told this veracious story one of my audience came to me and asked:

"Mr. Wilder, do you think that police officer was justified?"

The Antalgica
Or Vegetable Pain Reliever

was introduced to the public in 1848, since which time thousands of bottles have been sold each year to an appreciative public, which is a good evidence of its merits. It is adapted to so many ailments it should be in every household, for it cures all kinds of pains both internal and external. For Bronchial affections it is unrivaled by any article in the market. It is a sure cure for Cholera Morbus and Dysentery, if taken in season, also for Coughs. It is an effective remedy for rheumatic affections, stiff joints, swelled limbs, sprains, cramps, tooth ache and many other ills to which the flesh is heir. Try it and it will do you good. It is sold at 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle by The Quimby Pharmacy, LeGro's Drug Store and the proprietor,

KIDNEY TROUBLES
Increasing Among Women, But Sufferers Need Not Despair
THE BEST ADVICE IS FREE

Of all the diseases known, with which the female organism is afflicted, kidney disease is the most fatal, and statistics show that this disease is on the increase among women.

Mrs. Emma Sawyer

Unless early and correct treatment is applied the patient seldom survives when once the disease is fastened upon her. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the most efficient treatment for kidney troubles of women, and is the only medicine especially prepared for this purpose.

When a woman is troubled with pain or weight in loins, backache, frequent, painful or scalding urination, swelling of limbs or feet, swelling under the eyes, an uneasy, tired feeling in the region of the kidneys or notices a brick-dust sediment in the urine, she should lose no time in commencing treatment with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it may be the means of saving her life.

For proof, read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Sawyer.

"I cannot express the terrible suffering I had to endure. A derangement of the female organs developed nervous prostration and a serious kidney trouble. The doctor attended me for a year, but I kept getting worse, until I was unable to do anything, and I made up my mind I could not live. I finally decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a last resort, and I am to-day a well woman. I cannot praise it too highly, and I tell every suffering woman about my case." Mrs. Emma Sawyer, Conyers, Ga.

GAS PLANT FOR PALMER.

If Warren Shuts Out Worcester County Gas Company.

WILL THEN BUILD WORKS IN PALMER

Wants Extension of Franchise Limit, and Will Begin to Lay Pipe At Once.

President Alfred Clark of the Worcester County Gas Company was in town Wednesday and attended the meeting of the selectmen for the purpose of asking that the franchise for laying pipes in the streets of the town, which was granted his company some time ago and which expires in December, be extended for another year. If this is done, Mr. Clark promised that the work of laying pipes in Palmer would begin at once, within a week of the granting of the extension.

The reason why Palmer has not had gas long before this is that the town of Warren has refused to allow the lay[illegible] ipes in that territory, so that the g[illegible] he conveyed from the plant at Sp[illegible] Another petition is now before the [illegible] ectmen of Warren, on which a recent hearing was held, the sentiment of the people being manifestly in favor of granting the company the desired permission; final action is to be taken next Monday. If, however, their decision should be adverse, then the Worcester County Gas Company promises the erection of a gas plant in Palmer, to supply this town and the town of Monson.

As stated above, the company is willing to begin laying pipes at once in Palmer if its franchise limit is extended, regardless of the action of the Warren selectmen. The company now has 22½ miles of gas pipes laid, and is supplying five towns with gas; the price in each is less than $2 per thousand feet, and the service is satisfactory. Investigation was invited in any locality where the company has pipes and is serving customers. The company has on hand 50,000 feet of steel pipe which it proposes to ship at once to Palmer and lay if given the asked-for extension of time. The company does not ask for any local investment, and is willing to be bound in any manner to install its service as soon as possible.

LAKESIDE PARK CLOSED.

Pleasure Resort of Hampshire-Worcester Road Out of Business.

The theatrical season at Lakeside Park, on the Hampshire and Worcester electric line in West Brookfield, came to a sudden ending Saturday, and there will be no more performances there this season, and the former fare of 15 cents between Ware and West Brookfield is again in force.

The theatrical season at the park did not open until two weeks ago on account of the financial troubles of the Hampshire and Worcester electric line, and all went well until last Saturday, when Joseph Plouff, who had acted as manager of the theatre since it opened, disappeared, taking with him all the money that had been collected at the theatre during the week. He neglected to pay the seven members of the troupe appearing at the theatre, and they were stranded in Ware and West Brookfield, but finally secured sufficient funds to leave town.

Nothing was heard from Mr. Plouff until Monday night, when he returned to Ware. When questioned in regard to his sudden departure Saturday without paying the members of the troupe, he said that the show was so poor an attraction that the gate receipts during the five days that performances were given amounted to only $40. This money he preferred to use in paying his local help and the other bills contracted with Ware merchants, and these claims he intends to settle in full. He contends that the troupe was not entitled to any pay whatever, as the contract was broken when they failed to appear on Sunday afternoon, as agreed upon, and by failing to make good afterward, as they promised to do when he held an interview with them after the first performance Monday. When asked for any money in advance Mr. Plouff always told the members that he paid only on Saturday night, and they would not get any until then.

When Mr. Plouff left Saturday he instructed his assistant, James Daley, to inform the members that there was no money for them. Mr. Plouff's journey to Worcester was for the purpose of seeing about a continuance of shows at the lake this week from another source, but he found himself unable to secure any attraction before September, and returned when he found that his going away had occasioned so many stories. Mr. Plouff will remain in Ware for the present.

Family Reunion in Ludlow.

A pleasant family reunion was held at the homes of Edward E and Henry S. Fuller in Ludlow last week Thursday. About 18 of their relatives attended, three generations being present, the oldest being Edward E. Fuller, and the youngest being the three-years-old daughter of Albert Bannister of Indian Orchard. Others present were County Treasurer and Mrs. M. Wells Bridge of Springfield, Alfred Jones and family of Wilbraham, Albert Bannister and family of Indian Orchard, Mrs. Hattie Roberts and daughter Lulu and Postmaster and Mrs. Hardie of Thorndike. Dinner was served under the trees on the lawn by Mrs. Henry Fuller, and the party later went to the home of Mr. and Mrs Edward Fuller, where supper was served.

Receiver Wants $150,000 for Hampshire-Worcester Electric Road.

A hearing was held in Boston Tuesday on the petition of George S. Taft, receiver for the Hampshire-Worcester electric road, for permission to sell the property. The road is bonded for $135,000, and there are unpaid taxes and the expenses of the receiver. He states that after all bills incurred by him are paid he will have not over $500 left from the earnings of the road under his operation since May 13, and is of the opinion that the sale price should be not less than $150,000 in order to leave a clean balance sheet. It is considered doubtful if anything like this figure is realized, as the earnings do not justify such a price.

Ludlow Assessors' Figures.

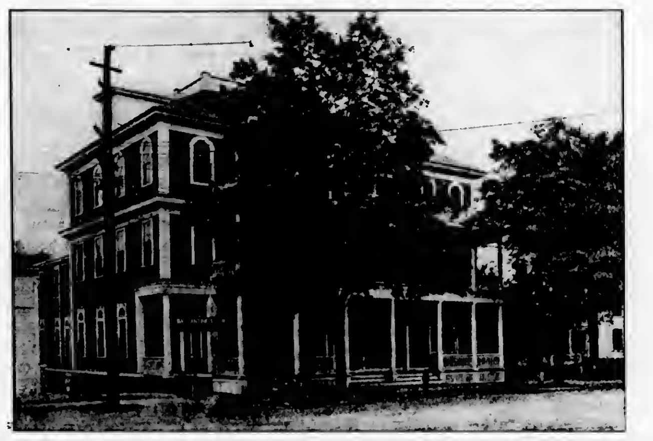
The assessors of the town of Ludlow have completed their work and announce their results as follows: Valuation of real estate is $1,412,114; personal property, $1,195,129; total, $2,607,243. The number of polls is 916; number of acres of land taxed, 16,183; dwelling houses, 526; horses, 362; cows, 737; cattle other than cows, 222; sheep, 16; swine, 176; fowl, 1551. The rate per thousand is $13. The total amount raised by taxation for state, county and town is $36,351.02.

PALMER'S NEW HOTEL.

Hotel Burns Opened for Business Wednesday Morning.

BUILDING AND CONTENTS ALL NEW.

Three Story Structure, with 45 Rooms On Prominent Location on Main Street.



The new Hotel Burns on Main street in Palmer, which has been under construction since early spring, was opened for business Wednesday morning. Tuesday evening the house was thrown open for the inspection of the public, and a large number of the townspeople availed themselves of the opportunity to view the new hostelry. Something like 1000 people called during the evening. The crowd wandered through the parlors, office and reading room, dining room, kitchen and several guest rooms on the first floor, and through the guest rooms on the second floor, admiring the arrangement, the freshness of the equipment, and everything in general. Lemonade and wafers were served to the visitors, and souvenir postals bearing a half-tone cut of the hotel were distributed.

The hotel stands on Main street at the foot of Thorndike street, and one of the most prominent locations in the village. The front is about 55 feet square, three stories; in the rear is a two-story part, 55 by 35, with basement. The house contains 45 rooms. The office is at the left of the main entrance, and at the left of that, in the front corner of the building, is a large reading and writing room. At the right of the entrance are the parlors, connecting, the front being finished in green and the rear room in pink. Back of these are sleeping rooms. At the rear of the office and reading room is the dining room, 35 by 25, and still further in the rear a well-appointed kitchen. The second floor and third floors are given over to guest rooms. Each room has hot and cold running water, steam heat, electric lights, telephone to the office, and is equipped with a fire escape. Several of the rooms also have bath connected. All of the sleeping rooms are furnished with white iron beds.

The furniture in the office and reading room is of the mission pattern, dark oak finish. The reading room and dining room floors are covered with linoleum; the halls and office floors are of hard wood. Carpets of soft colors cover the floors of the parlors, the tints harmonizing with the walls and ceilings. The walls and ceilings of the hall, dining room, office and reading room are of stamped steel.

The house was built by day labor, the work at first being in charge of C. G. Thomas, and later under the direction of the Messrs. Burns themselves. The heating was installed by the G. M. Parks Co. of Fitchburg; plumbing by the E Brown Co. of Palmer; electric lights and fixtures by the Parker Hamer Co. of Palmer; beds and bedding, by the Walcott-Cameron Co. of Palmer; furniture, by the Walcott-Cameron Co., John M. Dean of Providence, R. I., and Meekins, Packard & Wheat of Springfield; crockery and glassware by Meekins, Packard & Wheat.

The soda water manufactory of the Messrs. Burns will be located in the basement of the two-story portion of the building, and from the engine connected it is planned to furnish power for the electric lights in and about the building.

The first meals were served on Wednesday, and the house is now fairly launched, with many good wishes for its success. Its proprietors are not novices at the business, having for several years conducted a hotel in Winchendon.

HARTFORD-WORCESTER ROAD

Will Be Built at Once, so its Promoters Say.

Interest in the electric road question was awakened again in the hearts of Brimfield and Wales people this week by an article which appeared in the daily papers Tuesday morning, announcing that, according to the James F. Shaw interests, the Hartford and Worcester road was to be built at once, work being commenced at both ends and in the middle. Work is to be commenced within 30 days, and the road is to be in operation early in the spring of 1907.

Regarding the construction of the road, it was stated that "At East Brimfield a direct branch will be run through to Springfield." This must be the line which was contemplated two years ago, to tap the Springfield and Eastern's Monson branch below the Fay bridge, but about which nothing has been heard since. The announcement also stated that "West from Worcester the new line will run through Spencer and then largely over private right of way to East Brimfield, where the Springfield branch turns off, the main line continuing almost straight to Hartford, through Monson." So far as is known, the company has never been given, or even asked for, a franchise in the latter town.

When the road is built it will be about 60 miles in length, a large portion of it over private land. The fare from Worcester to Hartford is to be 85 cents, against $1 75 on the steam road, and a three-hour running time against two for steam. The fare from Boston to Hartford will be $1 30, with five hours running time.

Special Rates

To Portland, Oregon, and return, from Boston ranging from $75.50 to $79 50. Tickets good for ninety days permitting stopovers west of St. Paul or Denver. $11 extra will permit of a trip via Los Angeles or San Francisco, one way. Tickets are first-class and Standard Sleepers can be used. The trip can be made in four days each way. Ask your local ticket agent for tickets via Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway, or write to George L. Williams, N. E. P. A., 368 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

WOMEN BURNED TO DEATH.

Two Lose Their Lives in Dwelling House in Warren.

FIRE WAS UNDOUBTEDLY INCENDIARY

Four Miles From Village. Fire Started in Barn and Spread to the House.

Warren was visited by a terrible tragedy yesterday morning, when Sara J., wife of Lyman R. Hawkes, and Miss Anna Skipper, daughter of Mrs. John Skipper, were burned to death, and the house and barn owned by Mr. Hawkes were burned to the ground.

The farm is situated about three miles southeasterly from Warren village, just off from the road commonly known as "Devil's Lane." Mr. Hawkes was awakened by his wife about 1 30, and hurrying out found the barn all on fire. He hastened to liberate his horse, which is kept in a shed on the north end of the house, and the animal kicked him severely on the left knee, so that he was unable to do anything for some minutes, and in the meantime the fire was gaining headway. After getting the horse untied he hobbled to the front of the house and found that his wife had thrown out some articles of furniture and was still in the house. He called to her to come out, but she turned back to arouse Miss Skipper, who was sleeping upstairs, and that was the last seen of her. As Miss Skipper had only come to the house on Sunday to stay a week and help Mrs. Hawkes, it possibly was not strange that they did not think of her at first. As there were no neighbors within a mile Mr. Hawkes could do nothing but let the house burn.

Mr. Hawkes succeeded in getting to the main highway after daylight and sent word by Bert Healy of Brimfield as he was on his way to Warren with his milk, and Deputy Sheriff Walter A. Putnam was the first to arrive at the farm and took charge of the things until the arrival of Medical Examiner E. W. Norwood. An attempt was made to cool a part of the cellar where it was thought the bodies lay by bringing water in pails from a brook 300 feet away, but the medical examiner found only a few bones in one of the two places and the search had to be given up on account of the heat; it was uncertain which one they belonged to, but from their location it is thought they are those of Mrs. Hawkes.

Mrs. Hawkes, who was 65 years old, had been married to Mr. Hawkes about 28 years and had previously been married to Robert Bannister and John Cryer. She was a large woman, weighing over 250 pounds, and suffered at times from dropsy and heart weakness, and rheumatism having affected her limbs and hands so that it was difficult for her to get around. All these conditions show that Mrs. Hawkes might easily have been overcome. The only plausible explanation of Miss Skipper not escaping is that she was overcome by smoke while still asleep and never left her bed, and she is said to have been a very sound sleeper. Miss Anna Skipper was the oldest daughter of Mrs. John T. Skipper of the Ware road, and was a member of the high school in the class of 1906. She had come to spend the week with Mrs. Hawkes and assist her with her sewing. She leaves, besides her mother, a brother, William, and two sisters, Jennie and Nellie Skipper. Mrs. Hawkes leaves, besides her husband, two sons, Robert Bannister of Watertown and William Bannister of Somerville, also three sisters, Mrs. Eva White of Westfield, Mrs. Ida Hildreth of Merrick and Mrs. Alice Bodurtha of Ludlow, and two brothers, Fred Taylor of Ludlow and William Taylor of Webster.

The origin of the fire is unknown, but Mr. Hawkes insists that it was incendiary and hints that he may know of a person mean enough to have done it, but will not name any person until he has investigated a little himself. The house proper was a 1½ story structure, 24x26 feet, with three rooms down stairs and one small room upstairs. There was an ell 16 by 30 feet, running toward the barn, which was more used as a barn than house. In the middle of this some two tons of hay was stored and the horse was in a stall in the extreme north end. A small barn, 16 by 12 feet, adjoined this end. It contained a little hay and his wagons, and it was here the fire started. The whole affair looks rather mysterious on account of the distance of the origin of the fire from the supposed location of the people who were burned, but as Mr. Hawkes is somewhat dazed from the great loss it is not strange that he cannot render a very clear account of the affair. As soon as the ruins cool off further search will be made for the bodies.

NORTH WILBRAHAM.

Mrs. Walter Berry left Monday for the White Mountains.

Miss Eunice Bates is spending a month's vacation at Mulberry Point, Ct.

Miss Minnie M. Morgan is spending her vacation at Lake Sunapee, N. H.

POPULATION DECREASING.

Palmer Census Returns Show Town is Losing Ground.

NUMBER 46 LESS THAN 5 YEARS AGO.

Figures a Surprise to All; Increase of at Least 200 Felt to be a Certainty.

The census returns for the town of Palmer have been received, and the official figures show that there are not so many people residents of the town as there were five years ago. Then the returns gave 7,801, while now there are only 7,755 reported, a loss of 46. The state census of 10 years ago gave 894 less than now. The returns by precincts are:

	Males.	Females.	Total.
Precinct A,	1,196	1,248	2,446
B,	862	950	1,812
C,	1,040	1,037	2,077
D,	707	713	1,420
	3,807	3,948	7,755

It will be noted that in point of numbers there are nearly as many residents in precinct C—Three Rivers—as in A, Palmer, although the voting list is not nearly so large; in fact, the voters in precinct A number nearly as many as in the other three precincts combined. The reason for this difference in Three Rivers is that a large percentage of the population there is made up of foreigners who have not yet become citizens.

OF INTEREST TO FARMERS.

"Bush Fruits" Treated of by the State Board of Agriculture.

In its crop report for July, just out, the Massachusetts State Board of Agriculture includes an article on "Bush Fruits," by Prof. F. S Card of the Rhode Island Agricultural College and Experiment Station. This report will be sent free on application to J. Lewis Ellsworth, Secretary State Board of Agriculture, State House, Boston, and those wishing it may have their names put on the mailing list for future issues.

In this article Prof. Card says: "The bush fruits represent a type that is likely to be neglected, though one well worthy of consideration in most localities. They ought, by all means, to appear in every home garden, and in many places would prove desirable market fruits. Many New England markets are poorly supplied with these fruits, and where conditions are favorable to their growth, they might prove a source of profit to numberless local growers.

Two general classes of fruits are included under the term bush fruits, differing in their botanical relationships and habits. The brambles, which include the raspberries and blackberries, are the ones most likely to suffer from unfavorable climatic conditions here in New England. The groselles, which include the currant and the gooseberry, are seldom injured by cold, and generally succeed, though the English gooseberry cannot be depended on to thrive. Owing to their different characteristics it seems better to treat these two groups separately."

Taking up the brambles Prof. Card speaks of the soil and climatic conditions most favorable to them, what fertilizers to apply, the preparation of the soil for planting, and the planting of the cuttings and methods of propagation. He also gives much attention to the after culture which they should receive, their pruning, harvesting and marketing. The brambles are subject to attacks from many enemies, says Prof. Card, among them the bramble flea-louse, sometimes called the "mistletoe disease," cane-borers and the strawberry weevil. Fungous diseases are also injurious to these plants,—chief among them red rust, anthracnose, leaf spots and crown gall, and the article tells how to guard against and eradicate these diseases and insect pests, as well as how to recognize them on their appearance.

The groselles,—currants and gooseberries, are treated in much the same way as the brambles, except that more attention is given to the description of varieties.

In closing Prof. Card says that profits with any of the bush fruits depend much on location. Several things are essential to profitable returns; first, favorable soil and climatic conditions; second, available help for picking; third, an available market. With these essentials given, to which must be added intelligent care and management, any of these fruits will prove fairly remunerative. Instances of exceptional profit, such as are often reported, give little estimate of probable returns, but with none of these fruits need the expense of production be unusually large, and the price obtained for good fruits is always sufficient to cover it, with a satisfactory margin besides.

BELCHERTOWN.

Barrett—Webster.

The marriage of Beatrice Adella, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Barrett, and G. B. Webster of Saco, Me., took place Tuesday afternoon at the home of J. M. Clough, the bride's grandfather. The house was tastefully decorated with sweet peas and ferns. There were no attendants, the wedding being a quiet one, owing to a recent death in the family. Rev. J. B. Adkins officiated. The bride, who was a member of the junior class in the high school, was attired in white lansdowne, trimmed with Irish point lace, and carried bride roses. After a trip to the Maine coast, Mr. and Mrs. Webster will live on West street in Worcester.

Mrs. Robert L. Bridgman and son are visiting in Chester.

Charles L. Randall and family are spending two weeks at Plymouth.

Mr. and Mrs. Balcom of Athol have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Barton.

Charles B. Searle and daughter of Westfield are guests at the Searle cottage.

H. B. Bridgman and family are guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Bridgman.

Rev. J. B. Adkins of Belchertown will exchange pulpits with Rev. C. H. Andrus of Enfield Sunday.

W. L. Lamsie recently presented the library with several volumes, including a copy of the Bible in French.

The family of John Corbin of Everett is spending this month at the home of Miss E. M. Blodgett on Maple street.

Miss Mary E. Richardson of Belchertown and Miss Marguerite Richardson of New Rochelle, N. Y., are spending two weeks with friends on the Maine coast.

Chalmers Longley of California, a native and former resident of Belchertown, is visiting friends in town. This is Mr. Longley's first visit, after an absence of 20 years.

Charles Dickinson held a family reunion yesterday in honor of his nephew, David A. Hoag and Mrs. Hoag of Springfield. After dinner the party enjoyed a drive to Amherst.

The Journal.

FRIDAY EVENING, AUGUST 4, 1905.

GRANT THE REQUEST.

There would seem to be no good reason why the selectmen should not grant the request of the Worcester County Gas Company for an extension of time on its franchise. That the gas is not already here is not the fault of the company—the blame lies on the town of Warren. The company is successfully serving several towns, and there seems to be no criticism of its gas, its prices, or the manner in which its pipes are laid. There is a demand for the gas in Palmer, and if the company is willing to risk in supplying it there can be no harm in allowing it to do so.

WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS is interested in the candidacy of Col. Goetting of Springfield for the Republican nomination for lieutenant-governor, for the Colonel's years of service from this section on the state committee won him many warm friends. "Practical Politics" of Boston seems to think he has a fairly good chance for the nomination, while the Journal's Boston correspondent seems to think he is already as good as down and out. It is probably too early yet to know many things "fer certain," but the Colonel has been long enough in politics to be able to read the signs aright when matters have shaped themselves more definitely, and if he finds them adverse he may be trusted to do the right thing at the right time.

EVEN the most careless readers of the daily papers cannot have failed to note the large number of deaths by drowning during the past few weeks, the record rising and falling with the rise and fall of the temperature. Many are of bathers who have ventured to try and cool off in the water while unable to swim, but there has been a large percentage due to the fool who rocked the boat just to scare the rest of the occupants. The shooting of such a person as soon as this tendency made itself manifest might almost be made justifiable.

MEMORIES of the Lombard Investment Company, which a dozen or 15 years ago sold many Western mortgages throughout Massachusetts, are awakened by a statement that the former stockholders are, under a recent decision of the United States court of appeals, liable for the debts of the corporation, amounting to $43,000,000 of debentures. It is probable that a few claims against the old Lombard company could be dug up in Palmer, if a serious attempt were to be made.

THE news that Palmer has lost in population during the last five years will doubtless be a good deal of a surprise to everyone. The most of us who have given the matter a thought were sure that the town had gained; how much we were not prepared to say, but we knew it had gained. But a count says that instead there are less than five years ago. There's evidently a mistake somewhere.

IT has taken an Indiana town to solve the Sunday baseball question. At Hartford City they give a sermon and a ball game for one price of admission; the minister preaches first and then the game is called. The reports fail to state whether the minister has an audience worth while, or whether they come into church late, just in time for the game.

WE have a record of what the governor of North Carolina said to the governor of South Carolina, but as yet there is no record of what the German Kaiser said to Nicholas II of Russia on the occasion of their private conference at sea last week.

THE sultan of Turkey is the latest target for bomb throwers. The first attempt was a failure, but if that class of people have really set out to disintegrate Abdul Hamid they'll be pretty sure to ring a bull's-eye sooner or later.

THERE'S one consolation in the failure to find more people in the town: We shan't have to have another license granted.

PALMER CENTER OBJECTS

To Article in Last Week's Journal Regarding Town Farm Fire.

Mr. Editor:—The people of Palmer Center take exceptions to the article in last week's Journal regarding the fire at the town farm. Instead of calling the community the home of thieves, the town owes us a card of thanks at least. We do not claim to be able morally to reach the standard of the Depot village, and "Though morality may be a question of locality," also remember that "Sometimes a dyspeptic stomach is mistaken for a critic's brain." So about the fire, had we waited for some of the sweet immaculate moralists of Palmer to take the things from the burning building, or for a stream from the Palmer fire department, or obeyed the orders of the chairman of the overseers of the poor (not to remove the furniture), the town would have been a number of thousand dollars out of pocket. Though we do not claim to be perfect, we are no worse than our neighbors. We went to the fire and worked faithfully, and did not stop until we saw the most of the goods to a place of safety, helped set up beds and get a new home settled as far as possible, threw our homes open to any who needed a bed and helped in every way we could, and now we are called thieves for our pains. Some things may have been taken, but be sure who took them before dropping so heavy on Palmer Center. Might it not have been some of the dandies who came with their kid gloves, canes and pet dogs and gave orders but did nothing themselves? When we ask any favors at town meetings we are promptly turned down, but our taxes are not made one cent less because we live in Palmer Center.

Respectfully yours,
MRS. J. W. DIMOCK,
Palmer Center, August 2d, '05.

It is difficult to see how Mrs. Dimock or any other person can interpret last week's editorial, above referred to, as accusing Palmer Center residents—or those of any other particular locality—with the action which was being criticised. In fact, it cannot be done on a fair reading of the article. After suggesting that at all fires there were persons who apparently held different opinions at different times regarding property, the article suggested that "Many persons who would be highly indignant at any suggestion of their entering their neighbors' houses and removing without permission anything for souvenirs or other purposes, will without hesitation appropriate articles of personal property removed from a burning building and set supposedly safe for future removal. The fire at the town farm on Tuesday demonstrated this disposition on the part of some of the onlookers, and articles carefully placed in safety were soon after missing and have not yet been found." And this is true. There was no suggestion of the individual or the locality from which he or she might have come. There were at the fire more people from outside Palmer Center than from that settlement, and while Mrs. Dimock does not lay claim to perfection for the residents of that section, neither should she claim for them whatever of remissness there may have been in connection with the town farm fire. But in order that the writer of the above communication and all others in that locality may rest at ease regarding the matter, the Journal will say that the acts criticised last week were alleged to have been performed by other than Palmer Center residents. Another error appearing in the communication is the statement regarding the alleged order not to remove the furniture from the building; no such order was given.

Andrew Partridge of Togus, Me., is visiting his sister, Mrs. E. L. Maxwell on Park street.

LOCAL NOTICES.

PALMER NEWS.

Watch Dog For Sale.

"Y' don't happen to need a watch dog fer nothin' about here, do y'?" The question came from a man attached to one end of a long cord; at the other end a dog's collar was appended, and inside the collar was a dog. He wasn't a handsome brute, but there was a good deal of him, with long dark curley hair tinged with brown. His spirit, as manifested by his actions, wasn't of the kind which would recommend him as a protector of the first grade, but perhaps he wasn't to blame for that; it may have been the company he was in. The man who had the dog in tow allowed that he'd "just got him off'n a fellow who hadn't no use fer 'im; he sold out an' was goin' t' move 'n' didn't seem to have no place fer the dog, so he give 'im t' me. I ain't got no place fer 'im an' if y' need a watch dog I reckon he'd make a good one. I don't know much about him an' perhaps he ain't good fer much, but if you want him I'll sell him cheap." The owner—or possessor—of the purp was politely informed that the office had no particular use for the animal, and after it had soaked into his gray matter he drifted slowly out. Later in the day he apparently made a sale, for there was a new man at that end of the rope.

Excursion to Boston.

The Boston and Albany road will run the first of its popular excursions to Boston and the beaches next Thursday. These excursions are too well known to need much explanation, as they have been a feature of the summer business of this road for a number of years, and have become very popular. The rate will be as usual, $1.45 for round trip, which will include railroad passage to and from Boston, with privilege of sail to Nantasket Beach, Bass Point, Nahant, Winthrop, or the state bath house house at Crescent Beach, or admission to the Boston—Detroit American league ball game. A special train will leave North Wilbraham at 6.50 in the morning, Palmer at 7, West Brimfield at 7.10, West Warren at 7.17 and Warren at 7.22. Returning the special train will leave Boston at 8.05 in the evening.

District Court.

Zigwa Wosek of Three Rivers appeared in the district court Monday morning charged with disturbing the peace on Saturday. He was found guilty, assessed a fine of $10, and paid.

Tuesday morning Frank Lowell of Ludlow was charged with larceny. He pleaded not guilty and the case was continued until to-morrow. One "drunk" was fined $5.

Wednesday morning William Manning was charged with assault, found guilty and sent to the house of correction for three months. One "drunk" had his case placed one file. Harry Converse and Frank Ellison of Ludlow were charged with tearing down a fence belonging to H. E. White; they pleaded not guilty and their cases were continued until next Monday.

The New York Novelty Company.

This company, under the management of J. J. Flynn, will be the attraction at the Forest Lake theatre next week. It is considered one of the leading companies of the east, and has established new records for attendance in several of the leading summer resorts. Among the artists are Kenny & Hollis, with a melange of acrobatic stunts, eccentric dancing and witty sayings; the Noles will offer an amusing skit that bristles with new songs and dialogues; the Drummer Quartet will sing the latest New York song hits, including their own and other compositions; Henella will present many novelties in the way of latter day magic, and Miss Lillian Maynard will be seen in a bright little specialty replete with songs and dances.

Former Resident of Palmer Killed.

Adolph Bruch Jr., who was employed in Marcy's livery stable several years ago, was killed by the cars at Westfield Saturday night or Sunday morning. A body was found beside the tracks Sunday morning literally ground to pieces, and there was little by which it could be identified. Bruch had been seen about Westfield the night before and from the appearance of the remains it was suspected he might be the victim, which later was proved to be the case. Burch lived in Granville, and leaves a father and mother, a brother and two sisters.

New Telephones.

A number of new telephones have been installed by the Palmer exchange this week, and among them are the following: Residences of F. F. Marcy, 64–3; W. E. Stone, 64–4; J. M. Allen, 65–2; Frederick Thompson, 65–3; Hotel Burns, 29–5. Others are in process of installation, but are not quite ready for use yet.

A new exchange is in process of construction in Brimfield and will open about the middle of the month with 26 subscribers.

Pastor's Resignation Read.

At the close of the morning service in the Congregational church last Sunday morning the pastor, Rev. M. Oakman Patton, before he dismissed the congregation, read his letter of resignation, and asked that it take effect September 30. Mr. Patton came to Palmer from Newburyport, and has been here two years, since July, 1903. He will not take another charge at present, but will engage in other work for a time.

Tool-house Broken Into.

The tool-house of the Central Vermont railroad at the depot was entered Wednesday night, but nothing was stolen. Strangers were seen about the building during the evening by the operator at the tower, but they moved away when they saw they were observed. About 12.30 the operator heard a crash and found upon investigation that the door was broken in. The men were not seen again.

Fell Three Stories.

Joseph, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Kroul, Poles, had a narrow escape from being killed last Saturday morning by falling from the roof of a three-story building, known as the Brunswick. Kroul, with another boy of about the same age, were on the roof, and one boy dared the other to cross the roof from one window to another. The Kroul boy accepted the dare and started to accomplish the deed, not taking into consideration the slippery condition of the roof after a slight shower. Kroul sustained a broken arm and a bad cut on the head.

Is It Right?

Is it right that a property-owner should lose $4.20 to let a dealer make 50 cents? A dealer makes 50 cents more on fourteen gallons of ready-for-use paint, at $1 50 per gallon, than our agent does on eight gallons of L. & M. paint and six gallons of linseed oil, which make fourteen gallons of the best paint in the world, at $1 20 per gallon; the property-owner loses just $4 20. Is it right?

It only requires 4 gallons of L. & M. and 3 gallons linseed oil to paint a moderate sized house.

LOCAL NOTICES.

Baseball game, Palmer vs Easthampton, on Palmer park to-morrow afternoon at 3.30. Two strong teams; good game.

Moore—Rees.

A pretty home wedding took place Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Moore on Flynt avenue, when their daughter, Miss F. Louise Moore and Ernest D. Rees, assistant postmaster of this town, were united in marriage by Rev. A. B. Gifford, pastor of the Methodist church, the double ring service being used. The maid of honor was Miss Bessie L. Newton of Woods Hole, a classmate of the bride, and the bridesmaids were Miss Hope Morris of Waltham, Miss Florence Whitaker of St. Albans, Vt., Miss Gladys Moore of Springfield and Miss Hazel Moore of Monson. The best man was Wesley Holdridge and the ring bearer was Miss Maud Rees. The ushers were Edward Chapin of Springfield, Fay Holdridge and Arthur Graves of this town. The bride's dress was white net over white silk and she carried a bouquet of 20 bride roses. The bridesmaid's dresses were white organdie, and they carried sweet peas. Miss Florence Moore, sister of the bride, played the wedding march from Lohengrin and during the ceremony "Hearts and Flowers" was played. The bride's gifts to the maid of honor and bridesmaids were gold brooches, and the bridegroom's gifts to the best man and ushers were stick pins. The decorations at the house were artistically arranged, being of ferns and golden rod, the ceremony being performed under an arch of birch boughs. The class of 1905, of which the bride was a member, attended in a body, and there were several out-of-town guests. A reception followed the ceremony, refreshments being served. Mr. and Mrs. Rees left the house amid a shower of rice, confetti, old shoes, etc., and were driven to Palmer, where they took the 6.40 train for Boston, where they will spend their honeymoon. On their return they will commence housekeeping in Dr. Soule's house on Main street.

THE GREAT ICE AGE.

How Its Passing Left Its Record In Gravels and Rocks.

Some 10,000 or more years ago the conditions which had brought about the great ice age where beginning to change. The elevated land began to sink, and a higher temperature slowly followed. The long winter was gradually drawing to a close, and the great springtime of the world was beginning to hasten its influence upon an ice covered land. Tons, rather mountains, of ice began to melt, and the water filled the river valleys to overflowing. Gravel, sand and mud were borne along by these raging waters and deposited wherever the conditions were favorable. Ice rafts covered the surface of the flood, bearing rocks and bowlders from more northern lands.

All rivers which had glacial sources were greatly influenced by the final melting. As the southern part of the ice sheet rested over northern Pennsylvania, the Delaware and the Susquehanna were typical rivers of the age. The rocks and gravels which line their banks show how well they have kept the record. In the Delaware valley brick clay and gravel are laid out in beautiful terraces, especially at Stroudsburg and the Water Gap. Here the waters rose some 200 feet, and an artificial dam is supposed to have formed the river into a broad lake. The Indians, it is said, have a curious legend about this flood. They tell us that the "Minsies" were the first race which dwelt here, and the region roundabout they call "Minisink," meaning that the "waters are gone"—a vague remembrance perhaps of the postglacial floods.

A DIFFERENCE IN NAMES.

Some Orders That Puzzled the New York Fish Dealer.

The fish market man glanced at the retreating figure of a lean, lank customer and remarked: "I wish that fellow would learn to talk United States. He comes in here and says, 'Have you any squiteague?' and after awhile I find out he wants weakfish. Then one day he ordered a horse mackerel, and I had to send for a dictionary before I found out that he wanted bluefish. Where did he come from? New England, he says, and calls things by the names they do down there.

"Strange that a few miles should make such a difference in fish names. Why, when he wants a blackfish he calls for tautaug and orders quahuags when he wants clams. He is almost as bad as an Englishman who came into a meat market where I worked once and asked us if we had any savory duck. 'This is no poultry shop,' said I. 'I know it,' replied he. 'Then why do you ask for duck?' said I. What do you suppose he wanted? Nothing in the world but hog's pluck, or pig's liver, as the overrefined call it."—New York Press.

Concerning Seasickness.

Two congressmen, discussing the discomforts of travel, happened to branch off on to the subject of seasickness. One of them said:

"Talk about seasickness, the fellow that traveled with me on my last European trip beat anything I ever met in all of my experience before. I tried all sorts of remedies on him, but without avail. He kept repeating, 'Oh, I am so sick, I am so sick.'

"Finally I cried out, 'Can't you keep anything on your stomach?'

"'Only my hands, Tom, only my hands.'"—Harper's Weekly.

An Astute Weather Prophet.

"When in doubt," said a southern senator, "we should imitate the example of the astute weather prophet. This prophet walked into his inner office one day and said to his junior clerk, 'Well, how are the indications for tomorrow?' 'Mighty uncertain, sir,' the junior answered. 'I hardly know what kind of a prognostication to make out.' 'Oh,' said the chief, 'just make it fine weather, with local rain. Then if it is fine we are all right, and if it storms that will be one of the local rains of our prophecy.'"

A little forethought may save you no end of trouble. Anyone who makes it a rule to keep Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy at hand knows this to be a fact. For sale by Quimby Pharmacy, Palmer.

Our Fourth Annual

August Furniture Sale

Sets a New Standard of High Quality and Low Price.

This is the greatest Furniture Sale of the twelvemonth—the most important to the furniture buyers of Western New England and to us. It requires unusual values to sell large quantities of Furniture in midsummer. The fact that since the establishment of the August Sale as a yearly event we have sold more Furniture in August than in any other month is ample proof that August Furniture Sale Prices are the Lowest of the Year.

Each year the scope of this movement has been enlarged, and this year's Sale will overshadow the sale of a year ago as greatly as that one surpassed its predecessors. Larger quantities have been gathered, and wherever improvement in quality was possible it has been brought about. At the same time we have obtained greater price concessions than ever before. While on some staple lines the discounts were not more than 10 per cent, there are many instances in which we obtained reductions of 20, 25, 33 1-3 and even 50 per cent, and these are the savings which we offer you.

The Furniture embraced in this Sale is not "sale furniture" made up cheaply for the sake of seemingly low prices. Every piece has been gathered from the regular lines of the best makers throughout the country. It is all that Good Furniture should be—strong, tastefully designed and well finished. There is a wide variety of pieces for every room in the house, and whether you have a whole house or a single room to furnish, or merely want to add a few pieces, if you live within a day's journey of Springfield the savings you can effect by buying at this sale will more than pay your traveling expenses.

Blois' Beautiful Staircase.

New or old, Blois is an amazing achievement of the human brain and the human head. The great staircase in the courtyard, an outside one, forming an essential part of the elevation, is, of course, the masterpiece of wonder and delight. There is nothing like it in the world, and probably there never will be. The staircase of the Paris Opera—an interior one, by the way—would have everything to fear in the comparison. The other is a mass of the richest and of the purest ornament, with a beautiful proportion between its shadows and its lights. It is characteristic of the spirit in which such work was done that it is not always easy to give due gratitude to architect or to stone carver.—Richard Whiteing in Century.

"Self opinionated? Well, I should say he is. I never met any one so dogmatic."

"Is that so?"

"Yes. Why, he's positively bull-dogmatic."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Nothing on the Market Equal to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

This fact is well known to druggists everywhere, and nine out of ten will give their customers this preparation when the best is asked for. Mr. Obe Witmer, a prominent druggist of Joplin, Mo., in a circular to his customers, says: "There is nothing on the market in the way of patent medicine which equals Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints. We sell and recommend this preparation." For sale by Quimby Pharmacy, Palmer.

Mrs. J. M. Barton, of the boarding house at 10 South Main street, says:—"I have as great faith in Doan's Kidney Pills to-day as I had three years ago when I procured them from LeGro's drug store and took a course of the treatment. Before I used them I had been troubled with a pain through my loins and kidneys. Going up or down stairs hurt me and made my back feel lame and sore. If I even sat in one position for any length of time my back ached badly. I commenced the use of Doan's Kidney Pills and they relieved me entirely of the trouble. I always recommend them to my friends. My husband has used Doan's Ointment and thinks it is a fine remedy. It almost instantly relieves any itchiness of the skin. Doan's Ointment and Doan's Kidney Pills do all that is claimed for them."

Timely and Valuable Suggestions.

Many people, especially women who lead closely confined domestic lives, suffer from what in general terms is called "nervousness." Among all forms of treatment none has even approached in success the intelligent use of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., which promotes an easy and natural action of the digestive organs and imparts tone to the nervous system.

"Isn't it queer," said Singleton, "that a woman takes a man's name when she marries?" "Oh, I don't know," replied Wedderly. "It would he queerer if she didn't take everything else the poor jay has."

A little girl who made frequent use of the word "guess" was one day reproved for it by her teacher, who said:—"Don't say 'guess', Mary; say 'presume.'" A few days later one of Mary's friends coming up to her, remarked:—"I think your cape is pretty, and my mother wants your mother to lend her the pattern, because she is going to make me one like it." "My mother has no pattern," was the prompt reply; "she cut it by presume."—Cleveland Leader.

His shoes were tired.—A Baltimore avenue boy, aged 6, seems to have an imaginative mind as well as a humane disposition. Recently his mother noticed that at bedtime every night he laid his little boots together upon their sides instead of setting them upright. "Please tell me why you always place your boots in that way," she said. "Why," answered the little boy, "it's because they must be tired walking so much all day. I lay them sideways so they can rest."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A man who was accustomed to being fined for fast and careless driving in his automobile saw a man and a dog in front of him, and blew his horn accordingly; the man managed to get one side, but the doggie was converted into sausage. The driver brought his machine to a stop, and hurrying up to the pedestrian shoved a $20 bill into his hand saying, "Here, my good man, take this, and please don't say a word about it." As he jumped into his auto and went tearing down the road, the man looked at the bill, then at the dog, and said: "Now I wonder who in the devil that dog belonged to anyway."

The clergyman's retort.—A German clergyman, who was traveling, stopped at a hotel much frequented by wags and jokers. The host, not being used to having a clergyman at his table, looked at him with surprise; the guests used all their raillery of wit upon him without eliciting a remark. The clergyman ate his dinner quietly, apparently without observing the gibes and sneers of his neighbors. One of them, at last in despair at his forbearance, said to him: "Well, I wonder at your patience. Have you not heard all that has been said to you?" "Oh, yes, but I am used to it. Do you know who I am?" "No, sir." "Well, I will inform you. I am chaplain of a lunatic asylum; such remarks have no effect upon me."—New York Tribune.

BASEBALL.

Palmer 7, Indian Orchard 2.

The Indian Orchard baseball team, in spite of its recent strengthening, proved not strong enough for the Palmers last Saturday, and went home lacking six runs of enough to put them in the winning column; to be exact, the score was 7—2 in Palmer's favor. Clark was in the box for the Orchardites and Palmer took kindly to his curves, getting 10 hits with a total of 14 bases, while the visitors were unable to get more than four singles off Miles, and one of those was left untouched by Griffin on the supposition that it would roll outside the foul line, but instead it struck a small stone and rolled in, allowing Gagne to reach first. The Orchards got one run in the fourth inning on a hit by McLean, Gagne's misjudged bunt, and Carson being hit by the pitcher, coupled with some sharp base running. Griffin was the first man up for Palmer, and he cracked out a good two-bagger; Hurley flied out to short; Foster got a single and Allaire was retired by a hot liner to Clark; two out, and men on third and second, Miles came to the rescue with a single, Shaw and Crowther cracked out neat doubles, P. Lynch in left field fiddled Martens' fly, Lowman got a single and Griffin another double, resulting in seven runs before Hurley made the third out. The Orchards secured another in the sixth when Martens dropped a fly which belonged to Lowman, a sacrifice by Gagne and hits by O'Leary and J. Lynch. It was a good game to watch, and one full of sharp snappy work. Shaw was behind the bat for Palmer and did good work; Griffin played a good game at third and Crowther at short was back in something like his old-time form. The score:

South Manchester 9, Monson 1.

The Monson baseball team were defeated Saturday in their long-looked-for game with the South Manchester team, the score at the end of the ninth inning reading 9 to 1. While the Monson team was outclassed from the start, had the home team played with even their average ability the score might have been kept down much lower. Cartmill was not in his usual form and at the end of the fourth inning was taken out of the box, as he was batted freely, and Furkey was put in. Furkey pitched a fine game and kept the visitors down to three hits. Crowley, for the Monson team, played a nervy game, missing none of the several difficult chances in the center field. The fielding as well as the batting of the visitors was a feature throughout the entire game. There was an unusually large attendance, the stores closing from 3 to 6 p. m. The score:

The Palmer Crescents will go to Warren to-morrow to play the Warren Crescents.

The game to-morrow afternoon will be with the Easthamptons, one of the strongest nines in this section.

To-morrow the Ludlows will play the Indian Orchard team at Indian Orchard, and an interesting game is assured.

The Monson baseball team will go to Stafford Springs, Ct., to-morrow afternoon to play the Stafford ball team and will play the same team in Monson next week Saturday afternoon.

A one-sided game was played on the Ludlow athletic grounds Saturday between Ludlow and the Northampton Y. M. C. A. team. Rain stopped the game at the end of the fifth inning, when the score was 8 to 0 in favor of Ludlow.

Our Boston Letter

It tells about

The Democratic Gubernatorial Situation, and Other Political Matters Throughout the State.

BOSTON, August 2, 1905.

At the Democratic headquarters there is more outspoken talk than there was two weeks ago about the refusal of Gov. Douglas to run again, and it is more evident that the criticism of him in his party has been very severe, mainly on account of his running the governor's office about as it has been run by Republican governors. No further light has been shed upon the prospects for the nominee for the head of the ticket, but it still looks very much as if John R. Thayer would be the man. Within a week or two, it is said, there will be a meeting and steps will be taken for the state convention. Col. Gaston is away in Maine. Chairman Lyman does not attend headquarters very much and there is little doing just now. Some talk heard about other men than Thayer. One of the best party workers in the western part of the state reports that Miles is their strongest candidate, but it is thought that this may be due to the share of the general in procuring the militia camp for Westfield, and that consideration does not extend to this end of the state. The powers that be in the Democratic party, at this end of the state, it might be just as well to say, do not particularly fancy Gen. Miles and they will oppose his nomination, which is the same as saying that he cannot be nominated.

Representative Schofield is reported to be determined to run for the Senate and therefore is not available for the second place on the Democratic ticket. His district is Republican and has been for a long time. It is figured out that Schofield would stand a good chance of election if he should run for the second place on the state ticket. The reasons are that be is equal to Miles as a soldier candidate, because he was father of the soldiers' bounty bill. He is strong with the labor men because he has been a steadfast supporter of labor measures for the four years that he has been a member of the House of Representatives. He believes in government ownership or regulation of the monopolies and trusts. He is quite radical on the problems of the day. In addition, he has a vigorous physique, is a strong and effective debater, giving hard blows as well as taking them, and he is so popular in his own town that he has been elected selectman for years, though the town is always Republican. He would make a likely candidate to run against Eben S. Draper, and the chances would seem to favor his election. He was the strongest Democrat in the Legislature, last year or this, and be would have much sympathy from his Republican colleagues which would materialize in votes at the polls. So there seems to be reasons why he should run for the second place on the ticket, rather than for the state Senate, but he is regarded as fixed in his determination.

Plenty of politicians do not regard Draper as a strong candidate because of the family record in state politics and at Washington. They are extreme supporters of the Dingley tariff and just now the current is running strongly in the other direction. Draper has never held any elective office and he is now likely to be nominated because of his party service. This consists largely in making liberal contri*butions to the campaign expenses. He has never been before the people in such a way* as to challenge their admiration or to suffer any sacrifice for the public good. Considering the readiness of Republicans to cut the head of the ticket last year, it would not be strange if a good many should cut Draper if he were given the nomination.

Councillor Hall has been talking to-day about his candidacy and the most valuable part of his disclosures is the statement that before he became a candidate at all on the reciprocity platform he sought an interview with Senator Crane. He did not care to be a candidate at all if the senator were to oppose him. But the senator informed him that he should not take any part in the contest one way or another, that he should not oppose Hall, nor favor Draper, but should keep his hands off. Councillor Hall believes that Crane has done this, for he expresses himself for District Attorney Dana Malone as candidate for the attorney generalship, but keeps silent on the lieutenant governorship. Still again, Hall says that he is getting supporters among the friends of Crane in the western part of the state, and he does not believe that he could do this if Crane were for Draper. The councillor contradicts emphatically the predictions that he will draw out before the convention and leave the field clear for Draper. He says he has taken for headquarters on the night before the Republican state convention the rooms on the left of the corridor on the ground floor. Every delegate who goes into the hotel further will have to pass his door and he expects to draw a great many of them into his handshakings. He will not withdraw before the ballot and says that Draper will not get the nomination without a hard fight. Hall says that the southeastern part of the state is practically solid for him already and that he is getting votes in the large counties in the east, as well as in the western counties. He is not in consultation with the reciprocity leaders, but is conducting his campaign regardless of them. At the same time, to hear them talk, one would suppose that they expected to indorse him. They want all of the reciprocity vote and hate to see it split between Hall and Goetting. They do not believe that Goetting will prove a strong candidate and regard it as certain that he will see, before the convention, the hopelessness of his candidacy and, for the sake of the cause, will withdraw from the field. This would leave the reciprocity delegates free to unite upon Hall. But Goetting says now that he will stick to the last and that he is not a mere stalking horse for Draper, as some of the reciprocity men have been saying.

Much interest attaches to the dispatch from Washington to-day in the Herald that the Home Market Club has successfully turned the administration from a friend into an opponent of the coming reciprocity convention to be held in Chicago. This display of strength on the part of the Home Market Club is all the more remarkable because the western organizations which are in favor of the reciprocity convention are very strong. They furnish the market for the farmers' products and the antagonism of the administration is all the harder to explain on that account. The circular of Col. Clarke which is said to have been circulated widely all over the country and to have produced the result upon the administration was printed in the Daily Advertiser Monday morning here. It consists, in the main, of showing the prosperity of the country under the Dingley tariff, and saying that there has been no demand from foreign countries for its revision or a threat from them in the way of retaliation which it was necessary for us to heed. Yet, since that circular was printed, has come the statement of the purpose of the German government in regard to the tariff, showing how they are going to discriminate against our leading farm products, even upon the best terms we can get, while, unless we give them reciprocal advantages, they will discriminate against us a great deal more. The publication of these terms makes Col. Clarke's statements antiquated.

To-day two of the subcommittees on the revision of the transportation laws are in session, Senator Reed and Representatives Ames of Orange and Andrews of Holyoke, who are putting in their second week of four days of straight work, are on the first floor, and on the fourth floor are Representatives Cole of Andover, Schofield of Ipswich and Lowell of Newton. Each of these subcommittees expects to be in consultation with Chairman Jackson of the state railroad commission. The last named subcommittee has been closeted to-day with Edwin L. Sprague, one of the most active workers for the laws of 1894 against stock-watering. It is to be noticed that there is somewhat of a reaction against those laws because they seem to pledge the state to a support of terms sufficient to pay fair dividends upon stock at the advanced price at which it is sold, rather than at par, whereas, if the price were not fixed above par, the rate of dividends might sometime come down. Indications point to a lively contest next session, if this broad question of rates and the consolidation of steam and electric roads and the exercise of eminent domain by electric roads comes up in its full magnitude.

Within a week or two it is expected that a meeting will be held by the Democrats to arrange the preliminaries of their state convention. Col. Gaston and other leaders are out of town this week and nothing will be done before they return. Indications still point to John R. Thayer as by all odds the strongest candidate the party has. Gen. Miles is said to be the strongest in the western counties, but in Boston and with the state managers he is not strong. Someone must be found who will finance the campaign and therefore the candidate must be acceptable to the small knot of men who furnish subscriptions and thereby control the state committee and dictate the nominations.

Miss Catharine Sweeny of Boston is spending a few days with Mrs. Randolph Shaw.

Mrs. Josephine Webber of Worcester will spend Old Home Week with her sister, Sara A. Shaw.

Mrs. Ernest Worth and daughter of Holyoke are spending Old Home Week with her mother, Mrs. Kate Williams.

Arthur Coy of New Hampshire has moved his family here and will live on Main street. He has a position in the Golden Rod mill.

WEST WARREN.

Small—Kean.

A wedding of interest to West Warren people took place in Woodbridge, Ct., Monday, when William Kean of this place and Miss Ella Josephine Small were united in marriage by Rev. William MacNicholl of Watertown, Ct., assisted by Rev. Orrin W. Snodgrass of Woodbridge. Miss Edith Brown of Westville was bridesmaid and Joseph Kean Jr. of South Manchester, Ct., a brother of the groom, was best man. The bride was gowned in white Persian lawn, trimmed with lace, and wore a veil. The bridesmaid wore a dress of pink silk mull and carried sweet peas. Miss Winifred Small and George Small were ribbon bearers, Alexander G. Kean of South Manchester, Ct., and Percy MacNicholl of New Haven were ushers. After the ceremony a reception was held at which only the relatives were present, and lunch was served. The groom's gift to the bride was a piano and to the best man a pearl stick pin, while the bride gave to the bridesmaid a double set of topaz beauty pins. Mr. and Mrs. Kean have gone to Ocean Grove, N. J., on their wedding trip and on their return will reside on West Main street in West Warren, where they will be at home to their friends after the the 31st.

Miss May Hubbard of Boston is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George E Rycroft.

Miss Grace Hedge of Natick is spending the summer with her uncle's family, Mr. and Mrs. Jeramiah Sheehan.

Walter J. Cronin of Clinton, Ind, and Miss Mamie G. Cronin of Terre Haute, Ind., are spending several weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Foley.

A party including Rev. and Mrs. Eaton B. Marshall, Miss Ruth Marshall, Miss Marion Marshall, Miss Alice L. Walker, Miss Mabel E Crouch, Miss Rose Johnson, Miss Bertha Bragg, Mrs. Charles B. Bragg, Edward C. Johnson and Miss Marion Davis of Thorndike are spending two weeks camping in East Range, N. H.

A Warning to Mothers.

Too much care cannot be used with small children during the hot weather of the summer months to guard against bowel troubles. As a rule it is only necessary to give the child a dose of castor oil to correct any disorder of the bowels. Do not use any substitute, but give the old-fashioned castor oil, and see that it is fresh, as rancid oil nauseates and has a tendency to gripe. If this does not check the bowels give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and then a dose of castor oil, and the disease may be checked in its incipiency and all danger avoided. The castor oil and this remedy should be procured at once and kept ready for instant use as soon as the first indication of any bowel trouble appears. This is the most successful treatment known and may be relied upon with implicit confidence even in case of cholera infantum. For sale by Quimby Pharmacy, Palmer.

Recollections of Genial Bill Nye

The Great Humorist's Dog Entomologist --- Demand of the Deserted Fleas --- Prince of Fun Makers Killed by a Lie

By MARSHALL P. WILDER

From "The Sunny Side of the Street," by Marshall P. Wilder. Copyright, 1905, by Funk & Wagnalls Company.

Marshall P. Wilder.

IN one respect entertainers closely resemble preachers—they greatly enjoy listening to the greater members of their own profession. Consequently I never lost a chance to listen to Bill Nye, and I worship the memory of him as he was—a gentle yet sturdy and persistent humorist of so good a sort that he never could help being humorous, no matter how uncongenial the surroundings. Although he saw hundreds and thousands of chances of hitting other men so hard that the hurt would last forever, he dropped every one of them and trampled them so hard that they never dared show their faces again. He was an apostle of the Golden Rule, which he exemplified in himself, so there never was a sting in his jokes; gentle raillery was the sweetest thing he ever attempted, and even this he did with so genial a smile and so merry an eye that a word of his friendly chaffing was worth more than a cartload of formal praise.

In Love With Living.

I speak what I do know, for he and I were close friends for many years before his untimely death, and he was so solicitous for my welfare and comfort that, after he had played father and mother to me successfully, he couldn't help going on till he had become my grandfather and grandmother as well as a number of sisters and cousins and aunts.

I don't believe he ever had an enemy but himself, and he injured himself only by his peculiarities of self description. Any one reading his humorous articles would imagine him an undersized, scrawny, backwoods invalid, with an irritable disposition and an unquenchable thirst for something else than water. In reality he was a tall, broad shouldered, deep chested, healthy, genial chap, so in love with the mere fact of living that he took scrupulous care of himself in every way. He was as abstemious as any clergyman who is not a total abstainer, and he never lost his temper except when some deliberate scoundrelism was inflicted upon him. He would go out of his way—a whole day's journey out of his way, with all the railway fares and other discomforts in such cases made and provided—to help a friend out of a sick bed or other trouble, and he endured all the torments of a busy entertainer's season on the road as cheerfully as if he were perpetual holder of the record for patience.

His Dog Entomologist.

People often wondered how he could go on year after year digging the same kind of fun out of the same vein, but the secret was that he lived right in the center of that vein and was merely digging his way out of it. He had a full assortment of polite commonplaces and carried them as gracefully as he did his full dress clothes, but as soon as he got well acquainted with a man—and it didn't take him long to get inside of any decent fellow's waistcoat—he would talk in his characteristic droll manner all day and seven days a week, and as much longer as they two traveled together.

As seriously as if he were talking of audiences or hotel tables or railway nuisances he told me a story of a dog he had owned. It was a dachshund, and Nye described him as two and a half dogs long by one dog high. He had named the animal Entomologist because it was a collector of insects. In fact, the dog lived up to his name so strenuously that something had to be done. A friend suggested soaking the dog in kerosene, saying:

"If it doesn't rid the dog of fleas it will rid you of the dog."

So kerosene was tried, and the dog passed away. After all was over Bill felt so bad that he went out for a walk, which did him no good. Returning home with dejected spirits and a sorrowing soul, he was smitten afresh with remorse when he realized that there would be no little dog awaiting him. But, yes; surely there was something on the steps. Looking closer, he saw 700 fleas sitting there, and they all looked up into his face as if to say:

"When are you going to get us another dog?"

Nye's Ready Wit.

*Very few of the world's great dis*patches contained so much wisdom in so few words as Nye's historic wire from Washington:

"My friends and money gave out at 8 a. m."

He had an enviable faculty for suppressing annoyances in the course of an entertainment, something more dreaded by any entertainer than a thin house. In the course of one of his lectures in Minneapolis a late comer had some difficulty about his seat and lingered inside the inner door to voice some loud protestations. Of course every head in the audience turned toward the door—anything for a change, no matter how good a thing has been provided.

Nye endured the disturbance for some time; then he said politely, but icily:

"This is a large auditorium and a difficult one in which to hear, but fortunately we are provided with a speaker at each end of the house." It is needless to say which speaker received attention after that.

Mr. Nye was engaged to speak at Columbus, O., in a newly finished church with which the minister and his flock were as well pleased as a small boy with his first pair of trousers. So in a short preliminary and self congratulatory address the minister referred to the church edifice, called attention to its many details of architectural beauty and convenience and laid special stress on its new and improved system of exits.

"Ladies and gentlemen," drawled Nye a moment later, "I have appeared in a great many cities, but this is the first time I have been preceded by any one instructing the audience how to get out."

Pen Name His Own.

Every man has his special trouble, but Nye had two. One was the reluctance of the public to believe that his pen name was his real name, and the other was the persistency of some people in mistaking him for another fine fellow in a rather different public position, the Rev. Morgan Dix, D. D., LL. D., rector of Trinity parish, New York. Mr. Dix's stories are as good as his sermons, which is saying a great deal, and Nye's face when in repose suggested a man who could preach a strong sermon of his own. Nevertheless it is awkward to be mistaken for any one but yourself. As to his name, every one who heard of Bill Nye associated him mentally with the oft quoted person of the same name who first appeared in Bret Harte's poem "The Heathen Chinee," and assumed that the humorist's professional name was assumed. The poor chap explained at length through a popular magazine that he came honestly by his name, having been christened Edgar Wilson Nye and nicknamed Bill from his cradle, but to his latest days he was besieged by autograph hunters who asked for his signature—"your real name, too, please."

The Paterson Tragedy.

This genial man of cleanly life and good habits was brutally slaughtered by the public to whom for years he had given laughter and sunshine. People throughout the country turned against him when they heard the first breath of calumny. Without waiting to hear whether the story told of him was true or false, "the dear public" treated him so meanly that it crushed his spirit, sturdy, honest man though he was, broke his heart and caused his death within a year.

It came about at Paterson, N. J., where he had been engaged to deliver a lecture. He had been suffering greatly from insomnia, for which by expert medical direction he had taken a certain anodyne (nonalcoholic). Before his evening nap preceding the lecture he may have taken an overdose or it may have worked slower than usual. Whatever the medical cause—for he had taken nothing else—he was drowsy and slow of speech on the platform. To make matters worse from the start, he tumbled over a loose edge of carpet as he came before the audience. Although very nearsighted, he had good professional precedents for disliking to wear glasses on the platform; otherwise his eyes might have saved his feet, but the succession of accident and manner impressed the audience wrongly. When the lecture was over, some rough characters who had been in the audience followed Nye's carriage to the railway, throwing eggs at it and whooping like demons.

Killed by a Falsehood.

Next morning almost all the New York papers published the report that Mr. Nye had appeared before an audience the night before in an outrageously intoxicated condition and had been egged off the platform! Newspapers are entirely at the mercy of the men whom they employ to collect news for them. Some which used the Paterson story were honest enough to publish corrections afterward, but no correction is ever strong and swift enough to catch up with a lie. What I have said regarding the causeless cause of the untimely death of a humorist who can never be replaced is of my own knowledge. I was very close to Mr. Nye in the last year of his life and know what he thought and said.

I also had a strange reminder of the night on which the story started. Some of the audience had complained to the lecture committee that they had not received their money's worth, so it was decided to give another lecture without charge to make amends for the disappointment. I chanced to be the man chosen to give the entertainment which was to apply salve to the wounded pockets of that audience, though I did not know it at the time. I did notice, however, that the committee seemed to be "in a state of mind" and urged me to do my best. It also seemed to me that, metaphorically speaking, the entire audience had a chip on its shoulder. Still, I succeeded in pleasing it.

After I had finished I learned that I had been selected to pacify the very people before whom the great humorist had had such a tragic experience. By a sad coincidence it was on that very day that dear Bill Nye was buried!

Quenched Enthusiasm.

"He writes very uninteresting love letters," said the sentimental girl.

"You mustn't blame him for that," answered Miss Cayenne. "He once served on the jury in a breach of promise case."—Washington Star.

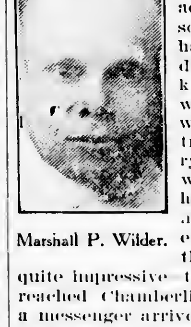
Anecdotes of Benjamin Harrison

"Won't You Please Kick Me?"---Origin of the Word "Jay" --- An Indiana Hog Story Told by the President

By MARSHALL P. WILDER

From "The Sunny Side of the Street," by Marshall P. Wilder. Copyright, 1905, by Funk & Wagnalls Company.



Marshall P. Wilder.

WHILE Benjamin Harrison was president I became pleasantly acquainted with his son Russell, who, having read of President Cleveland's very kind treatment of me when I went to him with a letter of introduction from Henry Ward Beecher, wanted me to meet his father and gave me a letter to that effect. My visit to the White House was quite impressive to me. Soon after I reached Chamberlin's at Washington a messenger arrived and informed me that the president had received my letter of introduction and desired me to call the next morning at 10 o'clock, which I did.

After passing the sentinels at the door I was taken into the room of Mr. Private Secretary Lije Halford, who greeted me cordially and said, "Mr. Wilder, the president will see you." I was ushered into Mr. Harrison's presence, and the following conversation ensued:

"Mr. President, this is Mr. Wilder."

"How do you do, Mr. Wilder?"

"How do you do, Mr. President?"

A profound silence followed—it seemed to me to be several minutes long—then I said:

"Good day, Mr. President."

"Good day, Mr. Wilder."

"I Cannot Place You."

After leaving the room I turned to Mr. Halford, raised my coat tails and asked:

"Won't you please kick me?"

Of course I had to refer to the incident in my monologue that season, for it isn't every day that a professional entertainer is invited to call at the White House. But I did not care to tell exactly what occurred, so I adapted an old minstrel joke and said:

"I called on the president the other day. I walked in in a familiar way and said, 'How do you do, Mr. President?' He said, 'Sir, I cannot place you.' 'Well,' I replied, 'that's what I'm here for.'"

I afterward heard that President Harrison was very cold and lacked cordiality. Still later I discovered with my own eyes and ears that he had a kind heart and genial nature. One summer while I was at Saratoga I was asked by W. J. Arkell to Mount McGregor to meet President Harrison at dinner and to become a member of a fishing party. Later in the day at his own cottage he transfixed me with a merry twinkle of his eye and said:

"Marshall, what's this story you've been telling about your visit to the White House?"

Story About a Jay.

I saw I was in for it, so I repeated the minstrel joke already recorded. He laughed so heartily that there wasn't enough unbroken ice between us to hold up a dancing mosquito.

I had long been puzzled as to the origin of the word "jay" as applied to "easy marks" among countrymen, and I told the president so. He modestly admitted that I had come to the right shop for information; then he told me this story:

"Winter was coming on, and a blue jay made up his mind that he would prepare for it. He found a vacant hut with a knothole in the roof, and he said to himself, 'Here's a good place to store my winter supplies,' so he began to collect provender. His acquaintances who passed by saw what he was doing. Then they laughed and took a rest, for they knew how to get in by the side door. Whenever he dropped a nut or a bit of meat through the knothole they would hop in below and gobble it. So, Marshall, next time you hear any one called a 'jay' I'm sure you'll know what it means."

The Hog Dealer Got Even.

Here is one that President Harrison told me to illustrate the skill of some men in talking their way out of a tight place:

There was a man in Indiana who had a way of taking his own advice, though he generally had to do things afterward to get even with himself. He was a hog dealer, and one season he drove a lot of hogs to Indianapolis, about 100 miles distant, though he could get nearly as good a price at a town much nearer home. Arrived at Indianapolis, he learned that prices had gone down, so he held on for a rise, but when offered a good price he stood out for more and insisted that if he did not get it he would drive the hogs back home, which he finally did and sold them for less than was offered him in the city. When one of his friends asked him why he had acted so unwisely he replied:

"I wanted to get even with them city hog buyers."

"But did you?"

"Well, they didn't get my hogs."

"But what did you get out of the transaction?"

"Get? Why, bless your thick skull, I got the society of the hogs all the way back home."

Thousands of Women

ARE MADE WELL AND STRONG

Success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Rests Upon the Fact that It Really Does Make Sick Women Well

Thousands upon thousands of American women have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Their letters are on file in Mrs. Pinkham's office, and prove this statement to be a fact and not a mere boast.

Overshadowing indeed is the success of this great medicine, and compared with it all other medicines and treatment for women are experiments.

Why has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound accomplished its wide-spread results for good?

Why has it lived and thrived and done its glorious work for a quarter of a century?

Simply and surely because of its sterling worth. The reason no other medicine has even approached its success is plainly and positively because there is no other medicine in the world so good for women's ills.

The wonderful power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the diseases of womankind is not because it is a stimulant—not because it is a palliative, but simply because it is the most wonderful tonic and reconstructor ever discovered to act directly upon the uterine system, positively CURING disease and displacements and restoring health and vigor.

Marvelous cures are reported from all parts of the country by women who have been cured, trained nurses who have witnessed cures, and physicians who have recognized the virtue in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and are fair enough to give credit where it is due. If physicians dared to be frank and open, hundreds of them would acknowledge that they constantly prescribe Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in severe cases of female ills, as they know by experience that it will effect a cure.

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular menstruation, backache, bloating (or flatulence), leucorrhœa, falling, inflammation or ulceration of the uterus, ovarian troubles, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, nervous prostration, or the blues, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences and be restored to health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Anyway, write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for advice. It's free and always helpful.

DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY

Breaks no Hearts, Excuses no Crimes.

Dr. David Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is not a disguised enemy of the human race; where it cannot help, it does not harm. It is composed of vegetable ingredients and does not heat or inflame the blood but cools and purifies it. In all cases of Kidney troubles, Liver complaints, Constipation of the Bowels, and the delicate derangements which afflict women, the action of Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is beyond praise. Thousands of grateful people voluntarily testify to this, in letters to Dr. Kennedy; and with a warmth and fullness of words which mere business certificates never possess. It makes no drunkards—excuses no crimes—breaks no hearts. In its coming there is hope, and in its wings there is healing. We challenge a trial and are confident of the result. Your druggist has it. ONE DOLLAR a Bottle. Bear in mind the name and address: Dr. David KENNEDY, Rondout, New York.

SPECIAL TOWN MEETING.

To Consider Question of a New Almshouse.

PURCHASE OF NEW FARM SUGGESTED

Is the "Sikes" Farm Near Four Corners. A Fine Location and Good Land.

A special town meeting is called for Monday, the 28th, at 2 30 in the afternoon, to consider the matter of caring for the poor of the town who were quartered in the town farm house, burned the 25th of July. The overseers have been hard at work on the matter since the fire, and will be ready to make an exhaustive report at the meeting.

The fire had not died out of the old building before the overseers began to hear suggestions that the town would be foolish to rebuild on the old site, on account of the sterility of the land connected with the farm, and this view has been many times repeated during the time since. This being much in accord with the opinion held by the overseers, they began to look for possible new locations. The fire had not died out either before offers of farms began to be made. It has been the opinion of the overseers that if a new location was to be chosen, only the best which it was possible to obtain should be considered, and that quality of land was the first desideratum. Inquiry has been made and farms in all sections of the town have been considered, and the price on several obtained. The result is that an option has been secured on the "Sikes" farm near the Four Corners, now occupied by William Roman, this being considered the best farm, for all purposes, which can be had. It is centrally located, contains about 270 acres of land advantageously divided into pasture, woodland and tillage, with an abundance of running water to all buildings, and sufficient barns for town farm uses. The house is large enough to accommodate all the former inmates during the winter, but is of no value for incorporation into a new building.

Mr. Roman's price is $7000, and this includes 23 head of cattle, three horses, all the crops now in the barns and those yet unharvested, wagons, tools, machinery, in fact everything on the place except his household furniture. Possession will be given in ten days from the day of town meeting, should the town accept his offer. It is estimated that a new house will cost about $10,000, and this expense must be borne no matter where it is located. Estimates are being prepared on a new building, and will be given at the town meeting. A structure which will accommodate not less than 35 inmates is deemed necessary, to provide for future possibilities. The farm in question has been carefully looked over by the overseers, and the opinion of others, including those of experience in the conduct of farms, has been invited, and there is much favorable comment on the proposition. Should this place be bought, the former location could be sold, as the town would not need both. The Sikes place is composed of excellent farming land, on which good crops can be raised; old residents have said that it was considered one of the two best farms in town.

Among the facts which the voters will be asked to consider in connection with the proposal to purchase a new farm are the following: If it is decided to rebuild on the old location a new barn or barns must be erected, and new farm machinery purchased, making a probable cost of $14,000 or $15,000 A water supply must also be provided, and there is a question if this can be done; the former supply was pumped by rams from a scanty and unreliable source. As all the hay—about 40 tons—was burned, there is no food for the stock during the winter except the fodder corn which was intended for ensilage, and it will have to be bought. The house in which the inmates are now quartered, while answering while it is warm, is not suitable for winter occupancy by so many, and at least half of them will have to be removed and boarded out; in fact the overseers consider it dangerous to quarter any there during the cold weather, as the place is not adapted for it. With the purchase of the Sikes place would be secured room enough for the inmates during the winter, barns for the stock and crops on which to feed them, in addition to the machinery, tools, etc., mentioned above and which must be procured at some time. With the opportunity which the place affords for keeping cows and for the production of milk, and the better quality of the soil, it seems reasonable that the net weekly cost of maintaining the poor can be made materially less there than it can ever hope to be at the old place.

Guessed Right the Very First Time.

From time to time stories are told of the sharpness of Uncle Sam's mail clerks in deciphering blind addresses, and the Springfield Republican of Monday contained the following:

Henry S. Goodale, who makes his summer home with his son in a stone cottage on the Belchertown road, recently received an interesting letter through the Amherst post office. The letter was mailed at Pine Cliff post office, near Lake Sunapee, N. H., and came directly through to Mr. Goodale without delay, in spite of the fact that the only address upon the envelope was the following:

Come knightly men of mail
And sharpen up your wits,
Find the man this rhyme befits
And ye shall have good ale
Of rare and mellow brew
Of Indian summer hue.
From lodestone cottage he looks down,
On towers and trees of a college town,
Where students come to slake their thirst,
At the fount of knowledge in old ——
Take this to the old Bay state,
And please post haster,
Forgive the poetaster.

Ludlow Man Nearly Killed.

Henry Stebbins narrowly escaped being killed while driving to his home in Ludlow Monday afternoon. Mr. Stebbins, who was in a rack wagon, was driving his horse on to the crossing near the Miller block in Ludlow as the passenger train on the Athol branch of the Boston and Albany crossing came along. The engine struck the animal and dragged it some 40 yards. Mr. Stebbins, by good luck, managed to seize the cowcatcher and was carried along to Indian Leap bridge. He was fortunate in receiving only a bad wound in the back of the head, which was dressed by Dr. Landers. The horse was injured so badly that Officer McDonald, who was in the vicinity, immediately shot it. Mr. Stebbins thinks that the noise of the wagon prevented him from hearing the approaching train. The train leaves the station at 4 57, but Mr. Stebbins did not realize that it was due, thinking it came along about ten minutes later.

OPERA HOUSE CHANGES.

House Being Altered to Meet Requirements.

SLOPING FLOOR FOR THE AUDITORIUM

Asbestos Stage Curtain. Metal Ceiling Over Stage, Automatic Ventilators, etc.

Important changes and improvements are being made in the opera house by the Odd Fellows Building Association, so that the building may be used for theatrical performances the coming season. An asbestos curtain, which is required by law, will be hung, and the ceiling over the stage will be covered with sheet iron. Ventilators will be installed at either side of the stage, equipped with self-opening doors which will open automatically in case of fire by the melting out of a slight metal fastening; these are designed to draw the smoke and flame of a fire from the stage to the outside of the building instead of permitting it to be drawn out toward the audience. An iron fire escape is also to be installed from the balcony to the ground, on the outside of the building, at the side opposite the present inside stairs to the balcony; it will lead to Pleasant street An improvement calculated to please the theatre-goers will be a raised floor, the seats at the rear being elevated about two and a half feet from the present level, and sloping to the present level at the stage. This floor is to made in sections so that it can be readily removed for dances. After the changes are completed the walls of the entire building are to be tinted, the lodge rooms above as well as those of the opera house. The work is to be completed by September 1st, in time for the opening of the theatrical season.

Tainted Money Stories.

Jack went a-fishing. It was Monday morning when he appeared at the parsonage and offered his catch to the parson. "Elder," said he, "I don't know as your conscience will allow you to accept this string of pickerel, for, to tell the truth, they were caught yesterday." The elder shot out his right hand, saying, "Jack, I don't consider those pickerel to blame."

Our query is: Did the elder encourage Sunday fishing by thus accepting the catch? And we add another question, does the Church by accepting tainted money from men encourage them to go out and get more of it?

A criminal visited the pawnbroker's shop. The pawnbroker gave him encouragement and took part of his stolen goods, paying him a small price therefor. But the law stepped in and made the pawnbroker particeps criminis — the partaker as bad as the thief.

Here our query is this: Is the responsibility of the Church regarding the receipt of tainted money at all retro-active? Is the Church particeps criminis?

Money is by common consent a medium of exchange. Men wish to exchange their possessions. A man with a barrel of flour wished to exchange the same for a hat. He found another man with five dollars who wanted the flour, and let him have the barrel, taking the piece of money which now represented the flour. Thence he proceeded to a city hat store and completed a tri-cornered exchange, the money, which stood for the former possession, now being made to stand for the new possession.

A woman, with nothing to sell but herself, wished for a new bonnet. She sold her honor for the same price as the barrel of flour brought, and took the money to a milliner's to complete the exchange of surrendered honor for a new bonnet, the money first standing for her sinful sale of self and then standing for the thing it was exchanged for—a bonnet.

The query in these cases being as follows: In completing these two exchanges, flour for hat, prostitution for bonnet, which dealer in headgear received tainted money? Is it not apparent that money, a medium of exchange, always comes to us representing something good or something bad?

A church in a distant city needed $2500 annually to meet its expenses. Several men agreed to take turns in furnishing this sum. The first year the man who had agreed to be the donor of the $2500 with his wife, called upon the church treasurer. Each brought $2500, the husband saying, "Mine was earned dishonestly," the wife declaring, "Mine was earned honestly," and both of them offering the treasurer his choice.

This time the query is: Which $2500 ought the Church to have taken through its treasurer? The honestly gathered money, of course. The Church must stand ever for the highest and best ideal.

Let us prophesy that not many years hence both the Church and the business world will begin to refuse to receive tainted money. We admit that the average conscience may not be educated as yet to see the value of this step in morals. But a more powerful check to evil cannot be brought about than this of hindering the continuous exchange of evil for good. The Kingdom of God will never consent that money is always good, that is, always comes to us representing good things in attempted exchanges. Money will not always link the bad and the good together as it does to-day. There is not a piece of money in existence which does not at this moment represent right or wrong.

To receive money is always to help in the completion of three or more cornered exchanges of possessions. To know the character of the money is to know the nature of an exchange which one is aiding. The coming man who wishes to make earth like heaven will take more and more cognizance of the nature of money. The heart of Deity is most perfectly sensitive to all distinctions between right and wrong. So sensitized ought the souls of us all to become, until we say, "Thy Kingdom come, Thy whole Kingdom come, and nothing but Thy Kingdom come, in the world's business and government."

C. JULIAN TUTHILL.

Death of Ludlow Woman.

Mrs. Martha L. Sikes, 81, died at her home in Ludlow Monday afternoon after a two-weeks' illness. Mrs. Sikes was born on the Miller homestead, where she had always lived with the exception of about six years. She was married in 1855 to Elihu J. Sikes of Ludlow, who died about five years ago. He was station agent at Collins station, having held that office from 1873 until he died. Mrs. Sikes was a member of the First Congregational church of Ludlow Center. She is survived by a son, Frank E. Sikes, and a sister, Mrs. Harriet Jones, both of Ludlow. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon and burial was in Ludlow Center.

NEW RULES FOR TRAMPS.

State Board of Health Regulations for Care.

EVERY ONE MUST BE GIVEN A BATH.

Given a Clean Nightshirt and a Separate Bed, and Not Allowed To Smoke.

New rules for the treatment of tramps who may be harbored by cities and towns of the commonwealth. They are as follows:

1. The means of lighting and ventilating sleeping rooms shall be beyond the control of lodgers and shall meet the approval of the local board of health. Each room shall have direct connection with the outer air through one or more windows above the surface of the ground.
2. Not less than 300 cubic feet of space shall be allowed for each person.
3. The floors and stairways shall be smooth and tight, and if of wood shall be either painted or shellacked.
4. If movable bedsteads are used, they shall be single and of iron, with woven wire spring, covered with one or more blankets in place of a mattress.
5. No person shall be allowed to sleep in his day clothing, nor to smoke in the rooms.
6. No person shall be allowed to go to bed without first having had a full bath.
7. Each person shall be provided with a clean nightshirt.

The matter is in the hands of the state board of health, and the new regulations are supposed to make the life of the average tramp anything but a "grand sweet song" when he applies for lodgings. He is expected to rebel at the requirements and to keep away from places where these things will be insisted upon. The intention is thus to drive him to other fields, anywhere so long as he gives Massachusetts towns a wide berth.

Palmer will be interested in the new regulations for, if the town follows up its past policy of caring for tramps, it will be obliged to make some radical change in the apartments provided for them. The bed is now a two-inch plank running around the room, beneath which is a steam pipe for warmth; no regulation as to change of clothing has ever been thought necessary—indeed it has been deemed wiser many times to allow the inmate to keep his stock to himself by retaining his clothes; smoking has been allowed, and as for 300 cubic feet of space for each person, nothing near it has been considered necessary. It is within the province of the town to refuse to care for tramps, and this may be the best and cheapest way to get rid of the new regulations.

STIFF SENTENCE AT WARE.

"Long Fred" Gets Two Years for Drunkenness and Assault.

Fred Seymour, the tall woodchopper of Enfield and Ware, known as "Long Fred." was sentenced Tuesday in the district court in Ware to serve 12 months in the house of correction for drunkenness, and at the expiration of this time to serve another 12 months for assault and battery, as the outcome of a drunken row which took place Monday night on the old Duke place near the farm of Edgar D. Winslow in district No. 7 in Ware.

Seymour, with a gang of choppers, had completed the cutting off of a woodlot in that locality and the men were paid off Monday night, whereupon most of them proceeded to get drunk. In the evening one of the men, Adolphus Pinard, had an altercation over food with Seymour, which resulted in a fight. Pinard was badly used up in the encounter, for his jaw and nose was broken and his head battered generally. Seymour was arrested, and Pinard was removed to the station house by Dr. W. W. Miner. He was taken in charge by the overseers of the poor who removed him to Tewksbury.

The case was tried in the district court Tuesday morning and Seymour pleaded not guilty to both charges. Seymour has acquired within the past 14 months the reputation of being when drunk the most dangerous man in the community. He stands six feet four inches, and is a giant in strength. Arthur Briere of Gilbertville, who was also arrested as concerned in the affair, pleaded guilty to drunkenness and paid a fine of $10

Bennett Family Reunion.

The 12th annual reunion of the Bennett family was held in Ludlow Center yesterday, there being nearly 100 in attendance. The tables were set in the grove near Grange hall. At the business meeting the following officers were chosen: President, Charles B. Bennett; directors, C. F. Fuller, Richard Underwood, Miss Ruby Knight; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Iva Green White; recording secretary, L. J. Bennett. Among the guests from out of town were the following: Mrs Frank Clark of South Hadley, Mrs. Eva Graves, Misses Maud and Bessie Graves and Fred and Robert Graves of Southampton, Mr. and Mrs Bert Howard of Amherst, Mrs. Lucina Dunbar, Miss Amanda Buell, Mr. and Mrs L. T. Bennett, Mrs. Nancy Hodge, Mrs. Iva Green White, Mrs. Mary A. Bugbee, Miss Lena Bugbee, Miss Mildred Draper of Springfield, Mr. and Mrs. G. H. B. Green Sr., Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Moore, G H. B. Green Jr., Clayton Green, Pearl Shumway, C. S. Knight, Pearl Knight, Miss Ruby Knight, Mrs. M. Doolittle and daughter, Mrs. D M. Olds of Belchertown, Mrs. Sophia Potvin, Roland Sellew of New Haven, Ct., Misses Helen and Marion Knight of Barre, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Fuller, Miss Nellie Fuller, Miss Mildred Fuller, Mrs. Lora Hawley of North Wilbraham, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Underwood, Miss Harriet Underwood of Northampton, Mrs. E F. Lyman and daughter of Montague, Mrs. M. E. Olds and daughter of Granby, Miss Luna Bell, Miss Grace Hutchins of Westfield, Mrs. Austin Adams of Worcester. A letter was read from Mrs. Mary Bennett Cooper of Minneapolis, Minn.

Fisk Hall, Wilbraham, Undergoing Repairs.

Fisk Hall, the oldest building of Wesleyan Academy in Wilbraham, will soon undergo repairs necessitating a cost of about $500 It has been thought for some time that the old building's days of usefulness would soon be over, but the building was recently inspected by W. S. Buxton of Springfield, inspector of buildings, who vouched for its stability if the repairs were made as recommended, strengthening the foundation. The foundation was laid in the manner known among masons as "dry wall," no mortar having been used between the bricks. In time the foundation was effected by the elements and began to settle. The loose stone was noticed for several years, and caused the academy authorities to contemplate repairs before it was too late. The hall has been used for recitation purposes for many years.

Superintendent of Streets Brainerd expects to start his stone crusher, which he has located in Bondsville, next Monday. In addition to using it there he will crush stone for repairs to the streets in other sections of the town.

1200 CHILDREN PICNIC.

Daniels Free Excursion From Springfield Yesterday.

SEVEN CARLOADS AT FOREST LAKE.

Dinner, Sail on Lake, Theatre and Everything Without Cost to the Youngsters.

The fifth annual free excursion and outing given by H. & D. Daniel to the children of Springfield was held at Forest Lake yesterday, and it certainly was a gala day for the children. Over 1200 of the little people were in attendance and to say that they had a glorious time would be putting it altogether too mild. Not an accident marred the day's pleasure, and even the weather-man did his part in making the day a perfect one.

It was by far the largest picnic that H. & D. Daniel have ever given, and seven double-truck cars were employed in transporting the party to the lake. They were scheduled to leave Court Square in Springfield at 7 42, and long before that hour the children began to arrive. As soon as the start was made bedlam broke loose and yells of delight filled the air. Everyone and everything met along the road were given a noisy salute, and it is stated that even one Chinaman of grave demeanor became so infected with their spirits that he waved both arms until they were out of sight. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Daniel were assisted in caring for the children by about 50 young ladies from the Y. W. C. A. and by a dozen or more young men. After leaving Indian Orchard "autopops" were distributed among the children, but the children could make as much noise apparently with the big lumps of candy in their mouths as they could without.

After arriving at the lake the crowd started in all directions The steamer was chartered for the day by Mr. Daniel and each child was given two tickets for boat rides. It is needless to say that the steamer was kept busy, being loaded to its utmost capacity every trip. One of the features of the morning was the ball game between the Alerts and Owls, which resulted in a victory for the latter team by a score of 8 to 4.

Dinner was served after the ball game and the amount of food consumed by the "youngsters" is an item worthy of mention. The supply, consisting of 1400 buttered rolls, 500 quarts of milk, 100 pounds of cakes and 110 bunches of bananas, was all consumed. Dinner was served the attendants after the children had finished. The lake orchestra played during the afternoon and the children enjoyed themselves dancing and singing in the pavilion until 3 o'clock, when they adjourned to the theater to witness the vaudeville performance.

The tired but happy party started on their homeward journey about 4 30, and the arrival in Springfield shortly after 6 closed a memorable day in the lives of these little folks.

Much credit is due Manager Fish of the lake for the manner in which he cared for the party, and his part in making the day a success was no small one.

Our Boston Letter

It tells about

BOSTON, August 16, 1905.

State Politics, the Peace Conference, and Tainted Money.

John R. Thayer called upon Gov. Douglas to-day just after the council meeting, at which no business of public importance was transacted. Councillor Lytle of Worcester fell afoul of Thayer at the entrance of the executive department. As it happened a knot of reporters was present and therefore more of the interview will get into history than would otherwise have been put upon the immortal page. Thayer was breezy, as he always is, while Lytle was positive that he was right. Lytle's contention was that the Republicans had never changed the tariff but to increase the prosperity of the country. Thayer's rejoinder was that they had never reduced the tariff and that they never would if left to themselves. Lytle conceded that it was impossible for a tariff to remain stationary forever, but that it must be changed with the progress of events. "How far off into eternity do you suppose it will be," demanded Thayer, "before the Republicans will ever reduce the tariff." Lytle could fix no time, but was sure that the Republicans could be trusted to make the reduction whenever it was needed.

Again, Thayer was sure that there would certainly be an uprising of the voters of the state against the present tariff. He referred to the signing of the pledge by 60,000 Republicans that they would work and vote for the election of men who would favor a reduction of the tariff. "Now," he said, "when I put my name to a statement agreeing to do a thing, I expect to stand by it, except paying a note." He got in his joke, but Lytle could not agree that the Republicans would produce any revolution in state politics on account of the tariff situation. So they had it back and forth freely, both sometimes talking at the same time, and then they separated without having come to an agreement upon any point.

After Lytle went out Thayer talked further, saying that he had no doubt that Draper would be the Republican nominee for the second place and that he had no doubt that if the Democrats nominated a sober, sound business man he could be elected over Draper. But he admitted that he had not any special man in mind, but he was sure that the Democratic party could supply one who would be able to run successfully against Draper. He was also confident that the Democrats could nominate a man for the first place who would cut down Guild's vote for governor materially. Capt. John J. Flaherty, late chairman of the Democratic state committee, came in at that moment and was greeted cordially by Thayer. He said that he had no idea when the Democrats would call a meeting of their state committee to settle upon the preliminaries of their state convention. The figures have all been computed for the number of delegates to the Democratic convention from each city and town, but they must first be considered and accepted by the state committee before they can be given out.

Circumstances, especially the indorsement of Gen. Miles by the Chicopee Democrats, seem to be putting him forward, but he is not at all a favorite with the Democratic machine. They have no use for him other than as a means to win a victory. Current report has it that the militia is very sore upon Miles because he had the Westfield encampment begin July 5, which they would otherwise have had for a day

The Journal.

FRIDAY EVENING, AUGUST 18, 1905.

WANTED.

By the Democratic party, a candidate for governor. Among the "mentioned" is Lawyer James B. Carroll of Springfield and Gen. Miles.

LUCKY.

The Palmer Water Company was indeed fortunate in getting a nice shower last Friday afternoon, thereby about doubling its supply of water. There is not yet enough to be wasteful with however, and users of water are advised to be careful and not draw more than is absolutely necessary.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

A decade is not so long a time. It passes quickly, viewed from certain standpoints. And from others it is a long, long time. Much may happen in 20 years, and much may be forgotten. The Journal begins today the publication of items which appeared in issues of 20 years ago, taking them from the paper having as near the same date as possible. Those to be found at the top of the third page of this issue are from the paper dated August 21, 1885. They will doubtless prove interesting to many who will recall the events now brought to their mind after a lapse of a fifth of a century.

DAY POLICE NEEDED.

Many times during the past few weeks has the comment been made of the large number of drunks to be seen on our streets during the daytime. They are not confined to any particular hour, but may be seen at almost any time before 6 or 7 o'clock at night. At that time Night Officer Crimmins goes on duty, and his reputation is so well established that all who know him make themselves scarce at that time. There have been numerous suggestions in the past that a day officer was needed in the Depot village, and several good reasons advanced. There has been much need of one during the past few weeks.

WE CAN SPARE THEM.

The new rules for the care of tramps will be found on the first page of this paper. By them it will be seen that if the town of Palmer is to care for these gentry in the future it will mean a considerable expense in the way of equipment of a place, and also for its management. The average tramp who applies for accommodations in the winter—and they don't apply at any other time—is a tramp from choice, dirty and unkempt because too lazy and shiftless to keep himself even fairly presentable. It is always safe to handle his clothing with tongs, and to keep as far away from personal contact with him as possible. Palmer has had a reputation for working tramps in recent years, and the majority of them have accordingly drifted in Saturday night, when they would be exempt from work the next day. The town might do well to decline to assist this class of travelers, and so rid itself of an otherwise sizable bill of expense.

THINK IT OVER.

The town farm proposition as outlined on the first page of this evening's paper is one which may well be given more than a passing thought. For years there has been complaint that the land at the town farm was not of the best quality, and that the quantity was insufficient for the economical maintenance of the number of inmates which the town had to care for. An opportunity is here presented to secure a farm of ample acreage and known quality, on which it is probable that the average weekly cost of maintenance can be materially reduced. It may be that, with the value of the personal property deducted, the price will be considered a large one as farms go. But this is to be borne in mind, it is the best farm obtainable in this section,—that is, capable of being made to produce the most value, according to farm experts,—and can never be secured for less. Then, too, the establishment of a town farm now will probably be for 50 years at least, more likely for 100, and the question to be considered is which will yield the greatest returns—making the smallest net cost—in the long run.

ALL the world is looking toward Portsmouth, N. H., and speculating on the result of the peace conference, in which it is expected the crisis occurred to-day. The Russians have granted nearly all the Japanese demands, in effect if not in full detail, except the demand for reimbursement of the cost of the war, and the cession of Shakhalin island. These it has been announced the Russians would never grant. On the other hand it has been understood that on these points the Japanese were firm. It is not unlikely that there will be a compromise. It is hardly to be expected that, having arrived at an amicable adjustment of so many of the points involved, both sides will now arbitrarily insist on all the remainder or nothing.

THERE ought to be no complaint this season on the part of the trolley roads regarding a lack of patronage. The weather has been hot enough to drive the people to the cars, and they have taken to them in droves. Last Sunday particularly saw vast volumes of travel by electrics in this section. The roads all through the country ought to be making a dollar this year if they ever expect to.

A SUGGESTION of autumn appears in the large number of elm tree leaves which are turning yellow and dropping off, in middle August instead of much later, as would naturally be expected. The cause is very probably the dry weather of the summer, there having been very little rain. At the same time it is a reminder that the time of furnace fires and snow is not so very far away.

A HOUSEHOLDER who would be glad to buy, suggests that there is a good chance for some enterprising boy or young man to make a dollar — or perhaps several of them—by selling spring water to residents of this village in the summer time. There is no doubt that he could have built up a considerable trade during the past two months.

PHILADELPHIA has always been known as a slow and sleepy city. There was nothing slow about the politicians getting over 60,000 illegal names on the voting lists, but the city was decidedly slow in not finding it out until this week.

Water Company to Clean and Enlarge Its Storage Reservoir.

The Palmer Water Company has engaged the services of a gang of Italians, and will begin next week the work of clearing out and enlarging the main reservoir of the company's water supply system. The managers make no definite statement of the extent of the work, declaring that they cannot tell what will be done until they get into the work and see what develops. The company is also planning to enlarge its storage capacity by raising its dam several feet, thus giving a greater depth of water and a flowage much further up stream than at present.

F. S. Grover and son of Dana were in town yesterday for a few hours.

LOCAL NOTICES.

On August 26th the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company's Directory goes to press. Why should not your name be included in this, the most universal of all Directories?

PALMER NEWS.

District Court.

He was an old soldier, and gave the name of W. H. Whipple, with North Dana as his place of residence, when arraigned Tuesday morning on a charge of drunkenness. There was no question of his guilt, and His Honor said "Ten dollars." Whipple had no funds and was accordingly told that he would have to be sent up. This he bitterly protested against; the disgrace of being behind the bars would certainly kill him, and he should never live to serve out his sentence; confinement from the pure out door air did not agree with him, and he knew he should make an early demise if put behind the bars. As he had been before the court only a few months ago for the same offense there was no change in sentence, and he went with the officer to York street in Springfield. When they passed within the portals of that institution the officer who admitted them said, as soon as he caught sight of Whipple: "What, you back here so soon?" The man had been released only Monday, and at once proceeded to Palmer and loaded up. He will probably survive the incarceration.

John Shea and John Cummings, claiming Boston as a residence, were Wednesday's victims, charged with drunkenness. Both gave their ages as 22 and this as their first offense. Both claimed to have parents interested in them, and one asserted that he was the only support of a crippled sister. They told different stories to different people however, and it was deemed wise to give them 30 days each, during which time they could communicate with their relatives—provided they existed.

Excursion to Boston.

The Boston and Albany railroad will run another of its popular excursions to Boston and the beaches next Friday, accommodating the stations from Palmer to Spencer inclusive. The conditions are the same as usual, and allow a sail to Nantasket, Bass Point, Nahant, Winthrop, or to the state bath house at Crescent Beach, or admission to the ball game between the Boston and Pittsburg Nationals. The rate for the round trip is $1.45, and a special train will leave Palmer at 7 a. m., West Brimfield at 7.10, West Warren at 7.17, and Warren at 7.22. Returning the train will leave Boston at 8.05 p. m.

No Danger For the Present.

The rains of Friday, Tuesday and Wednesday have added a considerable quantity of water to the reservoirs of the Palmer Water Company, and with care and frequent rains there should be little danger of the supply falling below the danger point; it all depends on frequent rains. The shower of last Friday, when it rained steadily and hard for about 30 minutes, added 14 inches of water to the company's lower reservoir, giving about double the quantity previously on hand. And the long rain of Tuesday and Wednesday added materially to this quantity.

Chance for Some Boy or Girl.

The Springfield Business School, Springfield, Mass., will on next Monday give examinations in simple arithmetic, English, spelling and letter writing for scholarships, money prizes, etc., aggregating about a thousand dollars. These examinations are open to everybody. Already in Springfield and vicinity there is much interest among the high and grammar schools, and one of the papers has offered a special prize of $25 to the student standing highest. Full particulars may be received by writing to B. J. Griffin, principal, Springfield, Mass.

Country Club to Give Clambake.

The members of the Quaboag Country Club will give a clambake on the club grounds on the afternoon of Saturday, August 26. The bake will be open from 5 30 to 7, and the tickets will be 50 cents; they may be secured from L. C. Flynt and F. S. Chapman of Monson, or Freeman Smith of Palmer. The number of tickets is limited, and the sale closes on Wednesday evening, the 23d. The bake will be in charge of Mr. Martins, the greens-keeper of the club.

Valuable Dogs Hurt.

Two of Dr. S. B. Keith's valuable pointer dogs were badly hurt last Sunday. While running with a team one of them was stepped on by the horse and seriously hurt. The other ran against a scythe and cut a deep gash on the inside of one leg, severing an artery. He then resisted all efforts to catch him and ran until he dropped exhausted. It was with difficulty that the animal was secured and kept alive, but both will probably recover in time.

Ludlows To-morrow.

The ball game on the driving park to-morrow afternoon will be between the Palmers and Ludlows. The visitors have played here once before, and were defeated; since then the team has been materially strengthened and has been playing winning ball. The contest to-morrow should be a close and interesting one. The Palmers have been defeated only twice this season, both times by the Staffords.

Want Damages From Town.

Arthur F. and Harry C. Bennett have made a claim against the town for damages on account of an alleged defect in the covered bridge over the Ware river near Forest Lake. The accident occurred July 22, and A. F. Bennett's claim is for damages to the team, which was his, while Harry C. Bennett claims personal damages while driving.

The exterior of the Hotel Burns is being painted.

There was a meeting of the Woman's Relief Corps in Memorial Hall this afternoon.

P. A. Leighton of the Quimby Pharmacy has returned from a vacation spent in Maine.

Charles K. Stone and Miss Eloise Stone are at York Beach, Me., for a couple of weeks.

Rev. C. C. Conner of Barre, Vt., has been spending the week with his daughter, Mrs. E. C. Gould.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Purinton have been spending a part of the week with relatives in Plymouth.

J. Mason Wells will lead the Y. P. S. C. E. Society at the Baptist church Sunday evening at 7.30.

Miss Hattie Van Hise of New Haven, Ct., is the guest of Mrs. R. B. Francis on North Main street.

Mrs. Lulu Kendrick of Barre is the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Goodes on Pine street.

Robert J. Wilder and Howard E. Dwyer have been spending the week with relatives in Dunhamtown.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Taylor and son Harold will go next Monday to Bennington, Vt., for a vacation.

Miss Iona Rhodes of West Warren has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Cambridge Moulton on Park street.

Mrs. Charles H. Littlefield of Lawrence is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. F. M. Ralton on Central street.

The insurance on the town farm buildings and contents has been adjusted, and $7734 38 has been allowed.

Miss Mary Healey of Springfield has been the guest of Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Roche on Central street this week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Fenner announce the engagement of their daughter, Josephine M., to F. N. Allen of Palmer.

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Backus of Pleasant street were called to Providence, R. I., this week by the death of a relative.

T. J. Chalk has moved from his farm in Wales, which he recently sold, to the one in Monson which he purchased.

There was a large attendance at the illustrated lecture on the Passion Play at Forest Lake last Sunday evening.

Mrs. Charles Draine and son, Walter, of Monson are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Michael St. John on Thorndike street.

Miss Agnes Kelly, who has been spending several weeks in Palmer, has gone to her home in Detroit, Mich., for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Coates of Springfield have been the guests of her mother, Mrs. M. Finnerty of South Main street.

Wilfred Dumas of Indian Orchard has taken a position as motorman on the Springfield and Eastern street railway.

Rev. Emmett Willette of Ottawa, Ont., Miss Lilla Willette and Mrs. Julia Ahare of Lowell have been visiting their sister, Mrs. Peter Ditto.

Rev. F. B. Harrison of Brantford, Ont., formerly pastor of the Congregational church, will occupy the pulpit of that church next Sunday.

The sudden changes in the weather of the first of the week resulted in many cases of sickness, and the physicians have been kept busy since.

Conductor G. F. Sedgwick, who went last week to Boston for an operation on his neck, is recovering rapidly and will soon be able to resume work.

George Clough is acting as probation officer at the district court during the absence of the regular official, William Merriam, on account of sickness.

Service in the Advent chapel next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock; Mrs. Makepeace will speak. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening as usual at 7 30 o'clock.

Mrs. Thomas Blanchard is confined to her home on Knox street with typhoid fever. This is the first case of this disease which has been reported to the board of health this year.

Charles A. Goodreau, formerly of Palmer, has definitely given up farming and is now working in Boston as a conductor on the South Boston division of the Boston Elevated Railway system.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. O'Connor start Sunday for a trip of a week to Buffalo, where Mr. O'Connor will attend the supreme convention of the Foresters of America as one of the Massachusetts delegates.

Misses Pearl and Irwa Manley of Pasadena, Cal., are guests of their brother, R. E. Manley. Mrs. Manley's sisters, Misses Cora and Edith Harris of Housatonic, are also guests at their residence.

The Central Massachusetts Electric Company is at work stringing wires through Main street for the new Wilbraham service. A heavier wire than that now in use is being run through Main street, and the old one will be removed.

The interior of the roof of the Boston and Albany round house caught fire again Tuesday noon from an overheated stovepipe. The blaze was not sufficient to necessitate an alarm of fire, and was put out by Chief Bills with a couple of extinguishers.

The Empire Specialty Company is scheduled for Forest Lake next week, and includes Eckhoff and Gordon, musical laugh makers; Tanner and Gilbert in a comedy sketch; Valveno Brothers, expert acrobats; Ernest Tenny, monologue comedian; Walter Holdsworth, banjoist and comedian.

The clambake of Tockwotton tribe of Red Men, which was announced for Wednesday afternoon, was postponed on account of the rain until Wednesday afternoon of next week, when it will be held as originally planned. The tickets have all been sold. A special car will leave Palmer at 3.30 for the bake.

Miss S. N. Hancock of Northfield received injuries while alighting from a train at the Palmer depot Saturday. She fell and struck upon the rail of the opposite track and her left knee was badly cut. She was removed to the Converse House, where her wound was dressed by a physician. She remained in town over Sunday.

New England is maintaining its reputation for variegated weather, all right. Sunday was a day of sweltering heat, while Monday afternoon saw a drop of several degrees in the temperature, which increased to 30 or more by Wednesday, when it was decidedly cool. Tuesday and Wednesday nights were very similar to those of late October.

Palmer visitors at Block Island report an unusually severe thunder storm there on Sunday. The lightning struck several buildings, and one barn was burned. There was more excitement Tuesday afternoon, when the steamer, New Shoreham, owned by the town, struck a sunken wreck while entering the new harbor and sank just as she reached the wharf, the passengers all escaping in safety however. There are more visitors on the island this year than for ten years previously, it is said, and unless rooms were engaged in advance it was hard work to find accommodation there last week. Prices seem to have stiffened with the crowds evidently, for the modest price of $60 a week for a small room on the third floor, two in the room, was reported to have been demanded by one of the largest hotels last week; this included board.

Palmer matters of 20 years ago

Items from the Palmer Journal of August 21, 1885.

George L. Gates of North Wilbraham is the new clerk at the post office.

A number of the "boys" are in camp at Forest Lake, and having a fine time.

O. C. Marcy will this fall erect a large barn for his livery business, on the site now occupied by him.

The annual farmers' picnic was held at Freeman Foster's, in the north part of the town, on Wednesday. A goodly number were present.

In the petition that the town of Wilbraham be restrained from using the town's money to build a town hall, C. L. Gardner of this village appeared for the defendant. The petition was dismissed.

When the alarm of fire was given Tuesday night, a woman appeared at the door of her house some distance from the blaze with a flatiron in each hand, anxiously inquiring if the fire would reach her.

J. L. Bacon of Brimfield has purchased the Parks estate, comprising house and some six acres of land near the grounds of the agricultural society, and has contracted for the erection of a new barn at once. The price paid was $4000.

The arrangement by which the affixing of a special ten-cent stamp to a letter will insure its immediate delivery in any town or city of over 4000 inhabitants goes into effect on October 1st, and Palmer is included in the list of towns which will be favored with this system.

John Carlin, better known as "Dummy," made quite a hero of himself at Lake Pleasant last Saturday. While out in a boat with a couple of drunken fellows, one of them fell overboard and would have drowned but for Carlin, who pulled him into the boat, the other man being too far gone to render any assistance whatever.

The objectionable clause in the deed to the town of the engine house has been stricken out, the only condition now being that there shall be no lock-up or tramp room in connection with the engine house. This is made so as not to cause a depreciation in the value of the adjoining land, which would occur should these features be added.

Palmer was visited by another fire on Tuesday evening, when the Nassawanno stables, a barn on Central street owned by John Feeney, Henry's blacksmith shop and a dwelling house went up in smoke. The fire started in the Feeney block from some unknown cause about 10 o'clock The losses are: John Feeney, $2000; L. E. and H. C. Strong, $2000; S. O. Henry, $1000; M. Coghlan, $300; F. E Sikes, $500; H. C. Strong, $100; Mrs. L. M. Shaw, $100; W. A. McKenna, $250; James Waterman, small loss on house; Frank Travers, $150; S. W. Randall, $50.

Burglars forced an entrance into Brooks Bros.' hardware store on Central street early Sunday morning by breaking out a large pane of glass in a rear window. Two of the four money drawers were forced open and about $5 in cash was secured. A lot of pocket knives, etc., were also taken, the total loss being about $40. E. L. Davis fancy goods store in the same block was also entered and the place thoroughly inspected, though nothing was missed. Mrs. Davis' watch and some jewelry, valued at $200, were lying on a table, covered only by a newspaper, but were not touched. The back door of H. P. Longley's grocery store, between the two broken into, remained unlocked all night but the place was not meddled with.

Is it Right?

Is it right that a property-owner should lose $4.20 to let a dealer make 50 cents? A dealer makes 50 cents more on fourteen gallons of ready-for-use paint, at $1 50 per gallon, than our agent does on eight gallons of L. & M. paint and six gallons of linseed oil, which make fourteen gallons of the best paint in the world, at $1 20 per gallon; the property-owner loses just $4 20 Is it right?

It only requires 4 gallons of L. & M. and 3 gallons linseed oil to paint a moderate sized house.

Monson News.

New Bridge at North Monson.

The selectmen have posted notices upon the Palmer road stating that it is closed, and began Tuesday to build the new bridge near the north factory. The W. N. Flynt Granite Company is doing the stone work, and as soon as it is completed the new bridge will be put in place. It is all here and the entire operation will not occupy much time. Those who do not care to go around by the upper road can pass the bridge by driving through the fields, but must do so at their own risk.

She leaves a husband, four daughters and two sons. The funeral will be held to-morrow afternoon at 2 and will be private.

The Journal feels that it owes its readers an apology—or rather an excuse—for the scarcity of Monson news in last week's issue. The lack was in no way due to the Journal's correspondent. He had covered the field fully and carefully prepared the copy, sending it to this office; but at some point in transit it went astray, just how or where has not yet been determined, and this was not discovered until too late to prepare new copy and set the type.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Downey, John F. Connor and Misses Margaret and Mary Connor are spending the week at Block Island.

Frederic N. Stone of Auburn has resigned his position as teacher of science and mathematics in the high school. Mr. Stone had only been in Ware one year.

Augustin Germain, 88, died at his home on North street last week Thursday morning. He was born in St. Jude, Can., but had lived in Ware for the past 35 years. He is survived by a number of children and grandchildren, including one son over 70 The funeral was held in Mt. Carmel church Sunday afternoon at 2.

Tax Collector F. W. Farrar turned over nearly $71,000 to Town Treasurer Almer F. Richardson Wednesday morning, which is the sum total of taxes paid before the time expired for the 5 per cent discount. Of this sum $5895 was collected as the national bank tax. The total is the largest amount ever turned into the treasurer's office at one time.

Mrs. James McKeon, 70, died at her home in Ware Monday afternoon. She had resided in that place for over 40 years. She leaves three sons, James of West Warren, Patrick of Lawrence and Joseph of Lewiston, Me., also one daughter, Mrs. James Ryan of Adams. The funeral was held in All Saints' church Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock.

Miss Anna Tetzluff of Dana, who has been employed for some time by Mrs. N. F. Bacon, was successfully operated on for appendicitis at the homeopathic hospital in Springfield Sunday. She returned from her vacation Saturday and was taken seriously ill at midnight of the same day. She was removed to Springfield by Dr. G. F. A. Spencer.

A sum of money, about $30, was lost in the post office Monday afternoon and its mysterious disappearance was not accounted for until Tuesday morning, when Dr. A. A. Auger called with the roll of bills, stating that his daughter had found them on the floor in the office. The money belonged to Arthur L. Lowe, a boy who had come to the office to send a money order. While making inquiries regarding the cost at the window he left the money on a writing shelf a few steps behind him, and the bills fell from this place to the floor.

OUR BOSTON LETTER.

off and then, too, there are assertions that he was "it" altogether too much at the encampment to suit some people. At any rate, the Democrats will not take him unless they are obliged to have him. They are all at sea regarding first and second places on their state ticket.

The Republican club of Massachusetts, whose headquarters I have visited to-day, has improved its furnishings and conveniences materially. Charles H. Glidden is in charge, with two assistants, and here is the machinery for much valuable party service in way of campaign literature and correspondence. It is one of the principles of the club "to oppose candidacy for public office or party prominence for private gain," and therefore the club feels bound to oppose any candidates of even its own party, provided they antagonize that principle, but otherwise, their policy is not to interfere with personal campaigns, but to stand ready to rush in the nominee after the convention. The club is still growing. It has a membership of over 1800 strong Republicans in all parts of the state and it is organized so as to strengthen the party in every locality. It seems to be more efficient than the corresponding Democratic club. But there is no reason in the nature of the case why this should continue, other than the fact, as it is said in these headquarters, "that the Democrats can always be trusted to make fools of themselves as soon as they have any chance of winning a campaign."

Speaking of conventions, the Jerome idea of New York strikes some people here very favorably and it is predicted by high Republican authority that the plan of ignoring party conventions will become so popular that the convention will become antiquated and all candidates will appeal directly to the voters for their support. This will put an end to the responsibility of elected candidates to their party machines. In the many instances, judging by New York and Pennsylvania, where these machines are corrupt, it will shake the hold of the corrupt man. They will find their power gone, while the people will come into larger possession of their rights and will enjoy more efficient public service.

From near observation of the proceedings at the Peace Conference, let this observation be added, that the prospect for peace, as far as the facts have developed up to the time of writing, is good. Much is sent out from the Hotel Wentworth which is based upon very slim foundation. Very likely some of the persons present at the conferences have leaked, but they are bound to secrecy. The fact of continued negotiations makes it probable that they will not be broken off, save for the most obstinate difficulty. Both parties want peace. Both have come a long distance to promote negotiations. The resources of diplomacy are many. Many considerations must be taken into account. As far as could be learned by presence on the spot, the Japanese insisted that their terms were moderate and that they bore no hostility to the Russians. The Russians are compelled to admit their overwhelming defeat and very likely would go further and fare worse, if they should refuse the terms which, as far as known, Japan has offered. In spite of the gloomy reports sent out, I am sure that it is best to discount them until they are verified and to expect a treaty until it is positively known that one cannot be secured.

Discussion of tainted money will come up again at the meeting of the American Board in Seattle on September 14 to 18, and the Prudential Committee of the Board has already made preparation of importance for the contest. Rev. Washington Gladden of Ohio has said that he shall bring up the subject at the Seattle meeting and it is known that he has the support of such prominent Congregationalists as Rev. Dr. Reuen Thomas of Brookline, Rev. Dr. Philip S. Moxom of Springfield, and Rev. V. V. Davis of Pittsfield, all of them corporate members of the Board and therefore entitled to speak from the floor when the matter comes up. The Board hopes that the matter will not be brought up, for it would lead to a discussion which they prefer to avoid. But, in order to be prepared, the Prudential Committee has sent a circular to all the corporate members showing the need of pushing the mission work and inclosing a draft of principles by which the Committee is to be guided in accepting gifts, which it is hoped that the Board will adopt, if the remonstrants against taking Rockefeller's money press them. This statement rests upon precisely such ground as the Committee held when they took Rockefeller's $100,000. It is quite possible for some who would not go as far as Dr. Gladden, but would not take tainted money, to move to amend the platform presented by the Committee, by putting in a qualifying clause wherever the sense permitted it, excepting cases which were so notorious before the public as to make it a presumption that the money was obtained otherwise than by rendering an equivalent for it. Such an amendment, if accepted, would require the Committee to examine questionable cases and to refuse money clearly tainted. If the amendment were opposed it would commit the opponents to the position that they would take any money, no matter how notorious or flagitious the means by which its possessor obtained it Such a position no decent man would support. No names are expected to be mentioned, not even Rockefeller's, in the discussion. It is to be a question of principles, not men, and the discussion and action upon tainted money at Seattle may have a very important place in our contemporary history.

The subcommittees of the legislative recess committee on transportation are some of them working diligently preparing for the meeting of the full committee in the fall. They predict that the railroads will be interested parties at their hearings then.

How to Wear Cuff Buttons.

"Your cuff buttons are not properly worn," said a jeweler to one of his customers.

"What's the matter with them? Have not I got them in my cuffs?"

"Yes," replied the jeweler, "but you are like a great many other people; you are not a close observer. You have the little gold piece at one end of each link placed so that in one cuff it is toward your body and in the other away from you. The small end of the link should in every case be toward you. Yet nine men out of ten pay no attention to this detail. The careful dresser never has the small end of a link button on the far side of the cuff."—Philadelphia Record.

CHILDREN, AFTER ALL

[Original.]

I am one of those women who think. To be tied up to a moral code inherited from remote ancestors has always been irksome to me. Though work has not been necessary to me, I have worked. From the first I wanted a career. I chose literature for a profession, and living a literary life made me a reader of many books. Great social questions interested me especially, and I studied the different methods that from the earliest ages have pertained to the relations of the sexes. I came out of these studies impressed with the belief that marriage is a civil, not necessarily a moral, law.

I had reached this conclusion some time before I met Arthur Tracy. He was the manager of a magazine to which I sold articles and by admiring them first won my grateful attention, afterward my love. He was mated with a woman who had no sympathy whatever with his fine, appreciative and discriminating mind. He found in me one who could sympathize with him on every point, and it was not long before he told me that I could turn his unmated life into one of inexpressible happiness.

Unfortunately for us both, there was no ground on which he could get a divorce. Mrs. Tracy was a good wife and mother, the only reason why she could not make her husband happy being her intellectual inferiority. But why was a divorce necessary? Had I not reached a conclusion that marriage was not necessary to morality? Had not one of the greatest of Englishwomen novelists lived with a man who could not get a divorce from his wife? Why should I, holding these views, stoop to encourage the man I loved to secure his liberty by fraudulent means? Would it not be a far better part to make him happy in defiance of a world that had received its opinions from antiquity? I made up my mind to rise above an antiquated custom. My love and I would pledge ourselves to each other for life.

I had never seen Mrs. Tracy, nor did I wish to see her. There was no blame attached to her that she was not sufficiently intellectual to be a fit companion for a very superior man. I would not permit myself to consider that she was standing in the way of two people whom God had especially intended for each other. I was not so human as that. One day I went to the office of the magazine to consult about the method of printing an article of mine, and from the suit of editorial rooms a little girl about three years old came racing along, a straw hat hung to her back and ringlets flying. She was such a merry madcap that I took her into my heart at once and, stooping, literally took her into my arms. She struggled to be free, laughing the while, and when I set her down jumped again into my arms.

"You little humbug!" I exclaimed. "You're like most of your sex—when you can have what you want you don't want it. What's your name?"

"Helen Tracy."

I looked into her heaven blue eyes, and for the first time since I had met her father the still small voice of conscience spoke to me. I was about to bring sorrow into the life of this innocent child.

"Come and see mamma," she said, grasping one of my fingers. "She's in papa's office waiting till he comes in."

She dragged me to the office door. I had no intention of going in, but suddenly it opened and some one came out, leaving it open. Within sat a woman with a face as sweet and innocent as the child's. My confusion enabled the little one to drag me to the threshold.

"Come in," said the lady, rising. "I wish to speak to you."

She shut the door behind me and stood facing me. All my philosophy could not save me from feeling that I was in the presence of an accusing angel.

"I know you from the picture Arthur has. He has told me much about you and your ideas—ideas that I have neither the learning nor the mind to appreciate. It has come to me—no matter how—that his heart has followed his intellect. I do not blame either of you. I am deficient in what he requires; you possess it. I love him too well either to stand in the way of his happiness or to give him reason to act unworthily. Whatever steps he may see fit to take to break the bonds binding him to me and the children I shall accede to. They of course must remain with me."

During my philosophical studies a favorite expression with me was "the cobwebs of the past." While I was listening to these words, involving a far greater wisdom, a far higher conception than I had ever dreamed of, it seemed that with a feather the speaker was brushing away the cobwebs of the present. She had shown me the yawning gulf on which I stood. In a twinkling she had dissolved the air castle I had built up about her husband, for it had flashed upon me that he was greatly her inferior. Before I could reply the door was opened and he walked into the room. While he stood the picture of abashed astonishment, I answered her through him.

"Arthur Tracy, I can't understand why you should waste your regard on me when you have one so much more worthy of you. Your wife has taught me more in one minute than I have learned from all the books I have ever read. I leave you with her and your child, to wh[illegible] you belong."

We had both been offered what we wanted and we didn't want it. After all, we were but as children.

Put Himself In Pawn.

While George Frederick Cooke was playing an engagement in New York he was dunned for $500 one afternoon by a creditor too strenuous to be put off.

"Come on, then," said Cooke and led the way to a neighboring pawnbroker's shop.

"My good man, I put myself in pawn," he said. "Lock me up in a closet. Don't let me out. Give this man the ticket. Now"—to the creditor—"take it to my manager and tell him that George Frederick Cooke is locked up here in pawn for $500. Don't be uneasy. In an hour's time the curtain must ring up. You'll get your money."

He did get it, and when the excited manager, his audience waiting, drove furiously to the pawnshop he found Cooke locked up safely behind the counter, sound asleep, and, being locked up, sober and ready for work.—Rebecca Harding Davis in Saturday Evening Post.

Cynical.

Doctor (to wealthy old lady, convalescent after a severe illness)—Have you no bright, cheerful relations who could come and stay with you? Old Lady—Oh, yes; many. But they wouldn't be a bit cheerful if they thought I was getting better.

All the Transfers She Had.

As a bevy of laughing girls rose to get off a street car the other day at a point where transfers are given they were followed by a demure young woman who had been absorbed in a novel. Just before she alighted she asked the conductor for a transfer, and he, thinking all the girls were of one party, gave her six, which she took without noticing and held in her hand as she stood on the corner waiting for her car, the other girls having gone on walking. When the reader got her car she took a seat and was soon lost again in her novel. Then the conductor came up, and she held out the slips. He took them, counted them and then looked around with a puzzled expression. "Where are the others?" he asked. "Oh," replied the young woman, looking up for a moment from her book, "that's all he gave me."—Philadelphia Record.

Nothing on the Market Equal to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

This fact is well known to druggists everywhere, and nine out of ten will give their customers this preparation when the best is asked for. Mr. Obe Witmer, a prominent druggist of Joplin, Mo., in a circular to his customers, says: "There is nothing on the market in the way of patent medicine which equals Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints. We sell and recommend this preparation." For sale by Quimby Pharmacy, Palmer.

BROUGHT TO LIGHT.

Palmer People Receiving The Full Benefit.

There have been many cases like the following in Palmer. Everyone relates the experience of people we know. These plain, straightforward statements will do much toward relieving the suffering of thousands. Such testimony will be read with interest by many people.

Mr. Charles C. Hamilton of Palmer Center says:—"I gave for publication in April, '98, a testimonial about Doan's Kidney Pills after I had used them and after they had done me considerable good. I can only state to-day that I have as much faith in them as I had at that time. When I commenced their use I had severe pain through my back and almost any movement caused it to ache more severely. I suffered from headache in the front and in the top of my head caused, the doctor told me, by over-exertion on the wheel. I got Doan's Kidney Pills at LeGro's drug store and they gave me prompt relief. The aching left my back and I was freed from the headaches. I can re-endorse and recommend Doan's Kidney Pills most emphatically."

Third Week of the August Trade Sale of Furniture.

The first two weeks of this great Midsummer Furniture Sale have taken their place on our records as the most successful that we have ever had—exceeding in sales nearly four times those of the previous year.

Of course this tremendous selling has left some thin places in our stock, but wherever possible we have filled them in—often with new Fall goods just from the Grand Rapids market—at prices which can hardly be expected, even at the lowest mark, later in the season.

Whatever room, or rooms, in the house you may wish to furnish, you c[illegible]n save one-fourth, one-third, and in some cases as much as one-half of the price you would otherwise have to pay; and this sale includes only the best Furniture that money can buy.

We are giving the most prominence this week to Bedroom Furniture. Hundreds of Beds and Bureaus are represented, some of them from overstocked manufacturers, and the balance from our regular showing of the season's very best products; but all are now gathered together and marked with our August Trade Sale Prices.

DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY

Breaks no Hearts, Excuses no Crimes.

Dr. David Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is not a disguised enemy of the human race; where it cannot help, it does not harm. It is composed of vegetable ingredients and does not heat or inflame the blood but cools and purifies it. In all cases of Kidney troubles, Liver complaints, Constipation of the Bowels, and the delicate derangements which afflict women, the action of Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is beyond praise. Thousands of grateful people voluntarily testify to this, in letters to Dr. Kennedy; and with a warmth and fullness of words which mere business certificates never possess. It makes no drunkards—excuses no crimes—breaks no hearts. In its coming there is hope, and in its wings there is healing. We challenge a trial and are confident of the result. Your druggist has it. ONE DOLLAR a Bottle. Bear in mind the name and address: Dr. David KENNEDY, Rondout, New York.

But she merely said, "That's the best thing you can do." Somehow these things never do turn out properly in real life.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

"Charley had a dreadful time last night," said young Mrs. Torkins. "He said he was a victim of the 'the Black Hand.'" "You don't say so!" exclaimed the caller. "Yes. He came home without a cent. I don't quite understand the particulars as he explained them. But they pulled a deadly weapon on him that is known as a club flush."—New York Press.

A juryman who appeared before Sir James Hannen in a London court-room recently was in deep mourning and claimed exemption from service on the ground that he was interested in a funeral that day at which he desired to be present. "Oh, certainly," said the courteous judge, and the man went sadfacedly away. "Do you know the man you have exempted?" asked the clerk. "No," said Sir James. "He's an undertaker."

A Fulton (Kan.) minister consoled a bereaved husband as follows: "My brother, I know you are compelled to mourn the loss of this one who was your companion and partner in life. But I would console you with the assurance that there is another who sympathizes with you and seeks to embrace you in the arms of unfailing love." To this the bereaved man replied by asking, as he gazed through tears into the minister's face, "What's her name?"

BASEBALL.

Stafford Springs 9, Monson 6.

The baseball game last Saturday was a disappointment to Monson people, not only on account of the loss of the game, but also because of the poor showing of the home team. There was a large attendance, about 300 being present from Stafford, having engaged a special train. In spite of the agreement not to use players hired for the occasion, Stafford appeared upon the field again with McLean of Norwich to do the twirling. Cartmill was put in the box for Monson, which proved a costly error in judgment. He had strength and speed enough, but poor control. In the third inning it became necessary to put in Furkey, who pitched a good game, with poor support. Stafford got a lead in the first three innings which seemed too great to be overcome, but through hard hitting in the sixth and poor field work for Stafford, the score was tied and stood six each. From that time on the game was interesting, but Stafford scored three runs in the ninth, without Monson having gained any further advantage. The game was marked by a great variety of wrangles about decisions of the umpire. Mr. Keeney of Somersville officiated in that capacity, it is to be hoped for the last time. He knew little about the game evidently, and showed poor judgment besides. This was the sixth game between Stafford and Monson this season each team having won three. Further games have been talked of, but have not been arranged. The score:

Ludlow 4, Indian Orchard 3.

The Indian Orchard team was defeated in Ludlow Saturday afternoon 4 to 3 by the Ludlow team. Daley, formerly pitcher for the Northampton team, was in the box for Indian Orchard, and did good work. He was handicapped by Carson in left field, whose poor work was the cause of the downfall of the visitors. Miles of the Northampton Y. M. C. A. team pitched a good game for Ludlow. The score:

Atlantics 9, Stafford Amateurs 0.

The Stafford Amateurs were defeated by Henry Flynt's Atlantics at Flynt Park in Monson last Saturday in a very interesting game by the score of 9 to 0. The Stafford boys put up a good game but were unable to connect with Nevill's curves and did not get a man home and once only to third base. The Atlantics are in fine form and have games arranged for some time ahead. They play at Springfield to-morrow. The score follows:

Notes.

The Palmer Crescents have disbanded for the remainder of the season.

The Palmer Juniors will go to Warren to-morrow to play the Warren team.

The Palmer Crescents failed to appear in Thorndike Saturday, hence the game was forfeited to the Thorndike team, 9 to 0.

An Engagement Kiss

[Original.]

I was in a frame of mind to get all the fun that could be possibly extracted from two weeks' vacation. I extracted so much in the first twenty-four hours that—but I anticipate.

I alighted at the hotel, gave my hand baggage to a porter and was climbing the piazza steps when I saw a girl whom I was sure I had never met before coming to meet me with a radiant smile.

"Good gracious!" she exclaimed. "I thought you were not coming till to-morrow."

"But you see I have come today," I replied, humoring her mistake, for I knew she was in error as to my identity.

"Well, I declare! You quite take my breath away," she went on, looking at me admiringly from tip to toe. "How you have improved! I'd scarcely have recognized you."

"You are the same lovely girl; you couldn't improve."

I was treading on dangerous ground, but relied as soon as the error was discovered on my ingenuity in making up a plausible story to let me out.

"Well," I said looking at her wistfully, "are you of the same mind?"

"Those people over there are looking at us. Leave me till after supper; then we'll walk on the beach."

I was glad to comply, determining that as soon as I rejoined her I would let the fact come out that I was not the lover she expected. When we met again my resolution weakened. I could not resist the temptation to enjoy a brief period with so charming a girl. We went down on to the beach in the gloaming and strolled on the line of foam. The moon rising out of the ocean glinted the crests of intervening waves. The stars were coming out. There was no sound but the plash of waves. I knew that if I talked of anything except love I would expose my hand, and it seemed as natural for me to talk love to her as if we had long been lovers. I told her how during the four years of absence my heart had yearned for her and begged her to tell me if I was to be made happy. Sailing on the broad sea of love I struck never a rock, and when it was time for us to go in she had no suspicion that she had made an exchange of lovers.

"And now," I said before parting, "give your reply in a kiss.

She kissed me, and that kiss was the loveliest, longest, most rapturous I ever took from woman's lips.

The next morning I rose late and was the only person in the breakfast room. Sitting by a window, I heard voices on the piazza.

"Who was the fellow," asked a man's voice, "and what did he look like?"

"Like you, very much improved from what you were when I saw you last."

"H'm! You don't seem to consider me improved."

"Not in disposition. You blame me for a very natural mistake."

"A very unnatural mistake. If you make such mistakes after we are married, there'll be the dence to pay."

"We're not married yet."

I peeped through a slat in the blind and saw a man sitting with the girl I had made love to the night before. He looked very like me, though I did not feel flattered by the likeness. What should I do—slink out unobserved and take the first train or brazen it out? I marched boldly out and joined them.

I certainly expected both to receive me scornfully. Without waiting for either to speak I begged a thousand pardons of the girl for not rectifying her mistake at once, giving as my only reason that she was so charming I could not bring myself to do so. While I was speaking, which I did humbly, the face of the girl slowly broadened into a smile; that of the man grew momentarily surlier. Having done all I could to atone for my sin, I turned and left them.

I resolved to leave the place that afternoon, but, meeting the girl without her lover, she extended her hand to me and asked me to take a seat beside her. I did so and told her of my intention to depart, which had been formed on the ground that my presence there would not be agreeable to her and her lover. She declared that she would not be the cause of my departure and begged me to stay. I determined to remain for awhile, but if my presence proved objectionable I would go at once.

That evening, observing the young lady sitting alone on the piazza, I joined her. To my surprise, at my mention of her lover she said that he had gone.

Then she gave me her confidence in a matter of which I already knew the principal part. At eighteen she had admired a man whom she had known but a short time when he removed to another place. They had corresponded, and after four years' absence he had returned, hoping to get a favorable answer to his suit. She had been disappointed in him and had rejected him.

I chatted with her till the moon rose, then boldly asked her if she would walk on the beach. She accepted the invitation, and, walking over the same sands as the night before, I made the same love. She proposed that I should go away and return for an answer in four years, but I told her I had been in suspense for twenty-four hours and that was long enough. She considered that ridiculously short, but yielded. When later I rallied my wife on accepting me on such short acquaintance she said:

"H'm! Do you suppose I was going to let you go after that engagement kiss?"

All Right In His Case.

The teacher was giving the school a little lecture on good conduct. "Let me caution you on another point, children," she said. "Avoid criticising. Don't make a practice of finding fault with other people or picking flaws in what they say or do. It is a very bad habit to form and will make your own life unhappy."

"Why, teacher," spoke up a little boy, "that's the way my father makes his livin'!"

"You surprise me, Georgy. What is your father's occupation?"

"He's a proofreader, ma'am."

The teacher coughed behind her fan.

"Well, Georgy," she said, "I will make an exception in the case of your father."

MRS. JELIFFE

[Original.]

Bert Preston and Florence Holt met when he was twenty-three and she was eighteen. Had not Bert gone west to seek his fortune they would undoubtedly have made a match. As it was, neither knew of the predisposition of the other. In time Bert fell under the influence of a widow, a Mrs. Jeliffe, considerably older than he, and married her. Marriage is said to be a lottery, but it is rather a matter of common sense. There was certainly no common sense in the Preston-Jeliffe union. Mrs. Jeliffe was a shrew, and there was no knowledge to be derived from any one as to the taking off of her first husband; not that any suspicion attached to his widow, but there was a mystery concerning his death. She led Preston a miserable life for a few years, then to his great relief suddenly disappeared.

It was five years after Preston went west and two years after his marriage that he made a visit to his old home in the east. Florence Holt had heard of his matrimonial venture and, since there had always been a place for him in her own heart, felt a deep sympathy for him. She had not married and there seemed to be no one whom she wished to marry. Then when it was too late she and Preston learned that they should have been plighted to each other before he went west. He and Florence would have been happy together.

When Preston went back west he carried with him the assurance that if at any time he learned of his wife's death Florence would marry him. They corresponded daily and, with the exception of being together, were as happy as possible. Then a paper came to Preston from a southern city with a marked death notice—that of Mrs. Anthony Jeliffe. That same evening found Preston on the train bound east. He wrote the newspaper containing the notice for information, but could get none. After a long period of inquiry as to the late Mrs. Preston-Jeliffe and a failure to learn why the notice had not read Preston instead of Jeliffe, Bert and Florence concluded to consider the woman dead and marry. When this time Preston returned to his western home he took with him the woman he should have taken in the first place. They made each other very happy, and several children sprang up about them. Their neighbors all said that if marriage is a failure there was one exception to the rule—the case of the Preston family.

One evening when Preston was sitting on the front porch, with his children climbing over him, Mrs. Preston sitting by sewing, there was a click at the gate. Mrs. Preston looked up to see a strange woman coming in, while Preston was paralyzed with the sight of the late Mrs. Jeliffe-Preston.

"Bertie," said the intruder, "I've come back. Aren't you glad to see me?"

When Florence glanced at her husband, or, rather, the man she had sup*posed was her husband,* she knew by the despair on his face that the dead wife had come to life. Mrs. Jeliffe, as she must be called to distinguish her, came up to the porch, took a seat and fanned herself.

"Bert," said Florence, "there is nothing for us to do, for the children's sake if not our own, but to stand by each other." Then, turning to the intruder, she continued: "This man may be your husband in the sight of an imperfect law, but he is mine in the sight of a perfect God. Go."

There was something so impressive in the speaking of the words that Mrs. Jeliffe was for the moment vanquished. She arose and departed, but before going out the gate she turned and fired one shot, "We'll see about that."

Mrs. Jeliffe settled herself down in the town, intending to get rid of her rival, not by legal process, but by persecution. She would have failed to make any great impression had it not been for the man. Florence overawed her by a superiority in every respect. It was the terrible effect the intruder had upon Preston that destroyed the family happiness. The woman had only to remain in the place where the Preston family lived to make a wreck of Preston. Such situations at times induce murder, and Florence watched Preston night and day that under the terrible temptation he should not make the matter a thousand times worse by crime, but the strain was too great even for a woman of superior strength, and Florence at last broke down.

One morning while at breakfast Preston took up his newspaper, and his eye lit on the following:

> Matilda Jeliffe was last night arrested, at the instigation of her husband, Anthony Jeliffe, on a charge of bigamy. It is charged that Mrs. Jeliffe deserted her husband and married Mr. Adelbert Preston of this city. Her husband (Jeliffe) by threat of exposure induced her to return to him, and in order to conceal herself she sent a printed notice of her death to Mr. Preston. Recently the Jeliffe couple agreed that Mrs. Jeliffe should return to Mr. Preston, presumably to levy blackmail. If any was obtained, Jeliffe got none of it; hence the split between the Jeliffes. When rogues fall out honest men get their dues.

Florence, who was pouring out coffee, was astonished to see her husband jump up from his chair and, darting around to where she sat, throw his arms about her. Then he embraced each of the children. Florence was terror stricken. "At last," she thought, "his mind has given way under this terrible strain." But Preston, taking up the paper, read the announcement showing that the mother of his children was his only, his legal wife.

Mrs. Jeliffe was convicted and is now serving a term in state prison.

A Simple Poor White Girl

[Original.]

Tom Silcox, moonshiner, was in a trap. He had been caught in what out west they would call a canyon. Through it a mountain torrent had worn its way deep in the rocks and boiled and bubbled unseen by human eye, shaded as it was by an impenetrable growth of trees and brush. This stream was Tom's only outlet. He might trust himself to it and if he came safely through the dangers of cataract and hungry animals would emerge in an open space below. But the end of the route was watched, and the chances of escape were few. Sam Sykes, the leader of the revenue men, was puzzled. He knew where Silcox was and would have been sure of him had he had more men to surround him. But he had only two assistants, and Silcox was a desperate man. One or two lives were likely to be the price of the capture. He was meditating as to what he would do when a girl typical of the country approached him. She wore a cheap calico dress, a check sunbonnet and cowhide shoes.

"Reckon you uns uir lookin' for Tom Silcox?" she said.

"What do you know about Silcox?" replied the officer evasively.

"Reckon I'd ought to know somepin about him, seein' the way he's treated me."

"How has he treated you?"

"Shook me."

"I see. He's a mean dog, not worthy of a nice girl like you. I should think you'd wish to get even with him."

"So I would if I knowed how."

A crafty expression came over the man's face. "Why not turn him over to us revenue officers?" he asked.

"How could I do that?"

"You might pretend you would help him out and give us a chance at him."

The girl's face lighted with an expression of vengeful hunger, but she did not reply.

"I wouldn't mind giving a twenty dollar bill," added the officer.

This time avarice showed plainly on the face of the poor white girl, who never had so much money in her life. Then she began to think. Sykes gave her plenty of time.

"I kin take you uns to whar Tom's hidin'," she said at last.

"It's a bargain."

"Tom's hidin' in an ole cabin. I'll go thar with you uns, but I must have a leettle time with him outen sight. He's got somepin o' mine I want to git. 'S soon 's I settle that I'll tell him you uns is comin' up the crick and he'd better make tracks up. I might say I got a critter for him up thar."

"Splendid! When shall we go?"

"Now's good a time as any."

Sykes called in his men and gave them the plan. They were to follow the girl to the edge of a clearing, where they would lie concealed under the thick brush while she went forward and laid her snare. On the way she told Sykes something of the lay of the land. The cabin was within a few yards of the creek, and this was the reason Silcox had selected it for a hiding place. If attacked he could easily drop down into it and it would be hard to get him. Above the cabin the ground, though comparatively open, was hidden here and there by rocks and scrub trees.

Sykes saw the advantage of her telling the moonshiner that they were coming up instead of down, since it would probably prevent him from taking to the creek. If the officer had any suspicion as to the girl's real intentions they were now dispelled. Indeed, he had suggested the revenge himself. Besides, she was too simple to concoct any plan for an escape. Was she not leading them to Silcox's hiding place?

When they arrived on the ground she said to Sykes:

"D' y' want to take him alive or take him dead?"

"Alive if we can."

"Then you uns better go up the crick a spell whar there's an openin' he'll have to go out."

Sykes ordered the two men to do as she suggested. When they had gone she said to him: "'S soon's I've had my talk, Tom'll go up, as I said. You uns kin shoot him if y' like; I don't keer." This was said with a tremor in her voice, as though in her heart she did care. "Reckon I'd better drop down behind the bank o' the crick to git outen the way o' the bullets. Good-by. I'm off."

Sykes waited the result of the maneuver for about five minutes, when he saw the figure of a man in "butternut" swiftly making his way up the creek. He could have easily shot the moonshiner, but he relied implicitly on his falling into the trap above. He saw the calico dress and check sunbonnet disappear behind the bank, but he was intent on the person who had gone the other way. He followed the "butternut," keeping him in sight so far as was possible, till he saw his men take him in without a shot. Then he breathed a sigh of relief.

Uncocking his rifle, Sykes walked leisurely toward the others. As he approached them they came to meet him, leaving the prisoner unguarded. He hurried on, recocking his gun to cover the moonshiner and wondering what they meant by such carelessness.

"Mind your prisoner!" he shouted.

"It's the girl," replied one of the men lugubriously.

And so it was. The two had exchanged clothes behind the rock. The girl had gone up the creek, while Tom had dropped behind the bank. Making his way down a short distance he had mounted a horse she had provided and was following a trail that was sure to lead him to safety.

Mutiny and Piracy

By CLARA TAYLOR

Copyright, 1905, by T. C. McClure

Aunt Hannah Snow, wife of Captain Jabez Snow of Kennebunk, was almost as good a sailor as her husband. She had gone with him to the West Indies on seven voyages and had acted as mate and second mate. She could mend a sail, steer her trick, make or take in sail and use a quadrant as well as any one, or at least as well as any mate that ever sailed with the Hannah Snow, as the brig was named. Captain Snow ran between Boston and the West India Islands, and the shippers of Boston came to know his wife and the way she could discipline a crew and handle the craft.

On a certain date the brig was loading in Boston for a quick market. Extra help was put on to get the cargo aboard, and Captain Jabez signed a bond to get that cargo to its destination within a certain number of days, barring hurricanes, waterspouts and other acts of Providence. The bond had not been signed more than an hour when he broke his leg. Nothing was surer than that he could not carry out his agreement, and a great financial loss as well as many weeks of vexatious delay stared the couple in the face. They must either find a captain to take charge of the brig or forfeit the charter and pay a good round sum, and Captain Jabez was wondering if a man could be found when his wife broke in on him.

"Jabez, you have broke your leg, and I don't want to be cross with you, but you seem to forgit that I um still on earth."

"No, I don't," he replied, "but I don't see what you can do in this case except to git me back home and nurse me."

"Well, I see where I can do something else, and I'm goin' to do it too. I'm goin' to take the Hannah to the West Indies and back and save our charter."

"Have you lost your senses?"

"Not a bit of it. If I couldn't make that voyage I wouldn't be worth my salt. I know all the crew, and I'll have Bill Henderson for mate. We'll slip down there and be back ag'in before your leg has begun to knit. There needn't be any more talk about finding a captain."

When Captain Jabez thought the matter over he was inclined to think that his wife could do all she said, but the consignees had to be consulted. When Aunt Hannah went to them and stated the case they did not raise a single objection, and it was settled that she was to be Captain Hannah Snow for the voyage. It was only after the brig had left port that the mate's meanness came to the surface. He had sailed with the craft on several voyages and was a neighbor of the Snows at home. When the accident happened to Captain Jabez the mate naturally hoped to get command for the voyage. He would have been distressed if any other captain had come aboard, but to be walked over by a woman, even though she was the captain's wife and a neighbor, was too much.

Aunt Hannah saw that he was in the sulks. "Look here, Bill Henderson," she said, "it won't do you the least mite of good to go on biting your tongue over this. I can captain this brig as well as Jabez, and I'm going to take her out and back."

"You'll have her at the bottom before we strike the gulf stream," he replied.

"You never mind where I'll have her, but 'tend to your knitting. We are to crack on and make the best time we can."

A day later she found the mate carrying too little sail, and an argument ensued. Later on she came on deck from her watch below to find him chumming with the men. Two or three other things happened to put her out of temper, and she exercised the privilege of a captain by "breaking" the mate and sending him to the fo'castle. When she would replace him with the next best man, the sailor refused to take the place. The crew was with the mate. Aunt Hannah expressed her mind freely, and as a consequence the crew refused to obey. The brig was brought to the wind, sail taken off, and the woman was laughed at. She was told that not a man would do duty until the mate was reinstated.

"Then it's mutiny, is it?" she replied. "Very well. I'll let you know that you've got the wrong pig by the ear. I'll lose brig, cargo and everything else in the world before I'll give in."

For a day and a night the brig made no progress, and as the weather was fair she incurred no danger.

The crew saw that the woman did not intend to give in, and it angered them. There was one among them who had read dozens of pirate books and always longed to sail under the black flag. Things had never come right for him before, but now he took advantage of the temper of the others to broach the subject. He was a good talker, and he held out such an alluring picture that even the mate, who was above the average man in intelligence, agreed to go into the pirate business with the others. This decision was communicated to Captain Hannah, who was wandering about unconcernedly.

"Waal, Bill, that's all right," she retorted. "There's a rum and sugar loaded bark comin' our way, and you might begin on her. I've got a black shawl which I'll give you for a flag, and you just lay to, board that bark and give 'em fits."

"I'll either turn pirate or command this brig," stoutly asserted the ex-mate.

"Then it is a pirate you'll become for you'll never git command here."

So a signal of distress was set on the brig, and when the bark came up and was hove to she was boarded by all the crew of the Snow in their own yawl. They might have committed some foolish act and had to smart for it but for the woman left aboard. Just before they reached the bark she hoisted her black shawl as a signal and a warning. The crew of the stranger saw that something was wrong, and when the "pirates" attempted to board they were met with capstan bars and belaying pins. Some were seized and flung into the sea after being well thumped, and when the bark resumed her voyage and the yawl returned to the brig with the discomfited "pirates" they were met at the gangway by Captain Hannah and an ancient fowling piece and told to shear off. They felt it wise to obey, and for seven long hours they floated within a cable's length of the brig and took turns begging Aunt Hannah's pardon and entreating her forgiveness. When they were half dead with thirst and hunger she invited them aboard, or, rather, permitted them to crawl over the rail and promise all sorts of good behavior in future.

The brig had lost valuable time, but to make up for it Providence gave her a gale from the right quarter and she moved along quickly. She overran her time by a day, both going and coming, and never, after having their hurts attended to, was there a more willing mate or crew. Occasionally Captain Hannah had something to say about mutiny and piracy and broken heads, but she made no note of it in the log book, and perhaps she never told Captain Jabez. At least, when she had finished the return voyage, and he asked her how things had gone, she replied:

"I can't find the least mite of fault, and if you don't git around purty soon me'n the old brig and them Boston shippers will have no use for you."

It Recalled the Honeymoon.

Here is a quaint little story told of a young couple upon their wedding trip, crossing from Dover to Calais. Jenny had grown tired and sickly on deck, and James had led her to the saloon below, lovingly wrapping her up in a Scotch plaid in a snug looking corner. He then went and fetched her some eau de cologne and was not less lavish of endearing words until until he found he had made a mistake.

His wife had moved to another corner of the saloon more free from drafts, and an elderly woman with just the same sort of plaid had taken her place. Realizing the condition of affairs, James dropped the cologne bottle and fled. Later he induced his wife to go and apologize to the woman he had unwittingly lavished tenderness upon, and Jenny went.

"My dear," said the elderly woman tearfully, "don't apologize. It was nice to be called such sweet names. It reminded me of my honeymoon time. It's many a long year since my John had a tender word for me."

John never meant to be unkind and probably did love his wife. Only, like too many other married men, he fancied that the love which made for itself speech without measure before marriage had no need to break silence afterward.—London Tit-Bits.

The Giant's Chair.

In Dolgelly, in the north of Wales, there is a mountain celebrated in folklore, poetry and song as Cader Idris, or Idris' Chair. The hollow, couchlike excavation on the top of the mountain has given the peak its name. According to the Welsh bards, the depression was caused by the giant Idris long using it as a chair. There is a local tradition in north Wales that whoever passes the night in the Giant's Chair will be found in the morning either dead, crazy or endowed with the highest poetical aspirations. Idris is variously represented in Welsh tradition as a prince, magician, sorcerer and astronomer, the only thing on which all authorities agree being his immense stature. The "Lake of the Three Pebbles," which lies at the foot of the Giant's Chair, contains three large blocks of stone, which Idris is said to have once poured out of his boots. The smallest of these stones will weigh a ton and a half.

Why Prussia Is So Called.

The modern name of Prussia is derived from Borussi, or Porussi, who conquered the country about 320 B. C. Little is known concerning Prussia and its people till the tenth century except that that portion of the Baltic shore which is now included in the kingdom of Prussia was formerly inhabited by Slavonic tribes akin in customs and languages to the Lithuanians. They came in occasional collision with wave after wave of the great Teutonic race as it flowed down from the icy north, receiving their first knowledge of Christianity from Bishop Adalbert of Prague, whom they martyred in 997. In the middle of the thirteenth century the Teutonic knights, on their return from the crusades, undertook the conquest and conversion of Prussia. The Borussia element mingled with the followers of the Teutonic knights, and consequently with the Poles.

Tridacna Shells.

Tridacna shells are very commonly used in churches in Europe for holy water basins and even fonts. The largest perhaps are those in use at St. Peter's, Rome. These shells attain a weight of 500 pounds (the two valves together), the animal itself sometimes being twenty pounds in weight. The word "tridacna" is from the Greek tridaknos (eaten at three bites), but who could eat a twenty pound animal at three bites?—St. Nicholas.

The Broken Wire.

Have you never wondered how when a wire is broken or damaged between two distant cities the operator, sitting in his office, can tell exactly where the accident has occurred?

The explanation is very simple. It requires force to send electricity through a wire. The longer the wire is the greater is the force required. This force is measured, but instead of calling it pounds, as in measuring the pressure in a boiler, electricians call the units of electrical force "ohms."

Suppose a wire between two offices is 150 miles long, and that on a stormy night it gets broken somewhere. The telegraphist knows that when the wire was sound it took just 2,100 ohms to send a current through, or 14 ohms per mile. He now finds that he can send a current with only 700 ohms. He divides 700 by 14, and finds that the break in the wire is fifty miles from his end.

The Difference.

There is a good story told of Sir Chieh Chen Lo Feng Luh, who was formerly Chinese minister to England. Years ago he was secretary to Li Hung Chang. He is a very able man, and among other accomplishments speaks and writes English perfectly. The story is given in "The Navy as I Have Known It."

Li Hung Chang is reported to have said to him, "I don't know how it is we send our men to Europe and America, and have foreign instructors in our colleges, as do the Japanese, but we do not seem to derive the advantage from their instruction which the Japanese do."

To this Chieh Chen Lo Feng Luh replied:

"That is quite true. I was a classmate of the Marquis Ito in England. He is now prime minister of Japan, and I am your excellency's secretary."

A Warning to Mothers.

Too much care cannot be used with small children during the hot weather of the summer months to guard against bowel troubles. As a rule it is only necessary to give the child a dose of castor oil to correct any disorder of the bowels Do not use any substitute, but give the old-fashioned castor oil, and see that it is fresh, as rancid oil nauseates and has a tendency to gripe. If this does not check the bowels give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and then a dose of castor oil, and the disease may be checked in its incipiency and all danger avoided. The castor oil and this remedy should be procured at once and kept ready for instant use as soon as the first indication of any bowel trouble appears. This is the most successful treatment known and may be relied upon with implicit confidence even in case of cholera infantum. For sale by Quimby Pharmacy, Palmer.

Doctor Brigham Says

MANY PHYSICIANS PRESCRIBE

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The wonderful power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the diseases of womankind is not because it is a stimulant, not because it is a palliative, but simply because it is the most wonderful tonic and reconstructor ever discovered to act directly upon the generative organs, positively curing disease and restoring health and vigor.

Marvelous cures are reported from all parts of the country by women who have been cured, trained nurses who have witnessed cures and physicians who have recognized the virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and are fair enough to give credit where it is due.

If physicians dared to be frank and open, hundreds of them would acknowledge that they constantly prescribe Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in severe cases of female ills, as they know by experience it can be relied upon to effect a cure. The following letter proves it.

Dr. S. C. Brigham, of 4 Brigham Park, Fitchburg, Mass., writes:

"It gives me great pleasure to say that I have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound very efficacious, and often prescribe it in my practice for female difficulties.

"My oldest daughter found it very beneficial for uterine trouble some time ago, and my youngest daughter is now taking it for a female weakness, and is surely gaining in health and strength.

"I freely advocate it as a most reliable specific in all diseases to which women are subject, and give it honest endorsement."

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular menstruation, bloating (or flatulence), leucorrhœa, falling, inflammation or ulceration of the uterus, ovarian troubles, that bearing-down feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, nervous prostration or the blues, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences, and be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for further free advice. No living person has had the benefit of a wider experience in treating female ills. She has guided thousands to health. Every suffering woman should ask for and follow her advice if she wants to be strong and well.

The Antalgica

Or Vegetable Pain Reliever

was introduced to the public in 1848, since which time thousands of bottles have been sold each year to an appreciative public, which is a good evidence of its merits. It is adapted to so many ailments it should be in every household, for it cures all kinds of pains both internal and external. For Bronchial affections it is unrivaled by any article in the market. It is a sure cure for Cholera Morbus and Dysentery, if taken in season, also for Coughs. It is an effective remedy for rheumatic affections, stiff joints, swelled limbs, sprains, cramps, tooth ache and many other ills to which the flesh is heir. Try it and it will do you good It is sold at 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle by The Quimby Pharmacy, LeGro's Drug Store and the proprietor,

OLD OR NEW TOWN FARM.

Voters Will be Asked to Decide Which Next Monday.

WHAT EITHER PLAN MEANS IN COST.

Figures Showing Cost of Maintaining Poor in Other Towns of The State.

The special town meeting next Monday will have two important matters to solve—the building of a new almshouse, and whether it will be built on the old location or whether a new "town farm" shall be purchased. Both plans have their advocates, of course, and they will doubtless be out in force.

The overseers will present the facts and conditions of both plans, and they are in effect as follows: The overseers received, soon after the town farm buildings were burned, so many protests against rebuilding on the old site that they began to look about for a new one, where the land would be more fertile and where the cost of maintaining the poor could be reduced. Numerous farms were offered them, and many others were visited and considered; of all those which were for sale the Sikes place, so called, near the Four Corners, was found to be the best adapted for the uses of a town farm. It being deemed that the greatest income could be derived from the making of milk, the Sikes farm seems well adapted for this end, there being an abundance of good grass land, with fine pasturage, also ample acreage for the raising of ensilage corn and other crops. The location seems ideal, being central to all the villages of the town, with a house location beneath large shade trees. There is ample running water to both house and barns, and an opportunity on the hill directly in the rear of the buildings to secure water for fire protection at small labor and expense, should this be deemed advisable. The barns are in good condition with the exception of some minor repairs being needed, and can be made to answer for a number of years. The house is not suitable for permanent use, but can be made to comfortably shelter all the inmates of the farm until a new house can be built. On the place are three horses, 23 head of cattle, farming tools and machinery, crops in the barns and in the fields, etc All this the present owner will sell for $7000; in other words he takes his family and furniture away and nothing more. The stock, personal property and crops will come close to $2500 in value.

It will readily be seen that the new house for the inmates will cost the same, whether located on the old site or on a new one. But if it is decided to locate on the old site, a new barn will need to be built, which will cost probably $1500; then there will be feed for the stock through the winter to purchase, as everything was burned, and if only stock enough for the inmates' use is kept that will mean at least $500 more. Both of these items would be eliminated if the Sikes place is purchased. In addition there is personal property, stock, etc., which would be sold, and crops in excess of those at the former place, which will easily aggregate $1000, making the net cost only $4000. Then if the present farm is sold the money received from it could be used to still further reduce the cost. In plain words, the Sikes farm can be bought at a cost of not more than $3000 more than will be required to rebuild, with all the buildings needed, on the old site, on which there is neither running water nor fire protection; the former might be had possibly, at large expense, but the latter never.

It is certain that on the new place the average weekly cost of maintaining the poor can be made materially lower than can ever hope to be attained on the old place. The land is much better and can be made to produce much larger crops, acre for acre; it will keep four times the number of cows which the old place will. It is the opinion of the present warden that, within three or four years, the cost can be brought as low as $2 per week per inmate. This can never be done on the present farm.

The overseers are of the opinion that if the town desires to run a "Town farm,"—that is, endeavor to reduce the cost of keeping its poor by marketing the product of a farm,—the Sikes place is the best for that purpose, and that the cost can be materially reduced there.

Suggestion has been made that it would be cheaper not to attempt to farm it, but simply to raise what vegetables, etc., would be consumed by the farm inmates, and maintain an almshouse. In order to get figures on both sides requests were sent to every town in the state with a population between 5000 and 10,000, asking whether an "Almshouse" or a "Town farm" was being conducted, the average number of inmates and the average cost last year. Replies show that in 17 towns, caring for 229 inmates by the town farm method, the average cost was $2 71 per week, while 10 towns cared for 143 inmates under the almshouse method at a cost of $3 23 per week, showing a difference of 52 cents in favor of the town farm method.

The overseers will have rough plans and estimates of the cost of a new house to present at the meeting.

LOVERS IN TROUBLE.

Ware Polish Colony Interrupts Flight of Young Couple.

A little Polish romance was nipped in the bud at Ware Tuesday by the intervention of a boarding-house keeper and the police. It appears that Kiedy Jawoska, a pretty Polish girl of 23, and Stanislaw Windja, had planned to skip the town, and were about to board an outgoing train when they were arrested. The warrant against them was procured by Michael Niejaydyk, with whom the parties boarded on Water street. It was rumored in the boarding-house that Stanislaw had a wife and children in Poland. This angered his fellow-countrymen and they began to make trouble for the couple, who were ordered to leave the boarding-house. They at first refused to go, but on being threatened with arrest decided to leave. Another squabble followed, Niejaydyk claiming that Stanislaw was taking some of his wife's clothes. They appeared in the district court Wednesday morning on a statutory charge. Both pleaded not guilty, but later retracted this plea and entered one of guilty. Windja was fined $20 and the woman $10, which was paid by the latter, and both left for Boston in the afternoon.

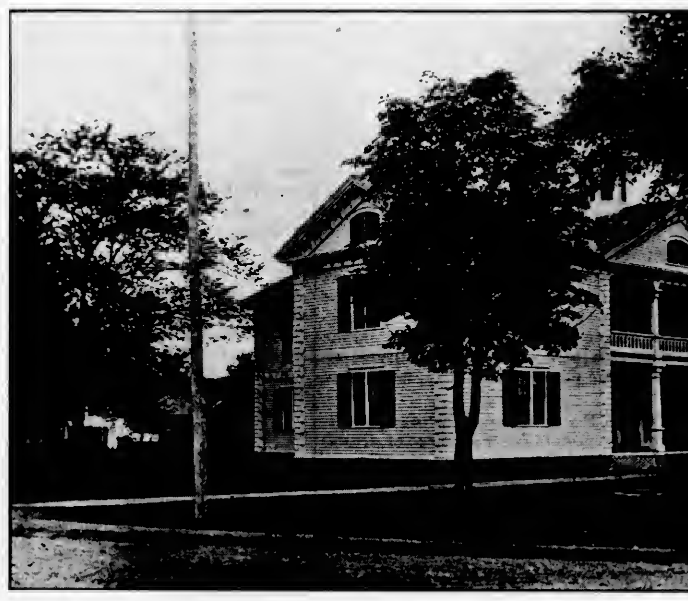
C. N. Ellithorpe has rented the vacant store in the Holden property on Central street, and with a partner will open a stock of builders' hardware; the firm will be C. N. Ellithorpe & Co.

Brimfield Academy's Fiftieth Anniversary

Celebrated Yesterday. Large Gathering of Friends and Alumni. History of the Institution and Its Founder.

The town of Brimfield has been entertaining this week, the occasion being the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Hitchcock Free Academy, the trustees and the alumni association joining in a joint observance. Yesterday was the great day, but visitors began to arrive early in the week, and the guest accommodations of the village were taxed almost to the limit. In addition, many came yesterday just for the day, returning to their homes in the afternoon or evening. Better weather could not be asked for, and the whole affair will long be remembered by those who attended.

Yesterday's program began with a business meeting of the alumni association in the Congregational church. The reunions are held once in three years; at the last one two years ago it was voted to unite with the trustees in the celebration this year, so yesterday's meeting was not a regular reunion and no business was transacted except to vote to hold the next reunion in 1909



Hitchcock Free Academy.

The literary exercises were held in the church immediately after the meeting of the alumni association. The invocation was by Rev. Roger Sherman of Passadena, Cal., and Dr. E. W. Norwood, president of the board of trustees, presided. The Philharmonic orchestra of Springfield furnished music, and after selections by it Dr Norwood spoke as follows:

Time is measured not so much by years as by events. Some men have more of life in 30 years than others in three score and ten. Short periods of history have been more momentous than other centuries. The school whose anniversary has brought us together in this happy union to-day was founded 50 years ago, but the significance of this celebration is not so much in the age of the school as in the splendid educational work which has been accomplished during its history. It has been the determining factor in many lives. It was founded in the right spirit, that the boys and girls of Brimfield and surrounding towns might have better educational facilities than their ancestors, and, though a free school, maintained by endowment, it has been a school in which the deepest lessons of life have been learned. Samuel A. Hitchcock, the founder of the school, whose memory we celebrate to-day, left Brimfield with $1 of borrowed money, and all his other worldly possessions tied up in a handkerchief. He came back a millionaire—and at a time when rich men were far less numerous than they are to-day. But, with all his success he realized that something had been left out of his life which would have added greatly to its enjoyment and value.

His business acumen was of an unusual order. He was a man of excellent judgment, of simple tastes, frugal perhaps to a fault, but of upright character and always faithful to duty. He was respected and honored in many ways, but I am sure that no act or achievement of his life gave him the satisfaction that he found in sitting on the veranda of the old hotel and watching the boys and girls, whom his money was educating, as they came out of the school building. In it all, there was for him a memorial more enduring than stone. This school was fostered in its early life by men devoted to its welfare, on' two of whom, I think, were liberally educated, but all were men of good birth, of sturdy character, of excellent judgment and of high ideals.

The school has been fortunate in the young men and women who have come from these country homes, many of them from the farms of Brimfield, and surrounding towns. They are just the sort out of which the best citizenship has been developed. I have long held the opinion that if there is an ideal school, it is the independent academy, well equipped and well managed. The public schools are hampered in many ways. The teachers do not have that latitude of action which they ought to have, much of the work is purely mechanical. It lacks originality and power. Conditions in the Hitchcock academy may not have always been ideal, and yet I am sure there are few schools whose alumni show such devotion. The school feeling has always been very strong, and this means that the life of the school has been pleasant and profitable. For the trustees, I may say that the financial condition of the school was never better than at this time. The funds are well invested, and sufficient to meet, with economy, ordinary current expenses. It would be a splendid thing, however, if the old building, which has stood for these 50 years, thoroughly remodeled only once, could be replaced by a modern structure of brick or stone, beautiful within and without, and equipped as buildings are to-day to meet many educational needs This, of course, cannot be done with the present endowment.

Hon. Salem D. Charles of Boston was the next speaker. Mr. Charles is president of the alumni association and a member of the board of trustees. He said in part:

The period of time in which the Hitchcock Free Academy was established was in some respects the most important period in the history of our country. It marked the closing of those questions that were uppermost in the minds of the people in all the earlier years of our country's history, and it also marked the beginning of that period when the country, coming out of the great war of the rebellion, practically as a new nation, was to have new questions and new ideas brought forward. No more happy period could ever have been chosen for the establishment of an academy like this to train the young people of the land in the lessons of the past and prepare them for the questions of the future. It never was Mr. Hitchcock's idea to found a school simply to perpetuate his own name or to receive the glory that would come from such an act. He founded this school with no "tainted" money, but with the savings of a lifetime, honestly acquired in the field of business. He came back here with an upright reputation and with money legitimately and honestly earned. We have a large number now whose property has been acquired in anything but an honorable and honest way, who are establishing schools and colleges and making endowments with large sums of money that have come into their possession through business opportunities, of a later day, that are anything but honorable and praiseworthy. It is with pride and pleasure that after a period of 50 years the boys and girls who have received their early education in this Academy return to-day and look back upon the life of its founder and find no stain or flaw, and thank him and the others connected with this Academy for the benefits they have derived from it and for the education they have received.

Miss Gertrude Maynard of Providence, R. I., class of '92, was the next speaker, her subject being "Those who are waiting." She said: This alumni association may be divided into two groups, those who have achieved and those who have not; each one of us knows whether we have or not, and the world thinks it knows. Are some of us sad and disappointed? Did we fail to get the right environment? Did we have to stay at home? Are we a failure? What is success? It is not measured by intellect, wealth, business capacity or artistic talent. Only one thing can make us a failure, and that is not to care. We may have failed of our hopes, but if we have kept alive one spark of that divine fire which once burned in our hearts some eye will discover it and we shall find ourselves lifted up from our quiet corner into "a larger place," as the Scripture hath it.

The following letter was read from Prof. Walter G. Everett of Brown University, who was to have been present but was unable to come:

Dr. E. W. Norwood.

My Dear Miss Tarbell: I regret that it will be impossible for me to attend the celebration of the semi-centennial of the Hitchcock free academy next Thursday. Will you convey to those in charge and, if possible, to all the friends of the old academy, my sincere regrets at not being able to attend the exercises on this most interesting occasion. I have never ceased to regard the years that I spent in Brimfield as among the most pleasant and profitable in the entire course of my education. There were qualities in the training given in the school under Dr. Norwood and Prof. Cooper which have been of the greatest value to me ever since. Scores, yes hundreds, of pupils there learned thoroughness and independence of method, and felt a genuine inspiration toward the things of the mind. May the academy flourish, and may another generation of its sons and daughters celebrate its centennial with no less enthusiasm and loyalty than we to-day! Thanking you for the invitation to participate in the exercises, I am, very truly yours,

WALTER G. EVERETT.

Rev. J. Mason Wells of the class of '98 was the next speaker, and he challenged the statement of Mr. Charles that the latter was in the first class to receive diplomas from the Academy, Mr. Wells claiming that honor for his class, because the class of '98 was the first to graduate after the name of the institution was changed from high school to academy. Mr. Wells said in part: Institutions should ask themselves occasionally the purpose of their existence. Fifty years ago the academies were among the most important training schools for citizenship and almost the only public fitting schools for college. Now the many high schools are doing the same work; is further need of the academies? Many academies have been transformed into high schools, but others have enlarged their work, increased their accommodations, added new teachers and raised their standards until they have attracted students from all parts of the world. Others have made no attempt to draw distant pupils, and the Brimfield institution is in this class. Accordingly it is well to ask what are her privileges and duties.

ASSAULTED IN WALES.

Special Justice H. A. McFarland Badly Battered.

CLUB USED BY CHARLES CRAWFORD.

Trouble Arose Over Crawford's Cattle Being Found in McFarland's Grain Field.

Special Justice Herbert A. McFarland of Wales was assaulted Sunday morning in Wales by Charles F. Crawford, and badly beaten with a club, his head being cut and bruised. Crawford was arrested later in the day and lodged in the Palmer lockup, appearing before the district court Monday, when he was bound over until to-day in $1000 bonds, which were furnished Wednesday. Crawford and McFarland have had trouble previously, and Crawford had once before been convicted of an assault upon McFarland.

The trouble which led up to the assault of Sunday morning was concerning a field of grain and some cattle. Crawford and McFarland own land near each other, and recently the latter found that a field of grain was being damaged by cattle; he built a barbed wire fence around the piece but the damage still continued and there seemed to be evidence that the cattle were regularly driven in and out of the field through the barway. Sunday morning early Mr. McFarland and an assistant went to the field and concealed themselves after finding the cattle in the grain. About 6 o'clock Crawford appeared and started to drive the cattle out; Mr. McFarland went to the barway and refused to allow the cattle to leave until Crawford had paid for the damage they had caused. Mr. McFarland then took charge of the cattle, and drove them to another location, where he started to impound them.

This Crawford refused to allow, and standing in the barway with a club kept the cattle out. Another argument ensued between the men, and Crawford attacked McFarland with a club which the latter says was about two or three inches thick and three feet long. The first blow landed on his head and broke the club; another blow again broke the club and left a piece about a foot long in Crawford's hand, with which he repeatedly jabbed McFarland, who closed with his assailant. He threatened to kill McFarland, and he says he thinks Crawford would have done so had he been alone, but his man came to his assistance and Crawford was overpowered. Crawford was allowed to go and Mr. McFarland returned to his home and had his wounds dressed. These consisted of two gashes which had to be sewed up, and numerous smaller cuts. Crawford was arrested later in the day; he made no resistance, and had little to say concerning the matter.

The case was heard in the district court in Palmer this morning, and showed an apparent attempt on the part of Crawford to kill Mr. McFarland. Crawford declined to make any statement and took no part in the proceedings whatever. In view of the gravity of the offense, he was bound over to the grand jury in $2000 bonds.

SERIOUS AUTO ACCIDENT.

Man Has Both Legs and an Arm Broken Near North Wilbraham.

A serious automobile accident occurred a short distance west of North Wilbraham on the road to Springfield Tuesday afternoon, by which one man will be crippled for life, if he is fortunate enough to escape amputation of one leg.

The accident occurred near the Moran crossing over the Boston and Albany railroad, and was of a peculiar nature. George F. Fletcher, a member of a wholesale grocery firm in Philadelphia, with his brother Gustavus, were on their way from Boston to Lenox, where they expected to spend the night. It was about 4 30, and they were speeding along the road at a good clip in a 30-horse-power Packard machine. As they approached the crossing they overtook a team belonging to the Wight Thayer company of Indian Orchard and turned out to pass it; the team in this way obscured the view so as shut off the sight of another machine approaching from the opposite direction until they were close together on the same side of the team. Augustus Fletcher, who was driving, turned his machine almost at right angles into the ditch, and the suddenness of the stop threw his brother out directly in the path of the other machine, a Stevens Duryea which could not be stopped, and both wheels of one side passed over Mr. Fletcher's lower limbs.

He was taken in his car to the office of Dr. M. B. Flanders in Ludlow, and Dr. O. C. Gelineau was also summoned; Mr. Fletcher's injuries were cared for sufficiently to enable his removal to the Mercy hospital in Springfield, where it was discovered that there was a compound comminuted fracture of the left leg, the bones being ground almost to a pulp, so that it is doubtful if they can ever be put in place so that the leg can be used again; the right leg had a multiple fracture near the ankle, and the left forearm was also doubly fractured. Mr. Fletcher was made as comfortable as possible, but it will be at least a couple of months before he is able to leave the hospital, even if it should not be found necessary to amputate the left leg.

Gustavus Fletcher, who was driving the machine, was not hurt, his grip on the steering wheel preventing his being thrown out. The accident was the result of an unfortunate combination of circumstances, and was due to no carelessness, unless it may be that the speed was excessive in consideration of the proximity of the team to be passed.

PALMER NEWS.

Woman's Club Program.

The Palmer Woman's Club has issued a neat program, announcing its work for the coming season. The program of meetings and topics is as follows: October 6, lecture, "Relative values," Miss O. M. E. Rowe; October 21, miscellaneous program and social afternoon, in charge of Mrs. Chandler, Mrs. Harrison and Mrs. Waid; November 3, lecture by Mrs. Atherton; November 17, reciprocity day, in charge of Mrs. Carrie J. Clark and Mrs. Elizabeth Mooers; December 1, current literature, Mrs. Bard and Mrs. Nellie Fuller; December 15, lecture, "The woman of women," Miss Kimball; January 5, social evening, in charge of Miss Blanche Hastings, Mrs. Georgianna Fuller and Mrs. Myra Gamwell; January 19, lecture, "The art of story-telling," Sara Cone Bryant; February 2, village improvement committee; February 16, joint meeting of the Tuesday Club and Woman's Club, readings from Shakespeare, Mrs. Pratt; March 2, "An afternoon with Japan," Mrs. Patton, Mrs. Backus and Mrs. Ralton; March 16, guest night; committee, Mrs. Carpenter, Mrs. Holbrook, Mrs. Keith, Mrs. Northrop and Mrs. Purinton; April 6, current events, Mrs. Leach and Mrs. Fairing; April 20, annual meeting and social, Mrs. Gunn, Mrs. Woodhead and Mrs. Gray.

Excursion to Block Island.

The Central Vermont railroad announces the last excursion of the season to Watch Hill and Block Island on Thursday of next week. A special train will be run from Palmer, leaving at 7.45, Monson at 7.53, South Monson at 7 56, and including the stations to and including Yantic. Returning the special train will leave New London at 5 in the afternoon. The rate will be $1 for the round trip if return is made the same day, or $1 75 with privilege of remaining over Sunday; this applies to either Watch Hill or Block Island, the rate being the same to both. This will provide an excellent opportunity for those who have not yet been to the seashore this season, or for any who may wish for an outing of a few days, to secure one at reasonable cost. The attractions at both Watch Hill and Block Island are numerous, and the fishing at the latter place is said to be unusually good this season.

Comic Opera at Forest Lake.

Comic opera will be given every afternoon and evening next week at Forest Lake. The piece will be "Boccaccio," or the "Prince of Palermo." It is one of the Italian successes, and one of the few comic operas which, when translated, was not cut to pieces in order to fit the American stage. It deals with love and romance, and there is a dash about the music which infuses vigor into its action. The cast is a good one, and there will be a fine chorus of picked voices properly costumed.

Miss M. Ella Webster is visiting friends in Springfield.

Mrs. W. P. Webster has returned from a visit to Hyannis.

Mrs. M. J. Dillon is able to be out again after a week's illness.

Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Bray are spending a week at Block Island.

Frank Leland of Worcester visited with friends in town Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Lee have returned from a vacation at Lake Pleasant.

Mrs. John Doyle Jr. and children are spending the week in New Britain, Ct.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Lynde of Webster visited friends in town a part of the week.

Jacob Hoffman has purchased of Abner Podrat his clothing store in the Holden block.

Miss Annie Bucknell of Cambridge is the guest at the home of C. J. Leary on Park street.

Mrs. Fred F. Nowatzky of Norwich, Ct., is the guest of Miss Effie Cordner on Dewey Hill.

Rufus S. Parkhurst was given a surprise visit by a number of his friends Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Buffington are spending a vacation of a week in various places in Connecticut.

E. R. Pierce and F. E. Cady have gone to Montreal and Toronto, where they will remain a week.

L. G. Stacy and Mrs. C. E. Stacy are spending ten days at Three Elms House, Stony Creek, Ct.

Miss May Wilder of the Journal office force is spending a ten-days' vacation in Southington, Ct.

Mrs. L. E. Moore of Newtonville, formerly of Palmer, has been visiting friends in town this week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Converse are spending a vacation at Philadelphia, Atlantic City and Washington.

Albert Ayers of Park street will move his family to New Amsterdam, N. Y., where he is employed.

Miss Nellie Finnerty is taking a two-weeks' vacation and will visit relatives in Springfield and Holyoke.

Mr. and Mrs. George Newbury of Mystic, Ct., are visiting Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Colburn on Pleasant street.

Mrs. James Rohan of Springfield and Miss Kate Waldron of New Bedford visited Mrs. J. L. Wilder this week.

Miss Nettie Coleman has gone to New Bedford, where she will be for two weeks with her sister, Mrs. John Ferris.

William Merriam, who has been confined to the house for some time on account of sickness, is able to be out again.

Clifton H. Hobson has been appointed census taker of the town by the school committee to take the school census.

Mrs. Edward Goodes and daughter, Mrs. J. D. Kendrick, and Mrs. Charles Reed have gone to Nova Scotia for a vacation.

Howard W. Banks, formerly employed by the Armour company in this village, has taken a position with the Ware Beef Company.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morrill of Waterbury, Ct., formerly of Palmer, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Backus on Pleasant street.

The 15 pairs of rubber boots voted to be bought by the fire district last spring have arrived. They will be kept at the engine house ready for use.

An attachment was filed Saturday in Springfield by J. F. Holbrook & Son of Palmer against Oliver and Hannah LaSalle in an action of contract, $500.

Mrs. Mary Meaney of Hartford, Ct., and granddaughter, Miss Clare Cavanaugh of New London, Ct., have been guests at the home of Thomas Roche the week.

At a meeting of the Congregational church last evening C. F. Smith, L. E. Chandler and Mrs. W. H. Fuller were elected a pulpit supply committee.

Palmer Grange has changed its place of meeting from the district court room to a hall in the opera house block, where they will begin holding meetings Sept. 1st.

Miss Clara Rowley, a former principal of the school at Thorndike, now teaching at Braintree, has been visiting Mrs. A. H. Moulton at the Nassowanno House for a few days.

The service next Sunday at the Advent chapel will be at 3 p. m., when Mr. Makepeace will speak on "Co-workers with God." Prayer meeting Wednesday evening at 7.30.

The cemetery commissioners are clearing up the new part of the Thorndike street cemetery, raking up the brush, dead grass, etc., and burning it, making a decided improvement in the appearance of the place.

Chief Boatswain John McGrath of the U. S. navy, and wife, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Grimston, Brookdale farm, near Palmer Center. Miss Anna Hartman, a young artist of Boston, is also visiting at the same place.

Pupils who have not previously attended the public schools are reminded that before they can be admitted next month they must present a certificate of vaccination, or a physician's statement that they are unfit subjects for vaccination.

There was a large attendance at Forest Lake on Tuesday, there being two Sunday schools from West Brokfield in addition to the Grange picknickers. It was one of the biggest crowds at the Lake in recent years when no special attractions were offered.

M. J. Dillon Jr., who has been clerking in the Quimby Pharmacy during the summer, will conclude his work there next Monday. He will return to Baltimore Medical College in September. William Weeks will take his position in the drug store.

In the district court this morning William McDonald of various locations was assessed $10 for drunkenness, and in default of funds was sent up. Regina Meron of Ludlow, an idle and dissolute person, was sent to the woman's reformatory at Sherborn for a year.

W. O. Hovey brought to the Journal office this week several apples of last year's growth which were as sound and pleasing to the taste as when picked nearly a year ago. They were placed in his cellar last fall, and were not disturbed in the barrel until taken out this week.

Henry D. Furbush, who has been principal of Three Rivers school, has resigned to take a position in the Hyde Park schools. The vacancy will be filled by Louis S. Record, a graduate of the Brown University in 1901, and from the law school of the University of Maine in 1904.

Superintendent of Schools Fuller will be in his office in the high school building next Tuesday from 7 to 8 in the evening for the convenience of any who may wish to consult him regarding entering the public schools for the first time. He will also be at the same place on Saturday, from 11 a. m. to 12.

Charles Flynn appeared before the district court yesterday on a charge of drunkenness. He had a job to go to in Monson, but as he came from there yesterday, and had borrowed $5 with which to pay a fine for drunkenness July 25, at the same time promising complete reformation, Justice Dillon concluded that he'd keep him sober for 30 days at least, and he was sent up.

The Palmers will cross bats with the Stafford Springs nine again to-morrow on the local grounds. Stafford has beaten Palmer twice, the first time taking 13 innings after Palmer had won the game a couple of times; the other at Stafford when a new pitcher proved a hoodoo rather than the "find" he was expected. The game to-morrow will be a hot one, and should draw a good crowd.

A new ice company, to be known as the Palmer Ice Company, has been organized and announces that it will be ready for business April 1, 1906. The company proposes to build an ice pond on the Burleigh brook, where it has purchased 14 acres of land of M. J. Dillon. A contract has been made for the erection of an ice-house. The pond will be supplied by the brook and a large number of springs on the property.

Last Friday night was a record-breaker for the theatre at Forest Lake, there being the largest attendance of any single performance since the theatre was opened. Every seat was filled, the vacant space between them and the fence was packed, and a portion of the standing room in the aisles. The sale of tickets was stopped, and late comers were told that if they could get inside the doors they were welcome.

A juvenile session was held in the district court Saturday morning, when the continued case of Willard Wallace, aged 13 years, who was arrested for throwing stones at the electric car, was further continued until Nov. 6. In the case of Frank Green's children, who were charged with being neglected, the court ordered the four youngest to be committed to the care of the State Board of Charity, and that the case of Anna, the second oldest child, be continued until Nov. 6.

Rev. F. B. Harrison, a former pastor, preached in the Congregational church Sunday morning and was greeted by a large audience, which included not only his former parishioners but many friends from the other churches of the place. The evening service was also well attended, and by special request Mr. Harrison conducted the service at Silver Street, where he preached many times while located in Palmer. Mr. Harrison will occupy the pulpit again next Sunday.

The postponed clambake of the Red Men was held on Wednesday afternoon on the Ware road, and apparently there was nothing lost by the event coming a week later than planned. The Palmer contingent went up on the 3 30 car and the bake was opened immediately on their arrival; it proved to be done "just right," and the Rohans, who engineered it, were given many compliments on the results of their efforts. The number of tickets had been limited, so that there was enough for all.

Mrs. Benjamin Butler, 75, died at her home on North Main street about 3 o'clock Tuesday morning. Mrs. Butler was born in Pittsfield, and about 24 years ago came to North Wilbraham, removing to Palmer nine years ago. A year later, while on a visit to friends in Connecticut she suffered a partial paralytic stroke, from the effects of which she never recovered; for the past year she has been very feeble, requiring attention. She had no near relatives. The funeral was held from the house yesterday afternoon, Rev. M. O. Patton of the Congregational church officiating; burial was in East Wilbraham cemetery.

The tide of travel to Brimfield for the academy anniversary and reunion yesterday taxed the capacities of the stage line from Palmer to that town to the limit. The regular conveyance took over a load of 14—all it could carry—and left a large overflow which was accommodated by a large barge drawn by a pair of mules. The passengers numbered a dozen or more, and proposed that their entry into the town of their youth should not pass unnoticed, so proceeded to invest in tin horns and other musical instruments wherewith to make their trip over the route remembered by others as well as themselves.

A quiet wedding took place at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. John Lyman on Park street yesterday afternoon, when their daughter, Mabel Eleanor, was married to Almon John Rivers of Worcester. The ceremony was private, only relatives being present, and was performed by Rev. M. O. Patton of the Congregational church, the Episcopal service with ring being used. The couple were unattended. The bride wore pearl gray crepe de chine trimmed with Persian embroidery, and carried a shower bouquet of sweet peas and maiden-hair ferns. The wedding march from Lohengrin was played by Miss May Dillon as the couple entered the parlor; she also rendered "O, Promise Me" during the ceremony. The decorations were sweet peas, maiden-hair ferns and hydrangeas. After the ceremony refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Rivers left on the 8.06 train for a two-weeks' wedding trip in New York state and the Thousand Islands, after which they will make their home in Worcester, where the groom is employed.

It happened in Palmer 20 years ago.

Items from the Palmer Journal of August 28, 1885.

There was a slight frost Wednesday night in some parts of the village.

The first annual drummers' clam-bake and picnic takes place at Forest Lake next Wednesday.

The rink will be open for skating to-morrow evening. The Bondsville band will furnish music.

Remember the meeting for the formation of a fire district to be held in the district court room next Monday at 2 p. m.

A tolling hammer has been added to the Congregational church bell this week, there never having been one before.

The Italians who have been employed in the construction of the Palmer Water Co's. reservoir departed for Natick on Monday.

John R. Wellman bid off the Turner property, corner of South Main street and Fox avenue, which was sold at auction on Wednesday, for $1600.

A citizen, now away on a vacation, took particular pains to inform a Journal reporter that he was going four days before he went, and then wondered " how those d—— reporters find out where a man's going before he knows himself."

The authorities of Naples intend to find out all about the death by drowning of the Italian at Moloney's pond some time since. A fellow workman has lately received a letter from the chief of police at Naples inquiring whether the deceased went into the water of his own accord, or was pushed in.

There was a slight row at what is known as the "Lighthouse" on Thorndike street the other evening. A negro under the influence of liquor struck an insane member of the family over the head with a kettle, struck his wife in the face with a mop, and freely used his fists upon her. No arrests.

A town meeting has been called for one week from to-morrow, to see what action will be taken in regard to paying for the new engine and engine house. Wonder if the citizens of this village will care enough about having a fire engine here to attend this meeting and appropriate the money therefor?

The following dialogue was heard on the street last Saturday. First urchin—"Goin' to church to-morrow?" Second urchin—"Ain't no church." "Goin' to Sunday school, ain't yer?" "Ain't no Sunday school to-morrow." "Why ain't they goin' to be no church er Sunday school to-morrow?" "Goin' to give the devil a chance once in a while."

The fame of our new railroad station has reached Marlboro, and this is the way the Times of that town comments:

> The way to drive a hog is to try to drive him the way you don't want to have him go. That is the way the people of Palmer have to do when they go to the railroad depot. They come out on the street, take a look at the depot, turn around and walk the other way for a half mile or so, then turn about again and come back on nearly the same line, and there they are, at the depot.

G. A. R. SELECTS NEW YORK CENTRAL

Lines as "Official Route" to Denver. To Leave Boston Wednesday, August 30.

The late Gen. Blackmar, before his decease, had already given consideration to the train service, and other accommodations for the veterans on their trip to Denver, and had selected the New York Central Lines as their official route to Denver, and the present Commander-in-Chief, General King, has confirmed this arrangement.

The route will be, Boston and Albany and New York Central to Buffalo, Lake Shore and Michigan Southern to Chicago (or Big Four Route to St. Louis), thence Burlington Route to Denver.

The Executive Committee have arranged for the "official train" to leave Boston 10 45 a. m. Wednesday, August 30th. This train is due in Chicago at 11 59 a. m. Thursday, August 31st, leaving Chicago at 5 p. m. the same day, is due in Denver at 7.50 p. m. Friday, September 1st.

This gives the veterans a day longer at home, and consumes only two nights on the road.

The Woman's Relief Corps have been invited to join the Official Headquarters train, which gets them into Denver in ample time for the Exercises at Cheyenne on Saturday.

Low rate excursion tickets are on sale at principal offices, and all interested should call on or address New York Central Lines, City Offices and Information Bureaus at 366 Washington St., Boston, 285 Main St., Worcester, and 404 Main St., Springfield, Mass.

Is it Right?

Is it right that a property-owner should lose $4.20 to let a dealer make 50 cents? A dealer makes 50 cents more on fourteen gallons of ready-for-use paint, at $1 50 per gallon, than our agent does on eight gallons of L & M. paint and six gallons of linseed oil, which make fourteen gallons of the best paint in the world, at $1 20 per gallon; the property-owner loses just $4 20 Is it right?

It only requires 4 gallons of L & M. and 3 gallons linseed oil to paint a moderate sized house.

Monson News.

Saturday Night Disturbance.

An unusual disturbance which followed the arrival of the last electric car from Palmer Saturday night has created much comment. It is an argument in favor of a night policeman, for which there has been some demand. It is stated by people who were upon the car that the crowd was very noisy and that several times there were indications of serious trouble. It has also been stated that one of the disturbers fired a revolver twice upon the car. The conductor says there was no more disturbance upon the car than is usual on the last trip Saturday nights, and that no revolver was fired to his knowledge. At any rate, after the car arrived in Monson there were disturbances in several parts of the village. One occurred near Flynt's store and Officer John McCarthy was sent for. He dispersed the crowd in short order, but without making any arrests.

A corn roast for members of the Epworth League of the Methodist church was held Wednesday night at the home of the president, Miss Mabel E. Crouch, on Crouch road.

Mr. and Mrs. James Cronin of South Boston have been spending the week at the home of Mrs. Cronin's sisters, Misses Minnie and Katherine Sheehan on South street.

Joseph Brunelle of Gilbertville has opened a barber shop in Benoit's block on North street, recently occupied by O. Picotte, who has moved to Marcy's block on North street. The town once more has three barber shops.

A party of about a dozen business men and clerks of the town had a private clambake on the old Bresnahan farm on the Brimfield road, about four miles from West Warren, Monday afternoon. Fishing was also enjoyed and a pleasant afternoon was spent.

WALES.

A Merry Fishing Party.

A fishing party drawn by four large horses, consisting of Theoren Ryder, driver, and C. G. Thompson, wife and daughter, C. M Gale, wife and daughter, Edward Rood, wife and daughter, Mr. Inman, wife and daughter, Mrs. Mary Sexton, went to the Holland reservoir Wednesday fishing and for a picnic, taking with them all kinds of vegetables and pastry food and 10 pounds of lard in which to fry the fish. Having toiled some hours at fishing with no results they went ashore and devoured the food brought with them. Not content with their luck the male portion of the party determined to try for a catch, and after a while Mr. Gale succeeded in landing a pickerel; Mr. Rood, who boasts skill in fishing, determined not to be outdone by anyone and succeeded in bringing out a horn pout, which ended the fishing. They arrived back in town about 10 o'clock in the evening in a joyful mood.

Thomas Canan and wife of Worcester, Miss Flora Hunt and Miss Edith Webber of Waltham visited Thursday at H. A. McFarland's while on their way to attend the alumni service at Hitchcock Free Academy at Brimfield.

A little forethought may save you no end of trouble. Anyone who makes it a rule to keep Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy at hand knows this to be a fact. For sale by Quimby Pharmacy, Palmer.

Brimfield Academy's Fiftieth Anniversary.

Should she aspire to become a great institution, or simply be a high school for Brimfield? I believe she has a distinctive work as an academy. I will not attempt to cover the whole ground of what I regard as her peculiar work, but will confine my remarks to a service she may render one class of students, a most important class, which comes to her every year, asking for guidance into the realms of truth. This class is represented by the boy who comes with hands calloused from work on the farm, awkward in company, whose early training has been received in a poorly graded district school and whose mental habits are slow and not overmethodical. No school is better adapted to the training of such a young man. Here, too, it is our duty to give to this student the highest possible ideals of citizenship. It is not enough to make the world better for him. He should be made better for the world. He cannot afford to omit this practical side of education but should take more and more care to advance it. Our country can be kept safe from the dangers which ever threaten it only by producing men and women of strong, unselfish characters and high ideals, not only to fill its offices of public trust, but to live in right social and political relations in the shop, on the farm, in the town and city, and, most of all, in the home.

Hitchcock's free academy can do the work to which she is called, a part of which I have outlined, only by maintaining its high standard of teachers. But not only must one have strong teachers, but one must continually adjust our branches of study to the needs of our time. May the influence of our academy grow ever, wider, stronger and nobler.

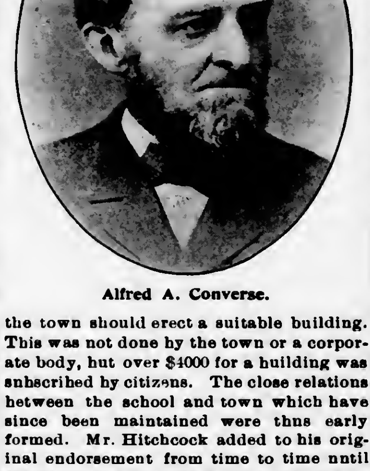
Miss Alice Hayner Marsh Quincy, class of '82, read an interesting historical sketch, and was followed by W. B. Homer of St. Louis, Mo., who was a graduate of the grammar school, at the beginning of the present institution. He spoke of several of the early teachers, and called attention to the incorporation by the Legislature, between 1790 and 1900, of a library in Brimfield, a fact not generally known.

The last speaker was A. L. Converse of Warren, the only living member of the first board of trustees. Mr. Converse regretted that he had felt obliged to retire from the board at the end of 25 aears, when had he remained he might have rounded out a half a century of service for the institution.

Dinner was served in a large tent on the common soon after the exercises in the church closed. Seats were provided for 500, and the occasion proved a most enjoyable one from a social standpoint; all were well served. The toastmaster was Charles H. Walker, one of the earliest pupils of the school, who filled the position to the satisfaction of all. The speakers were George Plimpton of Tilton, N. H., Mrs. Mary Knight Hyde of Ware, Mrs. Alfred Chase of Newport, R I., S. W. French of Newtonville, Miss Agnes Clancey of Smith College, George W. Brainerd of Holyoke, Sumner Parker of Brimfield, Miss Elsie Sessions Hill of Hartford, Ct., John Sherman of Worcester and Miss M. Anna Tarbell of Brimfield. The Fiskdale band gave a concert in the evening, and an "Interview" was held in the town hall, which was largely attended.

History of the Academy.

The founding of the Hitchcock Free Academy may be traced to the unfulfilled desire of a poor Brimfield boy, nearly a hundred years ago, to obtain an education beyond that which the schools of his town afforded. In 1855 after he had amassed a fortune and returned to Brimfield, Samuel A. Hitchcock founded the institution which is now the Hitchcock Free Academy, in order that the youth of the town could have the privileges which he was denied. The important part which the people of Brimfield took in the establishment of the institution should also be spoken of. Mr. Hitchcock offered $10,000 on condition that the town should erect a suitable building. This was not done by the town or a corporate body, but over $4000 for a building was subscribed by citizens. The close relations between the school and town which have since been maintained were thus early formed. Mr. Hitchcock added to his original endorsement from time to time until at the time of his death, Nov. 23, 1873, it had amounted to $80 000 The school was incorporated April 26, 1855 as the Hitchcock free grammar school, and with the provision that it should be of such a grade that "young men may be fitted for college or the business life." It was to be free to the children of Brimfield, but tuition might be exacted from others. In 1871 all tuition was abolished. The care of the school was vested in nine trustees, residents of Brimfield. The only surviving member of the original board is Alfred L. Converse of Warren. He and the late Henry F. Brown were instrumental in obtaining the contributions of citizens, and Mr. Converse was treasurer of the school for 25 years or more. The school was founded at an era in the history of education in Massachusetts when there were few academies and comparatively few high schools, and it soon began to call pupils from distant as well as nearby towns. A gradual development in its character, privileges, and size was made possible by Mr. Hitchcock's increasing gifts. First the building was enlarged and a regular assistant took the place of a pupil assistant. For the first 15 years there was no course of study, but in 1869, in the principalship of Elias Brookings, the first class graduated from an arranged course.



Alfred A. Converse.

The year 1871 was an eventful one in the history of the school. Mr. Hitchcock then made a gift of $40,000, by which the building was enlarged to its present size and the scope of the institution increased in every way. Two courses of study were established with the addition of daily instruction in music, and four teachers were employed. E. W. Norwood was the efficient principal who directed this development, and whose influence during his principalship of ten years from 1869 to 1879 was formative in its nature upon the school and the lives of the large number of pupils under him. In 1871-2 there were 127 different pupils and in 1876-1877, 150 were enrolled. Besides Hampden county, Hampshire, Franklin and Worcester counties were largely represented, and many came from Connecticut and Maine. At this time the name of the school was changed to Hitchcock free high school. The school library started in 1869 and now numbering over 1500 volumes was increased, and in a measure, took the place of a town library. From 1875 to 1877 and from 1890 to 1893 there were five teachers. In 1875 the number of trustees was made 13, four of whom could be non-residents. In 1887 the number was increased to 15 and the limitation of residence was removed.

A marked feature of the school for more than half of its history was the custom of oral examinations held at the end of each term. A day or more was set apart for them, and they lasted till five o'clock on the closing day of the school. The examinations were open to the public, and the school hall was crowded. The trustees sat like so many cross-examiners in the front seats, and the terrified pupils could seldom do themselves justice in the ordeal. If the pupil's knowledge was deficient or he became confused, he was said to "fail," which was felt as a great disgrace.

The school was long distinguished for its dramatic exhibitions given at the close of the winter term. People drove long distances to attend these, and remarkably proficient acting was witnessed. A week of the winter term devoted to their preparation was felt to be profitably spent. In the highest stage of development of this branch of the school's activity, such plays as "Little Barefoot," "Fanchon," "Ivanhoe" and Sue Mannering were given, and the opera of "Pepita" was given when music was a prominent branch. In more recent years "The Pirates of Penzance has been presented.

The Hitchcock Debating Society or Lyceum has been maintained throughout the school's history with the exception of an interval of ten years. For a year a school paper printed by pupils on a handpress was published. It was called "The Brimfield Bugle."

The school has not been without lapses of fortune, for the year 1877 was an unfortunate one financially. Only about one-half the endowment fund yielded any income. It was necessary to dispense with a teacher and things looked dark. The heartfelt interest in the school is shown by the fact that the secretary of the trustees, Henry F. Brown, broke down and cried like a child at the outlook, while Principal Norwood offered to teach without any salary, if need be. The poor investments were redeemed by Mr. Hitchcock's heirs, and in recent years under the management of the present treasurer, H. H. Bowman of Springfield, the funds have increased to more than $80,000. The name academy, which was given to the institution in 1897, was because the name is more suitable to its character as compared with other schools. Each name has indicated this relative character rather than a change of the nature of the school.

Owing to the fact that all towns are now provided with high school privileges, the attendance upon the Hitchcock school has fallen off but the high grade of instruction is maintained, and its scope is larger than ever before. A complete business course is the most recent addition. There are now four courses of study with five teachers, and music again holds a prominent place. Music recitals by the teachers and pupils have drawn the public to the school in addition to the attractions of the time-honored rhetorical exercises. The close relations of the institution and the town have been renewed in the past few years.

The present principal is Benjamin D. May, who is in full sympathy with the traditions of the school as well as being a trained educator.

The Hitchcock school has been notable in the hold it has taken on the affections and lives of its pupils. A large share of its pupils would never have had an education beyond that of the common schools without it, and to attend it has been the cherished purpose for years of many a boy and girl. Its alumni constantly testify to the power of the institution still felt by them. Thus Mr. Hitchcock's purpose in founding the school which bears his name is more than realized.

The 15th anniversary of the founding of the school was observed in 1870, and the 25th anniversary in 1881. At its quarter-centennial an alumni association was formed which now numbers about 500 members and which holds its reunions triennial.

Samuel A. Hitchcock.

Samuel Austin Hitchcock was born in Brimfield January 9, 1794 His parents were people of limited means and he was a hard-working industrious lad, supporting himself by his own efforts early in life. He was unable to obtain any education beyond that afforded by the town schools, and it was a deprivation he keenly felt as he saw one and another of his companions attending Monson Academy. The founding of the school which bears his name and his help to other institutions of learning may be traced to his unfulfilled desire for an education. He attended school only during the winter terms, working on a farm, riding post or being engaged as "store boy" during the summer season. He taught school one winter when he was 17 years old. The next year he made a decision which had a momentous purpose. As he was passing the house occupied by Squire Williams, then the leading merchant of the village, the thought flashed upon him, "Why cannot I give myself to business and achieve success?" Instantly came the resolution, "I can and I will." From this time on his life was marked by a steady persistency in devotion to business and the building up of a fortune.

March 23, in the year 1812, he left home in search of employment, with one dollar of borrowed money in his pocket and all his spare clothing tied up in a blue striped handkerchief. He found a place in the store of Bela Tiffany of Dudley, and so devoted himself to the interests of his employer during the first year that at its close he was rewarded with a gratuity of $50, a large sum for those days, for extra services during the year. This he at once deposited in the savings bank, and as he made it a rule never to withdraw an investment this same fifty dollars remained to his credit in the same bank at the time of his death. He was in the commission business for the sale of manufactured goods in Boston for about 20 years, and afterwards was persuaded to act as agent of the Hamilton Woolen Company in Southbridge. He represented that town in the Legislature in 1836, and from 1836 to 1842 was president of the Southbridge bank. At this time he retired from active business life with a large fortune and returned to pass the remainder of his days in Brimfield, where he had purchased a house in 1832 for his widowed mother. He died November 23, 1373, in his quiet home in the secluded hamlet of his birth, possessed of a fortune estimated at over $2,000,000.

The life and business career of Mr. Hitchcock, by means of whose wealth the school that bears his name exists, present a sharp contrast to those of most wealthy men of to-day. He could not have dreamed of the quick and questionable methods of getting riches that now prevail. He became a millionaire on the slow principle of adding a dollar earned to a dollar saved and letting these gain more. He was over-prudent and saving perhaps, but he was scrupulously exact and conscientiously honorable. He realized that he had a talent for amassing a fortune, but he also felt that its possession brought responsibility and he studied closely the question of giving, so often brought before him. His gifts were principally to the cause of education and to religious institutions. Amherst College and Andover Theological Seminary received the largest donations from him. The amount given at various times to the school in Brimfield was $80,000. The aggregate of his donations was about $650,000.

Mr. Hitchcock never married, and passed a solitary old age. The school that he had founded was his chief enjoyment in his declining years. He was especially rejoiced at the number of pupils when there were one hundred in attendance, and eagerly watched for the dismissal of the sessions saying, "See them come out!" The school was giving to many boys and girls the privileges he had sorely missed. Although he had lost his hearing Mr. Hitchcock never failed to visit the school each week when the rhetorical exercises were held, and on all public occasions. He watched the proceedings so intently that he never failed to praise the ones who had rendered excellent parts. He was not demonstrative, but gentle, kindly and observant in his notice of children and young people, who always called him, as did many of their elders, "Uncle Austin." Those children are middle-aged people now, but this anniversary brings with renewed clearness before them the spare form, the delicate complexion, the mild blue eyes and the personal interest of their loved and revered benefactor.

WARREN.

Death of Mrs. Chloe E. Biber.

Mrs. Chloe E. Biber, 62, wife of Jacob Biber, died Saturday morning at their home on Washburn court. She had been ill four months with consumption. Besides her husband, she is survived by a sister, Mrs. Mary Moon of Palmer, and the following children: Arthur of Warren, William Rice of Dunstable, Fred Biber and Miss Nellie Root of Merrick. The funeral was held Monday afternoon and burial was in the Pine Grove cemetery.

BELCHERTOWN.

Heavy Taxpayers.

The assessors have completed their work and the following persons pay a tax of $100 or over: A. M. Bagg, $149.68; L. W. Dillon, $314.36; E H. Dyer, $134 73; Peter Hanafin, $103.23; A. W. Stacy, $112 18; M. P. Walker, $145 20; Mrs. L. M. Warner, $130 67. Non-resident taxpayers — Boston Duck Company, $705 26; D. P. Clapp, $190 64; Springfield Water Company, $159.23. By vote of the town, all taxes must be paid on or before November 1.

Death of Mrs. Thayer.

Mrs. Delia Whiting Thayer, 75, widow of Morton Thayer, died at her home on Maple street Monday. Mrs. Thayer was until the past week apparently in good health, but an attack of acute dysentery caused her death. She leaves two sisters, Mrs. Julia Frost of Springfield and Mrs. Philene Needham of Maine, also a niece, Mrs. Leroy Brown of Springfield. The funeral was held Wednesday and burial was in Thorndike.

Bridgman Family Reunion.

A reunion of the Bridgman family was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Purdy Tuesday evening, 17 people being present. Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. Frank P. Winter and Miss Eldora Winter of Springfield, nieces of Mrs. Purdy. Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Purdy and Miss Maud Bridgman rendered musical selections during the evening.

Illness Probably Fatal.

Friends of H. C. Colton of Montpelier, Vt., learned this week of his probably fatal illness. Mr. Colton is well known in Western Massachusetts as the senior member of the Colton Manufacturing Company of Montpelier. Mrs. Colton is a native and former resident of Belchertown.

Miss Lucy D. Thomson has returned to her home in Providence, R I.

The Baptist church Sunday school held its annual picnic at the ponds Tuesday.

The census returns have been received and give Belchertown a population of 2088, a loss of 78 since the last census.

Mrs. H. W. Blake and Miss Mary Blake, who have spent the season at their summer home here, have returned to Springfield.

Mrs. Thomas Ferriter, whose death occurred in Holyoke last week, was well known in Belchertown, her husband having been connected for many years with the Park View Hotel.

An effort is being made to have the Boston and Maine railroad stop the morning and evening trains at Belchertown ponds, to accommodate Belchertown and Amherst people who desire to hold picnics there.

The closing of the three-days' exhibit and sale of the Arts and Crafts Society occurred Monday, the last day drawing many visitors. Dr. G. F. Thomson each morning donated between 200 and 300 poppies for the tables of the society.

Mrs. Charles L Holland held a family reunion Sunday, and among those present were Mrs. Edward Fiske of Philadelphia, Pa., Mrs. Holland's daughter, and Luther Holland of Worcester and Miss Dorothy Holland of York, Pa.

The Sun's Heat.

"The sun's heat?" said the astronomer. "Well, let us say that the value of the sun's heat is $25,000,000. Now, what proportion of all that value do you suppose warms the earth? Only 2 cents' worth.

"All the rest of the sun's heat is wasted in space. Of the $25,000,000 the earth only gets 2 cents.

"With coal I can give you another idea of the sun's heat. Suppose that the earth was to contract to heat the sun. Do you know what the result would be? All the coal upon the earth would suffice to maintain the present solar heat for just the one-tenth of a second."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Make Your Guess.

A beautiful young lady and her once beautiful mother were walking down the street together when they met two gentlemen whom the mother knew.

"How much your daughter resembles you!" exclaimed one.

"How closely you resemble your daughter!" exclaimed the other.

Now, which of these two gentlemen do you think was invited home to tea?

Napoleon as a Bogy Man.

Thackeray once saw Napoleon on the island of St. Helena. The novelist—he was born in Calcutta in 1811—was on his way to England as a child. "Our ship touched at an island where my black servant took me for a long walk over rocks and hills until we saw a man walking in a garden. 'That is be,' said the black man; 'that is Bonaparte. He eats three sheep every day and all the little children he can lay hands on.'" That black serving man was not the only person of the time to believe the story which he told.

The First Sugar Canes.

Arrian in his "Circuit of the Red Sea" alludes to the sap which "flows from reeds, thickens like honey and is sweet to the taste." Seneca, who Chambers' Encyclopaedia says was "born at Corduba a few years B. C.," writes concerning the use of "burned sugar" among the people of India and concludes by adding, "In my opinion the use of sugar spoils the teeth." Nearchus says that sugar cane was first made known to the western countries by the conquests of Alexander the Great. The first of the sugar canes were brought from the east to Sicily in the year 1148 and two years later were introduced in Spain. In 1508 the Spaniards brought some of the seeds or plants to the West Indies, and from these the present industry has grown. According to the London Economist, 5,107,000 tons of sugar were consumed by the inhabitants of the world in 1893.

Luxuries of Rural Life.

The rural town is fast becoming a city in its general appointments, accommodations, manners and style, and it is the means of disseminating the latest ideas and conveniences among surrounding farms. Through investments and improvements the country is getting nearer to the city, nearer to the myriad advantages of comfort which human ingenuity is devising. The present is an era of luxury. Every urban home has the investiture of a palace in a former period—in fact, it offers, with the common exception of size and yard area, more and better facilities for easy living. Every country home is comparatively as well furnished. Almost all the comfort which is found in the city home can be installed and enjoyed in the most isolated farmhouses lying in an out of the way locality.—St. Louis Republic.

Why They Have No Hats.

The boys of the "bluecoat school" of Christchurch hospital, England, do not go hatless, as a correspondent intimates, in order that the hair on their heads may grow more abundant from that exposure to the air and elements of rain and sunshine.

The reason the boys of this famous school go without their hats is that one day a very long time ago the bluecoat boys were out walking and met Queen Elizabeth. They neglected to remove their hats, which so incensed the imperious lady that she had their hats taken away from them and swore that they should have hats no more.

It is a fact that men who attended that school did not in their later years become bald.—New York Times.

Whiskers and Weather.

Do whiskers grow faster in hot weather than in cold? The correct answer to this question is, "They do." Barbers say that there is an increase of about 20 per cent in business during the extremely hot spells and that all this increase comes from the men who habitually shave every other day instead of once a day. Although hot weather makes more business for the chin polishers, they do not particularly welcome it. Men are always more irritable and harder to shave. This, coupled with the increased speed of execution, makes the whole business unsatisfactory for both the shaver and the shavee.—Kansas City Journal.

Keeping Up Appearances.

An extraordinary amount of money in London is wasted on keeping up appearances, says the Ladies' Field. Any number of people entertain lavishly, have a big house, imposing carriages, three men in the kitchen, the same number of footmen to support the butler, and yet the daughters of the house never have 5 shillings to spend and have to calculate whether a new pair of evening gloves can be afforded.

B. & M. RAILROAD TO DENVER.

Official Route Chosen by the G. A. R.

The transportation committee of the delegates to the National Convention of the G. A. R. to be held at Denver, Colo., have decided that the following railroad lines shall constitute the official route to Denver for the Department of Massachusetts; Boston & Maine Railroad, West Shore, Nickel Plate Road, Chicago and Northwestern Railway, Union Pacific Railway via Cheyenne to Denver, Denver and Rio Grande Railroad, Missouri Pacific Railroad and Wabash Railroad, returning via Colorado Springs, Pueblo and Kansas City. The special department headquarters train will leave the North Station, Boston and Maine Railroad, Boston, at 11 a. m. September 1st. This route leads through the historic Deerfield Valley and the Hoosac Mountains to Rotterdam Junction in New York state, then on through the Mohawk Valley in New York to Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois, arriving in Chicago, where a stop of several hours is made in order to allow the tourists to see the city.

Nothing on the Market Equal to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

This fact is well known to druggists everywhere, and nine out of ten will give their customers this preparation when the best is asked for. Mr. Obe Witmer, a prominent druggist of Joplin, Mo., in a circular to his customers, says: "There is nothing on the market in the way of patent medicine which equals Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints. We sell and recommend this preparation." For sale by Quimby Pharmacy, Palmer.

HAPPY WOMEN.

Plenty Of Them In Palmer, And Good Reason For It.

Wouldn't any woman be happy,
After years of backache suffering,
Days of misery, nights of unrest.
The distress of urinary troubles,
She finds relief and cure?
No reason why any Palmer reader

Should suffer in the face of evidence like this:

Mrs. L. Lafarr, living out in the Carpet mill district, says: "I can truthfully say that Doan's Kidney Pills did me more good than any remedy of the kind I ever tried. Before I used them, for some time I had a severe backache and pain through my head. I awakened in the morning with my back so stiff and sore that I could hardly get out of bed. After a time it gradually lessened, but I was never entirely free from pain in my loins and kidneys. A friend told me about Doan's Kidney Pills and I got them at LeGro's drug store. I used two boxes, taking two pills three times a day, and they cured me entirely of the trouble. I shall be glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to anyone annoyed as I was."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents, Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no substitute.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS.
HAMPDEN, ss.

To either of the Constables of the Town of Palmer in said County, Greeting:

In the name of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts you are hereby directed to notify and warn all the inhabitants of said Town of Palmer, qualified to vote in town affairs, to meet at the Town Hall at Four Corners in said Town on Monday, the 28th day of August, 1905, at half past two o'clock in the afternoon, then and there to act on the following articles, viz:

ART. 1. To choose a moderator to preside at said meeting.

ART. 2. To appoint committees and give them instructions.

ART 3. To hear and act on reports of committees.

ART. 4 To see if the Town will appropriate more money for contingencies or take any action relative thereto.

Timely and Valuable Suggestions.

Many people, especially women who lead closely confined domestic lives, suffer from what in general terms is called "nervousness." Among all forms of treatment none has even approached in success the intelligent use of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, of Rondout, N. Y., which promotes an easy and natural action of the digestive organs and imparts tone to the nervous system.

BASEBALL.

Ludlow 8, Palmer 6.

The Palmers met their third defeat of the season on the home grounds last Saturday, the Ludlows doing the trick 8—6, in a game which was full of excitement and errors. It was a hard game to lose, because of errors which seemed unnecessary but which proved costly. A couple of runs were scored on Shean's muff of a fly in right field, and Neild at third let in a couple on a bad error. There was a lot of hitting and there were times when it seemed as though scoring could hardly be prevented, both sides sharing in this. Good playing kept the runners on the bags however. The attendance was a marked improvement over recent games, and there was plenty of rooting. The score:

Monson 6, Worcester Gyms 2.

There was a large attendance at the baseball game last Saturday afternoon, when the home team defeated the Worcester Gyms. The latter are not known in Monson and there was not so much interest in the contest on that account. It proved rather tame, no special playing on either side developing. Monson easily outclassed the visitors and played a steady game. Furkey pitched in his usual form. The score:

Indian Orchard Leave Stafford Grounds.

The Indian Orchard-Stafford game at Stafford Saturday was given to Stafford in the last half of the ninth inning because the visitors refused to play longer. The score was 2—1 in the Orchard's favor, with Stafford at the bat. The first man was out on a fly to left, Hurley and Gibbardt singled, Hurley reaching third on Gibbardt's hit; Francis hit to the infield and Hurley scored, so the umpire said, but it was a close decision and the Orchards left the field. Score, up to the time of the dispute:

Our Boston Letter

It tells about

Disappointment over census returns—Gov. Douglas May Run Again—Vacation Notes.

BOSTON, August 23, 1905.

Census returns are mostly in and the latest word to-day from the office is that Boston, the last city to be given out, will probably be ready next week. Chief Pidgin says that on the part of the cities there is widespread grumbling because the figures do not show more people. "But," he says, "I cannot create people where there are not any." The loudest grumbler is Lowell, for it has not gained any since 1900, though it is credited with a gain of 12 82 per cent since the last state census, which is a very tolerable gain, considering that so many of the towns, and even the city of Gloucester are obliged to put up with actual losses. But Lowell expected to round out more than 100,000 and the people are disappointed because they can still write their numbers in five figures. Chief Pidgin says that in no case will any notice be taken of complaints about the small results unless they are official. If the city authorities come to him and show reason to believe that there has been an error in the enumeration, he will pay attention, but he cannot take notice of the personal opinion of private citizens. Considering that Worcester has gained from 98,767 to 127,763 in the ten years, an increase of 28 996 people, or 29 36 per cent, he thinks that the city ought to be well satisfied. This is a very large gain in percentage, but Springfield gained 42.63 per cent. Chief Pidgin has already issued a caution to Boston not to expect too much. He says to-day that if the people of Boston keep moving from the city to the suburbs, as they are doing, they must not expect that the city itself will show gains as it would have done if the people had continued to live within the city limits. The figures for the state will probably be available sometime during next week. Nearly all of the large places have gained and the result must be a handsome increase in the total.

Officers who have to do with the enforcement of the new law regarding the care of tramps say that it works well and that the number of tramps has been reduced materially by its workings. The officer who was appointed special detective for the purpose is William S. Drake and he travels all over the state, putting himself in touch with the local authorities and showing them how the law should be enforced. He says that he finds much cordial support on the part of the city and town officials. The fact is that they need some coaching, but they are willing to do everything in their power to put an end to the tramp nuisance and danger. The question has been studied closely from all points of view and some fundamentals have been pretty well established. One is that the practice of giving out food promiscuously at the back door does much to make the evil worse. Those who have studied the question most, especially in connection with the work of the Massachusetts Civic League, say that the best way to deal with tramps is to compel them to be as neat as possible and to make them work for what they get. It is said to be necessary to have some sort of lodging place provided by the public where tramps can be sent when they come to the back doors begging food and lodging. The fact that such a place exists, with the certainty that the tramps will be obliged to conform to its rules and be clean and work will, of itself, operate to drive the tramps away from the place wholly. This removes from the city or town a prolific source of danger and crime. It is the judgment of the men best posted in the matter that not 15 per cent of our tramps are residents of Massachusetts, and that a large proportion of the assaults and burglaries which occur are the work of tramps. If these people can be prevented from coming into the state by laws which put very hard conditions upon them, then the danger to women and children by night will be materially reduced and the expense bill for the entertainment of tramps will be so much smaller that it would be good policy for a city or town to provide a place to keep them, as a means of scaring them away, even if they never had any tramps to put up. Work is the thing which horrifies the genuine tramp. Honest tramps sometimes come along and they never object to work. They are glad of the chance to do something for their keeping. Honest tramps get the benefit of the strict new rules which have been established by the board of health acting in concurrence with the state police. Though it seems queer to have an order issued that every tramp must be provided with a clean nightshirt whenever he comes along, and must be compelled to take a bath yet, argue the authorities, it is not fair to the honest tramp to put him in with a lot of lousy fellows, as most tramps are. It is true that the improved industrial condition has been one cause in the reduction of the number of tramps, but the fact that the cities and towns which provide good lodging and meals for nothing still are blessed with many tramps, while those which are strict have very few, adds to the proof that it is work and cleanliness which are a source of distress to the professional tramp and will drive him from a city or town, if the policy be persisted in.

In the large cities, especially Boston, the case is different, because people are so numerous that it is hard to educate them. Tramps can always beg food from doors sufficient to keep them alive, and they can beg money enough for a night's lodging and can also beg enough old clothes to keep them going. Tramps are driven by weather and by operation of the law into the cities, there to fester upon the community.

Quite an interesting interview occurred this forenoon in the state house in front of the governor's chamber. Principal in the scene was Captain John J. Flaherty, late chairman of the Democratic state committee, and second to him was Major Robert J. Crowley, like Flaherty a late member of the committee and, like him, resigned in consequence of the internal friction which developed. Captain Flaherty said that he had seen Gov. Douglas within 24 hours and had urged upon him the duty of running again for governor, and he added that he believed that the governor would run again if the Democratic state convention should proceed to renominate him and then lay it down upon him that it was his duty to yield to such a call from the party and from the people. He was asked if the governor had given any encouragement to such talk, and he could only say that the governor was a man who believed in doing his duty and that he could not put aside such a call as might be made upon him. He added that not only himself and Major Crowley wanted the governor to run again, but that Col. Gaston, Josiah Quincy and other leaders were of the same mind. He had no doubt that Douglas could be elected overwhelmingly if he would only consent to stand, and there was no danger that the Boston Irish Democrats, who have been threatening that they would vote for Lieut. Gov. Guild as their candidate, would fall into line and vote for Douglas if he were nominated, even ex-Senator William T. A. Fitzgerald, who hoped to be made Boston police commissioner and whose putting aside by the governor has led to no end of hard feeling against the governor. Capt. Flaherty made a very impressive statement of it, and if he could have his way the convention would proceed straight ahead and nominate Gov. Douglas and then tell him that he must run. Now the question is whether such tactics would have any chance of success.

It is still the height of the vacation season, but the state officials will be returning soon. Two of the railroad commissioners have been in town this week and Chairman Jackson will be here in a few days, though official hearings will not begin till September 5, when the Natick location of the Boston and Worcester railway will be taken up. Gen. Morris Schaff, the solitary survivor of the gas and electric light commission during the absence of Commissioners Barker and George in Europe, enjoys his lonely supremacy serenely and wishes, doubtless, that the other commissioners would never come back. The general vacationizing public is also coming home in more numbers than it is departing, and the New Hampshire trains, especially Saturday afternoons, are heavily loaded with sun-burned young men and women from the mountains, frequently bringing carved mountain sticks as an advertisement where they hailed from. But the genuine end of the season is not reached till the Saturday before the public schools open for the new year. Then every family with children must be on hand to put the youngsters at their work again.

A chapter might be written upon the Republican campaign for the office of attorney general. District Peters of Haverhill may apparently be counted out, by the testimony of his own county friends as well as by the current impression among the politicians. Dana Malone of Greenfield has headquarters in the office of William J Tyler of Northfield (formerly) in the Tremont building. District Attorney Sanderson is very busy in Barristers' Hall. Gen. Champlin is running headquarters at 60 State street. Ex-Secretary Hurtubis is at the head of the French Bureau in the Beacon building, and Clinton Gowdy of Springfield puts his personal notice in the newspapers. But everybody knows that the contest is not settled yet by any means.

St. Jean Society's New Rooms.

About two months ago the members of the Young Men's Union voted to disband, but have since occupied the old quarters only because there was a delay in the arrangements for another society to locate there. Saturday afternoon, however, the rooms were leased to the St. Jean Babtiste society for five years. The building is owned by David Jennison, the proprietor of the hotel in Enfield, and formerly of the Hampshire House, which building he still owns. Mr. Jennison received bids from the St. Jean society, which includes over 300 members among the French citizens and from Nenameseck tribe of Red Men. The former secured the rooms on a five-year lease for $312 a year. The furniture of the Young Men's Union, including a piano, has been sold to the St. Jean society for $250. The Young Men's Union has been maintained for some time by some of the most influential business men of the town, who thoroughly approved of its purposes. In its day the Union was a factor in the social life of the town, and was a great stimulous to athletics. It maintained an excellent basketball team two years ago.

Child Dies From Fall.

Raoul, the 7-months-old son of Ulric Miller of 10 Otis avenue, Ware, met with a peculiar death Sunday evening, by falling from a bed in which he was sleeping into a jar. The child's mother died soon after its birth, and a girl of 17, the oldest of six remaining children, took care of the baby. She put it to bed about 5 30 and saw it about 10 minutes before it was found on the floor. When found it was still alive, but before the arrival of a physician life was extinct. The child fell in such a way that he was doubled up, his breathing thus being prevented.

Nearly Severed Index Finger.

George Dumas, the 10-years-old son of Selectman Joseph Dumas while sawing wood in his father's wood-shed Tuesday morning, nearly severed the index finger of his left hand.

Satz & Sullivan's minstrels will show at Lakeside Park to-night and to-morrow night under the auspices of Nenameseck tribe of Red Men.

W. H. Weiss of Schuylkill Haven, Pa., was in town Tuesday to confer with Superintendent Cox regarding the program for the coming year. The high and graded schools will not begin this year until Sept 11, a week from Labor Day.

Eugene Gingras, employhd by Liveryman James Mahoney, was run into by a two-seated team late Sunday night while coming from Greenwich, and his team considerably damaged. He thinks the parties ran into his team intentionally.

The funeral of little Nora Haley, the two-years-old daughter of Mrs. James Haley, who died last week Thursday from scalds received the day before, was held on Saturday. There is much sympathy felt for the mother, who is a widow.

Charles C. Cook, who has been in the employ of John R. Robinson & Co. for the past 14 years, in their hardware store, is to take charge of the Thurston general store in Rutland, which has recently changed hands. His many friends in town will regret his departure.

Charles Bolter of Enfield was arrested Monday on a chage of drunkenness. Bolter, who sells vegetables in Ware, was driving his team rather too fast and endangering the lives of children by driving on the sidewalks. He was found glilty in the district court next morning and his case placed on file.

At the Court of Rex

By FANNIE HEASLIP LEA

Copyright, 1905, by Fannie Heaslip Lea

"I am lost!" said the pretty maiden with a quaintly tragic air.

She stood back against the window of a big department store on Canal street and scanned the surging crowd before her. It was Mardi Gras day in New Orleans, and the pretty maiden had been in town only three hours, two of which had been spent in a hotel.

"I have lost my mother," she said again as if to impress the fact upon herself—"and my father"—then she added as an afterthought, "and my purse."

In the street the people crowded each other for more room, and there was a constant stream of maskers, gay dominoed fellows with tinkling bells and snapping whips, and the pretty maiden watched them from the entrance to the department store, and her ideas quite lost their balance and toppled over into the mad whirl of carnival.

"I'm glad I'm lost," she said to herself; "they'll know I was separated from them by the crowd and they'll be fearfully worried, but after awhile they'll find me, and meantime I feel as if something were going to happen—a wild adventure perhaps. Oh, I love carnival. I'm glad I came."

A drum throbbed subtly in the distance, the crowd surged to the edge of the banquette, then surged back again with easy laughter, for no parade appeared.

"Ah," said some one at the pretty maiden's elbow. "I beg your pardon, but I thought I was never going to find you. The crowd is so thick."

The pretty maiden stared. A young man, clean shaven and eminently presentable, was regarding her, hat in hand.

"I'm afraid you don't remember me," he suggested, a trifle crestfallen. "Isn't this Miss Preston?"

The pretty maiden's eyes widened. To herself she cried, "The adventure!" but aloud she said quite coolly:

"I'm afraid the advantage is yours."

"I'm sorry," he answered stiffly. "But please don't think me an impertinent stranger. My cousin wrote me to meet you here, you and your sister. She asked me to show you around for the parade. I—my name is Robert Randolph," he finished awkwardly.

The pretty maiden hesitated a bare moment, but the carnival spirit was strong within her, and the trick that in her natural environment would have been impossible unfolded itself like magic in this atmosphere.

The moment was a bare one—then—

"Oh," she said, with the friendliest smile imaginable, "you are Bobby Randolph?"

"Of course," he agreed cheerfully. "It's been a great while since we saw each other, but still"—

"So it has," said the pretty maiden cunningly. "Let me see, just how long exactly?"

"Just ten years," said Mr. Randolph; "ten years, three months, seven days, two hours and, I think, twenty-seven minutes."

"Dear me," she murmured breathlessly.

"And, by the way, where's your sister? Didn't she come?"

"My sister? said the pretty maiden, quite astonished. "My sister? Oh—er—yes, of course she came. But she had a fearful headache, and she decided to stay at the hotel, and I hate to miss the parade, you see."

"Of course. Too bad she won't see it," said Mr. Randolph regretfully.

"The trip was so long and tiresome," said the pretty maiden incautiously.

"Two hours' long! I like that. Why, it's only forty-eight miles between here and Pass Christian."

"Distance," said the pretty maiden sententiously, "is not a matter of miles—with me, at least," she added prudently.

"Well, we can have a jolly time by ourselves, anyhow," Mr. Randolph assured her.

The pretty maiden hesitated—that is, she would have hesitated, but Mr. Randolph's cheerful confidence left her no room to do so.

They walked on rather slowly, for the crowd was dense, and Mr. Randolph's shoulders acted as a buffer more than once.

"We'll have time to go and get some hot chocolate before Rex gets here," he calculated cheerfully. "Look out there, will you?" This last to a line of college boys who were going through the crowd like an animated wedge.

The pretty maiden laughed deliciously.

"You looked so angry," she explained between gasps, then stopped suddenly because a small red devil, with battered mask, aimed a shower of confetti at her laughing face.

There was a blare of trumpets down the street and the long roll of a drum. A wave of excitement submerged the people. Randolph used shoulders and elbows with a skill that bespoke long experience on the football field, and the pretty maiden found herself in the front of the crowd. Mounted policemen paced slowly past her, a band shrilling forth "If Ever I Cease to Love," and then Rex and his cohorts.

The pretty maiden dimpled and blushed from sheer delight at the gorgeous spectacle, and the capering maskers on the fantastic floats repaid her interest. One threw her a great fragrant bunch of violets, which she clasped with both hands like an excited child; another tossed an armlet of brass; a third a box of French sweets, until young Randolph was hugely proud of her. Then, when the last silver tower and shimmering veil had melted down the street he swung her into the crowd again, her cheeks pink with excitement and the great purple violets nestling in the furs under her pretty chin.

"Now let's have that chocolate," said Mr. Randolph. They found a corner in a pretty tea room, and he dispatched a waiter for their order, while the room filled steadily.

"Do you know," he said, "you've changed somehow?"

The pretty maiden came back with a start to the fact that Mr. Randolph was not a lifelong friend.

"Have I?" she asked safely.

"Yes," he repeated, "somehow you've changed. You always were pretty, you know, and I always was your abject slave, but now"—

"I've changed?" asked the pretty maiden mournfully.

"You're so—so much more so," he explained lucidly.

"You remember," asked Mr. Randolph presently, "how we used to love each other when you were ten and I was fourteen?"

"We didn't," she said, with a start.

"Oh, nonsense! You cried your eyes out when I left for school. And you said you'd marry me when you grew up—and when we said goodby—you kissed me."

"I did nothing of the sort," cried the pretty maiden, very pink and furious.

"You've forgotten," said Mr. Randolph. "There's no reason why you should be ashamed of it. A childish affection is the most sincere—and you certainly were fond of me," he finished tamely.

"I've changed very much," said the pretty maiden, thoughtfully selecting a macaroon from the plate of cakes.

"I'm sorry," said Mr. Randolph simply, "because you're even nicer than you used to be."

"I want to tell you something," she said. "I'm not Miss Preston—I never saw you before. I'm here for the carnival, and I lost my people in the crowd this morning; and then you came and—I know it was horrid of me."

"Well," said Mr. Randolph stiffly.

"Well, it was just a lark," she pleaded defiantly, "and won't you please go—now—hurry, please." The pretty maiden had seen her mother and father across the room.

"If you wish it, of course," said Mr. Randolph with most unreasonable dignity.

"I think you better," she said, and fairly pushed him away, and in a moment she turned to her father and mother with indignation in her eye. "Well, you lost me," she said with hypocritical anger, "for two whole hours, and I'm nearly starved."

The pretty maiden and her parents dined with friends that night, and the pretty maiden went in to dinner with Mr. Randolph, to her unbounded surprise. Mr. Randolph looked a similar feeling. Then they both laughed.

"The world isn't so large after all," she said.

"My world," said Mr. Randolph, "comes only just up to my shoulder."

A Malay Water Slide.

In Perak, a state in the Straits Settlements, the Malays have one form of amusement which is probably not to be enjoyed anywhere else in the wide world.

There is a huge granite slope in the course of a mountain river, down which the water trickles about two inches deep, the main stream having carved out a bed by the side of the bowlder. This rock, the face of which has been rendered as smooth as glass by the constant flow of water during hundreds of years, the Malays—men, women and children—have turned into a toboggan. Climbing to the top of the rock, they sit in the shallow water with their feet straight out and a hand on each side for steering and then slide down the sixty feet into a pool of water.

This is a favorite sport on sunny mornings, as many as 200 folks being engaged at a time and sliding so quickly one after another or forming rows of two, four or even eight persons that they tumble into the pool a confused mass of screaming creatures. There is little danger in the game, and, though some choose to sit on a piece of plantain, most of the tobogganers are content to squat on their haunches.

Love's Queer Ways.

Mme. Myriam Harry, the Parisian novelist, who traveled about the world a good deal, described what evidences of affection are prized by men and women in different countries. In Jerusalem she once met a young Arab woman who had not a tooth left in her head. Mme. Harry's native servant said: "Lucky woman! Her husband knocked all her teeth out. He does love her!" In Cochin China Mme. Harry was told that there a husband was not believed to love his wife properly until he had made a present to her of a coffin. In Galicia, among the sect of Masochists, a man values his wife's affection by the degree of suffering which she causes him to endure. Mme. Harry there once heard a betrothed youth say to his affianced bride, "If you really loved me you would consent to bind me and flop me with this whip." At Stockholm a woman sued her husband for divorce on the ground that he did not love her soulfully.

Eat Slowly.

The propriety of eating slowly ought always to be remembered. Mr. Gladstone's thirty-two bites are historical. Napoleon was a terribly fast eater, and this habit is supposed to have paralyzed him on two of the most critical occasions of his life, the battles of Leipsic and Borodino, which he might have converted into decisive and influential victories by pushing his advantages as he was wont. On each of these occasions he was known to have been suffering from indigestion.—London Standard.

The Waterproof Face.

I am convinced that our solemnity of demeanor is generated by our gray skies, our piercing east winds, our heavy, yellow fogs and our slushy roads and pavements. The waterproof face is the direct result of a firmament of lead. Many of us English people look like incarnate umbrellas.—London Queen.

THE TURN OF LIFE

A Time When Women Are Susceptible to Many Dread Diseases—Intelligent Women Prepare for It. Two Relate their Experience.

Mrs. A.E.G.Hyland

The "change of life" is the most critical period of a woman's existence, and the anxiety felt by women as it draws near is not without reason.

Every woman who neglects the care of her health at this time invites disease and pain.

When her system is in a deranged condition, or she is predisposed to apoplexy, or congestion of any organ, the tendency is at this period likely to become active—and with a host of nervous irritations, make life a burden. At this time, also, cancers and tumors are more liable to form and begin their destructive work.

Such warning symptoms as sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness, are promptly heeded by intelligent women who are approaching the period in life when woman's great change may be expected.

These symptoms are all just so many calls from nature for help. The nerves are crying out for assistance and the cry should be heeded in time.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was prepared to meet the needs of woman's system at this trying period of her life. It invigorates and strengthens the female organism and builds up the weakened nervous system. It has carried thousands of women safely through this crisis.

For special advice regarding this important period women are invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., and it will be furnished absolutely free of charge.

Read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound did for Mrs. Hyland and Mrs. Hinkle:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I had been suffering with falling of the womb for years and was passing through the Change of Life. My womb was badly swollen; my stomach was sore; I had dizzy spells, sick headaches, and was very nervous.

"I wrote you for advice and commenced treatment with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as you directed, and I am happy to say that all those distressing symptoms left me and I have passed safely through the Change of Life, a well woman. I am recommending your medicine to all my friends."—Mrs. Annie E. G. Hyland, Chestertown, Md.

Another Woman's Case.

"During change of life words cannot express what I suffered. My physician said I had a cancerous condition of the womb. One day I read some of the testimonials of women who had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I decided to try it and to write you for advice. Your medicine made me a well woman, and all my bad symptoms soon disappeared.

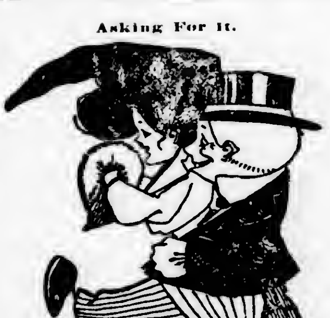
"I advise every woman at this period of life to take your medicine and write you for advice."—Mrs. Lizzie Hinkle, Salem, Ind.

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Hyland and Mrs. Hinkle it will do for any woman at this time of life.

It has conquered pain, restored health, and prolonged life in cases that utterly baffled physicians.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds Where Others Fail.

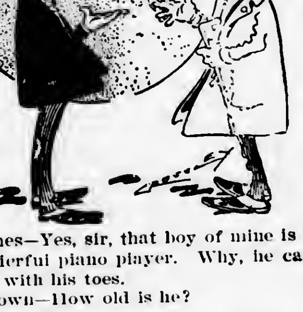
Asking For It.



"Don't you know—ah—the biggest fool—er—usually marries the prettiest girl? What?"

"Oh, Mr. Softpate, this is so sudden!"

Two Prodigies.



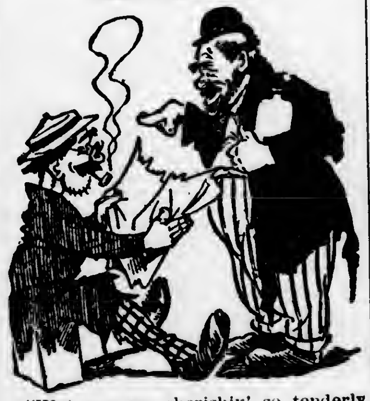
Jones—Yes, sir, that boy of mine is a wonderful piano player. Why, he can play with his toes.

Brown—How old is he?

Jones—Fifteen.

Brown—I've got a boy at home who can play with his toes, and he is only one year old.—Leslie's Weekly.

Dopey Dan's Find.



"Wot are yer cherishin' so tenderly in the bottle, Daniel?"

Dopey Dan—It's some gasoline I foun'. I'm goin' to look aroun' and see if I kin pick up an ottermobile.

How Paul Jones Countered.

When the English government denounced John Paul Jones as a pirate the American naval hero neatly countered. He replied that he had looked in the dictionary and found a pirate defined as "an enemy of mankind," and, "as England was then at war with the whole of America, the greater part of Europe and much of Asia, not to speak of a bit of Africa, she in point of fact came as near being the enemy of mankind as could well be conceived and that England was therefore the pirate and not Paul Jones."

A Warning to Mothers.

Too much care cannot be used with small children during the hot weather of the summer months to guard against bowel troubles. As a rule it is only necessary to give the child a dose of caster oil to correct any disorder of the bowels. Do not use any substitute, but give the old-fashioned castor oil, and see that it is fresh, as rancid oil nauseates and has a tendency to gripe. If this does not check the bowels give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and then a dose of castor oil, and the disease may be checked in its incipiency and all danger avoided. The castor oil and this remedy should be procured at once and kept ready for instant use as soon as the first indication of any bowel trouble appears. This is the most successful treatment known and may be relied upon with implicit confidence even in case of cholera infantum. For sale by Quimby Pharmacy, Palmer.

The Japanese Emperor smiled upon the court. "And what," he asked, "what news of the war?" "There are your majesty," answered the prime minister, "reports of a battle off the coast." "I am convinced," observed the Emperor with a twinkle; "I am convinced that if there has been any trouble on the ocean the Russians are at the bottom of it."—Judge.

The Antalgica

Or Vegetable Pain Reliever

was introduced to the public in 1848, since which time thousands of bottles have been sold each year to an appreciative public, which is a good evidence of its merits. It is adapted to so many ailments it should be in every household, for it cures all kinds of pains both internal and external. For Bronchial affections it is unrivaled by any article in the market. It is a sure cure for Cholera Morbus and Dysentery, if taken in season, also for Coughs. It is an effective remedy for rheumatic affections, stiff joints, swelled limbs, sprains, cramps, tooth ache and many other ills to which the flesh is heir. Try it and it will do you good. It is sold at 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle by The Quimby Pharmacy, LeGro's Drug Store and the proprietor,

ELECTRICS TO FISKDALE.

Springfield and Eastern Wants To Build Line.

FRANCHISES HAVE BEEN ASKED FOR

From the Selectmen of Monson and Brimfield, and will Undoubtedly Be Given.

The Palmer-Brimfield-Worcester trolley situation assumes a new phase this week in the application of the Springfield and Eastern Street Railway Company for franchises in the towns of Monson and Brimfield, securing which the road proposes to build a line from Palmer to Fiskdale, where it will connect with the Worcester and Southbridge. The company announces that if the franchises are granted in time and the approval of the railroad commissioners secured, work on the line will be commenced this fall and pushed along as rapidly as possible, the intention being to do much of the heavy work before spring.

The surveys for the route are not completed, but in a general way the locations are pretty well determined upon. From Palmer the line will leave the present line to Monson a short distance south of Fay's bridge and swing around the hill, close to the river, past the electric plant at Blanchardville and so on to Brimfield, passing through the center of the town; then on through East Brimfield and to Fiskdale. The present Palmer-Worcester route is about 38 miles, while the new one would be only about 32, lessening the distance and decreasing the time. The line from Palmer to Fiskdale would be about 12 miles.

There is little question that the franchises will be granted. The section which passes through Monson is short and through one corner of the town away from the village; there can be no objection to the building of the line. The people of Brimfield have long hoped and waited for trolley connection with outside towns, only to be disappointed time after time when they thought the desired end was to be attained, and it is reasonable to suppose they will present no obstacles in the way of the proposed road, which will give them what they have so long desired.

WAS NATIVE OF BRIMFIELD.

Body of Calvin M. Ward Brought There Tuesday for Burial.

Calvin M. Ward, 85, a native and former resident of Brimfield, died Sunday at the home of his son, Fred L Ward, in Wellesley. Services were held in the Congregational church in Brimfield Tuesday afternoon, Rev. Samuel Eaton officiating. A delegation from Quaboag lodge of Masons of Warren, of which Mr. Ward was a member, attended the services and acted as bearers.

Mr. Ward is especially remembered by people in Brimfield and surrounding towns as the leader of the church choir for a quarter of a century, and as identified with the musical interests of the town and vicinity as a singer and singing school teacher. He was about 21 years of age when he was appointed leader of the large choir of the Congregational church, long noted for its unusual number of good singers. It was a position requiring much ability, and which he filled successfully for 20 consecutive years. Mr. Ward was musically associated with the late Joseph G. Scott, principal of the Westfield Normal School, when Mr. Scott was principal of the Hitchcock school in Brimfield, and with others they formed a glee club, the proceeds of whose concerts bought the first electrical apparatus for the school. The history of Mr. Ward's connection with music in Brimfield, dating back to the 30's of the last century, would show the large part that chorus-singing in its various forms filled in the social as well as the religious life of former times.

Calvin Mortimer Ward was born in Brimfield February 25, 1820. He was the son of Julius Ward and Flavilla Janes, and was the grandson of Christopher Ward, one of Brimfield's noted Revolutionary soldiers. He was left fatherless at the age of nine years, and took pride in saying that from that time he had earned his livelihood. He learned the trade of shoemaker of Waldo Griggs, and followed it in Brimfield in the days when the people depended for their shoes on the local craftsman. He was married November 27, 1844, to Miss Sarah Ann Brown of Brimfield, with whom he had been associated as a youth in singing schools and in the choir, and who became the leading soprano in the town when he became the leading bass singer. Their union had lasted for over sixty years, his widow surviving him, and the 25th and 50th anniversaries of their marriage had been celebrated.

In 1861 Mr. Ward moved with his family to Brookfield to take a position in a large shoe manufactory, and in whatever employment the shop gave him as well as in the pursuit of his handicraft, he was an expert workman. He returned to Brimfield in 1863 and remained for several years, during which time he was again choir leader, and afterwards moved to Brookfield for the second time. During his residence in Brookfield he was leader of the choirs of different churches at various times. For the past 18 years Mr. and Mrs. Ward have lived most of the time in Natick and Wellesley, having of late made their home with their son.

Mr. Ward was possessed of a friendly, social disposition, and is remembered with warm and hearty regard by those who knew him. His attachment for his native town was peculiar in its intensity, and only the lack of the opportunity for employment kept him from passing his days there. During recent summers he had spent a number of weeks in Brimfield, revisiting the scenes of his early life, and children and young people, of whom he was remarkably fond, as well as his former associates who remain, recall with pleasant and tender feeling the aged form and cordial greeting and manner of one who in past years filled such an important part in the community's life.

Enjoyable Reunion Of Academy Alumni.

Over 400 Brimfield Students of Bygone Years Dine Together on Brimfield Common. Extracts From Speeches Made.

The alumni banquet, speeches and social time, which followed the formal observance of the 50th anniversary of the Hitchcock Free Academy at Brimfield last week, was one long to be remembered by all who were privileged to be present.

After the exercises in the church, which closed about 4.25 o'clock, supper was served in a large tent on the common. There were plates for 500, but on account of an approaching shower many did not stay to the supper and 432 sat down to an excellent repast furnished by Keith of Warren. After supper Charles H. Walker of Warren, one of the early pupils, acted as toastmaster in an able manner.

The first speaker was Samuel W. French of Newtonville, grand-nephew of Mr. Hitchcock, a graduate of the Academy in the class of '74 and one of the trustees of the institution. Mr. French said in part: "About two years ago I was elected to the board of trustees of this school, a position which I assure you has brought to me more honor and greater satisfaction than anything which has ever been brought to me or, I believe, could be offered to me. But I did not come here as a trustee of this school, I did not come as a representative of Mr. Hitchcock's family; I came as a graduate of this school. I am proud that it was my privilege to be here during the time when Dr. Norwood presided over this school. As a representative of Mr. Hitchcock's family there is one who is nearer to him than I am, present here to-day; I refer to his niece, Mrs. Charlotte Wales Chamberlain. We have reason to be thankful that the school was founded by money obtained upon honor and by faithfulness His biography shows his scrupulous exactness and his faithfulness to duty. Those of us who knew Mr. Hitchcock knew the painstaking care with which he looked after the school he had founded, knew his punctuality in the Wednesday afternoon exercises in the hall, can appreciate what this occasion would have meant to him and the board of trustees of this school at this time. It now remains with us to see that those who come after us are prepared for their duty because we have rendered extra service and have been faithful in the discharge of our duty."

Mrs. Louisa Bond Chase of Newport, R. I., was called upon as a member of the first class that entered the school. Mrs. Chase said in part: "I appreciate the honor conferred upon me by being asked to speak for the class that entered the school in 1855, of which I am proud to have been a member. The school building then would accommodate 50 pupils. The 22 now living are scattered from Maine to California. As we recall the name of our teacher, Mr. Littell, there arises before the vision a tall, thin man whose genial face and quiet manner are indelibly impressed upon our memory. As to the methods employed for the imparting of instruction or the training of the mind we are not as well able to judge. We remember the learned discussions we had over questions in parsing out of Young's Night Thoughts and Milton's "Paradise Lost." One recitation in arithmetic stands out prominently above all others. On one examination day we went to the blackboard and wrote out an arithmetical formula which covered more than half of a large blackboard. Then with a pointer we read from beginning to end the explanation of that formula, and so good were our memories and so glibly did we recite that even the teacher was deceived and never knew that we had that lesson at our tongue's end only and had not evolved it from the depths of our inner consciousness. Fifty years ago a year's course in a high school was considered sufficient to set the ordinary pupil going, but the scholar was no better satisfied than is the scholar of a year to-day, but fifty years ago the doors of our advanced schools and colleges did not swing at the "open sesame" of the boys and girls who had the desire and the will to pronounce the magic word as they do now. We are prone to wonder what might have been had some of that class of '55 been so favored. The present enlarged school building, with its provisions for the health, comfort and convenience of its pupils, its complete scientific equipment and its library, tell us that the progress and the growth of the school has kept pace with the times."

George W. Brainerd of Holyoke gave some amusing reminiscences, after which he spoke of the quality of the education he had received at the Hitchcock school, characterizing it as Chief Justice Field spoke of a college education, as preparing one to distinguish the chatter of his village from the murmur of the world. Mr. Brainerd in closing said, "Our life at school is often represented by the name of one man, and I want to say that for me Hitchcock Free High School is represented by the name of E. W. Norwood, and in my later education I felt that no name would supplant that one, and I certainly feel that the members of all classes who came under his instruction can consider themselves fortunate."

Mrs. Mary Knight Hyde of Ware was called upon as a member of the first class in the academy and also as the daughter of Dr. Knight, who influenced Mr. Hitchcock in his decision to found the school. Mrs. Hyde said in part: "My connection with the Hitchcock Free Academy preceded my personal connection with it as a scholar. My father, Dr. Knight, for 42 years a practicing physician in this town, was the beloved physician of the honored founder of this institution, and also his valued friend and counsellor. How vividly there comes to my mind to-day the remembrance of how, as a child, in answer to the knock at the door, I would find Mr. Hitchcock standing outside with the message, "I would like to have the doctor come and visit me." It was during one of those visits that he consulted with my father as to how he might best benefit his native town by a legacy. My father suggested a school for the education of the children and youth. "And how much shall I give, Doctor?" said Mr. Hitchcock. Now we all know that money in those days was worth a good deal more than it is now. To be sure it was not quite so far back in the history of the town as when my mother was a girl here, when Sallie Tufts was considered an heiress and she had two thousand dollars! But to the country physician of small charges and still smaller collections—for my father had ever a tender heart for the poor and those who were in trouble—$10,000 seemed a goodly sum. But he said to Mr. Hitchcock, "Why not give the money now and see and enjoy the result of your benefaction?" Those of us who knew Mr. Hitchcock in later years realize as others cannot what a joy and delight it was to his heart to watch the progress and development of this institution. But as my connection with this school did not commence when I entered it as a pupil, neither did it cease when I left it. My husband, Rev. Dr. Hyde, was trustee of the school during his pastorate here, and he had the distinction of being the first non-resident trustee on his removal to Haverhill. He had also the distinction of being the only foreign trustee, for when, on leaving the country to take up mission work in Hawaii he tendered his resignation to the board of trustees, they declined to accept it, thinking doubtless that he would not remain long in that, to them, benighted land. So during our first year's residence in Hawaii, Dr. Hyde was officially connected with the Hitchcock Free Academy."

Mrs. Elsie Sessions Hills of Hartford, Ct., spoke upon "The Interest of the Townspeople in the Scholars." "From the beginning of the Hitchcock Free High School, when individuals, none of them rich, contributed over $4000 for its founding, to the present day when so much has been done to welcome the alumni to this 50th anniversary, the people of Brimfield have manifested an unusual interest in the schools. This interest was shown to the school as a school, to the pupils as individuals, and to each class as a class. The townspeople as well as trustees and parents were accustomed to visit the school during its regular sessions, sitting on the platform and critically surveying the pupils, apparently studying each one to determine his progress and inquire into his misdemeanors. The church people as such were cordial. The pupils were seated in the best pews and always made welcome. Among the faces remembered by the speaker were those of Dea. Hubbard, Mrs. Bliss, Mrs. Chamberlain and Mrs. Brown. The graduation was a time when particular attention was shown the graduating class. The expenses were contributed by the townspeople, a paper being circulated to pay for the orchestra. The church was opened and cared for, and the ladies, assisted by the scholars, did the decorating, while lawns and gardens were robbed of their bloom to add to the wild flowers from field and wood. Among those who did this work we remember Mrs. Lincoln and daughters, the Chamberlain girls, Miss Bacon, the Misses Brown, and others. Memory brings to mind the Centennial Celebration of 1876, when the school was given a prominent place in procession and church, and the older girls assisted the ladies of the town at the collation. Personal thanks are due to Mr. Alfred Converse, who on one occasion spent nearly a whole afternoon in aiding, advising and helping to find comfortable and convenient rooms for newcomers. Also to Mr. James T. Brown, the merchant, who aided and advised in obtaining and exchanging books and supplies. Then there was Mr. Henry F. Brown, who was never too busy to listen to the numerous wants of young people away from home. These pleasant memories follow us through life and bring us back on occasions like this to offer our tribute to those who have made Brimfield Free Academy."

Sumner Parker of Brimfield, of the class of 1900 and a recent graduate of Amherst Agricultural College, said that the class of 1900 wished him to say that they appreciate these reunions as much as the older alumni, and perhaps more. He closed with a humorous story.

Miss M. Anna Tarbell of the class of '74 gave some personal reminiscences of Mr. Hitchcock, who was observant of children and made companions of them. As they grew up he was their benefactor, taking a personal interest in the individual pupils. On Wednesday afternoons he would call for the best "compositions" to read, selecting them by close observation, for on account of his deafness he could not hear a word. The success and influence of the school was a grand fulfillment of the desire in Mr. Hitchcock's early life for an education which was unfulfilled.

The last speaker was Fred H. Chamberlain, class of 1905. "I was informed this afternoon by Mr. Tarbell that I was to be called upon. I told him that I did not know of anything I might say. He said simply to stand up and let them look at me, and that might be all that was required. I represent the class of 1905, the last class of the school, and as there were six in the class,—which has been mentioned as being a perfect number,—I hope that we may come to these reunions, and I am sure we will do all we possibly can to make them a success.

The members of the first class in the school who were present were asked to rise, and it was found that of the 50 who constituted the first class, of whom 22 are living, 10 were present. They were Merrick W. Allen of Springfield, Mrs. Ellen Charles Bliss of Brookline, Mrs. Caroline Jones Brown of Brimfield, Mrs. Charlotte Wales Chamberlain of Boston, Mrs. Louise Bond Chase of Newport, R. I., Mrs. Ellen Noyes Coy of South Amherst, George M. Hitchcock of Brimfield, Mrs. Lonvan Charles Hyde of Boston, Mrs. Mary Hyde of Ware, Mrs. Julia E. Perry of Worcester.

Of the class of '74, which numbered 12, nine were present, all that are living. The number of pupils who have attended the school is a little over 1600.

After the exercises at the supper table many visited the old schoolhouse and the town library in the new Danielson-Lincoln memorial building. There were exhibited the handkerchief in which Mr. Hitchcock carried all his worldly possessions when he left town to seek his fortune, and other memorials of him.

The day was without question the most notable one in the history of the school and of the town.

The report of the necrologist for the past two years showed the following deaths:

Mrs. Sophronia Fuller Dennis, 63, Sept. 20, 1903, Stafford Springs, Ct.

William Henry Perry, 61, Sept. 27, 1903, Southbridge.

William Henry Shaw, 63, Oct. 12, 1903, Springfield.

TO BUILD ON OLD PLACE.

Palmer Voters Decline to Buy a New Town Farm.

$17,000 GIVEN FOR NEW BUILDINGS.

Building Committee Appointed. Plans for House Adopted. Will be Of Wood.

The special town meeting on Monday to consider the matter of new quarters for the town farm inmates, necessitated by the burning of the town farm buildings a few weeks ago, attracted only about a quarter of the number of voters which the importance of the matter deserved. Two propositions were offered, to rebuild on the old place, or to purchase a new farm and build there. It was decided to rebuild on the old farm.

T. J. Moran was chosen moderator after the meeting had been called to order and the warrant read. The overseers of the poor being called on, gave the results of their investigations in the line of a new farm, with statements of what, in their opinion, could be done on the place selected and what could be done on the present farm. On being asked what they recommended they replied that if the town wished to conduct a "Town Farm,"—that is, endeavor to reduce the cost of keeping the poor by sale of products of the place,—they recommended the purchase of the Sikes place, so-called, near the Four Corners; but that if it was thought best to conduct an "Almshouse,"—with no attempt to market any of the produce of the farm,—they recommended rebuilding on the old farm. They were also asked as to the advisability and probable cost of boarding out the poor of the town, and replied that they did not deem it advisable; a portion might be boarded at a reasonable price, but some of the inmates were in such condition and needed so much care that it was not likely that they could be boarded at any reasonable figure, and that the average would undoubtedly be large.

There was much opposition to any suggestion of the purchase of a new farm, for various reasons. There was also decided objection to the proposal to board out the inmates for a year. A motion was finally made that the whole matter be postponed until the annual town meeting in March, but this was unanimously voted down, as was also a motion instructing the overseers to board out the inmates for a year. It was then voted to rebuild on the old place in Palmer Center.

The overseers presented a plan for a new building which they deemed to be along the lines needed and most advisable. In brief it provided for apartments for the warden and his family in the center, with a wing at one side for men and another at the other side for women. A committee consisting of C. F. Smith, D. F. Dillon, J. F. Foley and R. L. Bond was appointed to act with the overseers in the construction of the buildings needed on the farm. The sum of $17,000 was appropriated for the construction of the buildings, and it was voted to apply the insurance money toward this, the treasurer being authorized to borrow a sum not exceeding $10,000 to make up the balance, this loan not to be paid from the taxes of the current year.

The sum of $600 was appropriated for the contingent fund of the selectmen, that having become depleted by the payment of a judgment against the town in the Three Rivers bridge case.

The town farm building committee held a meeting Tuesday evening and organized with D. F. Dillon chairman and L. E. Chandler secretary. The building plan presented by the overseers was modified somewhat and then adopted. It calls for a building about 105 by 30 feet, two stories, and will have a normal capacity of 27 inmates, but can be made to accommodate 34 should necessity arise. It will be built of wood.

JEWELRY PEDDLERS NABBED.

Three Rounded Up Yesterday, While Two More Escaped.

Officer Crimmins did a good job yesterday in gathering in three peddlers of jewelry in Palmer, also a peddler of dry goods, "Oriental, hand-made work," who were disposing of their wares without licenses. Two more peddlers of jewelry managed to get away without being caught, as they were working in the other villages and took alarm. The jewelry men gave their names in court this morning as Bert Andrews, Alexander Allen and George Hayes; they pleaded not guilty and were held for trial Tuesday morning in bonds of $500 each. Inspector Caron of the Chicopee police force was in court with warrants for two of the men, and will reckon with them after the Palmer court is through with them. The dry goods merchant gave the name of Alexander Nawsif, with a residence of one year in this country; he pleaded guilty and was fined $50.

There is a strict law against peddling jewelry, and the men arrested yesterday were evidently satisfied that they had a scheme which would defy the statutes. They had small pasteboard boxes containing 15 pieces of cheap jewelry of assorted designs, all "warranted heavily plated," or "warranted rolled gold plated," which they were giving out to children. The covers of the boxes bore printed notices to the effect that no money was required in payment for the boxes, the contents of which were to be sold however, and the collector of the company would be around in a week—just seven days—for the money. Large inducements of premiums were offered for the sale of each box, ranging from chains and charms to baseball masks, magic lanterns, printing presses and lace curtains—choice from a long list being given to the seller of every box. On the back of the card on which each piece was mounted was a notice that if the card was returned with 10 cents to the Canfield Jewelry Company of Chicago, a present of a sachet packet would be returned. Announcement was also made that "we give a box for every box sold," and a gold-plated watch was promised for selling 30 pieces. Needless to say the jewelry was of the cheapest order. The scheme of these men is to get into a town and give out the packages on two or three streets, then getting out again, remaining only a couple of hours or so, leaving the rest for the collector a week later. Quantities of children along South Main and Dublin streets had the packages in court this morning. The men are apparently working under a manager with headquarters elsewhere, and an assistant manager was in court consulting with them this morning.

Belchertown Cider Mill Burned.

The cider mill of Edward S. Lane in Belchertown was wholly destroyed by fire on Monday night, together with the machinery, the loss being about $2000. The fire occurred about 11.30 at night, and nothing could be done to save the structure; as the farm is about three miles from the village no alarm was given.

PALMER NEWS.

SCHOOLS OPEN TUESDAY.

Three District Schools Closed. Full List of Teachers.

All the schools of the town begin the fall term next Tuesday. The committee has decided to close the Shorley, Forest Lake and Mason district schools and to transport the pupils to the larger schools in the villages. Arrangements to that effect have been completed, and John F. Foley of Palmer Center will take the pupils in the Shorley district to the Thorndike grammar school. He will leave the Shorley schoolhouse at 8 o'clock next Tuesday morning, and the route will be directly along the main road to Palmer Center and Thorndike; there are about a dozen to be transported. The Mason district pupils, about 11 or 12 in number, will be carried by S. H. Brown of Palmer to the Palmer grammar school. He will leave the Mason schoolhouse Tuesday morning at 8, and the route will be to the Robinson farm on the Warren road, thence along the road to the Palmer building. The 16 or 18 pupils from the Palmer Center section will take the electric car leaving Forest Lake at 8 44, on which will be the superintendent or his representative, and these will be taken to the Palmer grammar school.

The teaching force of the schools has undergone few changes since the schools closed, and the list is as follows:

Superintendent, Robert J. Fuller.

During the vacation extensive repairs have been made in the Three Rivers building, in addition to shingling; repairs have also been made at Thorndike and Palmer Center, and the latter building has been fitted with slate blackboards.

A Worthy Object.

Individuals have undertaken in a small way this week the circulation of a paper for the benefit of Ernest Hinckley, who has a serious throat trouble and is undermined in health. Mr. Hinckley came to Palmer about two years ago in an endeavor to improve his health by living out of doors as much as possible, and has for a considerable portion of the time since lived in a tent on Oak Knoll on Thorndike street. He has tried various kinds of employment, but finds that he is unable to continue at them, not being physically fitted for heavy or indoor work. Now through the kindness of friends he has been enabled to erect a small structure for his winter home, and will endeavor to support himself by keeping hens. Persons who have known and been interested in him have this week started a subscription paper for his benefit, and ask any who may have an interest in the cause to contribute. The Journal has been asked to receive additions to the fund already started, and will do so; they may also be left at the store of Mrs. Langewald, next door to the Journal office. All contributions will be noted in the Journal, and it is hoped by the originators of the plan that they will be many. Any amount will be welcome, from one penny up. Following is a list of those who have already contributed:

Resigns Telephone Exchange Management.

Mrs. Hattie Parker has resigned her position as manager of the telephone exchange, and will cease her connection with the company as soon as her successor arrives, which is expected to be in about two weeks; he is R. J. Eldridge, now with the company at Greenfield.

Mrs. Parker has been with the telephone company nearly 20 years, beginning as vacation operator. She then served as substitute in various places east of Palmer for nearly a year, and came to Palmer in December, 1886. The exchange was small at that time, numbering only 29 subscribers, and this was decreased to 26 at one time. Now however there are six exchanges under the management of the Palmer manager,—Monson, Warren, West Warren, Brimfield, Wales and Palmer,—with a total of nearly 450 subscribers and 15 employes.

There will be much regret that Mrs. Parker is to leave the local exchange. She has been a courteous, painstaking and careful operator; in the days when there were fewer subscribers than now, and she did the most of the operating, customers had no fault to find with the service when Mrs. Parker was "on the wire;" with the increase of business her time has been largely taken with the management of the office, which has been much regretted by those who had become accustomed to have her answer their calls. Mrs. Parker will not leave town, but plans to remain in Palmer.

Lake Theatre to Close Next Week.

Next Monday will be the last of the theatre performances at Forest Lake this season. The opera company which has been presenting "Boccaccio" this week has been well received, the audiences being unusually large; there are many good voices among the 21 people of the company and the piece has been duly appreciated. To-morrow will be the last performance. Sunday night there will be moving pictures. Monday a new company will occupy the stage and performances will be given at 2 and 4 in the afternoon, and 8 in the evening. The pavilion will also close Monday night for the season.

Electric Car Service for Labor Day.

The electric road will give the usual extra service next Monday, Labor Day. Cars will run on 15-minute time between Palmer, Forest Lake and Ware, with cars every hour from Three Rivers and Bondsville direct to the Lake; Monson will be given half-hour service all day, and on the Springfield line the half hour cars will be continued until 11 at night.

Change in Electric Car Time.

The usual fall change will go into effect on the electric road next Wednesday, when all lines will be put on hour time, with extra cars to Springfield at 4.30 and 5 30 p. m. Cars on all lines will leave Palmer on the hour.

Palmer Fair Notes.

The committee on entertainment and amusements for the Palmer fair in October announce a portion of the program. The high school race, which has been productive of so much rivalry in the past, will be continued as usual, with a silk banner for the winning team, in addition to which each member will receive a solid gold medal. A high school athletic meet will also be held, similar to the one last year, with gold medals for first prizes and silver medals for second prizes in each event; the list of contests will be ready in a few days. A new contest this year will be a tug of war, open to any secret society team between Spencer and Westfield, and including Monson, Ware, Holyoke and Chicopee. A purse of $50 will be offered, divided into three moneys, $25, $15 and $10 As has been the custom in recent years, all children below the high school grade in the towns within the limits of the society will be admitted free the first day, and a special program of sports and amusements will be arranged for them—both boys and girls—with suitable prizes in each. Notice of other attractions will be given later, but among them has already been secured a dog circus which will be sure to please all, both old and young.

Ball Game Monday.

The Palmers will play two games on Monday with the Indian Orchards, the one in the morning at the Orchard, and the afternoon game on the Palmer park. The Orchards are playing great ball, and both games will be worth seeing. Cobb, who has pitched for Stafford much during the season, will pitch for Palmer in the afternoon game.

The subject of the sermon in the Baptist church Sunday morning will be "Unappreciated Resources." The pastor will preach. Sunday school at 12; Y. P. S. C. E. at 6; song service at 7, followed by a sermon on "The Life in the Flesh."

At a meeting of the Congregational church last evening Alfred Swan was elected to the office of clerk for the unexpired term of four months, and G. H. Bray was elected on the pulpit supply committee in place of Mrs. W. H. Fuller, resigned.

It happened in Palmer 20 years ago.

Items from the Palmer Journal of September 4, 1885.

Only $2 has been subscribed at the telegraph office for the Grant monument fund at New York.

No report from the railroad officials regarding the passageway as yet. Wonder if they have the remotest idea of ever providing one anyway.

The steamer will be ready for delivery on the 10th of this month, but the house will not be completed by that time and it probably will not be shipped until later.

The scarcity of postal cards is felt at the office here as well as in other places. Postmaster Knox, having had to supply the smaller towns, has only about 1000 cards left, and although more have been ordered it is not certain when they will be here.

The water was let into the pipes of the Palmer Water Company last Saturday, and a test made from the hydrant in front of the Commercial block. Though there was only about a foot of water in the reservoir, with a length of old leaky hose and a 1⅜ nozzle a stream was thrown more than 20 feet above the block. On Monday afternoon better hose was procured, and with more water in the reservoir a stream 1¼ inches in diameter was thrown at least 50 feet above the building. The test would seem to demonstrate that there is enough head to give the village considerable protection from fire.

About 50 voters met at the district court room on Monday afternoon in response to the call to see whether or not a fire district should be organized, and chose W. W. Leach clerk. Under the warrant the only business that could be done was to vote either to have or not to have a fire district, and if it was voted to have one, then elect a clerk and decide whether or not a fire department should be formed. This being understood, M. W. French moved that a fire district be established within the bounds mentioned in the warrant, and the motion was carried without any opposition. W. W. Leach was elected clerk of the district. It was also voted to establish a fire department in the district, and a committee consisting of Dr. Holbrook, R. L. Goddard and E. P. Ball was appointed to consider the matter and report at an adjourned meeting on Wednesday. At that time they recommended that the department consist of a chief engineer and two assistants, a treasurer, an engine company of 25 men and a hook and ladder company of 25 men. This suggestion was accepted, and a motion to that effect was made and carried. Another meeting is called for the 12th, when these officers and a prudential committee will be elected, and the engineers will at once form their companies.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Cross have returned from a summer at South Royalton. Mr. Cross will be at home to-morrow and Monday evenings to meet any of the high school pupils who may wish to consult with him before the commencement of school.

The mid-week devotional meetings, conducted by the pastor of St. Paul's church in the chapel on Thursday evenings at 7.30, will begin next Thursday. The practice of last year in making the general topic of the meeting that of the next Sunday school lesson will be the rule this year, and teachers of the Sunday school are especially urged to attend.

The meeting of the historical society, which would occur next Tuesday night, has been postponed until the first Tuesday evening in October, at which time President Cross will give a talk on his experiences of three weeks in and about the Confederate capitol, with sketches of interviews with noted Virginians, illustrated with relics from the near-by battlefields of the civil war.

Word comes from Townshend, Vt., that A. E. Park, formerly of Palmer, broke both bones of one leg between the knee and ankle while turning a log at his mill recently. The log was on the carriage to be sawed and the roller's cant hook slipped; Mr. Park caught the log with the one which he had, but it slipped and both men were thrown. The sawyer escaped without injury but Mr. Park fell backwards on a three-cornered stick. The day before he lost a horse which bled to death by being pierced with a stick which it jumped onto while at work, and feels that he has his share of misfortune just at this time.

BONDSVILLE.

Golf Tournament First Series.

The first series of the handicap tournament of the Bondsville Country Club was played last Saturday afternoon on the club grounds. This tournament is a championship contest, and a prize will be presented to the winner. Much interest was shown in the contest and some fair scores made, two of the men, Convery and C. Holden, beating their men without the handicap allowed, and Gordon and Ryther playing a tie game, allowing the handicap. This necessitated the playing of one more hole, which was won by Ryther with a score of 6 to 9 The score thus far leaves Convery, C Holden, E. Lamb, L Ryther, O. Parent and Dr. Smith qualified for the second series to be played to-morrow afternoon. The score:

	Handicap	1st	2d	3d	Total
F. Convery,	10	45	34	36	115
E. Hayes,	0	35	45	40	120
C. Holden,	5	39	36	45	120
G. Moulton,	0	44	39	46	129
E. Loy,	10	57	59	0	116
E. Lamb,	0	49	38	0	84
F. Gordon,	10	45	44	42	131
L. Ryther,	0	40	37	44	121
L. Holden,	0	39	38	44	121

Always liberal to Churches.

Every church will be given a liberal quantity of L. & M. paint. Call for it.

4 gallons Longman & Martinez L. & M. Paint mixed with three gallons linseed oil, will paint a house.

W. B. Barr, Charleston, W. Va., writes, "Painted Frankenburg block with L. & M., stands out as though varnished."

Wears and covers like gold.

Don't pay $1 50 a gallon for linseed oil, which you do in ready-for-use paint.

Buy oil fresh from the barrel at 60 cents per gallon and mix it with L & M.

It makes paint cost about $1 20 per gallon. Sold by Asahel Wheeler Co., Boston; W. N Flynt & Sons, Monson; John Wilson, Three Rivers; F. A. Gurney, Wilbraham; W. E Stone & Son, Palmer.

Cured of Lame Back After 15 Years of Suffering.

"I had been troubled with lame back for fifteen years and I found a complete recovery in the use of Chamberlain's Pain Balm," says John G. Bisher, Gillam, Ind. This liniment is also without an equal for sprains and bruises. It is for sale by the Quimby Pharmacy, Palmer.

Three Aged Residents Dead.

Michael O'Keefe, 76, died at his home on Main street Saturday night, the cause of his death being old age. He was born in Ireland but had lived in this town about 20 years and was employed as sexton at St. Mary's cemetery. He leaves a widow and one daughter, Mrs. Elmer Bower of Springfield, and a son, Michael J. O'Keefe of Hyde Park. The funeral was held from St. Patrick's church Tuesday morning at 8.30, and burial was in the Catholic cemetery on Pearl street.

Mrs. Margaret McInerney, 75, an old resident of this town, died at the residence of her daughter, Mrs David B. Meaney, on Thompson street early Monday morning, having been in poor health for over a year. She leaves one daughter, Mrs. D. B. Meaney, and one son, John McInerney, both of this town. The funeral was held from St Patrick's church Wednesday morning at 9.30, and burial was in the Catholic cemetery on Pearl street.

Mrs. Susan Tupper, 81, an old resident of this town, died at the home of her son, James B. Tupper, on the Wales road Tuesday night from the effects of a stroke of apoplexy. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock; burial was in the Moulton Hill cemetery.

Calf Killed by Dogs.

A calf owned by Hector Aldrich, which was in a pasture owned by Merrill Stebbins, was killed by dogs Tuesday. The mother of the calf kept the dogs away until she was exhausted, when they killed it. The cow itself is also practically worthless from fright and exhaustion.

Rev. N. M. Pratt has returned from a month's vacation and will occupy the pulpit of the Congregational church Sunday morning. The subject of his sermon will be, "The greater works."

A. D. Ellis and family have returned from Block Island, where they have been spending the summer at their cottage, and will occupy a house near Dr. F. W. Ellis, which has been fitted up for them, until their new house is completed.

Principal and Mrs. James F. Butterworth were in town Tuesday, having landed in New York Monday on the Astoria, and report a stormy passage. They returned to Boston Tuesday night and will return to town to-night, going at once to Hammond Place.

William Moulton is to open an automobile repair shop and garage near his home on the Palmer road. The Day mill property, which he recently purchased, is being thoroughly overhauled and put in condition for business. A new water wheel is to be installed.

The public schools will open Tuesday morning with most of the former teachers back again. Miss Ellen Stevenson has resigned from State street and Miss Jessie Young of Nova Scotia will succeed her; Miss Frances Reardon of Worcester Normal School will teach in the East Hill district.

Timothy Coughlan, 75, an old resident of this town, died at his home on Washington street yesterday morning after several weeks' illness. He leaves a widow and three children. The funeral will be held from St. Patrick's church to-morrow morning at 9.30; burial will be in the Pearl street cemetery.

A. J. Purinton, general manager of the Springfield and Eastern Street Railway, has filed an application with the board of selectmen asking them to grant a franchise for the proposed new electric line to Brimfield and Fiskdale. W. H. Brainerd of Palmer has commenced to make the preliminary survey of the proposed line.

The Monson baseball team will play the Gilbertville team on Flynt Park to-morrow at 3.30. Furkey and Peloquin will be the battery for the home team, and Drinkwater and Shorrs for the visitors. Monday, Labor Day, the Monson team will play the Ludlow team at Ludlow in the morning, and in the afternoon on Flynt Park a second game with the same team.

The electric road will, from now on, run the double-truck cars on pleasant afternoons on the Monson line. It has been found that the travel on pleasant afternoons is so heavy that patrons of the road are not satisfied with the small cars, and the company seems willing to give a service which will be satisfactory to all. The change will be greatly appreciated.

The Academy will open next Tuesday with a partially new corps of teachers. Mr. L. B. Hulsman, a graduate of Boston University, will teach mathematics in Mr. Lester's place; Miss Charlotte W. Frye of Newton, a graduate of Boston University and for two years a teacher at Wrentham, will teach French and German in Miss Thrall's place; Miss Clara M. Burleigh of South Berwick, Me., a graduate of Smith College and who was a teacher in the public schools in the town last year, will teach in Miss Parker's place. There will also be a change in the matrons at Cushman Hall as Mrs. Chapman has a position elsewhere, and Mrs. Viola Haskell of Boston will be the new matron. Principal Butterworth reports that Cushman Hall is practically filled already and every indication points to a successful year.

Several changes have been made in the grading of the public school pupils at the opening of the fall term. Pupils in district No. 1 will attend school as follows: All 8th grade pupils will attend the Green street school; all 7th grade pupils, State street school; all 6th grade pupils, the Main street school. The historical sketch of Mrs. Alice Haynes Marsh, class of '[illegible], was so excellent that it is given here in full:

Charles Francis Adams, when asked to give an historical address for the hundredth anniversary of the incorporation of Quincy, after objecting that the time for such addresses was past, yielded, saying that it was well to help plant a milestone which should mark some point where "we pause for a moment resting from the march, to cast a glance backward over the road by which we have come, as well as forward over that which we are yet to traverse." We are here to-day trustees, principals, teachers, alumni, pupils, friends of Hitchcock Free Academy, to help plant such a stone which in the future shall serve as a memorial that here we rested as we passed the fiftieth mile post in the life of our Academy. Others have been planted at the fifteenth and at the twenty-fifth anniversaries, and at the hundredth, though we are off the stage, the actors then will look back to what we do and say here with as great interest as that with which we try to recall the drama and style setting of fifty years ago, when the school was founded—yes—and of one hundred years ago, when its founder went to school.

If history is knowledge in the making, then the history of a school is peculiarly and most intimately connected with the springs of knowledge. Can we of to-day realize what springs of knowledge were running on that far-away morning a century ago when the boy, Samuel Austin, son of Gad and Keziah Hitchcock, began his school days? To understand the man who was the founder of this school we must know something of the surroundings amid which he grew up. The present order of things had not yet begun. There were no railways, no telegraph, no telephone, no automobiles. It was the stage coach period of the world. All New England towns were quiet, sleepy, conservative. The community had houses, rude tools and unproductive land. Most of the people were poor and a saving thrift was ground into them by their necessities. The account book of the old corner store showed that wheaten bread was a luxury rarely seen, that rye meal was the staple of life and molasses its condiment. There were no free public libraries, scarcely a book beyond the Bible and Pilgrim's Progress in the home, and no modern newspaper, for if you can get hold of a newspaper of the early part of the century you will see at a glance that it is a very different thing,—nowhere on sale, sent only to subscribers, poor and meagre in its makeup. There was very little correspondence, for mails were infrequent and rates of postage enormous.

When Samuel was ten years old the first schoolhouse built in town was still in use, "standing within twenty feet of the east end of the meeting house, 16 foot wide, 20 foot long and 7 foot stud," according to specification. Probably great logs of wood blazed in open fireplaces at both ends of the unpainted barrack-like room, while over one hundred children were crowded on rude settees handed down from pre-Revolutionary times, hacked and disfigured by succeeding generations of boys. The schools of those days were called not only common, but unclean. Such were the boy's early school surroundings. The books possible for his use could be counted on one's fingers. Webster's Spelling Book, which "served one great purpose, if no other, furnishing its author with funds during the twenty years he was laboring on his world-renowned dictionary;" Mr. Webster's Reader, known as the "Third Part" of his "Grammatical Institute of the English Language;" Pike's & Daboll's Arithmetic; Lindley Murray's Grammar, and Jedediah Moore's Geography. No arithmetics or geographies are mentioned in the sales of the corner store, and as ciphering was taught without a book and geography taught in college, we may infer that these books were not yet introduced into Brimfield schools. As to the manner of teaching, reading was an exercise of lungs rather than of the intellect, spelling taught from a book, grammar learned by rote, and the principles of arithmetic never explained. "Do you not think it strange," exclaims Madame Guizot, "that for centuries education has been, so to speak, a sympathetic hostility against human nature?" Can we begin to see the change that Mr. Hitchcock saw between the earlier and the latter day?

The school of that day stood only second to the meetinghouse, which was in fact, the single and common place of worship. In that dull, monotonous life, the going to church was the event of the week, and the gossip of the meetinghouse and the discourses of the minister were the staple intellectual nutriment. They supplied the place, as far as the place was supplied, of lectures, concerts, newspapers and current literature now. At that day in Brimfield excitement was running high over the controversy concerning the orthodoxy of the minister, Rev. Clark Brown, and curiously enough the Rev. Jedediah Morse of geography fame was called from Charlestown to sit in council. He did not bring his geographies to notice as far as any record shows.

In 1804 a new meetinghouse and a new schoolhouse were built. The town paid $53 for the new schoolhouse lot and $121—more than twice as much—for "Rum, Sugar, Brandy, Lemons and Wine" used at the raising of said new meetinghouse. A theme for study in comparative values of some economic interest!

Yet with such environment, lack of advantages and training, young Mr. Hitchcock at the age of eighteen was thought qualified to teach school, and proved himself equal to the principal requirement, that of being able to manage the big boys. He fulfilled exactly the description given in a preface to an arithmetic published in 1797: "The boy, advanced perhaps someway in his teens, is sent to a winter school for two or three months to complete his education. * * * He must go to school to cipher. His master sets him the sums. If he is taught to commit any of the rules, he learns them like a parrot without any knowledge of their reason or application. He ends his blind career at the Rule of Three. He has completed his school education and is well qualified to teach a school himself the next winter after."

Mr. Hitchcock's next step was to go forth, like all great men in story books, to seek his fortune with one dollar of borrowed money in his pocket and his belongings tied up in a blue cotton handkerchief, which handkerchief is to come back to Brimfield, only like all great relics, there are two of them. The first year he gained $50 and with it laid the corner stone of his fortune. It is said one can always get what he really wants most in life. Had Mr. Hitchcock put the getting of an education before getting money, he probably could have done it, but we in all probability should never have seen yonder Academy. Who shall say that he did not choose the better part? He thought longingly of the Academy at Monson, founded on what was originally Brimfield soil, in 1804. This was the fifth school of its kind to be established in Central Massachusetts. Others were at Leicester, dating back to 1784 and founded by Colonel Crafts, a citizen of my native town of Sturbridge; there was one at Westfield, one at Deerfield, and the New Salem Academy at New Salem, dating from 1795. None of these were free, but the tuition at Monson was but $10 and there were poor boys who did work their way at that time through such schools. These academies, corresponding to the gymnasia of the continent, and to the grammar and high schools of England and Scotland, were the result of an attempt of the fathers of New England to provide for a learned clergy, so that the line of scholarly divines might not perish from this new land. They were classical and theological, and in the first generation, according to Cotton Mather, their standards were high. But there had been a gradual deterioration and the 24 colleges, with which the century began, of the now over 400 in the United States, had also a less extensive curriculum than the academy of to-day, while the Academy was scarcely equal to our grammar school.

We pass on a quarter of a century and there was new educational life stirring in the land. Mr. Hitchcock, in the midst of a prosperous business career, represented Southbridge in the Legislature of 1836. During that year Congress gave the surplus in the treasury, of thirty millions, to be divided among the states for educational purposes. The next year in Massachusetts the first board of education, with Horace Mann in the lead, started forth triumphantly and normal schools soon sprang into being. Froebel, in Switzerland, wrote, "The year 1836 requires renovation of life," and he started the kindergarten. Mr. Hitchcock that very year, being in the midst of public affairs, must have had some knowledge of the spirit which was to revive and vivify the droning, drowsy, little-cared-for and incompetent school system of the state. He must therefore with his own bitter experience of primitive methods and lack of advantages have felt the educational stirrings and upliftings, so that when the next period of fresh impulse came he was more ready to take active interest.

The next period may be called that of the high school. Before 1850 there were probably not over a dozen free high schools in the United States; now there are over 5000. Other academies had been founded in this vicinity: Wesleyan Academy at Wilbraham, Nichols Academy at Dudley, Williston at Easthampton, and Quaboag Seminary at Warren in 1850. Also a high school had been started at Southbridge, supported by private subscription at first but made public in 1854. Palmer had three months of high school in 1850, but the school was not permanently located there until 1868. Now came Brimfield's opportunity. Exactly one hundred years before, in 1755, "the town voted that there be a grammar school kept," and it was so. In 1855 yonder academy was incorporated as "The Trustees of the Brimfield Free Grammar School," changed the next year to "The Hitchcock Free Grammar School." All honor to those citizens of Brimfield who subscribed for the building fund which was as necessary as Mr. Hitchcock's gift of $10,000 to make the school possible. The school owes its existence to the educational interest, practical needs and ambitions of the people of Brimfield as well as to Mr. Hitchcock's financial support.

Although Mr. Hitchcock stipulated that the school should be "of such a grade that young men may be fitted for college as well as for the business of life," at first it was not intended so much as a fitting school for college as to give opportunity for a higher education for the 99 out of every hundred who do not go to college, embodying the then almost new and unusual idea, free tuition, absolutely no fee at all so far as the endowment might prove sufficient. The term free had been used by other schools in the sense of giving equal privilege for a liberal education to all comers from places near or distant without respect to race or sect, equal privilege to all on the same condition, that of moderate tuition. The Hitchcock Free Grammar School meant all that, and free tuition. Of such schools I can find record of but two then in existence in the state, one at Newburyport and one at Andover, both too far away to answer to the need of this locality.

With but one teacher and an indefinite course of study, as secondary education was then in a somewhat chaotic state, work went on for the first two years. Yet the purpose of the school was so well fulfilled that additional endowment was forthcoming for an assistant teacher, for a library, for apparatus, also additional subscriptions for enlarging the building, a fund for repairs, and the first graduating class came forth just in time to help plant the milestone at the fifteenth anniversary. A part of this time of progress was during the civil war, which taxed the people to the utmost. Monson Academy had been obliged to close its doors, though but for a short time.

As "The Hitchcock Free High School" the career of our academy was still onward and upward. It was a period of changing methods, of a new education; the Quincy system and the like began to cause ferment in the educational world. One of the earliest manifestations in this school was a hint from a trustee to the teacher of a class in chemistry, who, according to the custom of the day, was conducting a class recitation by asking the questions in the book—that possibly it might make the subject clearer to illustrate by a few simple experiments. This was not a strange condition of affairs, for it is reported that when Wilson, the ornithologist, visited Princeton he claimed that the professor of science there did not know the difference between a sparrow and a hawk. The era of scientific experiment, the inroad of the world of things needful for illustration in the sciences, the library method and the laboratory method were introduced. The course of study fitting for college or for scientific school was arranged and adopted under the lead of Dr. Norwood, whose deep devotion, masterful guidance and wise insight into the spirit of the times caused the academy to keep pace at a leading stride with schools of its kind. With its endowment still further increased it was able to fulfill the ideal of Charles Hammond, long the revered head of Monson Academy, that of answering not merely the educational interests of the town but of all that part of New England not within the proper limits and influence of other classical schools of established reputation. Our high school was thus in line with the older academies of the state; for though high schools multiplied and these academies relatively declined, and in some sections entirely disappeared, the Hitchcock Free Academy still lives and will live so long as it answers to the needs of a community still unprovided with the means of higher education.

We now see the school, having triumphantly weathered the period of scientific development, successfully plant another milestone at a twenty-fifth anniversary by the forming of an alumni association. It was Charles Hammond again who wrote at the fiftieth anniversary of Monson Academy, "It must not be said that the choicest treasures which any literary institution can possess consists in the sentiments of regard which are cherished by its own alumni. That institution that enjoys the confidence and receives the cordial love of her alumni will live and thrive in spite of poverty and competition." Let us hope that, for the twenty-five years which this association has been in existence, it has by its loyal regard helped the living and thriving which become more and more difficult in the increased competition, and that in the future the help may be even more tangible, freely bestowed and abundant.

This last quarter century has seen milestones planted at each meeting of the Alumni Association. The educational world has been occupied introducing practical or business methods into its curriculum, with so-called fads and frills, and with the manual training idea. Our academy, lately adopting that title, has kept in line by adding stenography and typewriting, forming a business course. How much more of manual training may find place, we of to-day cannot say. The Outlook claims that the great forum of public opinion is overwhelmingly on the side of the new education. If manual training is necessary for the best development of the average majority in our schools to become good citizens, let us welcome it by all means. The ideal in education is far from being reached, and whatever will truly and broadly help to form the character and develop the power of the individual to be of greater use in the community is more than welcome by all right-minded educators.

One phase of school life deserving especial mention is the influence such a school exerts upon the community. An academy town has many advantages over its unblessed neighbors. The life of numerous other towns is injected into this otherwise more isolated village, and a freshening, broadening influence unconsciously results. The relations are mutually reciprocal and helpful; for the individual life of the pupil is quietly toned by the peaceful beauty of the surroundings and wholesomely checked in the giddy enthusiasm and wildness of youth by the steady, simple village life. The lyceum, in its early days a town affair, invited the pupils of the school to declaim and to debate. Later, when the school had the lyceum, the village was interested. Though the school library was first only for the pupils of the school, its privileges were extended to all those in any way connected with the school and to the teachers of the town; while the village library is, of course, freely at the service of all pupils while in town. When entertainments have been given by the school, notably the dramatic performances of long ago, all the village was alive with interest. The school reciprocated by attending the village affairs. The town is interested in all that concerns the school, the school is interested in the welfare of the town. To foster and encourage the further extension of such interchange of interests is for the betterment of both. In so far as our libraries, schools and churches are living centers for social, educational and philanthropic work, so far do they minister to the higher life of the community and find excuse for being. For though civilization may have advanced from the age of the solitary cave-dwellers to that of the highest cultured Boston community of to-day, each child that is born is just as ignorant as the first baby. Padology or child study is only now becoming a science, and there are as many and as great problems of how best to educate to be solved as ever. History will forever be knowledge in the making. That is the beauty of life, its pursuit of forever forward-flying ideals, its search for Truth. Nowhere is that earnestness of pursuit, that necessity of training for service in such search, more needed than in our academies and high schools, where stronger than in either primary school or college are the enthusiasms of the youth, who although daily traveling further from the east, "still is nature's purest, and by the vision splendid is on his way attended." To clear, direct and perpetuate the vision so that the search for Truth may become the ruling passion of the soul, this is raison d'etre for any school. Whatever the future of our beloved Academy may be, whether its numbers be many or few, may she always remember that the letter killeth, while the spirit giveth life, that character teaches above intellect and that all "must upward still and onward who would keep abreast with Truth."

So to live and learn and teach is to gain immortality, for the school and for its founder who, though it be "being dead, yet speaketh." Nor for the future be afraid, remember "The best is yet to be."

Every Claim Is Backed By Local Testimony.

If the reader wants stronger proof than the following statement and experience of a resident of Palmer, what can it be?

D. W. Powers, machinist, living on Main street, says:—"If the first box of Doan's Kidney Pills procured at LeGro's drug store had not brought undoubted results I never would have bought a second, neither would I have continued the treatment until cured of backache and dull aching pains in and around the kidneys. When the attacks were at their height it hurt to stoop or straighten, and I was never able to tell when making any unthought of movement that sharp twinges would not radiate across the small of the back. You are at liberty to send anyone to me for corroboration of the above."

Breaks no Hearts, Excuses no Crimes.

Dr. David Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is not a disguised enemy of the human race; where it cannot help, it does not harm. It is composed of vegetable ingredients and does not heat or inflame the blood but cools and purifies it. In all cases of Kidney troubles, Liver complaints, Constipation of the Bowels, and the delicate derangements which afflict women, the action of Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is beyond praise. Thousands of grateful people voluntarily testify to this, in letters to Dr. Kennedy; and with a warmth and fullness of words which mere business certificates never possess. It makes no drunkards—excuses no crimes—breaks no hearts. In its coming there is hope, and in its wings there is healing. We challenge a trial and are confident of the result. Your druggist has it. ONE DOLLAR a Bottle. Bear in mind the name and address: Dr. David KENNEDY, Rondout, New York.

Fritz Kreisler, the violinist, was the victim of two mischievous American girls, who filled his brain with slang in the pretense of teaching him English. The result was that one evening he gave a certain charming and rather conventional hostess something of a shock. A London cabman had brought suit against a woman for not paying the legal fare, and his constant remark was, 'She ain't a lady.'" "Do you know a lady when you see one?" asked the judge. "I do, yer honor. Last week a lady gave me a soverin' instead of a shillin', an' I called, 'Beg pardon, madam, I've got a soverin' instead of a shillin',' and she shouts back, 'Well, you old fool, keep the change and get drunk with it!' That's wot I calls a lady!"—New York Tribune.

American tourists returning from Europe bring back stories of the paternal watch which is kept upon them in Germany. One woman was requested by a policeman to hold up her gown, which was a trailing, elaborate affair of lace and chiffon. It was after dinner, and she was taking a stroll with her husband through a park whose immaculate walks seemed to offer no harm to its delicacy, so she let it hang. The policeman was polite enough. He informed her gravely that any dress that was allowed to trail was likely to collect undesirable matter and prove injurious to health.

BASEBALL.

Palmers Lose to Stafford.

The Palmers were defeated by the Stafford Springs nine again on the Palmer grounds Saturday, 6 to 1. Cobb was in the box for the visitors, and pitched his usual good game, besides receiving excellent support; the Palmers were unable to find him to any extent. The regular pitcher for the Palmers, Miles, for some unaccountable reason, failed to show up and Smith was put in the box. He was rather wild, giving two men bases on balls in the first inning, and they managed to score on some pretty raw playing on the part of the Palmers. Other loose playing later let in other runs until the score stood 6 to 0 when Palmer went to bat in the last half of the ninth inning, when one run was scored, preventing a shut-out. In the eighth inning Todd, the pitcher for the Palmer Juniors, was found in the crowd and induced to pitch the last two innings, which he did with good effect, allowing but one hit, and striking out one of Stafford's best batters. He was given a generous round of applause for his work, which under the circumstances—he had no suit or shoes and the score was heavily against him—was very good. The score:

Indian Orchard 10—Ludlow 1.

Ludlow wasn't in it for a moment with Indian Orchard at the Orchard Saturday, this being the third game of the series between the two teams. Furkey was in the box for Ludlow, and was touched for 12 hits, while Clark, the Indian Orchard twirler, was found for only five. Joe Superneau, Ludlow's famous catcher, struck out twice and dropped two foul flies; he also lost his temper, but that did not count in the score, although it looked for a time as though there might be trouble. Two Games at West Warren.

West Warren was treated to two baseball games last Saturday, the first at 1.30 between the Quaboag Social Club and the Foresters. It was won by the Social Club, 13–8. The second game was at 3 30 between the St. John the Baptist Society and the Hibernians, the former winning 14–4. Both games were in the recently-formed West End league.

Cartmill and King of the Monson baseball team played with the Indian Orchard team, and Furkey with the Ludlow team in the Ludlow-Orchard game Saturday.

Henry Flynt's Atlantics defeated the Watershop Eagles of Springfield on Flynt Park Saturday afternoon, 35 to 2. The score appeared in the Springfield Republican on Sunday morning 6 to 2 in favor of the Eagles and stated they made two home runs. It requires considerable nerve after putting up such a poor exhibition of baseball to go home and misrepresent the result.

Gilbertville Hibernians' Field Day.

The Hibernians of Gilbertville held their second annual field day last Saturday with fine weather and a large attendance. The first of the sports was a potato race for women, won by Miss Jennie Morrison; 100-yards dash for members, won by Henry Moore, Patrick Morgan second; running hop, step and jump, Everett Buchanan, 38 feet 11 inches, Justin McCarthy, 38 feet 4 inches; three-legged race, Charles Moore and Henry Hurley of Gilbertville, Pero and Sharkey of Ware. A ball game between the Gilbertvilles and Our Boys of Thompsonville followed, and was won by Gilbertville, 11–4 A 100-yards dash followed, won by Kelley of Springfield and H. Moore of Gilbertville.

SERVING A SUMMONS

[Original.]

Bernice Church was born in the army, brought up in the army and should have married in the army. Indeed, when she was eighteen she was engaged to Edgar Adams, a recent graduate from the United States Military academy. But her father was very much opposed to the match. Adams was beloved by every one, but he was a good deal of a scapegrace. Franklin Swift, the son of a wealthy man, having manifested a desire to marry Bernice, Colonel Church persuaded her to break with Adams and accept Swift.

When Adams received notice of the fact he simply remarked: "That makes me a bachelor for life. Let's have a bottle of wine." The only change noticed in his demeanor was that he fought harder than before.

Ten years passed. Adams, now a captain, secured a year's leave of absence for the purpose of studying cavalry improvements abroad, and on his way called upon his old flame. He found her in great trouble. Her husband was in a mire of debt, one of her children was very ill, she was herself in bad health, and, to cap the climax, her husband's father was at the point of death. The condition of affairs required that the husband get away in order to escape service for awhile from his creditors. Upon the death of his father he would inherit a fortune that would enable him to extricate himself. But to leave under the circumstances was next to impossible. The result of all this was that Captain Adams, with the help of an ingenious lawyer, assumed the debt and went into hiding. The case could not go on without Adams being summoned.

For a month Adams, who was an expert at Indian stratagems, found it easy to elude the bailiffs. Then they became as foxy as he. Having tracked him to the country place of one of his friends they set their wits to work to get him where they could read the summons to him. One evening just before dark Adams heard a furious firing in the grounds, and, true to a soldier's instincts, rushed out with a revolver; but, seeing a man coming for him with a paper in his hands, the captain fired several bullets over his head, checked his career and retreated to the house.

Soon after this attempt to serve him Adams was standing one morning at a window when a company of the state militia marched down the road not far from the house. Their commander in trying to have them countermarch got them into confusion. Adams threw up the sash and called the proper directions. While he was shouting the orders a man emerged from behind a tree, at the same time fumbling in his side coat pocket. Adams caught sight of him just as he drew a paper and closed the sash.

This escape made him more cautious for a time, but confinement was irksome to him, and he made an occasional sally in disguise. One evening at a restaurant a man at a neighboring table made offensive remarks to him, and Adams, going over to where he sat, slapped his face. The man did not at the time seem disposed to follow up the affair, but the next day Adams received a challenge from one Tucker.

Adams naturally inferred that the man was the one he had had the quarrel with, but wondered how the fellow knew who he was. However, he was too much of a fighter to avoid any encounter and accepted promptly. He at once sent for a brother officer, and the affair was arranged to come off at dawn in order to avoid the bailiffs.

Before leaving the house the grounds were searched, and the coast being clear the party drove away in a closed carriage. Finding the others already at the appointed place, the ground was paced off and the principals placed in position. Suddenly from behind neighboring trees a number of men stepped forth and surrounded the combatants. Then Mr. Tucker, throwing down his weapon, pulled a summons. Adams, disgusted at the turn the affair had taken, raised his pistol, aimed at the paper and put a hole through it, at the same time sending it floating on the morning breeze. He then knocked down three of the men surrounding him, but the paper was recovered and read to him before he could get away.

The doughty captain returned to the house he had been hiding in, much disgruntled at having been the victim of so well laid a trick. The truth is the man who had insulted him in the restaurant was one of the detectives watching for him, suspected his identity and had insulted him purposely. The captain had been shadowed on his way home and the challenge sent to trap him, but on his return he found a telegram that Mr. Swift, senior, was dead and there was no further necessity for his hiding.

Thus it was that Captain Adams saved the fortune of the man who had taken the girl he loved from him, and by doing so kept the family from ruin. As soon as his services could be dispensed with he proceeded on his trip, followed by the blessings of those he had served. On his return he hunted up the man who had fired a summons at him instead of a bullet and induced him to enter the secret service department of the army.

Ten years lated Adams, then a colonel, returned to visit the Swifts. He found both father and mother dead, but in their oldest daughter he saw the counterpart of his old love. His exploits with the detectives had caught her fancy when a girl of ten and she was ready to fall in love with the middle aged colonel. And so the fortune he had saved for his rival he found useful to his own wife.

ROSE TREAT THURBER.

THREE JURORS CURED

Of Cholera Morbus with One Small Bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Mr. G. W. Fowler of Hightower, Ala., relates an experience he had while serving on a petit jury in a murder case at Edwardsville, county seat of Clebourne county, Alabama. He says: "While there I ate some fresh meat and some souse meat and it gave me cholera morbus in a very severe form. I was never more sick in my life and sent to the drug store for a certain cholera mixture, but the druggist sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy instead, saying that he had what I sent for, but that this medicine was so much better he would rather send it to me in the fix I was in. I took one dose of it and was better in five minutes. The second dose cured me entirely. Two fellow jurors were afflicted in the same manner and one small bottle cured the three of us." The Better Way

The tissues of the throat are inflamed and irritated; you cough, and there is more irritation—more coughing. You take a cough mixture and it eases the irritation—for a while. You take and it cures the cold. That's what is necessary. It soothes the throat because it reduces the irritation; cures the cold because it drives out the inflammation; builds up the weakened tissues because it nourishes them back to their natural strength. That's how Scott's Emulsion deals with a sore throat, a cough, a cold, or bronchitis.

"This is the first one he wrote me after—after"—

"After he asked you to marry him," said Wilmot grimly. "I know."

Elizabeth faltered a little. "If you would rather not"—

"If you would rather not?" said the man, so they read on.

There was no heading to the boyish scrawl, no date, and the paper was yellow with much handling:

"How did we do it, little girl? I'm lord o' the earth tonight. Is it only five hours since I left you? I'd swear it was five centuries. I'm in my room, working, but at what I don't know. Your face comes between me and the white paper—between me and the foolish, pounding keys—between me and all the world else. Ah, dearly beloved, your eyes when I kissed you, and the maddening tilt of your chin! Pen and ink's but a poor thing, after all. I write down words that mean the world and all, and they come out black, buggish things on a shiny white sheet. I'd like to write to you in forked lightning on a giant rose leaf. Good night, my piece o' the world!"

"What was his work?" asked Wilmot, with husky irreverence.

"Stories and verses. He wrote." Elizabeth laid the letter gently on the coals and drew out the next.

"There are not many," she explained. "It was only a month, and we—we saw each other so often—and I kept only the letters from that one month."

Wilmot nodded in silence.

"You are the funniest child," said the next letter. "When I think of the way I love you—it seems absurd. One ought to give you a doll or a picture book. Well, I have given you my life for the one and my heart for the other, haven't I? I'm not laughing, littlest—at least I'm only laughing that you may not know what a powerful pull you have on my heartstrings. I got a check this morning for a story I'd almost forgotten about. That's why I'm sending you a rose. It's the first thing I've bought with the money. I'm working hard on the play. It's going to be a great thing some day, and you—no, I mean we—are going to be proud of it. We'll go to the theater tonight, littlest, and burn up some of the new check."

"How old were you then?" asked Wilmot.

"I was eighteen," Elizabeth answered dreamily. "I'm twenty-five now, you know."

The letter burned slowly, and they read the next in silence.

"Sweetest," it said, "I've been ill the last two days or I'd have seen you. I've been seeing you anyhow in the shadows of the room and the window curtains and a lot of other silly places. I was out of my head, they tell me. Feel sort of crazy now." The letter was blotted, and the writing a mere scrawl. "That big blot is where I dropped my head just now, because I was too tired to hold it up any longer. I must get back to the play tomorrow; losing too much time. Lord, how my head aches! Oh, littlest girl, I want you!"

"He was only a boy," said Elizabeth, "just a year older than I"—

"Go on," said Wilmot tensely.

Elizabeth turned over the next letter, and a withered rose fell into her lap from the infolding leaf of a torn programme.

"We went to the theater," she explained, touching the flower with gentle fingers, "and I wore the rose on my gown. It was red."

"You like red roses best," said Wilmot jealously. "Was it always so, or did you begin then?"

"I—I suppose it was then," she admitted gently. "He always sent them to me."

Wilmot started up suddenly. "I can't stand much more of this," he said. "Did you ever care for me at all?"

"Don't be angry"— Elizabeth laid a hand on his arm and drew him back. "There isn't much more, and—I think if I didn't love you I couldn't show the letters to you at all. Wait till the end—you will understand."

She laid the dead rose on the fire with the torn programme. The next was only a line or two on a narrow card.

"Flowers he sent me," Elizabeth said, "because he wanted to come that night. And this"—she glanced over a half sheet of rough paper closely covered—"he wrote to thank me for a book I sent him." She looked up at Wilmot. His eyes were dark and inscrutable, but he was white to the lips, and she hurried on.

"There's only one more to read—these are just cards that came with flowers or books."

She laid them on the fire and smoothed out the paper that had lain clinched in her hand so long.

"Is that the last?" asked Wilmot, with dry lips. She nodded, and he bent to read it.

"You are right," it said, "quite right to break with me. There are a thousand reasons why you should, and the one reason why you shouldn't, my love, is a very worthless reason. I don't blame you for not considering it. I knew it must be a mistake—you were not for me. You always gave me your cheek to kiss—and I didn't want your cheek"—

"You see," Elizabeth whispered, with a little catch in her voice.

"You never really cared for me, littlest—never cared; that is, as you can care—as you will care some day for the man who is to come to you. He need not be jealous of me, sweet, when he does come. Your love for me was a child's love that he will not want, and that you will not give him. I have had my divine day, and it is over, but no matter who comes—in spite of the man who is to win where I have lost—you will remember—I claim that, littlest, for my right—you will remember when you love him that I taught you how. I should not write so, perhaps, but there are times when a man must speak what he knows. Keep the few things I have given you. Don't send them back to me. Put them in the sandalwood box and shut their memories in with them. I shall keep your letters. God knows they're few and cold enough.

"Oh, littlest girl, I'd never let you go in this world—if"—

Elizabeth's hand slipped softly into Wilmot's, where it rested on the arm of her chair. They sat in silence while the last letter flared up, then sank and crumbled.

"I think," at last she said softly, "that he was right. You need not be jealous of him. I was a child then. I am another self now. When you came in I had been reading his letters, and somehow in the dusk and quiet I had slipped out of myself back into the little girl he used to love. My mind was full of him and of that little girl, and I couldn't readjust things at once. Then when you used his very words—it was—it was like a ghost. You see, don't you, dear? I'm not disloyal to you. It was just that I remembered, as he said I would."

"I understand," said Wilmot, holding her close. "I was a jealous fool, but you must admit that it was disconcerting to come in and find you reading over another man's letters the night before our wedding."

"It was silly, I suppose," Elizabeth admitted, "but I couldn't help it—and you understand."

"Where is he now?" asked Wilmot, kissing the soft wave of her hair. "You won't grow to care for him again, will you?"

"Oh, Will, hush!" the girl whispered, her cheek against his coat sleeve. "He's dead, dear. He died that year. Didn't I tell you at first? I thought you understood."

The sleet rattled angrily against the window pane, jarring the quiet of the shadowy room, and the fire sank and darkened.

"'You will remember when you love him,'" quoted Wilmot softly, "'that I taught you how'—poor beggar!"

It Was Hard on the Family.

Modern methods of dealing with contagious diseases are a severe trial to many an old fashioned person who in childhood lived through epidemics of various kinds.

"I thought your grandson was looking pretty peart again after his illness," said one of the residents of Canby to Zenas Sprawle, "but it struck me the rest of you looked kind of wore out. I s'pose he was pretty sick for one spell there."

"No, he wa'n't," said Mr. Sprawle stoutly. "There never was a thing the matter of him exceptin' a sore throat 'bout same as I've had dozens o' times, toweled my neck up for a night or two an' come out all right. But my son's wife she had that city doctor to him, an' he made out 'twas one o' them itises an' had him an' his ma quarantined off from the rest of us.

"He had the full use of his legs, an' the way he run over that floor above our heads was enough to wear out a hen. An' when he was able to be moved they had that part o' the house fumigated. It laid the foundations for a stomach trouble with both Marthy an' me, that fumigation did, an' I don't know as the smell will get out o' my clothes enough for me to go to church this whole winter. Get me in a middlin' warm place and that fumigatin' essence begins to try out o' my overcoat same as if 'twas karosense. I guess there's reason enough for Marthy an' me to look wore out."—Youth's Companion.

Why We Are Thirsty.

The sensation of thirst is caused by a lack of fluids in the system. In a state of health it indicates that the body wants moisture. We should distinguish natural thirst from that caused by stimulating food and beverages, which produce a fever in the organs of digestion. Thirst is caused by a failure of the salivary and other glands to secrete a proper amount of fluid for use in the stomach. It is possible to quench thirst not only by the ordinary means, but through the blood vessels and the skin. Much of the water drunk passes out through the skin by means of the blood vessels and is known as unconscious perspiration. It is a well known fact that the loss of blood is always followed by intense thirst. This thirst is one of the most harrowing features of a battlefield, as every old soldier knows. The reason for it is that, the blood vessels being drained of their moisture, the skin becomes parched and every pore is changed into a thirsty mouth. Thirst accompanies fevers, but its causes are local, being due to dryness in the throat and mouth, the result of a high temperature.

The Lions and the Lamb.

Some 300 years ago King James I. of England visited the lions then kept in London Tower, the show from which is derived "the lions" in the sense of the sights of a place. The king had had an arena built on to their cages for fights with bears, dogs and bulls, but the two lions that entered it on this day simply stood blinking. Two "racks of mutton" and "a lusty live cock" were successively thrown to them and devoured. "After this the king caused a live lamb to be easily let down unto them by a rope, and being come to the ground the lamb lay upon his knees, and both the lions stood in their former places and only beheld the lamb, but presently the lamb rose up and went unto the lions, which very gently looked upon him and smelled on him without sign of any further hurt." However, a lion and mastiff fight that followed was better "sport."

The Ice of Greenland.

The largest mass of ice in the world is probably the one which fills up nearly the whole of the interior of Greenland, where it has accumulated since before the dawn of history. It is believed to now form a block about 600,000 square miles in area and averaging a mile and a half in thickness. According to these statistics, the lump of ice is larger in volume than the whole body of water in the Mediterranean, and there is enough of it to cover the whole of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland with a layer about seven miles thick. If it were cut into two convenient slabs and built up equally upon the entire surface of "gallant little Wales" it would form a pile more than 120 miles high. There is ice enough in Greenland to bury the entire area of the United States a quarter of a mile deep.

A Somnambulist

[Original.]

While I was studying my profession—the law—I lived with my uncle, Edward Collins. He had married a widow with a daughter, Anna Wayland. The wife and mother had died, leaving a small portion of her estate to her husband and the balance to her daughter. Anna was a lovely girl and extremely fond of her stepfather, whom she had been brought up to consider a father and who was all she had to cling to. But circumstances occurred to cause me to think that my uncle was not worthy of her confidence that he was trying to possess himself of her estate, which had become entangled. At any rate he was very much worried over something connected with the matter, and I inferred that he was afraid of the law, which is very stringent with guardians.

The house was under the care of a Mrs. Lawson, who had been its manager for many years a grumbling old woman whom my uncle and his ward were perpetually trying to keep in a good humor, but always failing.

Put two young people of opposite sex under the same roof and in time there is bound to be a love affair. Such was the case with Anna Wayland and myself. But it was nipped in the bud. As a boy I had been troubled with somnambulism, but I had not walked in my sleep since I was fourteen. Now while in my uncle's house I had a relapse, and with very mortifying results. One night in summer when we all slept with our doors and windows open I suddenly awakened standing over Anna Wayland's bed. She awoke at the same moment, and as the full moon was shining in at the window she recognized me at once. I was in no condition to explain the matter; indeed, I bolted from the room without a word. The next day I endeavored to set myself right, but Anna was not in a mood to listen to my excuses. The consequence was that by the time she showed a conciliatory disposition I was too much disgruntled to make an explanation. From that time I stood in the position of a sinner.

One day my uncle called me into his study and told me that a "shyster attorney" was trying to bleed him in the matter of his administration of his ward's estate. Certain papers necessary to his clearing himself of violation of the law which he supposed were in his safe were not there. The safe stood in a hall room next to his own, and he alone knew the combination. I asked him if he had ever written the combination on paper and left it where any one could see it, and he replied that he had not. He consulted with me as to what it was best to do—whether it would be advisable for him to pay hush money or throw himself on the mercy of the courts. I advised doing nothing till he was obliged to do something. This was all he could do.

A few days later I surprised Mrs. Lawson and Anna Wayland in an animated conversation. From a few words I heard I was sure that they were talking about what my uncle had revealed to me and that Mrs. Lawson, who had been Anna's nurse, was using her influence to convince the girl that her stepfather was robbing her.

Trouble thickened around my uncle. Papers necessary to enable him to show a clean management of the estate were continually missing, no matter where he kept them. He had no office; consequently he must keep them at home, and he always locked them in the safe. Meanwhile the lawyer, who had in some mysterious way got wind of his position, was threatening him with exposure if he did not give him money. The household was not a pleasant one. I was not on good terms with Anna, who was induced by Mrs. Lawson to believe that her stepfather was swindling her out of her fortune. I had become convinced of my uncle's innocence and treated Anna all the more coldly for listening to her adviser, though I would not advise her myself.

One night I woke up under circumstances involving a coincidence I would not have believed had it not happened to myself. I was standing in front of my uncle's safe. Mrs. Lawson had the safe door open and was rummaging the contents. The start I gave at waking caused her to turn, and when she saw me she gave a moan and sank down on the floor.

Never did the right thing to do occur to me so quickly. Darting to Anna's room, without stopping to put on other clothing than the nightshirt I wore, I called to her, "Come quick and I will prove your guardian's innocence." In her nightdress she followed me and we found Mrs. Lawson hurriedly picking up papers that lay on the floor and putting them into the safe.

"I will do that for you," I said, and pushing her aside I gathered the papers and took them to my own room.

As soon as the culprit had gone Anna insisted on going with me to my uncle's room, waking him up and telling him that we had solved the mystery that was troubling him. He was astonished that one who had so long been trusted in his family should have proved a villain, but was greatly relieved at my discovery.

When I parted with Anna at her room door I told her that my discovery vindicating one dear to both of us had occurred through somnambulism and she was prepared to believe that my appearance in her room was due to the same cause. The reconciliation was perfect.

On condition of not being prosecuted the conspirators returned all the papers they had stolen and soon afterward my uncle turned over the estate to the owner, who in time became my wife.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

STOP, WOMAN!
AND CONSIDER THE ALL-IMPORTANT FACT

That in addressing Mrs. Pinkham you are confiding your private ills to a woman—a woman whose experience with women's diseases covers a great many years.

You can talk freely to a woman when it is revolting to relate your private troubles to a man—besides a man does not understand—simply because he is a man

Many women suffer in silence and drift along from bad to worse, knowing full well that they ought to have immediate assistance, but a natural modesty impels them to shrink from exposing themselves to the questions and probably examinations of even their family physician. It is unnecessary. Without money or price you can consult a woman whose knowledge from actual experience is great.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation.

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass. All letters are received, opened, read and answered by women only. A woman can freely talk of her private illness to a woman; thus has been established the eternal confidence between Mrs. Pinkham and the women of America which has never been broken. Out of the vast volume of experience which she has to draw from, it is more than possible that she has gained the very knowledge that will help your case. She asks nothing in return except your good-will, and her advice has relieved thousands. Surely any woman, rich or poor, is very foolish if she does not take advantage of this generous offer of assistance.

If you are ill, don't hesitate to get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once, and write Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice.

When a medicine has been so successful in restoring to health so many women, you cannot well say, without trying it, "I do not believe it will help me."

WARE.

Worcester Man's Sudden Death.

John Booden, 65, died suddenly Sunday evening at the home of his brother-in-law, Michael Kelly, on Bank street. He had gone to Ware the day before to attend the funeral of his wife's niece, and had retired the night before apparently as well as usual. About three in the morning he called the family, and was found to be suffering severely; Dr. D M. Ryan was called, but nothing could be done and he died from peritonitis before his sons could be summoned from Worcester. Mr. Booden was a former resident of Ware, but moved away about 30 years ago.

Fined for Cruelty to Animals.

On complaint of Joseph F. Lebon, the liveryman, Joseph Martineau was arrested Sunday for cruelty to animals. He had hired a team to go to Ware Center, but had driven to Greenwich Plains and there abused the horse. He was bailed out by his employer, Phileas Vrovencal, and in court Wednesday morning pleaded guilty. He was sentenced to three months in the house of correction, sentence being suspended for that time.

New Industry.

A new industry is to be started in Ware, the manufacture of wooden toys, etc., with later the manufacture of chairs. Selectman Joseph Dumas Jr. is the organizer of the new company, which has been incorporated with $10 000 stock. Mr. Dumas has all the necessary stock and the plant on Sherwin street is being prepared for the machinery. Several of Ware's business men are interested in the company.

Died Without Medical Attendance.

The board of health was called upon Saturday to investigate the second case within a week of the death of a Polish child without medical attendance. The first was 19 months old and the second was 17 days. There was nothing to warrant the holding of an inquest, but the Polish colony was notified that prosecution would follow repeated offenses of a similar nature.

Miss Ruth Hyde entertained a party of young friends at her home on Friday evening of last week.

The school committee has filled the vacancy in the high school teaching force caused by the resignation of Frederick N. Stone of Auburn as teacher of science and mathematics, by the appointment of Arthur B. Hayden of Windsor, Vt.

The funeral of Waldo J. Pratt, who died last week as the result of a fall from the French block, was held from his home on Friday afternoon. Eden lodge of Masons attended in a body; the body was taken to Perkinsville, Vt., for burial.

A REMARKABLE SUCCESS.

How the Boston Journal Has Grown the Past Year.

The advance of The Boston Journal in the past year has been noted by everybody as a most remarkable growth. Where the paper last year was selling over 40,000 copies a day, it is now selling over 64 000 copies, showing a growth of over 50 per cent.

As these figures represent the actual net cash sale to readers—The Journal not allowing any returns—they are very significant. They show a strong, reliable, steady growth.

To make this growth possible, the paper has been bettered in all possible ways. Its news facilities and its departments have been strenghtened, and the aim has been at all times to make a clever, readable, bright journal, chock full of news.

Together with the strengthening of the circulation of The Journal, the advertising has also been built up, until to-day the cash receipts from advertising are stated as over 60 per cent more than they were a year ago.

One of the most interesting new features of The Boston Journal is the establishment of a shopping bureau—an idea absolutely unique in newspaper work anywhere. This was devised to assist Journal readers in buying goods from Journal advertisers when, from bad weather, sickness or other hindrance, the reader could not come to Boston to shop. It has proved a great success, helping hundreds of readers everywhere.

The work is done by the The Journal entirely without charge of any kind, purely as a matter of assistance to its readers in taking advantage of the offers made by Journal advertisers.

Excusable Ignorance.—The bishop of Brisbane told one of his bush clergy who on one of his tours up country asked the child of an English squatter what happened on Christmas day or why the day was observed. The child was unable to answer, and her mother hastened to the rescue. She told the clergyman that he really must excuse their ignorance, as no newspapers had come their way for a long time, and they had not heard the latest intelligence.—Church Eclectic.

JEWELRY PEDDLERS FINED.

Wanted In Chicopee When They Settle With Palmer.

BUT FINES ARE NOT PAID AS YET.

Distributed Packages for Children to Sell; Collector Was to Call Later.

George Hayes, Bert Andrews and Alexander Allen, the three men who were arrested by Officer Crimmins last week for peddling jewelry, had their trial in the district court Tuesday, having lain in jail from Friday owing to a lack of bonds.

The trial attracted a number to the court room besides the witnesses. Mrs. Rosie Long, Mrs. Julia Wallace and Mrs. Maggie Edmunds, all of Dublin street, testified regarding their dealings with different members of the trio; their evidence was about alike, each telling of the call of the man with offers of cheap jewelry to their children, with instructions to sell the 15 pieces for 10 cents each, and that in a week a collector would call for the money and, if all the pieces had been sold, a present would be given; Mrs. Edmunds objected to her girl taking a box, but Hayes handed the child one and left, telling her he would be around in a week for the money. The testimony of half a dozen youngsters of from seven to twelve years was along the same line; all had been told to sell the articles for 10 cents each, and in a week someone would be around for the money and presents would be given even if all the pieces in the boxes were not disposed of; two of the boys stated that Andrews had said he or his brother would call. Most of the children had sold some of the jewelry, for which they had received money.

Counsel for the defense, E. W. Beatty Jr. of Springfield, made the claim that the men had made no sales whatever, that they were acting simply as distributing agents for the Canfield Jewelry Company of Chicago, and that their power was limited to the appointment of agents; they collected no money, that being done by another person, and they sold no goods. Judge Kenefick held however that they were guilty of peddling in a manner intended to be prohibited by the statute, and also that they were disposing of jewelry, which is expressly forbidden in this commonwealth. He accordingly fined them each $50, from which they took an appeal; bonds in the sum of $300 each were required, but were not forthcoming

The men were evidently sick of the whole business, and at odds with the company they represent for not helping them instead of allowing them to remain in durance for four days; one of them remarked that if he could get out of this scrape the company could go to —— for all of him. Two of the men are wanted by the Chicopee police when Palmer has done with them.

Probate Court Matters.

Sikes of Ludlow administrator; Martha L Sikes, late of Ludlow, Frank E Sikes of Ludlow administrator.

Accounts allowed—Trustees' accounts in estates of Cyrus W. Holmes Jr., late of Monson; Theodore Reynolds, late of Monson; executors' accounts in estates of Adin Whitney, late of Ludlow; Henry S. Ward, late of Monson; guardians' accounts in estate of Newton C. Wing of Palmer; administrators' accounts in estates of Mary L Lyman, late of Wilbraham; William Talmadge, late of Palmer.

Death of Holland Resident.

William Lafayette Webber, 50, died last Friday afternoon after a two-days' illness of apoplexy. His death came as a shock to the community, as he had been active in his business as usual and appeared in excellent health and spirits.

Mr. Webber was born June 16, 1845, and was the son of Dea. William A. and Sarah Damon Webber. He was active in town affairs, having held nearly every town office. He was assessor and cemetery commissioner at the time of his death, and had held the office of postmaster for the past ten years In politics he was a Republican, and served in the Legislature in 1881 and 1882. Mr. Webber was a kind friend and neighbor, always ready to assist in bearing others burdens and was always interested in the advancement of everything which would promote the public good. He was president of the Wales Savings Bank, and attended a meeting of that institution only the day before his death.

The funeral was held in the Congregational church Monday afternoon. The eulogy was delivered by Rev. Samuel Eaton, pastor of the church, and music was furnished by a quartet composed of Mrs. Edward Wright of Worcester, Mrs. Emma Moulton of Lawrence, Mr. George Putnam of Worcester and Rev. Arthur Moulton of Lawrence.

HOOSAC MOUNTAINS, DEERFIELD

Valley, Hudson River Excursion to New York, $5, Oct. 5, From Boston, and Oct. 4 From All Other Stations.

The Hoosac Mountains and the Deerfield Valley form a combination of mountain grandeur and pastoral beauty of rural landscape, seldom seen. It was Hawthorne who in a ride through this region perceived the variations of nature in her bestowal of beauty upon this favored country, and he expressed it forcibly when he observed that the peaceful scenery of the valley was diversified by the mountains in their offerings of sunshine and shadow, glory and gloom.

It is the Fitchburg Division of the Boston & Maine R. R. which has the honor of serving this scenic section; and it is safe saying that no railroad in the United States has such a magnificent border of landscape beauty as the railroad from the "Charles to the Hudson."

This is the route of the $5 excursion from Boston on October 5th, and from other stations on October 4th, and one has but to receive an inkling of what wonders are in store, and a "sure venture" that he will see for himself. After departure from the North Station, it is but a few minutes ere we are in Waltham, the city of watches, and watch out, for you are on the banks of the Charles and about to commence a railroad journey through New England's "Garden of Eden."

Bustling cities dropped midst the green hills of central Massachusetts; shimmering lakes whose shores are sheltered with large shade trees; silvery streams whose green banks and verdant border lands invitingly welcome us to tarry awhile and rest; roaring water falls, snowy cascades; sportive brooks, and huge hills and mountain peaks all pass in the Boston & Maine biograph. At Troy, N. Y., we bid goodbye to the delightful scenery as viewed from a car window. We cross the Hudson and alight from the train at Albany, N. Y. You enjoy the moonlight view of the Hudson River on the night steamers or remain in Albany over night and take in the sights of the capital city. The day line trip down the Hudson on the palatial steamers is undoubtedly the grandest sail in the country. We pass in plain view of the gorgeous Catskill Mountains, under the famous Poughkeepsie Bridge, past West Point, Newburg and the historical shrines of the Revolution the palisades and all the scenic wonders of a wonderful region; through the maze of flying craft in New York harbor, and dock at the metropolis.

Two days in New York—you can do as you please. Returning, we journey via the Fall River Line steamers to Boston and other stations, and via the Providence Line to Providence and Worcester. $5 00 is the round trip rate. Send to the General Passenger Department, Boston & Maine R R., Boston, for the beautiful illustrated booklet and souvenir of the trip. It describes the journey in detail, and is beautifully illustrated. It will be sent free to any one upon receipt of address.

Massachusetts Crop Report For August.

In its crop report for August the Massachusetts State Board of Agriculture includes an article on "Practical Poultry Housing," by John H. Robinson, editor of "Farm-Poultry." This report will be sent free on application to J. Lewis Ellsworth, Secretary State Board of Agriculture, State House, Boston, and those wishing it may have their names put on the mailing list for future issues.

In this article Mr. Robinson says: "At several farmers' institutes in this state during the past year, the description of some poultry houses I am using and explanation of reasons for using them has excited enough interest to make me think farmers throughout the state may be equally interested in the subject. The ideas and principles on which this method of housing poultry are based are not new, nor are they at all novel. On the contrary they are very old and very common. But not until within a few years have they seemed to those looking for the best ways of housing poultry to be worth serious consideration. For several years past they have been much discussed in the poultry press, and the general interest in them and increasing use of them marks probably the last stage of the reaction from the plans and methods most in favor since the interest in better results from poultry culture began to assume its present importance.

For a great many years authorities on poultry keeping have advocated warm, tightly built houses, and the reproduction, as far as possible, of spring conditions. In a degree this reproduction has been successful, so far as the temperature is concerned, but temperature is but a part of spring conditions, and in keeping it up other things have been sacrificed, notably ventilation, and, with the close confinement of the fowls this has brought sickness and impairment of vitality in many instances. The general poor results obtained under such conditions led Mr. Robinson to look into the question of housing and to experiment with houses built on a very different plan.

Describing the first of these houses he says: "This house was a mere shell or shed; the walls of common hemlock boards, laid perpendicularly on a light frame, and the joints between the boards covered at the back and ends of the house with common battens; the joints on the front being left open. The roof was of shingles, laid on strips of furring placed three inches apart." The house was not tight anywhere, it was built on wet ground, and was cold, the temperature in it being but little higher at any time than that out doors." Mr. Robinson goes on to describe his houses and methods in detail, giving results obtained and the conclusions drawn from them.

The article is illustrated with cuts and plans of the houses in use.

In conclusion the writer briefly enumerates the advantages of cold houses, as follows: Economy of construction, economy of time and relief from close attention to ventilation, healthier fowls. As to results,—as a rule the production of eggs will not be as good as in warm houses that are carefully operated, but will be better than in warm houses as commonly operated. Whether the difference in egg production in warm houses can be made enough greater to pay for better attention and the greater risks of disease is a question for each individual to determine for himself. Most farmers would determine in favor of the cold house, because it leaves them more free to look after other work.

WILBRAHAM.

Miss Corrinne E. Pease has secured a position as teacher in the schools at Granville.

A daughter, Doris Laviolette, was born Sunday morning to Mr. and Mrs. George H. Kearns.

Mr. and S. F. Howard of Amherst have been guests of Rev. and Mrs. M. S. Howard at the Congregational parsonage.

Mrs. Ann Robinson, 88, an old resident of Wilbraham, died Sunday at the home of her brother in Pawtucket, R. I. The body was brought to Wilbraham Tuesday for burial in Woodlawn Dell cemetery.

SCHOOLS OPENED TUESDAY.

With Increased Enrollment in Grades and Districts.

HIGH SCHOOL ATTENDANCE TEN LESS

Than Last Year. Room Crowded. Transportation to Grades Working Well.

The public schools of the town opened for the fall term on Tuesday, and the registration is somewhat larger than last year as a whole, the increase being in the grades. The Palmer grammar school heads the list with 364, Bondsville has 214, Thorndike 181 and Three Rivers 171, a total of 930; in addition to these there are about 40 at the Wire Mill school and about 27 at Palmer Center. The transportation system, whereby the scholars in the Forest Lake, Shorley and Mason districts are being carried to the larger schools in the villages, is working nicely. On account of the large number in the Palmer grammar school, another room will be opened there next week and a rearrangement of several of the rooms will be made.

At the high school the attendance is 113, just ten less than last year. The quarters are rather cramped for this number, but they are all accommodated after a fashion by seating 46 two in a seat during the opening exercises and then transferring the entire senior class to the north room. The new course of study outlined in the school report last March is in operation, giving a choice of four courses, classical, Latin and modern language, general and English. The names and residences of those attending the high school are:

SENIORS. Edward E Bard, Eben R. Barton, Hazel A. Dillon, Harriett N. Fitch, Maude W. Helliwell, Anna E. O'Connor, Michael C. Smith, Millie F. Wells, Fannie A. Welsh, Palmer; Martha X. Barthowiak, Elizabeth E. Hartnett, Irving R. Shaw, Three Rivers; Ruth S. Bishop, Thorndike; Anna G. Carmody, Maurice Cavin, James Fitzgerald, Lucy C. Fitzgerald, Joanna R. Griffin, Bondsville; Elizabeth K. Christensen, Palmer Center; Winfield W. Greene, North Wilbraham.

JUNIORS. Thomas J. Conroy Jr., Florence M. Heenehan, Irene C. LeGro, Alice K. Shaw, Ada B. Swann, Palmer; Robert L. Geer, Ralph Loring Willis, Three Rivers; Grace T. Childs, Bondsville; Agnes Mahoney, Palmer Center.

SOPHOMORES Marjorie L. Buck, Mildred E. Caryl, Lena E. Collis, Bernice Hart, Maude J LaSalle, Elsie J. Micott, Rexford R. Paine, Sophia E. Rice, Daisy E. Richards, Jennie Todd, Mabel H. Pomona Grange Meeting.

Springfield Pomona Grange held a meeting at Wilbraham Wednesday, with a good attendance. M. A. Morse of Belchertown, a deputy of the state grange, was present as a visitor, and spoke on the subject "How can we get better returns for the money expended on our highways," which was the topic for the morning's discussion. Messrs. King, Chapman, Atkinson, Miller and Forward also spoke. The afternoon session opened with a song by the grange, followed by a reading "Rheumatis, cured by the sting of a bee," by Miss Ruth Reed of Wilbraham. Miss Eva Gebo of Wilbraham rendered a vocal solo, which was followed by short remarks by Alonzo Eaton of Springfield. The topic, "Forage crops—what to raise," was discussed by F. H. Bennett and E E. Chapman. A song by E. E. Chapman closed the meeting.

House Struck by Lightning.

The house owned by Ensign Morse in Ludlow was struck by lightning Monday morning, and all the members of the family were slightly shocked. No fire resulted, but the house was damaged in various parts. The bolt is supposed to have entered the house by way of the telephone wire, as the telephone box was blown to pieces. The bolt exploded in the cellar, and blew open the cellar door. Miss Celia Moon, who was near the door, was thrown down, but sustained no serious injuries. The plaster of all the partitions on the first floor of the house was loosened. The house was filled with smoke, and the family began removing the furniture, but it was soon discovered that there was no fire. Nearly every telephone line in town was put out of commission by the lightning.

Trotting Classes For The Fair.

The following classes and purses have been arranged for the Palmer fair in October:

Friday, Oct. 6.
2.19 pacers and 2.17 trotters,	$150
2.30 pacers and 2.28 trotters,	150
Local race, trotters without records,	50
Saturday, Oct. 7.
2.24 pacers and 2.22 trotters,	150
2.45 trotters,	150
Open to all, trot or pace,	200
Local race, pacers without records,	50

The entries close Tuesday, October 3, except for the local races, and records made on or after September 23 are not a bar. The local races are open to horses in the towns of Palmer, Monson, Ludlow, Wilbraham, Hampden, Longmeadow, East Longmeadow, Belchertown, Ware, Warren, the Brookfields and Spencer. The heats in these races will be half mile, best two in three.

Prizes For Girls.

Among the prizes offered by the Eastern Hampden Agricultural Society to be competed for at its fair next month are two of $2 and $1 for the best wheat bread made by girls under 15 years of age.

BRIMFIELD.

Miss Grace W. Stoughton of New York is visiting at the home of Mrs. Samuel W. Brown.

Mr. and Mrs. Emery Livermore are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Chase at Newport, R. I.

Mrs. Lillian Ellery Lemieux of Montreal and son Maurice are guests of Dr. and Mrs. S. H. Ellery at the hotel.

Neighbors' night was observed by the Grange Tuesday night, and the literary program was furnished by the Warren Grange. There were about 75 in attendance.

Our Boston Letter

It tells about

Lawson and Whitney — Coming Evangelistic Movement — Political Affairs of Both Parties.

BOSTON, Sept. 6, 1905.

Thomas W. Lawson's reception by the Boston public is varied. On the part of the older business men he seems to be at a discount to the extent that they let him talk and write and then go on their way just the same. No better illustration could be found than in the case of Henry M. Whitney. In Everybody's Magazine Lawson attacked Whitney so severely that there was doubtless ground for a libel suit if Whitney desired to enter one. Whether suit would rake up too many matters in which both were interested to their mutual discredit, or whether Whitney was afraid of further exposure of other enterprises, or whether he simply scorns Lawson entirely, the public cannot know, but the fact is that the suit has never been brought and Whitney seems to hold his head as high as ever among business men. He has been mentioned as candidate for governor on the Democratic ticket, and it has not appeared that the Democrats saw any incongruity in putting him in their highest place of honor, even though they know the record he made in 1890 in the West End case, when their own party followed George Fred Williams in arraigning him at the bar of public opinion. Nor can they have forgotten his record in 1896 when the Massachusetts Pipe Line Company's bill was passed only after a contest in which the statement of the use of money was made with a directness rarely known in legislative matters. Names were given of legislators who took money, and amounts were specified, and there were graphic descriptions of the number of legislators who went to the corporation office to "shake the plum tree." There was no direct connection of Whitney with the giving out of the money, but the impression upon his reputation by the state house scandal was exceedingly unfortunate for him, and he will never live it down.

But in the case of younger men, as is testified by a bright one to-day, the impression produced by Lawson is more like that produced in the West. We get plenty of evidence from persons who have come from there that Lawson is taken much more seriously there than he is here. He has done much to stir up popular feeling against the wealthy, and the reading public does not make the discount which is made in this city, where the relatively small impression would have been still less had it not been for the reflex action from the West. Young men are more impressed, and it is said that the effect of Lawson's homilies and revelations is going to be good, on the whole, in spite of the danger that susceptible young fellows may prefer the crooked path to the straight one.

Our state board of health is watching as best it can for the venders of unwholesome food in order to protect the health and lives of the people. Dr. Charles Harrington, the new secretary of the board, feels the pressure of the unprincipled wretches who want to sell tainted shellfish and who load him with abuse because he steps in to prevent. It is all right, he says, for the state to forbid the sale of decayed fruit, but the worst that will do will be to upset the digestive system a little while. But tainted shellfish will give you typhoid fever and you die. Yet some people complain because they are forbidden from making money from this source of profit, and then want vengeance to be wrecked somehow upon the state officials who prevent the turning of a penny in this way. The board is constantly on the watch for adulterations, and it finds something going on all the time to keep it busy. The temptation to fraud in what people eat and drink is constant, and if it were not for the laws and the men back of them there is not the slightest doubt that the people would be both robbed and murdered deliberately.

Plans are on foot for a renewal of the evangelistic movement which was begun last spring under the leadership of Rev. Dr. W. J. Dawson of London, who opened in Pittsfield in this state, after a beginning in Portland, and after some weeks in Boston and vicinity went to New Haven, thence to New York and Brooklyn and thence to the West. He has been home this summer, and now returns for a fall campaign. He has strongly organized support behind him and it will not be the fault of men's purposes if a great revival does not ensue. But the result was disappointing last spring. Old church-goers were interested. They followed in the novelty of a street procession to gather waifs and the curious and bring them into a meeting in Tremont Temple. But the outcome of that outburst was not what the projectors wanted, and there has been nothing doing since Dr. Dawson departed to show that great things were expected upon his return. Great results in Wales were rehearsed here with the hope that the immense throngs and the unbounded public demonstrations might be duplicated. But the effort must be judged to have fallen dead, unless there are great results this fall. In the meantime, witness of the need of a revival, are heard continual complaint of graft in business and extortion on the part of all who have the public by the throat and can extort money from them.

Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark, founder of the Christian Endeavor society, is still at Pine Point, his summer home near Portland, recovering strength slowly, but surely, and likely to take a trip to Europe soon in the hope of further strength.

One of the most genial, honest and public-spirited newspaper men of Boston has left us in the person of Edward E. Edwards of the Boston Transcript, whose funeral occurs to-day. He had been with the paper ever since 1856, excepting the three years when he was a soldier in the civil war. Beginning as compositor, he rose through the intermediate grades to general editorial writer and dramatic critic. He was of the quality which puts public good first, and The Transcript will prosper as long as it acts in his spirit.

Mrs. Thomas Barry, former leading lady of the stock company of the Boston theater, who was buried a few days ago, was of the class of Booth, Barrett, Jefferson and Warren. She was easily the most powerful actress of any Boston produced in the last generation and she had hosts of admirers. Her family life was as pure and honorable as her stage life was distinguished. She had rare personal presence on the stage. Her countenance was beautiful in queenly power. Her presence was commanding. Her acting was self-forgetful and faithful to the large parts in Shakespeare and other great writers. Her domain was not at all in the light plays which are so popular to-day, and her artistic power could never have found expression in them. She will long be remembered by those who were fortunate enough to see her.

Politicians are moving lively these days. Yesterday came the address of the committee of 14 of the Boston Chamber of Com-

PALMER NEWS.

TO PROTECT GAME.

Talk of Forming Association of Palmer and Monson Hunters.

There is talk among the sportsmen of Palmer and Monson of forming a game protective association, to protect the game in local covers from pot hunters. This section of the state is known as one of the best for birds, and has attracted attention far and near, hunters coming from Springfield, Holyoke, Worcester and even farther east in considerable numbers to try their luck. A conservative estimate places the number of birds killed by these hunters last season in Palmer as four to one for local sportsmen. And it is reasonable to suppose that, under conditions known to exist, only a small percentage of the birds killed by the visitors were used by them, the greater portion probably finding their way into the refrigerators of clubs, hotels and restaurants. It is against the law to offer birds for sale or to have them in possession with intent to sell, but that the law is evaded is evident; Palmer hunters have received invitations to kill birds for clubs and hotels, and it is not to be supposed they are the only ones so approached. The trolleys have made the hunting grounds in this section easily accessible for city hunters, and they have come in flocks; and coming as they do it is almost impossible for the game wardens to prove that the birds are not for personal use, against which there is no objection either on the part of local hunters or the law.

Just what can be done in the matter has not been fully decided, but the suggestion is along the line of making some arrangement with the farmers and owners of land by which it can be posted and all others than members of the association kept off. It is the opinion that if this were done for a very few years the covers in this vicinity would then afford a sufficient number of birds to give some unusually fine sport. It is also thought that the land owners will be willing to make some arrangement of this kind, as under it the association would probably prosecute trespassers, and it would bring the hunting on their lands down to a limited number, who would be more careful of damage than outsiders now are. Dr. S B. Keith of Palmer is at the head of the movement.

BASEBALL SEASON ENDED.

Palmer Team Has Played 14 Games and Won 10.

The baseball season in Palmer is at an end, and the directors of the baseball association are winding up the affairs of that organization. There seemed to be, at the beginning of the season, a desire on the part of the sporting public for baseball, and the baseball association was formed to supply the demand. It has furnished a good article of baseball, but the public's desire for the sport seemed to diminish in proportion to the number of games played. The attendance at the games has been pitiably small, and the gate receipts, plus the amounts contributed by individuals early in the season, will not pay the bills, consequently the directors are on a hunt for funds with which to meet the deficiency.

Just what is the cause of the lack of attendance would be hard to determine. If good games were what was wanted, they were furnished; Palmer played 14 games and lost four. Some of these games were of the most exciting kind, as good as will be seen on any of the league grounds if closeness and sharp playing is counted; of course the Palmer players had their off days, but as a whole they played mighty good ball. It has been a surprise to the directors of the association that the attendance was so small, and they have yet to find a satisfactory reason for it. At the beginning of the season it was voted to begin on Memorial Day and close Labor Day, and this program has been carried out, except that the Labor Day games could not be played on account of the rain. The record of the games played is as follows, all but one, the second Stafford game, being played in Palmer:

Palmer	12	Ludlow	3
Palmer	3	Northampton	0
Palmer	8	Springfield Y. M. C. A.	1
Palmer	5	Gilbertville	4
Palmer	3	Indian Orchard	2
Palmer	9	Gilbertville	6
Palmer	15	Holyoke St. Aloysius	2
Palmer	5	Stafford	10
Palmer	3	Stafford	10
Palmer	7	Indian Orchard	2
Palmer	6	Ludlow	8
Palmer	1	Stafford	6
Palmer	5	Easthampton	3

A New Match.

A new match has made its appearance in the market, which is a decided improvement over any of the old kinds. The old-fashioned sulphur match found favor with many, though for the busy or nervous man it was too slow a means of getting a light for a pipe or cigar or any other purpose; the snap match supplied the lacking element of speed, but proved a dangerous substitute because of the liability of the flying sparks setting fire to dresses, curtains and like combustible articles. The new match is a combination of both these kinds, and is made with a sulphur tip and a head of the other kind. The match when scratched — they can be used in the good old-fashioned way — starts off exactly as did the common sulphur matches, but almost instantly break out into a quick blaze similar to that of the "snap" match, but without the dangerous element contained in them. They will be received with favor by women and those who dislike the snap match which is used so generally.

Lots of Rain.

The long-continued drought was put far in the background by the rain of last Saturday, Sunday and Monday. It was a continuous performance, practically, from early Saturday evening until after noon on Monday; not a gentle drizzle, but a hard downpour most of the time. The record for rainfall, as measured at the United States armory in Springfield, was 5.19 inches. As a result all of the small streams were swollen to the banks, while the rivers contained more water than they had seen for many a month. The springs have been materially quickened, and the storage reservoirs of water companies have assumed a more pleasing condition of fullness. In some places the roads were somewhat washed by the large amount of water passing over them, but no serious washes have been reported in this town.

Horan—Fay.

The marriage of Miss Mamie E. Horan of Ware and Daniel J. Fay of Palmer took place in All Saints' church in Ware Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock, Rev. John H. Murphy officiating. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Elizabeth Horan of Ware, and Dr. D. W. O'Connor of Palmer was best man. Miss Nellie G. Carroll, organist, played during the ceremony. The bride was gowned in blue silk, as was also the bridesmaid. A wedding breakfast was served at the home of Mrs. Julia Feehan on Pleasant street in Ware after the ceremony. The couple received many handsome presents, among which was a dining-room set from Mr. Fay's fellow-employes of the Springfield and Eastern street railway. After a trip to Providence and Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Fay will reside in Palmer.

The selectmen, at their meeting Monday afternoon, received the resignation of H. H. Paine as registrar of voters, and appointed E. E. Hobson in his place.

Plenty of Water Now.

The Palmer Water Company now has plenty of water for all legitimate uses. The rains of the past week have filled their reservoirs nearly to the brim. The lower and upper reservoirs are full, and the middle or service reservoir lacks about 14 inches of the top of the present flashboards on the dam, and a foot could be added to these if desired.

The company has finished cleaning out the middle reservoir, the mud on the bottom having been cleaned up and carted out upon the banks. Definite plans for increasing the storage capacity have not been formulated as yet, but the company has under consideration the plan of raising the dam of the lower or service reservoir about four feet.

H. A. Northrop Sells Ice Business.

H. A. Northrop, who has been in the ice business in Palmer for a number of years, has sold his business and plant to the Palmer Ice Company, mention of the formation of which was made recently. The sale includes the pond and ice house on the Thorndike road, and a lease of the pond and house on Park street, known as the "Cider Mill" pond. The new company will take possession November 15. It plans to materially enlarge the pond on the Thorndike road, and make other changes, to be decided upon later.

Was It a Ghost?

A Palmer automobilist, returning from Brimfield last evening, was given a ghost scare for an instant on the Brimfield hill. He was about half way down to Foskett's Mills when the searchlight on the front of his machine revealed a man in the road with a pillowcase or some other white material over his head, in which were holes for the eyes, nose and mouth. The machine shot by the fellow, and the last seen of him he was trying to climb the bank out of the highway, which ran through a cut at that point.

Bodfish, who has been engaged in the dry goods business in this town for a number of years, has been appointed district manager for the Provident Life and Trust Company of Philadelphia, with headquarters in Fitchburg. Mr. Bodfish will not give up his business here, but will leave it in charge of Frank A. Keith, who has been with him for a number of years, and will be in town himself Saturdays and Sundays.

A farewell social was given in Memorial Hall Tuesday evening to Misses Helen Clark and Kate Matthews, and John Matthews, who are soon to leave town to reside in the eastern part of the state. It was an invitation party, and just 25 couples were present. The hall was prettily trimmed with asparagus, there was music for dancing, and light refreshments were served. The affair was managed by Miss Helen Buck and Miss Ruth Fiske.

The bowling season is fast approaching, and ere long the contests will be on. E. D Tufts is planning some changes and improvements in his place on Main street, and among other things will have the alleys planed and dressed over with a new finish. Those at Thorndike have already been planed and it is expected that they will be opened for the public next week, after being closed all summer. There is some talk of a candlepin league, also a league of bottle pin players. With the interest started last year there will no doubt be much doing in this line this winter.

An amusing condition of affairs developed one day recently, when a local carpenter was locked in the savings bank apartments, and could neither get out or get at the cash. He was sent there to do a small job of work, and was in a back room when the employes left, supposing that the janitor of the block was about to let the carpenter out. He however had gone elsewhere just at that time, and the carpenter, on finishing his work, was dismayed to find that he was a prisoner, the windows being screened with heavy wire, fastened on the outside. The janitor finally appeared and gave the man his liberty.

BONDSVILLE.

Collis—McKenzie.

A pretty home wedding took place Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Collis, when their daughter, Miss Eva Aurilla, was united in marriage to Matthew McKenzie of Thorndike. The ceremony was performed by Rev. L. L. Beeman, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, the single ring being used. Miss May Belle Clark of Thorndike, a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor, and George McKenzie, brother of the groom, was best man. The wedding march was played by Miss Anna May Collis, sister of the bride. The bride wore a gown of white net over white silk and carried chrysanthemums in her hand. The maid of honor was gowned in white muslin trimmed with cut lace and carried a a bouquet of sweet peas. The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion with ferns, hydrangeas and dahlias. After the ceremony a reception was held, which was attended by a large number of friends and relatives, and refreshments were served. Among the out-of-town guests present were Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Childs of Lancaster and Frank Talmadge and two sons of Springfield. Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie left on the 4.45 train for Providence, R. I., where they will spend their honeymoon, and on their return they will reside in this village. Mrs. McKenzie has spent all of her life in Bondsville, and has hosts of friends who will wish her happiness in her new life.

Golf Tournament.

The second series of the handicap tournament of the members of the Bondsville Country Club has been played during the past week with a victory for F. Convery, L. Ryther and O Parent, who expect to compete in the finals to-morrow afternoon. This will determine the winner of the prize, which is to be a golf club. During this series the scores made by L. Ryther, C. Holden and O. Parent were low for the course, being 109, 110, 112 respectively, and denoted good playing and an exciting contest on their part. The score is as follows:

	Handicap	1st	2d	3d	Total
F. Convery,	none
E. Lamb,	none		forfeited
C. Holden,	none	33	37	40	110
L. Ryther,	none	37	39	33	109

Always liberal to Churches.

Every church will be given a liberal quantity of L. & M. paint. Call for it.

4 gallons Longman & Martinez L & M. Paint mixed with three gallons linseed oil, will paint a house.

W. B. Barr, Charleston, W. Va., writes, "Painted Frankenburg block with L. & M., stands out as though varnished."

Wears and covers like gold.

Don't pay $1 50 a gallon for linseed oil, which you do in ready-for-use paint.

Buy oil fresh from the barrel at 60 cents per gallon and mix it with L & M.

It makes paint cost about $1 20 per gallon. Sold by Asahel Wheeler Co., Boston; W. N Flynt & Sons, Monson; John Wilson, Three Rivers; F. A. Gurney, Wilbraham; W. E. Stone & Son, Palmer.

Monson News.

Death of Henry O. Nelson.

Henry Otis Nelson, 57, a prominent citizen of this town and a veteran of the Civil War, died in the Springfield hospital Sunday afternoon after a long illness. Mr Nelson was born in Brimfield August 12, 1838, and had been for many years a resident of this place, working for a long time in the hat factory. He joined the army July 19, 1861, at Worcester as a private in Co. D, 21st Mass. Vols, and was discharged from service September 20, 1862, on account of disability. Mr. Nelson participated in the battles of Roanoke Island and New Berne. He leaves a widow and one daughter, Mrs A. H. Orcutt of North Main street. The funeral was held from the residence Tuesday afternoon at 2 30 o'clock, Rev. N M. Pratt officiating. The bearers were members of Marcus Keep Grand Army post, of which he was a member, and were George W. Seymour, William A. Charles, Henry A. Bugbee, Amos Anderson, Charles Abbott and Moses Wilcox. The burial was in the No 1 cemetery.

Some Interesting Weather Figures.

Dr. George E. Fuller, who has been keeping an accurate record of the weather for the past 25 years, has some figures which are of interest in connection with the storm of last Saturday, Sunday and Monday. It rained in Monson every day for the seven days ending last Monday, and the total rainfall during that time was 6 23 inches, the greatest amount during the same length of time since he began keeping the record. In March, 1888, the precipitation during the snowstorm known as the "Blizzard" was 4.25 inches; in September of that year there was a great snowstorm, when 39 inches of snow fell, the precipitation being 5 34 inches. In a storm in August, 1898, it was 5 41 inches.

Postmaster Seymour has some interesting figures in connection with the rural delivery routes for the year which ended Sept. 1st. The two carriers for the year delivered 82,897 pieces, and received 21,486 pieces, a total of 104,383 pieces handled. The amount of stamps and envelopes sold for the year was $900; there were 196 registered letters and 321 money orders. The carrier for No. 1 route traveled 7170 miles, and for No. 2 6860 miles. The volume of business is very satisfactory.

The firemen's annual clambake was held in Joseph Reynolds' barn Monday afternoon instead of in the grove on account of the severe storm. Rohan Bros. of Ware catered, and the bake was pronounced a good one. R H. Murphy, chairman of the bake committee, acted as toastmaster, and among the after-dinner speakers who were called upon were A. D. Norcross, Joseph Reynolds, the selectmen, F. E. Cady and the firemen of the different fire companies. The bad storm put a damper on the outdoor sport which usually prevails at these bakes.

The reunion of the 27th Regt., Mass. Vols., will be held in Memorial Hall on Wednesday, Sept. 20. Families of comrades are cordially invited and are expected to be present. Dinner will be served free by the citizens of the town to members of the regiment and their wives. The business meeting will be held at 11 o'clock, followed by the dinner. At the close of dinner there will be speaking by prominent citizens of the town and members of the regiment, one of whom will be Gen. H. C. Dwight of Hartford, Ct, who is a very bright and entertaining speaker. The speaking will be open to the public. There will be singing by Wilbur Miller's G. A. R. quartet.

WALES.

Death of an Old Resident.

Miss Sarah A. Shaw, 73, died at the home of her sister in Worcester Wednesday. Miss Shaw was born in Wales and had always lived here. She had always enjoyed good health, until last winter, when she fell down stairs and injured her back, which rendered her unable to leave the house for several weeks. About ten weeks ago her health began to fail and she went to visit her sister. She failed rapidly and was stricken with a shock Monday and died Wednesday. Miss Shaw was a member of the Baptist church and was highly respected by all who knew her She is survived by one brother, Gardner F. Shaw of Wales, and one sister, Mrs. Josephine C. Webber of Worcester.

WARREN.

Special Town Meeting.

A special town meeting will be held on the 12th at 7.30 p. m. The warrant contains six articles, which are of no special importance. The second is to authorize the town treasurer to borrow $438 to settle the account of the state against the town for the expenses of the late Josephine Chambers at the state hospital. The other articles are: To choose a committee to investigate the condition of the bridge of the Quaboag river on North street; to authorize the treasurer to borrow $150 to care for the surface water on Pine street; to authorize the treasurer to borrow $750 to pay the estate of the late Daniel Sullivan the balance of license money as voted at the last meeting. The last article is the most peculiar of all, and reads: "To hear the record of the clerk of the votes cast at said meeting and act thereon."

Fell Down Stairs.

Mrs. Warren D. Ball met with a painful accident Wednesday afternoon. While going down cellar she slipped on a potato paring and fell four stairs on to the hard cellar bottom. Dr. C. A. Deland was called and found that she had sustained an impacted fracture of the left thigh.

Kenworthy, Miss Mary F. Woodard, Miss Helen M. Prouty.

OUR BOSTON LETTER.

merce to the Republicans of Massachusetts, indorsing Guild and Hall and proposing a plank for the Republican platform declaring for free raw materials in coal, iron ore, hides, lumber and wood pulp, and reciprocity with a reduction from the Dingley tariff, through the dual tariff idea. Now the question comes whether the reciprocity and tariff revision Republicans can outvote the Dingley Republicans who are in charge of the state machine, though both Lodge and Crane, as well as Guild, candidate for governor, say that they are for revision of the tariff and thereby seem to put themselves in antagonism to Draper, who is the candidate they are supporting for the second place on the state ticket. The situation is extremely confused for a man who wants to vote right and vote as the leaders vote and believe. Unless the situation clears before election, it will be badly mixed for the average voter.

Nothing is doing yet among the Democrats for a candidate for governor. Josiah Quincy says that they are not suffering for want of suitable material, and that when convention meets a candidate will be produced. But it is one thing to head up the ticket, and altogether a different thing to elect the nominee. Gen. Morris Schaff, on the gas and electric light commission, would probably be a candidate, sacrificing willingly his official position in order to accept the nomination, if the campaign could be run on a platform of true democracy, a return to the principles of the party, the subordination of personal ambition to the good of the public and the advancement of popular rights as he has tried to advance them as a gas commissioner. He has one of the strongest personal records which could possibly be found among all the men who could possibly be named for the nomination. He was orator at the dedication of the Bartlett statue, and he has a first-class civil war record. Such a man would appeal to the mass of the people far more than Gaston. He insists upon the rights of property, but equally upon the rights of the people against the corporations. The entire democracy which believes in democratic principles could unite upon him with hopeful outlook.

This afternoon the representatives of the committee of 100 of the Boston chamber of Commerce, to the number of 15, met at the Exchange Club, requested the Republicans and Democrats to put into their platforms the free raw material plank adopted by the sub-committee yesterday, and voted to increase the membership from 100 to 500. Andrew G. Webster, chairman of the sub-committee, says that the full committee decided to take part in the campaign, which means that the reciprocity Republicans, as far as represented by their committee, will bolt the Republican ticket unless it agrees with their views.

THE MAJOR'S GHOST

[Copyright, 1905, by R. B. McClure.]

Thirty miles out of London and between the villages of Tunbridge Wells and Little Manor was the property of Sir Hugh Cullom, deceased. He had been a bachelor, and the property had fallen to a relative whose whereabouts were not known. It was only a small landed estate of about fifty acres, and the house had hardly been habitable during the last five years of the owner's life. Left without a caretaker, another five years made it little better than a ruin.

When grounds are neglected and overgrown and a house goes to decay it does not take long for a rustic population to give it a bad name and connect a ghost with it. It was so in this case. Once a couple of boys reported seeing a man's face at one of the lower windows, but the story passed for what it was worth. Only a few people would have it that the house was haunted, but all seemed to tacitly agree that it was a good place to keep away from.

One day Major Killaine came down from London for a week's fishing and put up at the Sundial. It was not long before the gossips posted him regarding the Cullom house, and what was said seemed to stick in his mind. He said little, but that night after supper he took a walk over the highway toward the house and was gone for three hours. Next day he went to Tunbridge Wells and bought himself a revolver and a box of cartridges, and he was absent again for the next two nights. Parties who recognized him met him near the house and saluted him. After his third visit he was found in the house a corpse.

At the inquest later on the landlord of the Sundial had an interesting story to tell. He said that when Major Killaine returned from his first expedition he called him into his bedroom and told him that he had entered the grounds and even the house, and, though he was not attacked as others had been, he had reasons for believing that men were hanging about. He proposed to arm himself and solve the mystery and bound the landlord to secrecy. The landlord could not say whether the major visited the place in the daytime or not, but he knew that his second visit at night confirmed the suspicions born on the first. When he went away on the third night he was somewhat excited, saying that he expected to meet with a lively adventure. It was suggested that he take one of the county policemen with him, but this he would not listen to. Whatever it was, he wanted to meet it single handed.

It was a dark and rainy night in September when the major set forth on his trip, and he took with him candle and matches and a flask of wine. He had not returned at 11 o'clock, when the house was closed and the host went to bed. Some uneasiness was felt next day when he did not appear, and after another twelve hours the landlord went to the legal authorities. For a day they refused to interfere, but when officers finally went to inspect the house they found the major lying stiff and dead in the lower hall. It was at first believed that murder had been done, but when the doctors came to examine the dead man not a mark of violence could be found on him. A post mortem revealed the fact that he had died of heart failure. The house was searched from top to bottom, and, though there were traces of human beings having been around of late, there were no other discoveries.

Here was a mystery within a mystery. It was the opinion of the country doctors and the officers of the law that the major had overexerted himself in walking the two miles after a hearty supper, and but for his brother in London that would have been the verdict of the coroner's jury and the end of the case. As soon as the brother came down, however, he sent for detectives and insisted on a thorough probing.

The sleuths were at work for three months, and it was while they were still at work on the case that they made the arrest of a noted burglar. The man was picked up almost by accident, and it turned out that he held the key to the mystery.

Some weeks previous to the major's coming a country bank had been robbed of a large sum in gold by two men. They stole a horse and buggy to carry their plunder away, and the police were baffled for a clew. It seems that they drove to the house and secreted their plunder in the cellar and hid themselves in an upper room. They were aware of the major's first and second visits and were prepared for his third. With phosphorus they drew a skeleton on the unpapered wall of the hall and covered it over with a blanket.

When the major entered the house and before he had struck a light the blanket was removed and dismal groaning indulged in to heighten the effect. The soldier had proved his bravery on many a field, but the sight and the noises came to him with such a sudden shock that he fell back dead. The gold was still in the cellar, waiting for the hue and cry to subside, but it was taken out that night and buried on the grounds, and the men separated. The arrest of one brought about the arrest of the other, and every dollar of the plunder was restored to the bank.

But for the major's curiosity the men might have eventually got away with the spoils, but he would not have met the end he did.

The Old, Old Scorpion.

Scorpions are relics of prehistoric times. They have been in existence since the middle silurian era, and through all the changes in environment in the millions of years which have elapsed they have remained practically the same in structural character, in habit. There is little, if any, evidence that these animals in the past days of their history have ever gained a livelihood by means other than those employed at the present day. But, though abundance of time has been granted them to become specialized into any number of strange forms, they have retained a wonderful resemblance to the original genera. Although the arms of the sea constitute barriers which scorpions cannot pass and although their means of dispersal are very limited, the antiquity of the animal is so great that it has succeeded in distributing itself over the greater part of the globe, outside of the arctic areas, and before the present period their distribution was even greater.

A remarkable dinner was served recently by a farmer near Ault, Col. The table was set for 12, and the menu consisted of one 5½ pound potato, one 15-pound cabbage, one 10 pound chicken, one six-pound turnip, one two-pound onion, and three pies made from a 1½-pound apple.

The following strange wedding notice is going the rounds, variously credited: "The bride was born of honest but well-meaning parents and could walk alone at six months; at 10 she could run real fast, and has never slackened her gait. She has many friends—most of them dead ones. The happy couple took a bridal trip to Westly, and will be at home with the old man until they are kicked out."

The principal of the school was talking with him about his boy. "By the way, Mr. Wipedunks," he said, "I have made a discovery about Jerry. He's ambidextrous." "I don't see how that can be," replied Mr. Wipedunks, with rising indignation. "He hadn't never been exposed to it. Besides, he was vaccinated last year, we bathe him reg'ler every week, and his mother always makes him wear a little bag of assafiddity tied around his neck. Some of the other boys has been lyin' on him."

BASEBALL.

Gilbertville 11, Monson 0.

The Monson baseball team was blanked by the Gilbertville team on Flynt Park Saturday afternoon in an uninteresting game. Drinkwater pitched an elegant game for the visitors, striking out nine of the Monson players. In the fifth inning the Monsons made a series of errors which cost them five runs. There was a small attendance. The score:

Game Was Postponed.

The game between the Ludlow and Indian Orchard teams, which was to have been played at Ludlow Saturday, was postponed on account of the rain, and will be played later. Fully 500 people had assembled when it was announced that the game would not be played. The Indian Orchard team had secured some of the best players obtainable in this section of the state, and consisted of Clark, Scully, McCarthy and Doran of Holyoke, Crowther, Martens and O'Leary of Springfield, King of Monson, Scotch Gagne of Ludlow and Capt. Maurice Lynch of Indian Orchard.

WARE.

The Michelman Nuptials.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Livingstone, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Michelman of Eddy street, and Barney James Michelman of Northampton took place in Dupont's hall at 5 30 Tuesday afternoon. Rabbi Rappaport of Springfield officiated at the Hebrew wedding ceremony, assisted by Rabbi Silver of Worcester and Rabbi Baritz of Boston. The hall was elaborately decorated for the occasion and music was furnished by Misses Brunelle and Canavan's orchestra. The ceremony, which took place under a silk canopy supported by four attendants, was witnessed by a large number of friends and relatives. The bride was gowned in white Swiss silk and carried bride roses. Miss Fannie Michelman, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Abraham M. Michelman, brother of the groom, was best man. There were five flower girls, Liabelle Michelman of Ware, Minnie, Hannah and Elizabeth Michelman and Bird Kriger of Northampton. The ushers were Barney S. and Israel Michelman of Ware, A. M. Michelman of Northampton, Henry Lasker of Springfield and Ralph Prescott of Chicago. After the ceremony there was dancing in the hall followed later by a banquet in the adjoining rooms. Guests were present from New York, Gardner, Northampton, Easthampton, Boston, Chicago, Washington, D. C., Bayonne, N. J., and Springfield. Mr. and Mrs. Michelman left Wednesday for a trip to Atlantic City, Washington and Old Point Comfort and on their return will live in Northampton, where the groom is engaged in the clothing business.

Silver Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. James V. Anthony observed the 25th anniversary of their marriage at their home on Storrs street yesterday afternoon and last evening. In the afternoon the Gleaners of the East Congregational church tendered their congratulations, while in the evening the clerks in the store of A. Bryson & Co., where Mr. Anthony is employed, were present in a body. A collation was served and the evening was pleasantly spent. Mr. and Mrs. Anthony were the recipients of many presents.

H. W. Sibley of the firm of J. B. Sibley & Son is in Colorado on a business trip.

Henry K. Hyde, president of the Ware National Bank, sailed from New York yesterday morning for Europe, where he will spend three weeks.

Invitations are out for the marriage of Miss Evelyn Idabel Beaudry and Frank H. Shea of Ware to take place in West Warren, the home of the bride, September 20th.

The juvenile cases of Wallo Jez, John Gallos and Stanislaw Gryzwocz, the Polish youths who appeared in court in July when two other boys were sentenced for breaking and entering the store of C. Hitchcock & Co., were again continued until December 30 at the district court Tuesday morning.

The marriage of Miss Annie Giguere of West Main street and Charles Jacques of Barre, Vt., took place in Mt. Carmel church Monday morning at 8, Rev. William W. Lucy officiating. A wedding breakfast was served at the bride's home after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Jacques left in the afternoon for Barre, Vt., where they will live.

The body of Mrs. Mary Ann Deviney, 53, who died in West Millbury Saturday, was removed to Ware Monday afternoon for burial in St. William's cemetery Matthew Kelley, Daniel Nolan, Francis McArdle and William Kelley acted as bearers from the station. Mrs. Deviney, who was a daughter of the late George Cashel, formerly lived in Ware, and was a relative of Daniel Nolan and Mrs. John Kelley.

A meeting of the Ware Republican town committee was held Wednesday evening. Before the meeting E. D. Howard, chairman, stated that he had decided to withdraw as a candidate for county commissioner, and at the meeting united with the other members present in indorsing the candidacy of Frank M. Sibley for the office now held by O W. Prouty of Hadley. Within a few days it is probable that letters will be sent the various Republican town committees in the county bearing the indorsement of the Ware committee, and asking for the support of the Ware candidate.

Cynical Swift.

Swift's sardonic saying that a man who marries "thrusts his hand into a sackful of snakes on the chance of finding an eel" is often quoted as the Arabian proverb and sometimes attributed to a later misogynist, but hardly ever assigned to its real author. Every one, however, recognizes as Swiftian the following sayings expressive of the unhappiness of marriage and of the cause of this unhappiness: "Venus, a beautiful, good natured lady, was the goddess of love; Juno, a terrible shrew, the goddess of marriage—and they were always mortal enemies." "The reason why so few marriages are happy is because young ladies spend their time in making nets, not in making cages."—T. P.'s London Weekly.

An Easy Way to Test Flour.

Every housewife knows that some flour will make good bread, while other flour will not. If you want to find out for yourself whether it is a good bread flour, test it in the following way: In the first place, see that it is white with a faint yellow tinge. Then take some of it up in your hand and press it; it will fall apart loosely, not in lumps. Rub some of it between your fingers; it will not feel entirely smooth and powdery, but you will be able faintly to distinguish the different particles. Put a little of it between your teeth and chew; it will crunch a little, and the taste will be sweet and nutty without any acidity—that is, if it is a good bread flour it will do all these things.

Black Coal Smoke.

There is, it seems, a great deal more than carbon in black coal smoke. Professor E. Knecht analyzed the soot from Manchester coal smoke, and at a lecture in London he exhibited the results of his analysis. Among them were snow white samples of ammonium chloride, ammonium sulphate, calcium sulphate and a beautifully crystallized paraffin hydrocarbon similar in properties and composition to a substance present in beeswax. The soot also contained 13 per cent of heavy hydrocarbon oils. From some of the products Professor Knecht prepared a brown dyestuff which produced absolutely fast shades on cotton.

Fractional Relatives.

"And have you any brothers and sisters, my little man?" asked the kind old lady.

"Yes'm," replied the little man. "I got one sister and one and a half brothers."

"What?"

"Yes, sir; two half sisters and three half brothers."—Philadelphia Press.

An Impression of Toil.

"Why don't you go to work?" asked the man who is philanthropic, but practical.

"Mister," answered Plodding Pete, "I have to answer dat question so much dat it's gittin' to be jes' de same as work."—Washington Star.

A Quaint Old Ceremony.

This is one of many quaint ceremonies that take place at the Church of St. Gildas, in Brittany, on the feast day of the patron saint. Two or three thousand peasants on horseback ride in procession three times round the church and then proceed to draw water from the sacred well close by and pour it over their animals in the belief that it will act as a sure preventive of accidents and disease.

Meanwhile the women inside the church are engaged in standing in a stone sarcophagus supposed to have contained the body of the saint. This is looked upon as a certain cure for toothache. But the most important of all the ceremonies is the throwing of a fowl from the tower of the church to the people below. It is torn to pieces in an instant, and the man who is fortunate enough to secure the head is looked upon as a champion, while his parish is regarded as sure to secure the best harvest.

A DOUBLE SWINDLE

[Original.]

Franklin Dole was very much disgruntled. Louise Elkins had inherited an income barely sufficient to keep her and her younger brother Ernest. Ernest had fallen into the hands of Arnold Prigmore, who preyed on society in a gentlemanly way and without breaking the laws. He was winning money from Elkins that the boy did not possess. To save himself Elkins was drawing on his sister.

It had just come to Dole's knowledge that Prigmore had that very day taken an additional amount from Ernest, or, rather, from Louise Elkins, for her brother had given in payment of a gambling debt her check for $3,500. There could be no doubt that the money had been won dishonestly. Besides, it was equivalent to dishonesty for a man of Prigmore's age and experience to take money won from a foolish boy that belonged to a woman. But there was nothing in this that could be proved as a swindle. Dole also knew that Louise Elkins' income had already been reduced to a minimum by these drafts upon it, and with the present amount paid her revenue would be unequal to her modest requirements. He had heard Ernest tell Prigmore when he gave his sister's check that he must have twenty-four hours to make it good in bank. Dole thought of going to Prigmore and protesting, but decided that it would avail nothing.

The next morning while Prigmore was sitting at the breakfast table a servant announced a lady to see him. Going to the drawing room he found a visitor, veiled, who rose as he entered and in a voice choked with sobs said:

"I have come to ask if you have deposited the check given you yesterday by Ernest Elkins."

"I have not. I expect to do so this afternoon before the closing of bank hours."

"Will you let me see it?"

"Certainly." And, taking out his pocketbook, he showed her the check. As soon as she saw it she fell back in her chair in collapse.

"Well," asked Prigmore, "isn't it all right?"

"My fears are realized; it is a forgery."

"How do you know?"

"The signature is supposed to be mine."

"Yours?"

"Yes; I am Louise Elkins."

"Your brother shall suffer for this."

"Spare him, I implore you. Consider his youth."

"I'll land him where he belongs—in state prison."

"Tell me how I can satisfy you. I am but a woman and know nothing of business."

"You can give me your own check that will be good in the bank."

"And you will tear up the forgery?"

"Certainly. I only want my money."

Prigmore showed her to a desk and gave her writing material and a blank check. With a trembling hand she filled it out, and as she handed it to him he said:

"I can't return the forgery till I find that this check is good." Then noticing that the check in his hand was for $4,500 instead of $3,500 he paused a moment, then folded it and gave her the other check. He surmised that in her agitation she had made a mistake, which he proposed to take advantage of.

"How can I repay you for your magnanimity?" she asked.

"By lifting your veil."

"For heaven's sake, don't ask me to do that! I am ashamed at being the sister of a forger. If I should meet you again—in society, perhaps—I would not wish you to know me."

"But"—

"Are you sure the amount of the check I gave you is right? I scarcely knew what I was doing."

"The exact amount. Never mind lifting your veil. I can readily understand your feelings." He gallantly showed her to the door and bowed her out.

"I wouldn't take her for the little fool's sister," he muttered. "She must be a head taller than he. It would have been safer to have had a look at her face, but I was afraid she'd want a look at the check. I'd have risked a thousand for a sight of her. What fools women are!"

Prigmore deposited the check and the next day was notified by the bank that it was a forgery. He was thunderstruck. Slowly it dawned upon him that he had surrendered a good check for a forgery. Hurrying to the bank, he learned that the original had been drawn. Some one had victimized him.

The police never discovered the woman who had personated Miss Elkins, nor did either she or her brother learn who had drawn the money. Prigmore finally resigned himself to a loss of funds that had never belonged to him and left the locality where his methods had become known to work others.

Two years after this happened Franklin Dole married Louise Elkins. The morning after they had returned from their wedding trip Elkins said to his wife:

"By the bye, I have $3,500 belonging to you in my bank account."

"Due me?"

"Yes. You remember the forgery case? Well, I'm the party that personated you and swindled the swindler. I risked ten years in prison by doing it, but you see"—

She stood looking at him with an expression of mute wonder, then flung her arms about him, saying:

"If you ever take such a risk again I'll shut you up in an asylum."

THREE JURORS CURED

Of Cholera Morbus with One Small Bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Mr. G. W. Fowler of Hightower, Ala., relates an experience he had while serving on a petit jury in a murder case at Edwardsville, county seat of Clebourne county, Alabama. He says: "While there I ate some fresh meat and some souse meat and it gave me cholera morbus in a very severe form. I was never more sick in my life and sent to the drug store for a certain cholera mixture, but the druggist sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy instead, saying that he had what I sent for, but that this medicine was so much better he would rather send it to me in the fix I was in. I took one dose of it and was better in five minutes. The second dose cured me entirely. Two fellow jurors were afflicted in the same manner and one small bottle cured the three of us." FIFTY CENTS

In some conditions the gain from the use of Scott's Emulsion is very rapid. For this reason we put up a fifty-cent size, which is enough for an ordinary cough or cold or useful as a trial for babies and children. In other conditions the gain is slower—health cannot be built up in a day. In such cases Scott's Emulsion must be taken as nourishment; a food rather than a medicine. It's a food for tired and weak digestions.

At High Water Mark

By C. B. LEWIS

Copyright, 1905, by R. B. McClure

The two center piers of the great railroad bridge over the Goomtree river had been finished, and there was much rejoicing. They had been sunk in the muddy bed of the stream a distance of sixty feet, and they towered almost as high above the surface. It had taken thousands of tons of stone and thousands of bags of cement and hundreds of days' work to complete these piers. They had had the labor of a thousand men and fifty elephants. When they were finished a holiday was given to all the workmen, and the chief engineer gazed proudly at his work and said:

"They are done at last. Floods may roll down—earthquakes may topple down forests—come what may, and my piers will stand here when a thousand years have passed away."

"It is so, sahib—it is so," answered the voice of a thousand natives, and then they cheered him and his work.

When a thousand native Indian workmen are employed together on one job there are three or four castes. There are masons, carpenters, elephant drivers, shovelers, boatmen and what not. There is enmity between the castes, there is jealousy between the different trades, there is chance every hour in the day for a general riot, and the men must be under a strict discipline. The superintendent's word must be law from which there is no appeal. A culprit is not told to go hence, because he has bound himself and the company has bound itself. He is punished by fine, imprisonment or the lash. Because of this custom this news ran through camp one morning:

"At the hour of high noon today the flag of punishment will be raised on the staff, and Kim Nassik will be tied to the post and flogged. Three times has his overseer warned him, and three times has he muttered and cursed below his breath and failed to amend his conduct. Kim Nassik is lazy, and he has made Bundara, his elephant, the same. When both driver and elephant are lazy, the work flags. One man and his beast can hinder a hundred others. It is right that Kim Nassik should be well flogged."

When the elephant driver, after several warnings, had been sentenced to punishment, he replied to the superintendent:

"Your words are true, sahib, and I would not have you take them back. I have been lacking in diligence, and Bundara has agreed with me, but we have a reason. A few Sundays ago he got loose and ran away to the jungle. We hunted for him for hours. When we finally came upon him he was talking with a wild elephant. He came to me at my bidding, but that night, when all the camp was asleep, he whispered in my ear that we were fretting the river; that the waters were growling and complaining; that some evil would surely fall upon us if we dammed them back. For a million years the Goomtree has had free flow to the sea. Could it be otherwise than that she should be angry and that some disaster should befall us?"

"How is it with the trees—with the grass—with all else that man uses?" asked the official. "If the river is a million years old men have used her for a million years. Thousands of boats and rafts have floated down her current and she has not complained. Men must travel, and they must have bridges on which to cross streams. We have not dammed the current back. There is plenty of room for it to flow onward. Bundara is a big, strong beast, but he is lazy. He has told you this story that he may have less work to do. You shall have twenty lashes at the post before all men, and Bundara shall also look on as a warning to tell no more lies."

"As you will, sahib."

At noon the whipping took place, but the punishment was not severe. It was because of the moral effect that it was inflicted. Kim Nassik's elephant was there, and he dropped his head and tears ran from his eyes. They said he felt pity for his master and that his conscience troubled him. To spare the feelings of man and beast, the superintendent gave them half a day off the works—half a day in which to repent and decide to do better in the future.

At sundown all labor ceased, and it was reported that Nassik and his beast had gone to the jungles. That was a serious offense. The elephant was government property and was hired to the railroad company at so much per day. Nassik had been his mahout for ten years, but he was no more. He had incurred a serious penalty by fleeing, and a party was made to bring him back, but they hunted in vain. In four weeks the incident was almost forgotten.

In time the great iron beams were stretched from pier to pier, and crossbeams and girders were put in place, and from sunup to sundown the hot air quivered under the strokes of the scores of hammers. The approaches were filled in and spans laid to the piers, and the chief engineer looked over his work with a smile of satisfaction.

"All is going well," he said to himself. "In another sixty days the iron horse will be snorting across this structure. The Goomtree is on the rise, and a flood will come, but we need not fear it. We cleared its banks of driftwood for fifty miles last year. Nothing here can dam its waters back and imperil the bridge."

An hour after Nassik had been punished he had clasped his arms around the trunk of his elephant and said:

"Bundara, I have been disgraced before a thousand men because you told me what the wild elephant said. I do not believe you lied, but let us go to the jungles and be by ourselves. If the Goomtree is fretted and harassed, then she will take revenge. We should not be punished for what the sahibs are doing."

The pair fled afar. Sometimes they were alone and sometimes in the company of wild elephants. The untamed beasts had no fear of Nassik. For weeks they hid in the jungle or roamed through the forests.

"Light of my soul," began Nassik one day, "the time for the flood in the Goomtree draws near. Whisper it to all your friends, that we may seek its banks and be ready for work. Whisper it to twenty—thirty—fifty. We cannot have too much help. I will rest here for three days, and do you go among your kind and spread the news."

At the end of the third day Bundara returned, and with him were seventy elephants. He had told his story well.

Three days later all were at work on the banks of the river, fifty miles above the bridge. The waters were rising, but Nassik knew to an inch how high they would come before standing still for a day and then beginning to recede. Under his directions the elephants began work. Such trees as they could uproot and such logs as they could roll, together with thousands of cartloads of smaller stuff, were deposited just below high water mark. They piled banks high for five miles. For half a mile back the forest was stripped of limbs and vines and logs, and the labor was finished two days in advance.

"It is well, my children," said Nassik. "The waters will take everything at their flood, and then down at the bridge they will see what they will see. Let us now rest from our labors."

Down at the bridge there was no fear as the flood crept up. The Goomtree was not bringing down enough driftwood to tear a raft from its moorings. So it was for a week.

One morning when high water mark was reached the chief engineer sneered at the turgid flood. Two hours later there was a wild alarm. The face of the waters was hidden by drift. Never had man seen so much of it. It came rushing down like a wall. Some passed between the piers at first and went crashing along, but presently there was a swirling about and a wedging of mighty trees, and five minutes later there was a block. In half an hour it extended back a mile, and the force of a million horses was pressing against it. For a quarter of an hour the handiwork of man withstood the strain of the elements. Then there was a crash and a roar, and the current of the Goomtree flowed on as if man had never been.

Kim Nassik had been whipped, and he had revenged himself.

How Names Grow Up.

We have become so accustomed to rolling the proper names in our geographies over our tongues as glibly as we do our own that few of us ever stop to think how much of history, political, natural and religious, is wrapped up in a few syllables. How many towns do you know that end in "berg," "burg," "burgh" or "borough?"

Take for the first one Edinburgh, for instance. How came it by that name instead of Stumptown or Hardscrabble? Let us take the "burgh" out of the name first.

"Burgh" means in England and Scotland a corporate town. All the English towns that end in "berry," "burrow," "bury," "[illegible]row," etc., have that ending from "burgh." In the German it means a castle or fortified town. So much for our "burgh." Then, in Edinburgh, it means the castle or town of—whom or what? Here "Edin" is only "Edwin" shortened, and Edinburgh the town of Edwin. Taking this one as a model, the study becomes easy and interesting.—London Globe.

His Medicines and His Death.

A reader at the Paris Bibliotheque Nationale has dug up the prescriptions for medicines which were ordered to Prince Conde in his last illness. A consultation of three physicians prescribed "a syrop made of rice, marshmallow roots and sugar candies" and a blister to be applied night and morning. The distinguished patient failed to improve, and a fourth doctor was called in, who ordered "two ounces of a preparation of hyacinths to fortify the heart and repair the exhausted forces," followed by "poppy water," "syrop of stag horns," "ipecachuana," "liquorice" and "mistletoe roots." The prince lived through this treatment for six months, when he died, according to the death certificate, "of the malady from which he was suffering." It doesn't make any difference now, but it is natural to hope he didn't die of anything worse.

An Odd Regiment.

In the fifties of the last century Mr. Leveson-Gower resided in St. Petersburg. He told this story: "Opposite to our house was drawn up a regiment called Paulovski, formed by the Emperor Paul, all the men having turned up noses and therefore resembling him. It seems it was the fashion here to compose regiments of men who have the same sort of features. The emperor had recruits sent to him and told them off according to their looks. What childishness! There is one regiment of men all marked with the smallpox. This Paulovski regiment did one thing which amused me. Just before the cortege came up they all blew their noses with their fingers at the word of command, and this was in order that none of them might sneeze when the emperor passed, as their doing so would bring him bad luck!"

Dark Rooms.

There ought not to be a dark room in any human habitation. To have too much sunlight for health is not possible. Its extraordinary intensity under exceptional circumstances can always be moderated as occasion may require, but its plenary supply should always be provided for. Of artificial light generally it may be said that in all its forms, except that of electricity, inasmuch as it is produced by the combustion of some compound of hydrogen and carbon, previously volatilized or brought into a gaseous condition, it is more or less injurious to the atmosphere by consuming the oxygen and emitting mephitic gases.

Too Many Vindications.

A man named Bill was always getting in trouble. "But," he would say to his friends afterward, "I was vindicated. Wicked men said cruel things about me, but I was vindicated." After this had happened seven or eight times an old fellow said: "Bill, I quit you right here. You have been vindicated oftener than becomes an honest man."—Atchison Globe.

THE IDEAL WIFE

Shapes the Destiny of Men—The Influence of a Healthy Woman Cannot Be Overestimated.

Seven-eighths of the men in this world marry a woman because she is beautiful in their eyes—because she has the qualities which inspire admiration, respect and love.

There is a beauty in health which is more attractive to men than mere regularity of feature. The influence of women glorious in the possession of perfect physical health upon men and upon the civilization of the world could never be measured. Because of them men have attained the very heights of ambition; because of them even thrones have been established and destroyed.

What a disappointment, then, to see the fair young wife's beauty fading away before a year passes over her head! A sickly, half-dead-and-alive woman, especially when she is the mother of a family, is a damper to all joyousness in the home, and a drag upon her husband.

The cost of a wife's constant illness is a serious drain upon the funds of a household, and too often all the doctoring does no good.

If a woman finds her energies are flagging, and that everything tires her, dark shadows appear under her eyes, her sleep is disturbed by horrible dreams; if she has backache, headaches, bearing-down pains, nervousness, whites, irregularities, or despondency, she should take means to build her system up at once by a tonic with specific powers, such as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

This great remedy for women has done more in the way of restoring health to the women of America than all other medicines put together. It is the safeguard of woman's health.

Following we publish, by request, a letter from a young wife.

Mrs. Bessie Ainsley of 611 South 10th Street, Tacoma, Wash., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Ever since my child was born I have suffered, as I hope few women ever have, with inflammation, female weakness, bearing-down pains, backache and wretched headaches. It affected my stomach so that I could not enjoy my meals, and half my time was spent in bed.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman, and I feel so grateful that I am glad to write and tell you of my marvelous recovery. It brought me health, new life and vitality."

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Ainsley it will do for every woman who is in poor health and ailing.

Its benefits begin when its use begins. It gives strength and vigor from the start, and surely makes sick women well and robust.

Remember Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound holds the record for the greatest number of actual cures of woman's ills. This fact is attested to by the thousands of letters from grateful women which are on file in the Pinkham laboratory Merit alone can produce such results.

Women should remember that a cure for all female diseases actually exists, and that cure is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Take no substitute.

If you have symptoms you don't understand write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for special advice—it is free and always helpful.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds Where Others Fail.

Varenka Arkadyevna

[Original.]

One morning several years ago two young men—Turovtsuin and Dronski—were sitting in Dronski's room in Warsaw, Russian Poland, hatching revolution. Suddenly there were footsteps on the stairs and in another moment the door was thrown open and the police rushed in. Turovtsuin nodded toward Dronski and the police arrested him. As they were taking him away he reproached Turovtsuin with having betrayed him, whereupon the latter remarked coolly that there was no betrayal, since he was simply doing his duty as an officer in the secret service. Dronski was sent to Siberia, where, after intolerable sufferings, he died of prison consumption.

Several years after Dronski's arrest, while Turovtsuin, who was now chief of police in Russian Poland, was riding in his carriage in Warsaw, a man fired a shot at him. At the moment a girl who stood by the would be assassin knocked up the weapon and saved Turovtsuin's life. The man who fired the shot was spirited away by accomplices so quickly that the police did not even get on his track. The chief saw the whole affair and directed that the girl be sent to his office. When she arrived there he said to her:

"You are a brave girl to have interfered with an assassin, and I owe you my life. What can I do to repay you?"

"Please, excellency, I would like to serve the government."

"In what capacity?"

"In the secret service. I have many friends among the revolutionists, who consider me one of them. I could learn much of their plans and report them to you."

"You shall have every opportunity, and for every ruble you earn I will see that you are paid ten."

The girl, who gave her name as Varenka Arkadyevna, from that moment enrolled in the secret police, where she served for a long while, often bringing in information of the revolutionists. There was a singular personality about her that fascinated Turovtsuin. At times he thought she loved him, and at times she acted as if she hated him. There are few men who will not be caught by such uncertainty. Turovtsuin fell desperately in love with her.

Varenka's bravery, too, was fascinating to her lover. She told him that her real status was known to some of her revolutionist friends, but she did not fear to go where they were, though always armed to the teeth. One thing at last began to mystify Turovtsuin. Though Varenka often led the police to capture some revolutionist, when the force arrived the bird had always flown.

Varenka lived in first class apartments which were paid for by the government. One day the chief appeared at her apartments with trouble written on his face.

"Sweetheart," he said, "I have noticed that we never gain anything from the information you bring us. Every meeting of revolutionists you have told us of has for some reason failed to take place. Besides, certain persons whom we have intended to arrest have in some unaccountable way been warned and have escaped us. And now comes one of our women in the secret service bureau who accuses you of being a revolutionist, of giving them all our secrets."

"Who is my accuser?"

"Katia Pestsoff."

Varenka grew a shade whiter. Going to another room she took a pistol from a drawer, put it in her bosom and returning to her lover said:

"I may as well make a confession, for Katia can prove her accusation."

"Great heavens!" exclaimed Turovtsuin, catching at the back of a chair for support.

"Do you remember," Varenka went on, "your bosom friend Dronski?"

"I do," gasped Turovtsuin.

"I am his sister. I was far from him at the time you betrayed and arrested him, but I determined that some day I would avenge him. While he suffered the tortures you heaped upon him my resolution grew stronger. When he died I determined to execute a plan I had formed. The man who fired at you was my accomplice, and there were twenty revolutionists standing by to take him to safety. I knocked up his pistol on purpose to win your confidence. Having won from you all I can for my people, the moment of my supreme vengeance has come."

People living on the floor below heard a shot and came running up the stairs to see what was the matter. Varenka stood at her door and asked them if they had not heard a shot. They replied that they had and that the sound seemed to have come from that floor, whereupon she said that it sounded to her to have come from the rear apartments. She spoke as calmly as if she had been used to having shots fired near her all her life. The excited people went to the rear apartments to learn that nothing unusual had occurred there. The occupants were sure that the shot had come from the front rooms. Puzzled, the crowd went to Varenka's apartments and knocked. There was no answer to their summons. They conferred, and, all agreeing that something must be wrong, they decided to burst open the door. They did so, and stretched on the floor Turovtsuin, the chief of police, lay dead.

Varenka Arkadyevna was never seen again in any part of Russia, though the police searched the empire for her. Rumor says that she is living in England on the large sums paid her by the police for her secret service work.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

BRAKEMAN WAS TO BLAME.

His Negligence Caused Freight Wreck at Monson.

IN WHICH ONE EMPLOYE WAS KILLED

Judge Kenefick Decides That He Did Not Do His Duty or Obey Road's Orders.

Judge T. W. Kenefick of the district court of Eastern Hampden has reported his finding in the freight wreck on the Central Vermont road, which occurred in Monson June 30th, when Charles Gregg, a fireman on one of the wrecked freight trains, was killed.

On the day of the accident an extra freight left Palmer going south, reaching Monson at 12.40 p. m., where it was run on to a siding, with the exception of the engine and a single car, which went down the track for the purpose of unloading. The regular freight train was due to leave Monson at the same time the extra train reached there, so a flagman, T. F. Reed, was sent forward by the conductor of the extra with instructions to stop all trains until he was called in. Reed, after securing a flag from the fireman of the engine, started up the track toward State Line.

The engine of the special freight had been standing at the Monson station about 45 minutes, when the regular train came along at a speed of 20 to 25 miles an hour. It was too late to avoid a collision, and the engineer jumped, calling to the fireman to follow, but the latter remained in the engine and was killed. All the members of the crew of the regular train testified that they did not see Reed as they came toward Monson, that they did not see nor hear any danger signal, and had no notice of any danger ahead. Reed was seen after the accident walking down the track, but disappeared soon after and his whereabouts have not since been known.

Judge Kenefick finds the culpable negligence and omission of Flagman Reed to do his duty to be the cause of the accident.

SEASON AT FOREST LAKE.

Has Been an Unusually Good One. Visitors From Many Places.

The past season at Forest Lake has been the best in the history of that resort. The attendance has been large, both of individuals and parties, and the theatre entertainments have been of a high order. The management of Mr. Fish has been eminently satisfactory, and altogether the reputation made this year will add materially to the prosperity and popularity of the place for another season. Two things have aided materially to the prosperity of Forest Lake this year, the weather, and the fact that the park at Lake Wickaboag, between Ware and West Brookfield, was closed except for two weeks during the season. While the weather up to the first of July was cold, after that it was warm enough to make up, and there was not a pleasant day which did not see quantities of visitors at the lake, enjoying the grateful shade, the cool breezes and the water. Early in the season the street railway company mailed a large number of announcements of the opening of the lake to the ladies in this vicinity, Holyoke and Springfield, and the result was a largely increased attendance from these places. They came singly and in parties of from three and four to a dozen or more, and after the warm weather set in there was scarcely a day when some of these places were not represented by a party of some size. Sunday schools too made the lake their picnic grounds, and sometimes when no announcement of their coming had been made there were three gatherings at a time. All were accommodated however, and all went home determined to come again. Mothers with children found the lake a delightful place to spend a hot afternoon, and older persons found the place not uninviting.

The theatre attractions have been of a higher order this year than ever before, and this was due in no small measure to Mr. S. L. Martin, who was the resident manager for J. J. Flynn of Boston, who furnished the shows. Mr. Martin made an especial study of the situation and the conditions, and then made his requisition on Mr. Flynn for the class of entertainments which he deemed most pleasing to the patrons of the lake. That his judgment was good is evidenced by the crowds which attended the theatre, all records having been broken on one Friday night, when late comers were told that if they could get inside the enclosure they were welcome, but that no more tickets would be sold.

Without doubt another large factor in the success of the lake was the management of Mr. C. E Fish. He had been there before and knew just what was most needed. Kind and genial, untiring in his efforts to please, no matter whether one individual or a party of several hundred, with a smile and a pleasant word for everybody, it is doubtful if a single person left the grounds with any feeling of dissatisfaction over anything within Mr. Fish's jurisdiction or control. Former patrons of the lake rejoiced when it was announced at the beginning of the season that he was to be in charge, and he in no manner failed to make good. The street railway company will make no mistake if they secure him again for another season.

Ware Child Badly Burned.

Sophia Windiesz, the four-years-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bartholomew Windiesz of South street in Ware, was seriously burned yesterday afternoon about 2 o'clock. The little girl was in the yard, playing with matches. Suddenly the sulphur ignited, setting fire to the little one's dress, and her clothing was soon all in flames. Her screams attracted the attention of her mother, who was in the house at the time, and she rushed to the child's assistance. She tore off the blazing clothing, while a blanket was used to extinguish the blaze. Dr. H. G. Gafney was summoned and found the child badly burned about the body, limbs and shoulders, and she is in a serious condition.

North Wilbraham Man Hurt.

Joseph J. Baldwin of North Wilbraham narrowly escaped being seriously injured Saturday. He was at work removing some dirt with a dumpcart. He had loaded the cart full and climbed up on the seat, when the horse suddenly started to run, throwing Mr. Baldwin backward from the seat to the ground in front of the wheel, which passed over his body near the lower ribs, one of which was fractured, and injuring one of his limbs. He was removed to his home by some workmen nearby and was attended by Dr. Damon. He was able to be out on crutches the next day. The horse cleared itself of the wagon, but was not injured.

BASEBALL.

Bondsville 13, Belchertown 12.

Last Saturday afternoon a very interesting game of ball was played between the Bondsville Juniors and the Belchertown Juniors on the High street grounds. It was a twelve-inning game with the Bondsvilles victurious. The score:

Game at West Warren.

The game in the West-end league at West Warren Saturday was between the Quahoag Social Club and the Foresters, resulting in a victory for the former 5 to 0. The game was close and exciting until the eighth, when the Social Club clinched its victory by adding two runs to the three previously accumulated. Features of the game were the good work of both batteries and the hitting of Barton and Rycroft. The score by innings:

	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	R.	H.	E.
Q. S. C.,	0	2	0	0	0	1	0	2		—5	14	2

Batteries: Pike and Anderson; Armour and Stone. Time, 1h. 3m. Umpire, Collins. Attendance, 300.

The Palmer ninth grade were defeated by the Bondsville ninth grade, 18 to 8, on the Palmer driving park yesterday afternoon. The features of the game were the hitting of the Bondsville team and the good work of Crofton of the Palmer team.

$5 NEW YORK CITY EXCURSION.

Thursday, October 5, 1905.

This trip is the cheapest and most delightful out of Boston; at an excellent time of the year, when the foliage is beautiful and the air invigorating and bracing. This is the only time in the year when the opportunity is given to ride through the Hoosac Mountains and Deerfield Valley to Albany, N. Y; sail down the Hudson River to New York City, stop in the Metropolis and return to Boston via the Fall River Line Steamers, all for $5 00. Send to the Boston & Maine Railroad, General Passenger Department, Boston, your address, and we will mail you a beautiful illustrated booklet describing the trip in detail.

Electric Road Sale Postponed.

The auction sale of the Hampshire and Worcester street railway, which was to have been held to-morrow afternoon, has been postponed until Saturday, the 30th. The action for postponement is due to one of the principals interested in the sale of the road being abroad. It is understood that this party is one of the proposed buyers. The auction will take place at 12 o'clock on the premises of the company at Ware.

ROUNDHOUSE A NUISANCE.

North Main Street Residents Annoyed by Smoke.

FROM ENGINES ON WARE RIVER ROAD

Smoke and Noise Almost Unbearable. Smoke a Nuisance in Other Sections Also.

The residents of North Main street, in the vicinity of the round house of the Ware River railroad, have about reached the point of protesting to the managers of the Boston and Albany road, controlling the Ware River, concerning the conditions existing there. The smoke from the locomotives and the noises emanating from them are disagreeable in the extreme, and at times well nigh unbearable. Particularly disagreeable are the clouds of smoke from soft coal which float across the street and into the houses.

The roundhouse is within 50 or 60 feet of the highway, and with the wind from the south or southeast the smoke drifts directly upon the houses on both sides of Main street. When only the locomotives used on the Ware River branch were housed there the smoke was not so much in evidence, as the engines went out early in the day and returned late in the afternoon or evening; now however, in addition to these at least one main line engine is kept there, and a pit has been constructed at the east side of the house over which numerous main line engines are daily run for a cleaning and rebuilding of fires. During this process the blower is put on and vast quantities of smoke are produced. It sifts into every nook and cranny of the residences near, and not even closely shut windows will keep it out, curtains and furniture being practically ruined by it.

In addition to the smoke is the practice of getting up steam to a pressure which starts the safety valve, and then allowing it to blow slightly for almost any length of time; this condition was kept up on a recent Sunday afternoon for an hour and six minutes, being timed by one of the residents in that vicinity. At times the noise is so deafening that persons on the piazzas of the nearest houses can with difficulty make themselves heard in conversation, while for a nerve-racking torture nothing more excruciating could be invented. Cold weather is coming soon, when there will be less annoyance, because everybody will be indoors, and it is likely that so far as the noise is concerned that nothing will be done about it this fall. It is certain however that in the spring a protest will be made against a repetition of the conditions existing this summer. It is not unlikely however that the smoke nuisance will be given attention, as in addition to the roundhouse trouble there is complaint of the locomotives standing at the coal pile, a little to the west, and smoking and hissing.

In connection with the smoke question, it is remarked that there seems to be very much more locomotive smoke in all sections of the village this year than ever before, whether from the use of an inferior quality of coal or from careless firing, is not known. Certain it is that houses long distances from the railroad, which have never been troubled with the smoke before, have been considerably annoyed by it this summer.

NEARLY BLED TO DEATH.

Monson Man Has Peculiar Experience After Having Tooth Pulled.

Herbert M. Noble of Monson had an unusual experience Tuesday over the extraction of a tooth, and one which might have had a more serious ending. A tooth on the lower jaw had been giving him much trouble, and in the afternoon he went to Palmer and had it extracted, returning to his home on High street. The flow of blood which usually follows the removal of a tooth continued to increase rather than diminish, but Mr. Noble thought little of it until about 2 o'clock Wednesday morning he began to feel so weak that it was thought best to summon a physician. Dr. G. E. Fuller was called and found that in drawing the tooth an artery had been severed. The loss of so much blood left Mr. Noble in a weakened condition for several hours, but he has now recovered.

South Belchertown Resident Seriously Injured.

George Butler, a resident of South Belchertown, who is also well known in Bondsville, met with a serious accident, which nearly proved fatal, last Saturday while working on the farm of Joseph T Geer. Mr. Butler was helping about the work of putting in ensilage and was at the same time tending the driving of the horse used in the work. As he brought the horse near the engine it was suddenly put in operation. This frightened the animal, which started to run. Mr. Butler tried to hold him, and in so doing was swung against a tree in such a way as to tear the muscles from the thigh bone for about ten inches. He was attended by a Three Rivers doctor and carried to his home. He will be confined to crutches for some time and unable to attend to any of his duties.

The Brattleboro Fair.

The Valley Fair, Brattleboro, Vt., Sept. 27 and 28, is the best all-round fair in the New England States; it will be better than ever this year. Already enough entries of horses, cattle, sheep, swine, poultry and dogs have been received to insure a larger and better exhibit than ever. The dairy department, vegetable display and the educational departments are exhibitions in themselves. An improved race track, enlarged grandstand and the other features for the convenience of the thousands who attend the fair attest to the up-to-date methods adopted by the managers. No "fakirs," no "side shows." You pay your money at the gate, and you see an exhibition worthy of the reputation this fair has attained throughout the country. Extra trains and special rates on all railroads.

Our Boston Letter

It tells about

Religious Troubles in the Philippines—The Industrial Education Commission—Republican Lieut. Governor and District Attorney Nominations—Democratic First Place Talk.

BOSTON, Sept. 13, 1905.

Indications received here are to the effect that religious complications of a serious nature are arising in the Philippines. Politics and religion are so much mixed that whatever a man's political or religious sympathy, he will find himself carried in both directions by the bare statement of fact. Very likely it may disturb some prejudices, both Catholic and Protestant, and wrench some sensibilities, whether Republican or Democratic, to tell the truth. But Catholic Republicans and Protestant Democrats and vice versa may as well face the truth. Now, then, to sum up the situation. The rebellion in the Philippines before the United States butted in was of the Filipinos against the friars from Spain. That is history Then, in due time, came United States occupation and Filipino armed protest against United States rule. The friars were largely dislodged and went away. Then came the consecration of Bishop Aglipay, a Filipino by Archbishop Nozaleda, a Spaniard, followed by Aglipay's secession and the establishment of an independent Filipino Catholic church. The Filipinos being Catholics in any event, our government, in order to help pacify them, favored Catholic officials, allowing them to travel at government expense and showing them other favors. Now the Democrats in the United States were opposed to the Republican Philippine policy. But, since the government has favored the Catholics, the Democratic opposition has been materially changed, for there is Catholic support of the government. Under our policy, too, Protestant missionaries have flocked to the Islands to convert the Catholic Filipinos to Protestantism. The Aglipayan movement becomes serious and the Romish Catholics represent it to be merely a cover for political movement for independence. If it is politics, then our government will be against it, and therefore the Romish Catholics will have the powerful aid of our government in their contest with the Filipino Catholics, whom they want to suppress and bring back to the mother church. But the Protestant missionaries do not see in the Aglipayan movement any political character at all, but only a formidable protest against Rome, and they think that it may prove to be a sort of half way house to Protestantism. Therefore they favor what the government and the Romish Catholics oppose. But our government does not want to oppose the Protestants at home any more than it wants to oppose the Romish Catholics in the Philippines. The consequence is that there is a general mixup in progress. It is said that the friars' lands, which our government has paid over $7,000,000 for, are only the poorest, and that the best are still in the possession of the Romish church. The friars are returning in material numbers and are being assigned to the former places, while the Romish church claims possession of the church edifices on ground of ownership, and the Aglipayans claim on the ground that the people own what they themselves built by their own labor. The Protestants say that the Aglipayan movement is so general that it includes over 4,000,000 of the people already, though portions of the Islands have not been touched, and the Roman Catholics do not admit anything like this general result against them. It is a situation full of danger and has in it no elements of satisfaction for anybody. It looks as if friction over religious matters in connection with the Philippine problem could not be avoided. As Boston is the center of the opposition to the Philippine policy through and through, these matters are probably of more interest in this city and Massachusetts than to any other state of the Union. The latest information is to the effect that the insurrection is still really in progress and that the Filipinos are stubbornly, in a scattered way, keeping up their fighting for national independence.

Do the laboring people and philanthropists really care as much as they would have the public believe for the industrial education of the masses of the people? It is a fair question. Gov. Douglas recommended in his inaugural the creation of a special commission to consider the question of industrial and technical education. His recommendation was put into law. The commission of nine was created with President Carroll D. Wright of Clark University as chairman, Secretary Martin of the state board of education as one of the members, and representative manufacturers and labor men on the commission to keep the balance true and to be sure of a high level of technical opinion. Their first meeting, with three members absent, was devoted to hearing an address upon industrial education in England. Yesterday came the second meeting, which ought to have settled down to solid business with a mass of interested people present. But there were only four who had anything to say, and the others present, with one or two exceptions, were the newspaper men. Yet it is supposed that the fate of thousands depends upon the education given to the boys and girls in technical matters, and beyond question that opinion is correct. But the people most interested show no special interest in this broad-minded movement in their behalf. It was just so two years ago when Col. Wright was chairman of another special state commission which met in the state house and heard vast amounts of testimony in regard to the relation between labor and capitol. Few people attended the hearings. The commission of able experts did the best that could be done with the subject and recommended legislation which must be presumed to have been valuable. But every particle of it fell to the ground barren of results, and the industrial world wags along, just as it will doubtless do when this commission shall have finished its labors, thorough and conscientious and barren.

Political conditions remain about as they were last week on the Republican side. After having been at the Hotel Pemberton last Saturday to address the Middlesex club, Senator Lodge has gone to Peabody to-day to address the Essex club and to show them also how to save the state. The senator's fervid declamation at Pemberton that the state must go Republican this year, for every place on the state ticket, or else the vote will be regarded as a vote of condemnation for the Roosevelt administration, is a little too ridiculous for even such a staunch Republican paper as the New York Sun, and it pokes fun at our senior senator unmercifully. There is no doubt that the Sun's view is shared by many Republicans here. It is easily possible to become too strenuous in politics. Republican contests are progressing about as a week ago, and one of

PALMER NEWS.

District Court.

Business at the Church street temple of justice has been decidedly slack for the past ten days, or since a week ago Wednesday. The first case tried since that date was on Tuesday of this week, when George Steinson of Brimfield was examined as to his sanity, the application being made by his wife, Annie. The case had been tried in the minds of Brimfield people before he reached Palmer, and so thoroughly had it been determined that there was evidently no thought that witnesses were needed, and they had to be sent for. It was shown that long litigation in the courts—extending over a period of 13 years—with delayed settlement of judgments granted him, together with counter suits, etc., had worked Mr. Steinson into a high nervous state, but the physicians called to examine him would not say that his mind was affected, and he was discharged.

On Wednesday John Griffin of Holyoke was adjudged an insane person and was sent to the hospital at Northampton. He was taken in Monson the evening before on a charge of disturbing the peace, but was shown to be mentally irresponsible for his actions.

The same morning William Ashton, who broke out of the lockup at Ludlow a few weeks ago, was apprehended in Chicopee and handed over to Officer Storer of Ludlow; he was brought to Palmer in the afternoon and a special session of the court was convened to adjust his case; he was found guilty of vagrancy and sentenced to six months in the house of correction, but appealed.

Some New Signboards Needed.

The selectmen would doubtless receive the heartfelt thanks of numerous autoists if they would put up a few more signs at needed points in this village. The arrows which the touring party put up a few years ago are missing in several places, and as a result the wrong road is taken many times. The route from North Main street to the Warren road, via Church and School streets with four turns within two blocks, is bewildering to numerous drivers who have never been over it before, when a sign at the corner of Main and Thorndike streets would send them up the latter and bring them the same results with but two turns; many take it now, out at the corner of Park street the sign is placed so that it can be read only from Park street, and so now and then a machine clambers up the hill and gets well along towards Ware before the error is discovered. Coming into the village from the east there is no signboard at the corner of Park and Thorndike which will tell the stranger in which direction to turn if he wishes to get to Springfield, and none at the corner of Thorndike and Main. Signs indicating the Springfield and Boston directions are needed at the corner of Main and Thorndike streets, and at the corner of Thorndike and Park streets.

Big Building Contract.

The J. F. Gallivan Building Company has the contract to build the entire plant of the Plymouth Cordage Company, which is to duplicate its plant in Canada. The company has bought a large tract of land in Welland, Ont., at the junction of the Welland Canal, Michigan Central and Grand Trunk Railways. The location has many advantages, with natural gas on the property for heating and lighting purposes. The power will be electric and will be transmitted from Niagara Falls or one of the several other electric plants in the neighborhood. The lot has only a few feet of variation in the 200 acres. The main building will be 700 feet long by 110 wide, two stories; the other buildings are a storehouse, 600 feet long by 60 feet wide, a tar-house 300 feet long by 50 feet wide, machine shop 150 feet long by 50 feet wide, a picker building 150 feet long by 50 feet wide, a large office building and several smaller buildings. C. M. Wing of Palmer will leave for Welland as soon as the the foundation plans are completed to start the work.

Is Doing the Best He Can.

Manager Hamilton of the street sprinkler service is having troubles of his own these days, between the complaints of his customers and the rulings of the Palmer Water Company, on which he is dependent for water. Most of the customers have paid their pledges and naturally think they ought to have the streets sprinkled. Mr. Hamilton has paid the Palmer Water Company and thinks he is entitled to the water, especially as there seems to be an abundance in the company's reservoirs and the amount needed is lessened materially by the weather conditions. Until last week he was allowed none from the mains of the company, but since that time has been allowed five or six loads daily, enough to sprinkle Main street once. For the rest he is obliged to depend on the tankhouse of the Boston and Albany road, opposite the post office. The head here is slight and it takes a long time to fill the cart, so that it is impossible to go over in one day the territory usually sprinkled.

For the Convenience of Taxpayers.

Tax Collector Hawkes has established the following dates and places where taxes may be paid to him: Friday, Sept. 22 and 29, from 1 to 3 p. m., in the mill office at Bondsville; Friday, Sept. 22 and 29, from 4 15 to 5.45 p. m., in the mill office at Thorndike; Saturday, Sept. 23 and 30, from 9 to 10.45 a. m., in the mill office in Three Rivers; Saturday, Sept. 23, from 7 to 9 p. m., in the selectmens' room in Palmer; also at same place on Saturday, Sept. 30, from 2 to 6 and from 7 to 9 p. m. Taxes not paid previous to October 1st are subject to interest.

Car Window Broken by Bird.

One of the front vestibule windows of the electric car due in Palmer at 11 o'clock Monday night was broken to pieces while it was passing through Thorndike by a young crane. The bird evidently became bewildered by the strong searchlight on the car and attempted to fly across, when it was hit by the car. It struck the window at the left front side of the vestibule and passed through into the car, covering the motorman, D. F. Moran, with pieces of glass and giving him a good scare, but otherwise doing no harm.

At the annual business meeting of the Young People's Christian Union last Tuesday evening the following officers were elected: President, Rexford Paine; vice president, Daisy Richards; secretary, Maude Helliwell; treasurer, Dean Richards; pianist, Addie Coles. Various committees were elected also. It was voted to hold devotional meetings on Sunday evenings at 6 o'clock. Delegates to the State Convention at Roxbury on Sept. 29–30, were elected as follows: Clayton Maxwell, Rexford Paine, Ella Webster, Maude Helliwell.

Residents along the upper part of Walnut and Central streets are very much interested, in a way, in the actions of a young couple which makes a large tree in that locality their trysting place. One finds the spot by way of Central street and the other by the Walnut street route, and once there the couple is apparently oblivious to everything but themselves. And if the session is protracted at times and the laughter slightly on the sleep-destroying order, those who would complain are reminded that they were themselves young, once upon a time.

Residents of Park street, particularly the section between Central and Thorndike streets, would be grateful to a certain bakery peddler if he would would refrain from littering the street with lunch boxes and papers. The pupils of the high school are frequent patrons of his, and were among the offenders at first, but a sharp reprimand from the school authorities has put a stop to the trouble so far as they are concerned, but the driver of the cart is not as careful as he might be, and seemingly has forgotten the town by-law regarding the throwing of refuse in the streets—and in this he is by no means alone.

Postmaster Shaw has received notice that in order to facilitate the handling of mail along the free rural routes, mail may hereafter be delivered to rural mail boxes when addressed simply to the box number. This contemplates the numbering of the boxes along the route, which must begin with the one nearest the post office and continue without skip throughout the route. Boxes open to the weather will not be included in this regulation, and mail will be delivered only to such as are of approved pattern. By this regulation the name of a person on a mail package will not be necessary, the box number being sufficient.

The Central Vermont railroad announces special round trip rates to Brattleboro, Vt., September 26, 27 and 28, the dates of the Valley Fair. The round trip rate from Palmer will be $1 70; Three Rivers, $1.60; Belchertown, $1.40; Monson, $1 80. Special trains will be run September 27 and 28, leaving Palmer at 7 a. m.; Three Rivers, 7 06; Belchertown, 7 22 Returning, a special train will leave Brattleboro, September 27 and 28, at 6 p. m., running through to Palmer, stopping at all intermediate points. These special rates are good on all regular as well as special trains, and will be good for return trip until September 30th.

This year the attendance at the public schools is unusually large, it being necessary to open a new room in the grammar school building in this village for the third and fourth grades. The enrollment is as follows: Palmer grammar, grade one 48, two 39, three 55, four 51, five 53, six 35, seven 36, eight 28, nine 27; Thorndike grammar, grade one 30, two 27, three 25, four 18, five 13, six 19, seven 20, eight 11, nine 18; Bondsville grammar, grade one 44, two 35, three 21, four 35, five 25, six 18, seven 14, eight 15, nine 11; Three Rivers grammar, grade one 39, two 32, three 16, four 26, five 20, six 19, seven 9, eight 7, nine 8; Wire Mill, grade one 11, two 9, three 9, four 6; Palmer Center, grade one 4, three 5, four 4, five 6, six 5. The enrollment at the high school is 116, slightly less than last year. A portion of the basement in the Palmer grammar school building has been partitioned off to make a dining-room, over 60 pupils using it daily. This number, which is decidedly greater than in former years, is caused by so many pupils having entered the village schools from districts where the schools have been closed.

A special meeting of the firemen is called for Monday evening of next week to discuss the matter of rubber boots. Fifteen new pairs of boots have been purchased for the use of the fire department, and as there are 20 members the question of which are to be left out in the distribution has caused the calling of the meeting When the boots were bought the department was possessed of scarcely a pair of boots to its name, so far as their evidence at the engine house was concerned; but with the arrival of the new ones old pairs began to make their appearance in exchange for the new until there were half a dozen or so on hand; some of the members had been in the habit of keeping their boots at home instead of at the engine house. A proposition was made to give out the boots and charge them up to the members, but this was objected to on the ground that if the boots were left at the engine house some other person might take them away and the person to whom they were charged would be expected to make them good. Another proposition—and this seems to be the proper one—was to forbid the removal of the boots from the house except for use at fires; there was objection to this scheme also on the ground that some of the members could many times go direct from their homes or work to a fire, and time would be saved if they could have their boots without going to the engine house. The matter could not be decided upon by the members and officers of the company, so a meeting is called for next Monday evening, when the engineers and the prudential committee have been invited to be present and help untangle the snarl.

Final Game in Handicap Tournament.

The final game of the handicap tournament of the Bondsville Country Club was played off Wednesday by the three players, Parent, Convery and Rytber, who had qualified in the previous games. Although the score was not low as the heavy rains recently had effected the greens so as to make them untrue, the game was one of interest all through, there being only a small margin left to the winner, Leon E. Ryther. The score:

	1st	2d	3d	Total
Leon Ryther,	43	41	41	125
Frank Convery,	48	40	41	129
Olin Parent,	47	42	45	134

Enjoyable Clambake.

The overseers and office crew of the Boston Duck company enjoyed a clambake at the Country Golf clubhouse last Saturday. The day was an ideal one for the occasion and about 50 sat down to dinner. A ball game was one of the attractions of the afternoon. Sides were chosen with Emerson Loy and John Conway as captains. Mr. Conway's side were winners, the score being, as nearly as could be determined, 35 to 10, although there is some doubt as to its correctness. A very enjoyable time was reported by all.

Academy Notes.

The total enrollment of the school now numbers about 135.

Arthur Paige, a former student, visited friends here Friday.

Mr. Wheeler of Malden is visiting Prof. Hulsman at the Hall.

C. B. Lester, a former instructor at the Academy, is visiting friends here.

The senior class motto has arrived and it now hangs in a conspicuous place in the chapel.

The social given by the senior class at the school chapel last Friday evening proved a great success both socially and financially.

Chester English of East Windsor, Ct., a former member of the class of '06, visited friends at Cushman Hall Sunday. Mr. English enters Storrs College this fall.

The class of 1907 has elected the following officers for the fall term: President, Francis Nelligan; vice president, Alice Sweet; secretary, Mabel Fuller; treasurer, Dorcas Sutcliffe.

The class of 1909 held their first class meeting Monday afternoon and elected the following officers: President, Olivia Flynt; vice president, Mary Murphy; secretary, Frank O'Brien; treasurer, Eric Cushman.

Track work has again commenced under the direction of Coaches Dunfield and Hulsman, both of whom are able track men and good instructors. The situation is somewhat different from that of last fall. Of that victorious team there returns but one member. Sickness, graduation and other causes have taken three members away and now Page is the only one available. Prospects do not seem bright for a good team at this stage, but it is hoped that there will soon be a change for the better. Some new material has presented itself to the coaches, but it will take hard work and much time to model it into top notch form. The following candidates are now in training: Page, Hatch, Miller, Rourke, Norcross, Town, Young.

Electric Road Hearing Next Monday.

The hearing on the electric road franchise to Fiskdale will be held in Memorial Hall next Monday evening at 8 o'clock, and a large attendance is expected. It is reported that an effort will be made to defeat this project unless the company will agree to build the present line as far south as the Wales road, which the company's original franchise asked for and which was granted. This addition would accommodate a goodly number of people, but just how much of a financial benefit it would be to the road is a question. Certainly a number of people who would be benefitted, are out for business, feeling that now is the time to ask for the extension, and a lively meeting is expected.

WARREN.

Busby—Foskit.

A pretty wedding took place Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jared Busby on West Main street, when their daughter, Miss Birdie Mae, and Ralph Ames Foskit, son of Edward L. Foskit, were united in marriage by Rev. William B. Oleson of the Congregational church, the two ring service being used. The house was artistically decorated with potted plants and evergreen, and about 50 friends and relatives were present. Previous to the ceremony Miss Susie Dexter sang two solos, while Miss Alice C. Canning played the wedding march from Lohengrin as the bridal party entered the room. Miss Alice Maud Warriner was bridesmaid and Jared L. Busby was best man. Misses Grace Warriner and Ruth Cutler acted as ushers and Miss Agnes Cutler was flower girl. The bride's dress was white crepe de chine over white silk, and the bridesmaid wore swiss muslin. There was a reception after the ceremony, at which Keith catered. The couple received many handsome and useful presents and $200 in money. Miss Busby is a graduate of the high school and has served as clerk in the post office for several years. Mr. Foskit is employed in Springfield as a bookkeeper for Malcolm & Coombe. Mr. and Mrs. Foskit left late in the evening for their wedding trip, and on their return will reside on Walnut street, Springfield, where they will be at home to their friends after November 1.

OUR BOSTON LETTER.

the best informed Republican leaders say that there is not the slightest doubt that Draper has gained strongly during the last two weeks and he will surely be nominated for lieutenant governor. As to the attorney generalship, he thought that "the fight would be principally between Champlain and Sanderson, with Malone likely to be the winner at the end," which is certainly a striking way of putting it. All of the candidates, with the probable exceptions of Peters of Haverhill and Gowdy of Springfield, are making a gum shoe campaign. As the delegates are not chosen yet, it is easy for every fighting candidate to say that his chances are looking finely. Two weeks from to-day, when the men have actually been selected for the convention, the outlook will shape itself far more clearly. It is easy to pledge men when only one fight is on, but to organize them for two candidates, lieutenant-governor and attorney-general, it is altogether a different matter and requires a far higher grade of political ability, as well as a great deal more lubrication.

No progress is being made toward the Democratic candidate for governor, except in matter of time. One who has been named for the office, and is pronounced by some of the leaders as "an ideal candidate," but who prefers to withdraw from all mention, has been offered $500 by one man for his campaign expenses and another has to-day tendered his rooms for use as headquarters. But he is not a man of means, though he is a man of the people. It is said of him, "Gaston will not take him and that settles it." Talk is heard of Robert M. Burnett, but he stands for exactly the same sort of democracy as Gaston. If Gaston could not draw out the full Democratic vote, because of his capitalistic leanings, neither can Burnett. The democracy still demands a truly Democratic leader and does not find him. The filling of the second place with the man who will run against Draper depends upon the candidate who is put into the first. If a labor representative, of the Douglas stripe, were put on for first place then a different sort of man would be taken for second, and Frank K. Foster would drop out of sight. But if the first place were filled by a man of the Burnett sort, then Foster would be wanted because of his labor record. Many are the cries which are going up for the right sort of Democratic leader, for many feel that it is a critical time and that with the right candidates both governor and lieutenant-governor would be taken from the Democratic ticket, but nothing is now in sight but the election of Guild and Draper.

Minor parties have dropped out of sight. Socialists have sunk to their insignificance before the coal strike. The cold water men are wholly a neglibigle quantity and the two great parties, with a large section of each ready to break off as independent, still hold about all the voters in the state. Many want something more radical to vote for, but cannot find it. The times call for a man and no one answers.

A Judge and a Pistol.

A correspondent of Law Notes writes of the administration of justice in a certain insular possession of the United States when the island was under Spanish rule. Judge Z. had had a quarrel with an editor. The judge arranged with a hoodlum to insult the editor in order to provoke him to a breach of peace. A policeman to arrest the editor was a part of the "plant." The plot was carried out, but the editor kept his temper. The officer arrested him, none the less. He was haled before Judge Z., who found there was no case. The judge took from a drawer of his desk a revolver, silver plated and beautifully inlaid with gold and mother of pearl, showed it to the prisoner and informed him that the policeman had delivered the weapon to him as one taken from the person of the defendant and asked him what he had to say to the charge of carrying arms. The editor examined the weapon, put it in his pocket, admitted that he had had it in his possession, produced a permit from the Spanish authorities to carry arms and, with true Castilian politeness, bowed himself out and off with the judge's beautiful pistol.

Woman at Her Worst.

In every sense the most objectionable dress ever worn by English women was that of the early sixties, writes Harry Furniss in the Gentlewoman. I defy any lady to appear refined in the correct fashions of that period. I was just old enough to look at them in picture books and gaze in my perambulator at the common objects of fashion with infantile astonishment. The hair stuck out at the back of the head, as a chignon or bun (really resembling a loaf), surmounted by a little black turban with a feather stuck in it; tight fitting purple jacket, strapped and crossed with black or red braid; panniers of gray color—bright yellow, say—on which were worked startling patterns in red braid; short full skirt—say of red—with wide upright stripes of purple braid; a red parasol, yellow gloves and violet boots completed a costume that our gentlewomen once wore!—Pall Mall Gazette.

Origin of Dog Days.

According to the generally accepted doctrine, the dog days begin on July 3 and end on Aug. 11, but there have been disputes as to every possible point about them. It was universally agreed that they were connected with the dog star. But which one—the real dog star, Sirius, or Procyon, the little dog? Then there were disagreements as to the particular astronomical performance of the star that fixed the dog days, as to their number, which varied in different estimates between thirty and fifty-four, and whether they were to be reckoned before, after or around the star's performances. The forty settled on precede the rising of Sirius with the sun. A belief grew up that in these days dogs went mad, but terrestrial dogs have really nothing to do with it. The original belief was that the star and sun together brought intense heat and all sorts of plagues.—London Chronicle.

Etymology of "Mutiny."

"Mutiny" is a word of terrible sound, partly because of the many dreadful events that it recalls and partly, no doubt, because to the ear it suggests "mutilate," but it signifies, etymologically, nothing more than "movement," and "commotion" ought really, again according to etymology, to be the stronger word of the two. The old French "meute," meaning sedition, to which the word is traceable, has given way to "emeute" in this sense, "meute" nowadays signifying only a pack of hounds, a much more innocent specialization of movement. It may be noted that, while Shakespeare knows "mutiny" in the modest sense, "Love's Labour's Lost" also speaks of "a man whom right and wrong have chosen as umpire of their mutiny," where "mutiny" only means discord or quarrel.

Low Rates.

On September 15th, and daily until Oct. 31st, tickets will be on sale via the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway to principal points in California, Oregon and Washington, from Palmer at rates from $49 90 to $50 75, according to railroads used to Chicago. Tickets will permit of liberal stop-overs at various western points, and are good in all tourist cars. Corresponding reductions are made to a great number of other points in Western States, and tickets can be purchased from your nearest railroad station to destination. Through train service from Chicago to principal points in the west assist persons traveling to make the trip without change of cars. Tourist cars daily. For further information apply to Geo. L. Williams, New England Passenger Agent, 368 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

New Line to California.

The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway have just announced that, in connection with the Union Pacific and San Pedro route, beginning September 15th, they will operate through tourist cars Chicago to Los Angeles, via the new Shore Line from Salt Lake. Time schedules are now in preparation which will greatly reduce the time between Chicago and Southern California via this route.

As the various New England lines have recently printed and distributed to their agents, tickets via this route, persons desiring to go to California can purchase such tickets, from their local agent, to destination without any trouble.

Reservations should be made through George L. Williams, New England Passenger Agent, 368 Washington street, Boston, Mass.

THE COWBOY AND the DOCTOR

[Original.]

The auxiliary yacht Enid was ready to sail on a ten days' cruise. The owner, Howard Thatcher, and master, for he was a graduate of the New York College of Yachtsmen, stood at the gangway waiting. The dingey left the dock, and when it drew alongside the yacht a sunburned man in the sombrero of a cowboy came aboard and was cordially welcomed by the host.

The newcomer cast a chill over the party. Nothing is so exclusive as a society the entrance into which has been paid for, and, with the exception of this stranger, Tom Downing, so Thatcher called him, the circle was complete. With him there was in it a link of copper.

"What did Thatcher want to spoil the party by bringing that fellow aboard for?" remarked one of the men.

"It doesn't matter," replied the lady he was with; "we can freeze him ashore."

"Good idea. Pass the word."

When Downing had got on a suit of ordinary clothes—he did not appear to have a yachtsman's outfit—he proved to be a good looking young fellow, but had he been an Adonis or had it been known that he sprang from a race of scholars or statesmen it would have made no difference to the people on the Enid.

There was a young girl aboard who received the same cold shoulder as Downing—Miss Mildred Sheffield, whose ancestors had been distinguished in the councils of the government and who had herself swept all the prizes of her time at college.

Naturally she and Downing fell together, sitting by the hour on deck, side by side, chatting. The guests soon came to speak of her from her degree, Ph. D., as the doctor, while they dubbed the man the cowboy.

"The doctor and the cowboy are spoons," remarked a swell who had made good progress at aping the English accent.

"Wonder how she contrives to hold him with her booky talk?" said a lady to whom he was speaking.

"Is she booky?" asked the swell languidly.

"I suppose so. She is of high degree."

"Vewy good," replied the swell. "Those degwees are vewy common nowadays."

At first the host seemed annoyed at the treatment of his cowboy friend, but he soon got used to it, or appeared to be used to it, and was secretly pleased that Miss Sheffield had come to the rescue. He frequently joined the couple, and the three spent a good deal of time together discussing matters in which they seemed to take a mutual interest. The party who were disposed to freeze the cowboy ashore made no headway, and in his own circle of three he appeared to be having a very pleasant time.

The course took in the principal points along the north Atlantic coast, and finally the Enid rounded to at Mount Desert. There the party were entertained on shore, and Thatcher gave a ball aboard. While the others were ashore Downing remained on the yacht and took advantage of their absence to bring out a wooden pipe, which he smoked till they returned But on the evening of the entertainment aboard he suddenly bloomed in evening dress, and it make a great change in his appearance. Miss Sheffield, too, brought out a dress suitable to the occasion, and her intellectual beauty made the other women green with envy.

While the affair was in full swing a boat pulled alongside and a messenger came aboard with a telegram. The host being at the time elsewhere, the messenger went from guest to guest asking for the Marquis of Coddington. "No such person aboard," was the universal reply. Finally Thatcher came along and after looking at the address on the envelope asked, "Where's Downing?" "On the forecastle, spooning with Miss Sheffield." Thatcher took the telegram and started forward. Those who had noticed the episode began to prick up their ears. All looked nervous, and some who had been most pronounced in snubbing the cowboy turned pale. Presently along came Downing, attended by Thatcher, both looking serious. They went below, and when they came up Downing had his hand baggage. Meanwhile Miss Sheffield came forward and stood near the gangway. As Downing passed he stopped and spoke to her:

"I have been delighted to meet you, and it grieves me to part from you. I have received news of the death of my father and must go to England at once. You have said you will be over in the fall, and I shall expect you to visit my mother. I owe you more than I can express."

After a pressure of hands they parted, the man to go ashore.

"Great heavens! Thatcher," said one of the guests who were looking on, "who's your friend?"

"He was the Marquis of Coddington. He is now the Duke of Carnifex, one of the richest men in England and of one of the oldest families."

Some of the men smiled, others frowned, while the women all looked daggers. The gentleman who was making headway with an English accent said:

"Thatcha, I think you have tweated us all vewy, vewy mean."

"Sorry, but I couldn't help it. The marquis had been roughing it on a ranch in the west and wouldn't come on the cruise except incog."

Miss Sheffield did not go to England that autumn, but she was on the continent, whither the "cowboy" followed her. She is now the Duchess of Carnifex.

DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY

Breaks no Hearts, Excuses no Crimes.

Dr. David Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is not a disguised enemy of the human race; where it cannot help, it does not harm. It is composed of vegetable ingredients and does not heat or inflame the blood but cools and purifies it. In all cases of Kidney troubles, Liver complaints, Constipation of the Bowels, and the delicate derangements which afflict women, the action of Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is beyond praise. Thousands of grateful people voluntarily testify to this, in letters to Dr. Kennedy; and with a warmth and fullness of words which mere business certificates never possess. It makes no drunkards—excuses no crimes—breaks no hearts. In its coming there is hope, and in its wings there is healing. We challenge a trial and are confident of the result. Your druggist has it. ONE DOLLAR a Bottle. Bear in mind the name and address: Dr. David KENNEDY, Rondout, New York.

For all those who fear appendicitis and are willing to do anything which will keep them immune from disease, Sir Frederick Treves has prepared a list of eatables which cannot be taken with safety. Foremost on the list is preserved ginger, that deadliest of sweetmeats, but pineapple, either fresh or preserved, is equally dangerous. Oranges, figs and raspberries should never be indulged in. To limit still further our diet, there are a number of things which may not be eaten by those who fear typhoid fever. The oyster has led to suspicion of all other shellfish, not only lobsters and crabs, but even shrimps and prawns. Smelts and whitebait are now regarded with awe rather than admiration on a menu.

WARE.

Davis—Moore.

The marriage of Mabel Phillips, youngest daughter of B. F. Davis of South street, and Phillip Sheridan Moore of Greenfield took place Tuesday afternoon. The ceremony was performed in the presence of about 150 guests, the bride's brother, Rev. Charles H. Davis of Somersville, Ct., officiating, assisted by Rev. E. L. Chute, pastor of the Ware Center Congregational church. Miss Marion Davis of Ware was bridesmaid and Frederick F. Crowson of Stoneham was best man. The bridal party entered the parlor at 2 o'clock to the strains of the wedding march from Lohengrin, played by Miss Ethel Smith of Ware. The bride was attended by three ribbon-bearers, Misses Lertha and Christine Dodge of Milford, N. H, nieces of the groom, and Miss Hope Morris of Waltham, niece of the bride. The ceremony took place under a bower of evergreen and carnations, with an embankment of ferns and white asters. The bride was attired in white crepe de chine, with veil, and carried bride roses. The bridesmaid wore a gown of white embroidered lace over pink silk A reception was held after the ceremony, Mulvaney catering. The couple received a large number of handsome and valuable presents. The bride is a graduate of Ware high school, and a well-known singer, having been for three years contralto soloist in the Congregational church in Auburndale. Mr. Moore is a well-known resident of Greenfield, being a claim agent for the Boston and Maine railroad. Mr. and Mrs. Moore left in the afternoon for a three-weeks' trip to Maine and the White Mountains, after which they will reside in Greenfield.

Riley—Dunn.

The marriage of Julia Riley of Otis avenue and John Dunn of Thorndike took place Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock in All Saints' church, Rev. John H. Murphy officiating. Miss Rose Riley of Springfield was bridesmaid and Patrick Dunn, brother of the groom, was best man. The bride wore blue silk, trimmed with chiffon and lace, and carried carnations. The bridesmaid also was attired in blue silk. A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Riley, after the ceremony and a wedding breakfast was served. The couple left for Fitchburg, where they will spend a week, after which they will reside in Thorndike.

One Chance In a Hundred For Life

[Original.]

It was the old story of a murder, circumstantial evidence, a legal duel between the state attorney and counsel for the defense, with a defeat for the latter and an innocent man sentenced to death.

How a few days before the sentence was to have been carried out he got out of jail was never certainly known, though it was admitted at the prison that his wife was admitted to see him, and when she went away a keeper remarked that she looked taller than when she went in, and another, seeing her get on to a trolley car, noticed that she wore heavy boots. The rest of the story goes that the wife was found locked in the prisoner's cell alone.

He had been hiding during the day and had heard them beating the bush all about him. Several times he believed that in a few minutes he would be dragged from his hiding place. But while men are much more intelligent than dogs there are cases where dogs may throw men into a contrast of stupidity. His pursuers could not smell him.

Night came, and under its friendly cover he left a region where he was known to be and must certainly be discovered on the morrow, if not during the night. Crawling under bushes between two men set to watch for him, he stole through their line and ran with all the strength he had left after two days' fast till he came to a farmhouse. There, knowing that he must have food for strength to struggle further, he went boldly in, asked for a supper and ate his fill. Then he started on with one, and only one, advantage—strength. But his chances were growing less.

Suddenly he stumbled into a depression and fell. His hands struck smooth iron and he knew he was on a railroad. He got up and walked on the track, soon coming to a point where he could see a station a few hundred yards from him. It was lighted, and a single man walked back and forth on the platform. The fugitive watched him, suspecting that he was there to prevent his escape by train. If he could only get aboard without the man seeing him he would have a further and a better chance than before to escape. A way train came along and stopped at the station, but it was closely watched, and he did not dare try to get on. The watcher went through it, and when it had gone left the station. Doubtless there could be no other train for some time.

Two hours passed. A man drove up to the station in a buggy and dragged a big bag to a post beside the track a short distance from the station and attached it to a beam projecting from the post. It was the mail bag placed in position to be caught by an express train.

There is no such nourisher of ideas as self preservation. All that man is today may be traced to his one instinct. The hunted man knew that by and by an express train would pass, an iron hook on the mail car would be adjusted and catch the bag around the center and it would be caught and swung into the car.

The idea flashed into the fugitive's brain, "Can I be swung on to the train with this bag?" He calculated the chances, and concluded that they were about as follows: Death, ninety; thrown beside the track maimed, nine; taken in alive and recovering from wounds, one.

While he was deliberating there came from a distance the bark of a dog, followed by another and another till their number was lost in a confusion of baying.

His pursuers had secured bloodhounds and his capture was now certain.

Hark—the distant rattle of a train!

It must be the express. The man's mind is made up. He will take the one chance in a hundred.

When his wife had taken his place in prison she had brought him a rope and a knife. These were all the articles he had asked for and he had had as yet no use for them. Taking the rope from his pocket, he went to the post, stood on a platform beneath it and began to lash himself to the bag. He first tied a part of the rope around the bottom of the bag, then lashed his body under his arms to the upper part of the bag and, lastly, wormed his feet into the rope about the bottom. This left his middle free.

The barking of the dogs and the rattle of the train came nearer, though from different directions. It was the train alone in which he was interested. Having finished his lashing, he turned with the bag, which, finally settling, brought his face to the track. Without this his one chance would have been lost. As the train thundered near he bent his body like a bow.

When the hook struck the bag it struck out his consciousness. When he regained his senses he was lying on the floor of the mail car with several trainmen standing over him. His pursuers would not have known him, for his face was drenched in blood. All he knew was that he was alive, aboard the car and there was hope.

When he reached the city the trainmen offered to call an ambulance for him, but he said he felt strong enough to get home alone. He got upon his feet and, resisting with all his will a disposition to faint, staggered out of the car. When he had passed the gate without being stopped he seemed to gather new vigor, walked briskly out of the station and boarded a trolley.

He has never been heard from by the police, but his friends aver that he and his wife are living under an assumed name in a foreign land.

CHARLOTTE SHERWOOD.

Origin of Dog Days.

According to the generally accepted doctrine the dog days begin on July 3 and end on Aug. 11, but there have been disputes as to every possible point about them. It was universally agreed that they were connected with the dog star, but which one? The real dog star, Sirius, or Procyon, the Little Dog? Then there were disagreements as to the particular astronomical performance of the star that fixed the dog days; as to their number, which varied in different estimates between thirty and fifty-four, and whether they were to be reckoned before, after or around the star's performances. The forty settled on precede the rising of Sirius with the sun. A belief grew up that in these days dogs went mad, but terrestrial dogs have really nothing to do with it. The original belief was that the star and sun together brought intense heat and all sorts of plagues.—London Chronicle.

THREE JURORS CURED

Of Cholera Morbus with One Small Bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Mr. G. W. Fowler of Hightower, Ala., relates an experience he had while serving on a petit jury in a murder case at Edwardsville, county seat of Clebourne county, Alabama. He says: "While there I ate some fresh meat and some souse meat and it gave me cholera morbus in a very severe form. I was never more sick in my life and sent to the drug store for a certain cholera mixture, but the druggist sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy instead, saying that he had what I sent for, but that this medicine was so much better he would rather send it to me in the fix I was in. I took one dose of it and was better in five minutes. The second dose cured me entirely. Two fellow jurors were afflicted in the same manner and one small bottle cured the three of us." A STRONG MAN

By Martha McCulloch-Williams

Copyright, 1905, by Martha McCulloch-Williams

"Humph! I'd as lieve marry a funeral as Wilton Roy," Granny Bunch said, her short nose in air.

Sunshine laughed aloud. Sunshine was otherwise Anne Trevor, heiress of Way's End, and Granny Bunch was Mrs. Richard Lee. Sunshine was tall and twenty. Granny Bunch was short and stout, with a fresh, rosy face. The two were cronies despite the forty years between them, also despite the fact that Granny Bunch was bent on matching Sunshine to her mind.

They lived half a mile apart, and Sunshine did the visiting for the most part. She was not yet mistress at Way's End. Her stepmother, Mme. Trevor, had a life estate there and was as austerely unsocial as Granny Bunch was hospitable. She had also a grudge against Granny in that she, too, had views as to Anne's proper bestowal. Granny was all for marrying Sunshine to her grandson, Richard Lee 3d, whereas Mme. Trevor held it little short of her stepdaughter's Christian duty to take Wilton Roy, her nephew. He had come with her to Way's End and lived there. He was dignified, sober and sensible, exactly the husband for such a piece of quicksilver as Anne. The match would be in every way ideal. Wilton had only a modest competence, along with a capacity for handling a fine fortune.

Thus Mme. Trevor to her inmost self, thus also obscurely, with much wrapping about of fine phrases, to Sunshine. She hated bitterly Richard 3d and did not scruple to say outright that he and his fat old grandmother were rank fortune hunters, laying traps and pitfalls for Anne's unwary feet. Anne's usual answer was to mount her horse and gallop away to her dear Granny Bunch. If Richard 3d happened to be there when she arrived, why, so much the better.

He was younger than Sunshine by a whole month and fancied himself madly in love with her. He had been courting her since they were fifteen, with the usual interludes—college escapades and summer flirtations. Sunshine knew all about them, for Granny Bunch was Richard 3d's confidant.

"You mustn't mind, honey," she had said to Sunshine. "Indeed, you ought to be obliged to these other girls—they are taking out such a lot of the foolishness. By the time Dicky is through college he will have come to know himself in a measure. Then he'll find out over again what he knew in the beginning—that there is nobody in all the world like Sunshine."

It was Dicky's story—the tale of his latest enthrallment—that had led to Granny Bunch's revilement of Wilton Roy. Sunshine had said demurely she did not understand how men could be so different. Wilton Roy had told her he should never make love to any girl but the one he meant to marry. And then Granny Bunch had exploded. She hated the superfine Wilton.

"One couldn't very well marry a funeral—marrying a minister is about the nearest thing to it," Sunshine said reflectively. Granny Bunch eyed her narrowly, then broke into a laugh, saying:

"Honey, you nearly fooled me then. Honest now—don't you find him mighty wearing?"

"Not always; he has his uses," Sunshine said. "He says an undisputed thing in such a solemn way and after I have heard him awhile almost anybody else is refreshingly brilliant—even Dicky dear."

"Dicky is no genius—he'll never set the river afire—but he is a man—an athlete, strong as a mule, gentle as a lamb," Granny Bunch retorted.

Sunshine laughed. "Tell him in your letter I send him a kiss—for his grandmother's sake," she said. "Tell him, too, I have named the pup he sent me for him, and ask him if he does not think his namesake deserves a new collar."

"I know he thinks yes. I shall write him to bring the collar, not send it," Granny Bunch said, eying Sunshine lovingly. Sunshine held up her hands, crying:

"What! Take him from his studies for a whole week! You mustn't think of it, Granny! Dicky dear hasn't any too much scholarship now—certainly none to lose."

"A hang for books and lectures and all that fiddle faddle," Granny said stoutly. "The boy is not there to cram his head with such stuff. I only want the place to mold him as it helped to mold his father and grandfather. If I thought it could make a prig of him like—well, somebody I might name—he should leave tomorrow."

"I see you are an obstinate person—likewise opinionated, my dear Mrs. Lee," Sunshine mocked in Mme. Trevor's own manner.

The two were laughing so heartily they did not hear Wilton Roy ride up to the open hall door and kept chatting madly of things they would not have had him hear for a kingdom. Whether or no he heard, he gave no sign when he came in ten minutes later. But on the way home and all through that evening he beset Sunshine to marry him, pressing her until she was almost driven in sheer weariness to accept.

Wilton was a good strategist; he did not fall into the two elderly women's mistake of running down all possible rivals. Indeed, he ignored rivalry and talked of his love and long devotion. He had never talked so well, and there was a ring in his voice that impressed her.

As if Fate were on his side, the morning was rainy. The day wearing on brought a deluge that shut in Way's End and utterly forbade stirring abroad. The rain held three days—a regular autumn freshet. How Anne got through them she never understood. Wilton pleaded manfully and Mme. Trevor deliberately left her alone whenever she ventured into the big parlor, the library, the long halls or the inclosed back piazza. Anne did not know it, but Wilton had said to his aunt:

"I have got to clinch things at once. Mrs. Lee is teaching Anne to laugh at me. If I let that happen I am lost. As for the boy, he don't count."

All through the last day Sunshine felt a numb fear of herself. She seemed to be losing volition, to move and speak automatically. It was only by a supreme effort of will she kept to the shelter of her solitude. Wilton did not call her audibly, but she felt invisible, inaudible forces drawing her to him. To escape them she hung out of the open window, heedless of the pouring rain. In the dash of it, the cool splashing, she found strength to resist the eerie influences. By and by, when the influences began to tug harder than ever, she ran away from them, rushed downstairs, caught up her hat and mackintosh and stole out to the stables.

They were deserted; groom and coachman were dozing in the hayloft. With trembling fingers she flung the saddle upon Beauty, her pet mare, loosed Dick from his kennel, then clambered up and dashed away, the puppy barking madly at Beauty's heels. The rain still poured, but Sunshine was bent upon seeking refuge with Granny Bunch. She rode headlong, bending low over Beauty's neck and singing. The wind was roaring, but she had no fear of it, nor of the water when she came to the brook. She saw it running bank full, turbid and crested with drift. But Beauty knew the ford by the landmark trees on the other side. It should not be more than breast deep anywhere, although the current was swift and strong.

Beauty snorted and pawed as they went in, but after the third step made way beautifully. Halfway across Sunshine flung up her head, laughing aloud, saying: "I'm safe, safe! Maybe I've been bewitched. Indeed, I think so. But witchcraft and witches can't cross running water. I'm so happy! Happy as a freed bird."

She heard above the tumbling water a hoarse shout. In spite of herself she checked Beauty and listened intently. It came again. Wilton was crying to her: "Come back! Back! Come! You belong to me! Come!"

She sat quivering all through for the space of a breath, then turned her horse half about, moving a little upstream. Beauty was contrary. She plunged willfully forward, lost her footing, scrambled wildly, then went down, head over ears, in swimming water. The ford had a gravel bottom, and the treacherous current had swept out great holes in it, leaving a quicksand in between.

They came up together ten feet off, the mare snorting and swimming gallantly. She had struck what should have been bottom, but was in truth holding sand. As she floundered herself free Sunshine became suddenly cold. Wilton, she knew, could not swim a stroke, and before he could fetch help the water, still rising, would have made an end of Beauty and her rider. The mare could swim until she struck shoal water, but there the quicksand would hold her. Quickly the girl slipped out of her cumbering rain cloak, flung away hat and gloves and resolved to try her slight strength against the raging stream. Just as she was slipping down from the saddle Dicky cried to her from the other bank: "Down! Go down! I'll meet you—on the big bending sycamore!"

"Stay where you are!" Wilton shouted behind her. "I—I am going for help!" But before his cry had fairly died away Beauty's head was downstream, with Sunshine holding it easily yet strongly above the racing waves. It was a hundred yards to the big sycamore, leaning far over the water, with a great horny branch almost parallel with its face.

Dicky scrambled out on the branch, locked his legs about it and hung, head down, to grasp Sunshine and raise her high enough to grip the big bough.

"Hold tight! I'll have—you—up—in—a minute!" he panted, writhing up himself.

Once she was safe he kissed her over and over, saying: "Sunshine! Sunshine! Suppose Granny had not sent for me! I never should have known real sunshine again."

"Suppose, rather, you had not been a strong man," Sunshine said, hiding her eyes in his breast. Then, with a quick revulsion: "Did you bring Dicky the collar? If you did you can have anything you please in return for it."

"Thank you. I have all I want just now," Dicky said masterfully, helping her toward the tree trunk.

An American Learns English.

There is an American in London who is rapidly learning English. He used to ring the bell and call curtly for "mucilage." Assiduous and willing attendants brought him everything you can think of from the "peerage" to packets of cigarettes, but never the exact thing he wanted. At last the most intelligent of the young men put the right question and got the answer. "Oh, yes," he said and brought gum. In America when you want to stick things together you ask for mucilage, and when you want something to chew you demand gum: so called, by limitation, we presume, because it is "stickjaw."—London Chronicle.

My Friend Hastings

[Copyright, 1905, by R. B. McClure.]

I was reading law in the office of Judge Holmes and preparing for the law department in college, and our offices were situated over the Farmers' State bank in the town of Poolsville.

One day a stranger who gave his name as Hastings arrived in town, and after a little while it was given out that he was a schoolmaster from the east who was taking a winter vacation for nervous trouble. He didn't look the typical pedagogue, but when I became acquainted with him I found him a first rate fellow. He seemed to take a liking to me as well, and after our acquaintance had continued for a month he got into the habit of dropping in on me when he saw my light evenings.

Along in March Mr. Hastings went away for three days. He was boarding at the inn, and upon his return, and as soon as he had finished his supper, he came to my rooms. This was about 8 o'clock in the evening. We chatted for awhile, and then he read law for a time, and about half past 9, as I laid my book aside, he looked up and said:

"I had forgotten to tell you that an old friend came back with me to stay a few days. I told him if he felt like it to drop up here this evening and be introduced. You will find him a very nice gentleman."

While I was making some appropriate reply a step sounded outside, and the stranger entered. He was introduced as Mr. Barber, and I no sooner set eyes on him than I wondered how Mr. Hastings happened to be friends with such an uncouth fellow. He neither looked nor dressed like a gentleman, and as soon as he began talking I discovered that his education had been sadly neglected. Once or twice during the next half hour I caught Mr. Hastings making signs to his friend as if telling him to do less talking, but they had no particular significance for me at the moment. It had come 10 o'clock when I arose and shut the front blinds and saw to the fire in the stove, as was my usual practice. I had just emptied a scuttle of coal in the stove to keep the fire through the night when an arm was passed around my neck, a man's knee was pressed into the small of my back, and I was garroted in first class shape. My breath was shut off by the arm, and my back wrenched by the twist the fellow gave me, and I suppose I lost consciousness for four or five minutes. At any rate, when I could take notice of things again, Mr. Hastings was smiling down at me, and his friend had finished tying me.

"What are you doing with me?" was my natural query.

"Just preventing you from getting into trouble," was the answer. "Jim, go down and fasten the outer door and bring up the tools."

"I want to know what this means!" I said in pretty bold tones as the man disappeared from the room.

Mr. Hastings sat smoking a cigar. In a lazy way he flicked off the ashes and smiled and said:

"I thought you were far enough along in law to tumble to a plain case when you saw one, but as you are not I will explain. We are after the money in the vault below."

"Good heavens, but you don't mean to tell me that you are a bank robber!"

"That's a pretty rough term for it. Deplete is a much nicer word than rob. Yes, we are going to deplete the bank of its cash, and let me say to you that if you hadn't put yourself out to make my stay pleasant while here piping off the job you would have been cracked on the head instead of gently assisted to lie down on your back. Here is Jim, and we shall now get to work. It may help you in later years, when you have a bank case on hand, to watch our operations. I don't think you are fool enough to go to shouting. If you are we can soon gag you."

While the men were stripping off coats and vests and getting tools out of a bag I lay there like a stunned sheep. I couldn't get over it that my friend, Mr. Hastings, had blossomed out into a bank robber, and I kept wondering all the time if it wasn't some sort of joke. I didn't think of calling out, knowing that almost everybody was in bed by that time and the streets deserted. Had I yelled my loudest no one would have heard me.

The plan of the robbers was to cut a hole through the floor of our back room directly over the vault and then go down through the brickwork into the vault itself. They ripped up the carpet, bored a few holes and then inserted saws and soon had a space four feet square cut out. They smoked and chatted as they worked, and now and then Mr. Hastings turned to address a word to or give me a smile. In a little time they were at the bricks, and as fast as taken out they were piled up in the room. They had gone down through three courses when they suddenly began cursing. There was a steel plate under the third layer, and had the robbers had the best of tools they could not have pierced it in three days. They were knocked out in a minute, and to save my life I couldn't help but grin over it. Hastings caught me at it, and after a scowl his brow cleared and with a smile he said:

"All right, sonny, grin away. It was a long job to pull off, and it has gone against us, but the next may turn out better. Come, Jim, we must be getting out of this."

The tools were replaced in the bag, both of the men bade me good night, and I was locked in. No efforts of mine availed to loosen me, and when morning came my rescuers made their way through one of the front windows by means of a ladder.

Military Discipline.

During the early conquests of the French in Algeria the quick tempered General P., thinking that one of his adjutants had displayed want of skill in carrying out his orders, so far forgot himself as to strike him with his riding whip. The officer seized his pistol, took aim at the general and was about to fire, but the pistol would not go off. Then the general immediately called out, "Eight days' arrest for not keeping your weapon in order."

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

PAINFUL PERIODS

AMERICAN WOMEN FIND RELIEF

The Case of Miss Irene Crosby Is One of Thousands of Cures Made by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

How many women realize that menstruation is the balance wheel of a woman's life, and while no woman is entirely free from periodical suffering, it is not the plan of nature that women should suffer so severely.

Miss Irene Crosby

Thousands of American women, however, have found relief from all monthly suffering by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it is the most thorough female regulator known to medical science. It cures the condition which causes so much discomfort and robs menstruation of its terrors.

Miss Irene Crosby, of 313 Charlton Street East Savannah, Ga., writes:

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a true friend to woman. It has been of great benefit to me, curing me of irregular and painful menstruation when everything else had failed, and I gladly recommend it to other suffering women."

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular menstruation, backache, bloating (or flatulence), leucorrhœa, falling, inflammation or ulceration of the uterus, ovarian troubles, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, nervous prostration or the blues, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences, and be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for further free advice. Thousands have been cured by so doing.

The Antalgica

Or Vegetable Pain Reliever

was introduced to the public in 1848, since which time thousands of bottles have been sold each year to an appreciative public, which is a good evidence of its merits. It is adapted to so many ailments it should be in every household, for it cures all kinds of pains both internal and external. For Bronchial affections it is unrivaled by any article in the market. It is a sure cure for Cholera Morbus and Dysentery, if taken in season, also for Coughs. It is an effective remedy for rheumatic affections, stiff joints, swelled limbs, sprains, cramps, tooth ache and many other ills to which the flesh is heir. Try it and it will do you good. It is sold at 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle by The Quimby Pharmacy, LeGro's Drug Store and the proprietor,

RESEMBLES A HOLDUP.

Build Us Extension or Go Without New Franchise.

UNUSUAL ACTION BY MONSON VOTERS

On Electric Road's Petition. Does Not Reflect Majority of Public Sentiment.

A hearing on the petition of the directors of the Springfield and Eastern Street Railway Company for a franchise to build an electric road from a point near the Foley farm, on the Monson road, through the north part of Monson to Brimfield was held in Memorial Hall in Monson Monday night at 8 o'clock, with a large attendance.

The meeting was called to order by O C. McCray, chairman of the Monson board of selectmen, who read the petition of the street railway company, and the call of the selectmen for a hearing. The arguments of the company were presented by Judge Kenefick of Palmer, who briefly outlined their wishes. He stated that County Commissioner Brainerd had a sketch of the proposed route, which would be shown, and which later was explained. Fred T. Ley, one of the directors, and General Manager Purinton were also present, but neither made any remarks.

E R. Sisson was the first speaker to respond for Monson, and his sentiment was that before the company should be granted any further rights they should carry out the privileges of the first franchise granted them, which allowed them to extend the present line as far south as the Wales road. He made a motion, which was seconded by George F. Clough, that the board of selectmen should grant a franchise as asked for provided that the line to the Wales road was first built.

Judge Kenefick then stated that he thought this motion had no reference to the question in hand, nor that this hearing should be treated as a town meeting affair. He considered that the question was one which should be weighed carefully and intelligently, and that if the board of selectmen were shown that this franchise was a benefit to not only the people of Monson but to those of Brimfield also, it was their business as agents of the legislative body to grant it without any strings whatever.

Mr. D B Needham was the next speaker on the floor, and he informed Judge Kenefick that the selectmen of Monson were capable of attending to business of this nature without being told how by the people of Palmer He believed that if a franchise was granted a time limit for building should be attached to it. He also scored the road for the accommodation furnished the Monson people, and on other points, most of which had no bearing whatever on the question under consideration. Samuel Closson said that he considered the Monson board of selectmen were able to handle the question without being told how, and he felt that they had been insulted.

Judge Kenefick replied that he had no intention whatever of insulting either the selectmen or the people of Monson, and in an easy manner explained what his remarks did imply. He called upon Lawyer Ball to support him in the point which he wished to impress upon them, it being a point of law in regard to the manner in which the business was conducted, and Mr. Ball agreed that it was right and proper. Harrison Howe suggested that before any further privileges were granted, the company should be compelled to carry out privileges granted in previous franchise, J P. Herlihy thought that the company should build the road to the Wales road, as he believed it would be a paying investment. E. S. Howlett suggested that since the Central Vermont railroad had closed its depot at South Monson, the Monson people looked to the Springfield and Eastern for all the accommodations within its power to give, and he thought that the present road should be completed before they were granted any further privileges. W. L. Ricketts scored the road for giving only what it was obliged to, and stated that now the Monson people had a chance to take revenge for this.

Judge Kenefick explained that matters relating to the accommodations of the road, ditches, etc., had no relation to the business in hand, and that if there was sufficient cause for complaint there were proper channels through which these troubles could be remedied He stated that he did not doubt if these complaints were made in a proper manner they would be remedied at once. He also said that if the road was on a paying basis the company would be more ready to build this extension asked for, but that they did not believe it would prove a paying investment.

The motion before the house was then called for, that of E R. Sisson, which was that the present line be extended to the Wales road before any further privileges were granted, and it was unanimously carried.

The entire sentiment of the meeting was easily seen, it being, "now we have a chance to get even. They want this franchise and we want this extension, make them settle." Just what position the selectmen will take in this matter remains to be seen. The meeting was adjourned until Monday night at eight o'clock, when the selectmen will confer with the directors of the road. A conference was held this afternoon, between Messrs. Kenefick and Purinton for the road, and the selectmen, the results of which were not obtainable in time for this issue.

The manner in which the matter was left has aroused the indignation of a large number of the citizens, who protest against standing in the light which the vote taken at the meeting places the town as a whole, and a strong public sentiment is being manifested against it. Not a protest was heard against the location asked for, and there is a decided opinion with many that the town will not wish to go on record as standing for a holdup.

The selectmen of Brimfield gave a hearing in the afternoon of the same day on the petition of the company for a franchise and location through that town The meeting was largely attended and the vote was unanimous in favor of granting the company what it asked for.

The Monson-Ludlow game at Monson Saturday was postponed on account of the inclement weather.

Ware was defeated by the Gilbertville team at the latter place Saturday afternoon by the score of 4 to 3. The game was played in a swift fashion, and the few errors that were made were on account of the slippery condition of the ground. The feature of the game was a double play by Ashworth and Foster of Ware.

County Convention of W. C. T. U. at Ware.

The annual convention of the Hampshire County Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held in the Methodist church at Ware yesterday, with an attendance of 150 Delegates were present from Northampton, Amherst, Florence, Bay State, Enfield, Palmer, Monson, Gilbertville and West Brookfield. The convention was called to order at 10 o'clock by County President Mrs. M. L. Wadsworth, and the greeting was extended by Mrs. Angie Buffington of Ware. Mrs S. A. Clark of Williamsburg gave the response. Mrs. Keith of Worcester gave an address in the morning on "Work among the railroad men," which was followed by a memorial service, led by State President Mrs. K. L Stevenson, in memory of the dead members of the union.

Rev. E. L. Chute of Ware Center, Rev. John Wriston of the Methodist church and Rev. O J Fairchild of the Unitarian churches in Ware were present at the afternoon session and gave short addresses. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. M L. Wadsworth; secretary, Miss E Rhood; treasurer, Mrs A. E Ross. The following committees were appointed in the different departments: Scientific temperance instruction, Mrs. G. T. Fletcher of Northampton; literature, Mrs. Ida Merritt; flower mission, Mrs. H. P. Cummings of Ware; evangelistic, Mrs. Lentelle of Amherst; railroad employes, Mrs. Etta Van Slike of Florence; Loyal temperance legion, Mrs. F J Clary of Williamsburg; parlor meetings, Mrs. Mason of Florence; press, Mrs. Chaffee of Enfield; soldiers and sailors, Mrs. J. R Hibbard of North Hadley. The convention closed at 4 o'clock.

Reservations should be made through George L. Williams, New England Passenger Agent, 368 Washington street, Boston, Mass.

Death of Mrs. M. Wells Bridge.

Mrs. Olivet H. Bridge, 70 wife of County Treasurer M. Wells Bridge, died suddenly at her home in Springfield Saturday evening as the result of apoplexy. Mrs Bridge was born in Ludlow and was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fuller. She received her education at Wesleyan Academy at Wilbraham, and when a young woman married Henry C. Frost, also of Ludlow. Mr. Frost died in Wilbraham about 15 years ago, and in 1893 Mrs. Frost was married to M. Wells Bridge, and had lived in Springfield since. The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon and burial was in the family lot in the Ludlow Center cemetery.

Ludlow Officer Gets Broken Leg.

Officer David Trembley of Ludlow sustained a broken leg last Friday, while acting in the role of peacemaker in Bristol, Ct. Mr. Trembly was on his way to visit his sister, Mrs. Philip Allen, at Bristol, Ct, and was in his brother-in-law's wagon, when he met Alvin Teller with Mrs. Teller of Terryville driving along. Mr. Teller, who was under the influence of liquor, struck his wife, whereupon Mr. Trembly jumped out of his wagon and entered a protest Mr. Teller struck him, pushing him over backward off the curb, and in his fall both bones of one leg were fractured. Teller was locked up.

Probate Court Matters.

A session of the probate court was held in Westfield Wednesday and the following business of local interest was transacted: Administrations granted in the estates of Thomas O'Keefe, late of Monson, Mary A. Brodeur of Springfield administratrix; Henry St. John, late of Palmer, Edwin P. Gardner of Springfield administrator. Sale of real estate decreed in estate of Mrs. Ira E Whitney of Ludlow.

Corner Stone To Be Laid.

The corner stone of St. Joseph's Polish Catholic church at Four Corners will be laid next Sunday. The Sacrament of Confirmation will also be administered to a large class of boys and girls by Bishop Beaven of Springfield. It is expected that there will be a large number of visiting clergy present.

27TH MASS. VETERANS.

Hold Their 34th Annual Reunion In Town of Monson.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT IS CHEERED.

A Large Attendance and a Royal Good Time. Dinner Served by the Citizens.

The 34th annual reunion of the 27th Massachusetts regiment was held in Memorial Hall in Monson Wednesday. The attendance was large and the gathering was of the interesting character which always marks the reunions of this regiment. The veterans began arriving in the morning, most of them by electric cars, the 10 30 car being filled to its utmost capacity. Much of the morning previous to the business meeting was spent in viewing the town.

The opening of the business meeting at 11 o'clock was marked by three hearty cheers for President Roosevelt. The meeting was called to order and the records of the last meeting read and approved. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were read and accepted. The following officers were elected: President, Gen. H. C. Dwight of Hartford, Ct.; vice presidents, Peter Bailey, Rob Roy McGregor, J. A. Irwin, Dr. G. E Fuller; secretary and treasurer, D W. Bates of Westfield; executive committee, Rob Roy McGregor, R P. Strong, G. D. Holden, L W. West, A. D. Pond, Justus Lyman, W F. Harrington, D. W. Bates, Emery Peck, A. D King. There were 88 members of the association present.

Col. W. G. Bartholomew, colonel of the regiment, was unable to be present, but sent a letter of regret which was read. He also sent a representative, Lyman Howard, who spoke for him. The colonel sent pictures to the association, to be given out among those present in rather a novel way. He stipulated that one should go to the oldest member present, and one to the youngest; one to the oldest wife of a member and one to the youngest wife of a member; and one to the youngest grandchild. Lyman Canuon was the oldest member, Mrs. S. C. Wood was the oldest wife and Mabel Cook the youngest grandchild. A collection was taken up, as is the custom, and there was a generous response.

The business meeting was held in Grand Army hall, and while this was going on the members of Marcus Keep, Woman's Relief Corps, were preparing the dinner, which was served in the main hall. The dinner was a good one and was thoroughly enjoyed by about 200 people. It was given by the citizens of the town, who are always ready to respond to an occasion of this kind, and many compliments were paid them and the members of the Relief Corps. There was music by Wilbur Miller's G. A. R. quartet and a song by Mr. and Mrs. Beach of Springfield. Mrs. Rowley presided at the piano.

After the dinner there was speaking, to which the public was welcomed. Dr. G. E Fuller, a member of the association, was president of the day, and introduced Representative A D Norcross, who spoke for the town of Monson, and extended a cordial welcome to the veterans. The late A. A Gage of this town was color-bearer of this regiment, and his brother, C. M. Gage, spoke for him Gen. H. C. Dwight of Hartford, Ct., gave an interesting address. He spoke of his regard for the old soldiers and impressed upon those present the fact that these men are entitled to the greatest honor and respect. He also exhibited a watch which was presented to him by the children of Hartford, Ct., and related many personal experiences to illustrate the fact that veterans are sent to him constantly for assistance. Other speakers were Mr. Allis of Malden and Fred W. Cross of Palmer.

The number of deaths during the past year has been 14, four less than the previous year. The list is as follows: Co. A, Charles M. Damon of Boston, Edward Merrigan at the soldiers' home in California, Nelson Kingsley and Theodore Place; Co. B, William Bliss at New Salem; Co. C, J. N. Fiske and Charles Parmenter; Co. D, Eli H. Johnson; Co. E, Walter S. Harrington at Becket; Co. F, Edward M. Smith, Leroy Bosworth at Westfield, and George F. Greene at New Britain, Ct., Co. G, none; Co H, Francis B. Gleason and Sergeant A. H. Wilson at Troy, N Y.

It was voted to hold the next reunion in Springfield next year.

To Take Up Charity Work in New York.

Miss Alice Jackson, who has had charge of the girls' institute at Ludlow for the past year, has been elected the secretary of the associated charities of New York, and will leave to take up her new work in two or three weeks. Miss Jackson will have charge of originating branches of social work among girls similar to those which she has carried out in Ludlow. Miss Jackson is a graduate of Smith college, and before coming to Ludlow she was engaged in settlement work in Greenfield and New York city, and was social secretary at Smith college. She has been unusually successful with her work in Ludlow.

A reception will be held in the chapel of the First Congregational church Tuesday afternoon from 2 to 5, the occasion being the 50th wedding anniversary of Rev. and Mrs. M. S. Howard. Mr. Howard has filled a continuous pastorate of 37 years in this church.

Our Boston Letter

It tells about

The Nasty Postal Cards—Industrial Schools Question—Hoodlumism Among Children—Political Claims.

BOSTON, Sept 20, 1905.

One of the debated issues of the day is whether the people are now in a state of moral degradation compared with their condition 25 or 50 years ago. If they are, then the obligation is evidently upon every one who is down in the mud to do what he can to get out. Many facts are produced to show that the average man and woman of to-day,—and the allegations concern the women fully as much as they do the men,—is on a lower moral plane than was habitually inhabited by the average man or woman some years ago. The low tone of popular books and plays, the decided falling off in the popular demand for the best literature, the non-church-going habits of an increasing number of the people, and so on, every one of which charges is abundantly proved to be true, are all cited. But there is another proof which is now forced upon people's attention, and that is the popularity and large demand for nasty postal cards. Persistent flaunting of these things on the public street has led me to go to the Watch and Ward society to see if anything could be done for public protection. The situation is amazing, discouraging and disgusting. These cards are made in Boston, they are sent in from abroad, and, by way of comparative credit to this country, the foreign ones are worse than those made here. Repeated complaints have been made to the society, and they come from different parts of the state. It is difficult to make out cases against the offenders because they try to keep within the law and yet to go to the very verge of what they can do in the way of mean, nasty vulgarity or seductive suggestiveness. There is not a particle of doubt that these things are defiling and degrading and ought to be stopped in the interest of public morals. But it is evident that the law must be amended to make the case sufficiently strong for public protection. Judges are human, and if they are supported by a vigorous public demand for prevention, they will be more disposed to act promptly and severely than if the public is utterly indifferent and makes no effort at betterment. At the Boston post office they are probably 100 cards a day taken up which never reach the person addressed, but are sent to Washington to be destroyed according to the law applying to such cases. In one case a lot of foreign cards, sent to someone evidently for wholesale disposal, was seized and the person to whom they were sent was convicted and fined $100. If the sale of these cards in such numbers does not reveal a moral condition of sheer, disgusting nastiness, without a particle of wit or redeeming quality whatever, then it is not easy to see what proof would be accepted upon the point of public morals. If the tendency of evils is to work their own reform, it seems time for the reforming quality to show itself.

On Friday will occur the second hearing, with testimony, by the industrial commission appointed on Gov. Douglas's suggestion for considering the establishment of industrial and technical schools. Some of the labor people are still opposed to the idea because they see in it an effort by the employers to prepare for another outbreak of strikes. Their argument is that the employers are setting up these schools in order to give foreign immigrants opportunity to learn the points of occupation quickly so that they can take the place of strikers at short notice. But the more intelligent labor men see in the movement what it is really designed by Gov. Douglas to be, namely, a place to train competent young men and women so that they need not be tied down forever, after working in a factory, to the particular machine on which they have worked but can be qualified for promotion, which is a vast improvement. One of the best known labor men in the state, speaking to-day of the real situation in the factories, makes out a striking showing of the hopelessness of advancement in an operative's position if he accepts the place in which he is put. The better work he does in his place, the more valuable he becomes in that place and the more insistent his employer is that he shall remain in that place. The fact is said to be, in the shoe factories in Brockton, for instance, that the men who fill the upper positions requiring brains and responsibility rather than manual strength or skill, have been brought in from the outside, while the regular force of operatives has advanced in efficiency upon their particular machines, but have not been drawn upon for the high salaried positions. It is believed that industrial and technical schools will have a general elevating effect upon the employes, and that this movement originated by the governor is truly in the interest of labor.

One of the evils of the times, seen in all parts of the state, especially attracting the attention of the educational authorities, is the prevalence of hoodlumism among children who ought to be in the public schools, or private schools, and doing better than they are doing or try to do. While their percentage is small compared with the percentage of the well behaved, yet it is so large as to show a serious danger to the social welfare of the state. Secretary Martin of the state board of education says that the public schools have these children only five hours a day five days in the week, even when they come to school,—and they are truants in large degree. The remainder of the time they ought to be under home influence. But home influences have materially changed. Fathers and mothers are out evenings far more than formerly. They both work in factories far more than under a different industrial system. Then they want to go, the man to his lodge and the woman to hers or to her club, in the evening. Children are deprived of home care day and evening both. They spend their time on the streets, learning all sorts of wickedness. In instances where the parents are one or both intemperate, or where the home life has been completely destroyed by a divorce, as has happened in many cases, the children suffer. The evil is by no means limited to our foreign population, but natives come in for their full share, and the increasing number of those horrible creatures, degenerates, in the rural districts makes the problem serious from both the educational and moral point of view. The failure of the churches of any and every kind to get hold of the parents only adds to the danger of the situation for a great many young people. The fact is that, in her progress toward the millennium, Massachusetts is not out of the woods yet.

Political newspaper men are to-day a very weary set. Day after day they are forced to hear from enthusiastic friends of candidates the most reassuring statements of their favorites' prospects. He is expected, evidently, to believe them all, but

PALMER NEWS.

John Miner Blanchard.

John M., 18, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Blanchard, died at his home on Knox street at noon Sunday after an illness of about a year and a half, the cause being tuberculosis. Mr. Blanchard was born in Palmer, and after attending the public schools of the town attended a business school in Springfield; graduating from this he took a position in the Palmer Savings Bank, which he resigned when his trouble first became known. A persistent cough a year ago last spring resulted in an examination of his lungs, which were found to be seriously affected. He went to Rutland in May for treatment, remaining three months without perceptible improvement; in October he tried Denver, Colorado, and for a time seemed to be much improved, but the disease had advanced too far to be checked, and the climate soon became too bracing for him and, accompanied by his mother, who had gone to him, he went to Southern California, and soon after to Saranac Lake, N. Y. The physicians there held out no hope or encouragement, and he returned to his home just seven weeks before his death. Two weeks later his mother was stricken with typhoid fever, and is not yet able to be out, although sufficiently recovered to sit up; two weeks ago yesterday his father was taken to a Springfield hospital with the same disease. Mr. Blanchard fully realized his condition, but was particularly desirous of living until his mother had recovered, as he felt that it was her untiring devotion and care of him which was largely responsible for her illness. Since his return to Palmer he has slept in the open air on the piazza of the house, and it was there that the end came Sunday. The funeral was held at 2.30 Tuesday afternoon from the residence of J. A. Hawkes, adjoining the Blanchard home, and was largely attended. Rev. M. O. Patton of the Congregational church officiated, and there was singing by Mrs. C. W. Williams and Rev. W. A. Moore. There was a profusion of beautiful flowers, many being sent by out-of-town friends. The bearers were George Roche, David Brown, Wilson Clark Jr., and Louis Brainerd; burial was in the Thorndike street cemetery.

Care For the Trees.

Attention is called to a news item which announces a petition of the New England Telephone Company for permission to cut three trees between Shearer's Corner and the Burleigh Crossing, and a hearing to be given by the tree warden. These trees are within the limits of the highway or there would have been no petition and no hearing. It will be well if the public give the matter of tree cutting a little attention. There are now too few trees along our highways,—at least our principal thoroughfares,—and if the Journal remembers correctly it is only a few years since that emphatic and successful protest was made against the cutting of trees along this very section. Someone has said that any fool man with an ax can cut down in an hour a tree which only the Lord Almighty can replace after 50 years of hard work, and this might well be considered when it is proposed to slaughter a few trees now and then for the convenience of any person or corporation.

Another matter in which it seems that a change might well be made is in the manner of giving notices regarding hearings or requests for permission to cut trees. The present method is to post a written notice on the tree and another in the post office; no attempt is made to notify the owner of the abutting property, and instances have occurred where trees have been condemned after a hearing of which the abutting property owner never had a knowledge, not living on the property and no notice having been served on him.

Council Dismisses Pastor.

The council of Congregational ministers called to consider the resignation of Rev. M. Oakman Patton of the Congregational church met Tuesday afternoon. It was voted to accept the resignation and to recommend Mr. Patton to other churches. The vote passed by council was:

> The council called by the Second Congregational church of Palmer to advise and act in regard to the resignation of Rev. M. Oakman Patton, the pastor, unanimously advise that he be dismissed from the pastorate of the church, the resignation to take effect upon the date indicated in the letter of resignation.
> In coming to this result the council desires to express its regret at the brevity of a relation which was so auspiciously begun, and which, in spite of its brief duration, has been attended by evident tokens of the divine favor and approval. The council desires to express confidence in the retiring pastor, Rev. M. Oakman Patton, as an upright, a faithful and an able minister of the gospel and devoted servant of Jesus Christ, commending him to the churches of our Lord wherever the providence of God may call him.
> The council also desires to express sympathy with the church in the loss of one who has been its spiritual guide, with the prayer and hope that another may soon take up his work and carry it forward with equal zeal, ability and success.

Have Left for College.

Edward Wells has entered Brown University.

Francis Barton has resumed his studies at Williams college.

Miss Marion Hellyar returns next Tuesday to Mt. Holyoke.

Frank Patton has resumed his studies at Wesleyan University.

Miss Ruth Fiske is taking a post graduate course at Westfield Normal School.

Miss Helen Buck has to gone Boston, where she is taking a course in domestic science.

Miss Blanche LeGrro left yesterday for Poughkeepsie where she will enter Vassar college.

Newton C. Wing left Saturday for Amherst to resume his studies at Amherst college.

Michael J. Dillon left Monday for Baltimore, where he is taking a course in the Baltimore medical college.

Licenses Would Have Been Cheaper.

Dog days are always an unpleasant time, and Saturday in the district court was no exception to the rule, when a number of persons were called to explain why they had unlicensed dogs in their possession. Such explanations are not usually of a satisfactory nature, and there was no exception to the rule on Saturday. E. J. Crosby, Abraham Ditto and B. C. Robbins pleaded guilty and paid fines of $5, assessed by Justice Dillon; A. Broulette's case was continued one week for sentence. R. A. Grimstone did not fare so well; he was convicted of a similar offense two years ago, and was fined $10.

Elected for Another Year.

W. W. Converse, who has served the past year as president of the Fourth Massachusetts Cavalry Association, attended the reunion of the association at Boston Wednesday evening and was reëlected to the position of president The full list of officers is: President, W W. Converse of Palmer; first vice president, T. C. Cooley of Springfield; second vice president, S. L. Snell of Rockland; secretary, T. J. Evans of East Weymouth.

Miss Eliza and William Hirst of Bartley, Eng., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Day on Maple street.

Opera House to Open.

The alterations and improvements in the opera house, which have been under way for some time, have been completed and Manager Fillmore announces that it will be opened next Friday evening with a grand ball. The orchestra has not yet been decided upon, but assurances are given that it will be a good one.

One new feature which will be appreciated by the ladies and many of the other sex is the prohibition of smoking, which will not be allowed in the opera house portion. There have been many complaints in the past of smoking in the halls and lobby, the smoke finding its way into the audience as soon as the doors were opened; this will be eliminated by the new order, which will be in force continually, whether the hall is managed by the association or rented outright—in either case "No smoking" will be the rule.

Pinney Estate Sued.

The suit of Sophia Brooks of Palmer against the estate of the late Andrew Pinney of Palmer, for services rendered, is being heard in Springfield this week before ex-Senator Charles N. Clark of Northampton as auditor. The amount asked is $9200, for services as housekeeper during a period of 12 years. Mrs. Brooks is represented by D. F. Dillon of Palmer and Carroll & McClintock of Springfield; H. A. King of Springfield appears for the estate.

With Two Toes Crushed.

Dr. J. P. Schneider was called Wednesday to attend a man who had been brought to Palmer on the 4.35 Central Vermont train from the south. He was found beside the track at South Willington with two toes the worse for having been between the wheels of a freight train and the rail. He gave the name of Michael Scully, with a home and friends in Worcester. His wounds were dressed, after which he was cared for by the railroad.

Not Much of a Fire.

An alarm of fire about 5 o'clock Wednesday afternoon called the department to Holden & Fuller's woolen mill on South Main street, but fortunately its services were not required. The trouble was a small blaze which started in the carding room; the mill pumps were at once started, but the automatic sprinklers had already extinguished the blaze. There was about three inches of water on each floor of the mill in a very few minutes, and the loss is estimated at $200 from this source; the fire damage was hardly appreciable.

H. H. Paine has resigned his position as janitor of Memorial Hall.

Edward A. Plummer of Newburyport has been the guest of Frank Patton.

James Heenehan is visiting his daughter, Mrs. A. F. McNally in Waterbury, Ct.

Edward L. Read of Everett spent Sunday as the guest of Miss Daisy Brown.

Miss Hattie Blanchard is the guest of her mother, Mrs. J. M. Blanchard on Park street.

O. P. Allen has returned from a two-weeks' trip to Vermont and the Berkshires.

Mrs. Enos Calkins left Wednesday for San Diego, Cal., where she will spend the winter.

Mrs. Timothy Crimmins of South Main street is the guest of relatives in Easthampton.

Mrs. C. L. Draine and son of Monson spent Sunday with her parents on Thorndike street.

E. R. Pierce of the Converse House has returned from a week's vacation spent in Providence.

Roscoe Adams has accepted a position with the Edward Miller Lamp Co. in Meriden, Ct.

Whitcomb & Faulkner are installing a steam plant for heating their garage in cold weather.

William Keith of Springfield spent Sunday with his brother, Dr. Silas B. Keith on Central street.

S. H. Wright has opened a general repair shop on Maple street, and will do all kinds of small repair work.

H. M. Allen is suffering from a sprained wrist, received Wednesday by being thrown from a wagon.

John Duffy of Cambridge spent Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Duffy on South Main street.

Miss Jennie Eastman of Stone & Son's spent Wednesday in Boston, purchasing a new stock of fall goods.

Miss Mary Roche has returned from the openings in New York and is prepared to do millinery at her home on Pond street.

Freeman Smith of the Palmer Savings Bank is enjoying a vacation in the vicinity of the White Mountains.

Mr. and Mrs. George Warner of Park street are spending two weeks with relatives in Rochester, N. Y.

CHILDREN MAKE GOOD SHOW

Of Vegetables and Flowers Raised by Them During the Summer.

The exhibit of flowers and vegetables by the children of the Monson public schools was held in Memorial Hall Saturday, and it was a most successful affair. There were about 500 exhibits, those of the vegetables being the most numerous. It was estimated that about 600 people visited the hall during the day.

Last April Miss Esther R. Holmes offered to give the pupils packages of seeds to be planted, the products to be brought into the hall in the fall for exhibition, when prizes would be given for the best of each variety raised. Miss Holmes donated the money for the prizes, which were: First prizes for each variety, 75 cents; second prizes, 50 cents; third prizes, 25 cents About 1400 packages of seeds were given out among about 450 pupils. Pupils below the fourth grade received two packages, one of vegetable and one of flower seed, while those above the fourth grade received four packages, two of vegetables and two of flower seed. In most cases the seeds seemed to have been used to good advantage, as the exhibits at the hall showed, and it has proved a very successful undertaking.

The varieties of flower seeds given out were: Asters, dianthus, zinias, phlox, marigold, nasturtiums; vegetable seeds, muskmelons, corn, squash, tomatoes and beets.

The following are the prize winners: Asters, first, Ethel Bryans; second, Ora Keet; third, Cecelia Alonzo; dianthus, first, Roy Graves; second, Nellie Corish; third, Cora Bond; zinias, first, Irene Randall; second, Lena Bryans; third, Bertha Stebbins; phlox, first, Charles Giffin; second, Henry A. Pease; third, John Prendiville; marigold, first, Oswald Fagan; second, Harold Soule; third, Walter Corbin; nasturtiums, first, Ruth Wills; second, Royal Wentworth; third, Ralph Entwistle; muskmelon, first, Helen May Bliss; second, Myrtle Bliss; third, Clifton Maynard; corn, first, Mary Matthew; second, Carlos McCray; third, Frank Giffin; squash, first, Mary Dalton; second, Roger Munsell; third, Matthew Meaney; tomatoes, first, Michele Nargi; second, Olive Lemon; third, Ernest Cooley; beets, first, Mary Sloan; second, Leonard Bradway; third, Elmer Aldrich. The judges were Mrs. C. W. Jackson, Mrs. W. L. Ricketts and Mrs. P. W. Soule.

Academy Notes.

Miss Hannigan, '06, of Portland, Me., returned to school this week.

Faulkner, '06, captain of the relay team, is expected to return to school next week.

Briggs, '06, has been confined to his room during the past week because of a strained muscle.

M. Pieoff, a member of the class of '02, now of Wesleyan University, visited at the school this week.

Cahill, '06, catcher on the baseball team and a member of last year's basketball team, has left school.

Philo will hold its first regular meeting this evening. Prof. Butterworth will give a brief talk on his recent travels.

The athletic association wish to thank the townspeople for their liberality at the recent canvass for funds for the relay team.

The relay team began practice on the Palmer track yesterday afternoon and it will be continued from now until the time of the race. The outlook is somewhat brighter than last week, as a few of the old candidates have appeared for practice.

Police Officer, Coon and Razor.

Special Officer J. P. McCarthy was aroused from his peaceful slumbers about 12:30 Sunday morning by Jane Wallace, who wanted him to arrest Bert Powers, claiming that he was fighting at the cottage on Pearl street, occupied wholly by colored people. From appearences Jane looked as if she had taken a band in the fight herself. As Powers is rather unruly at times, Officer McCarthy hastily summoned a couple of outsiders, and started for the scene of the fray. The house was surrounded, and as Powers leaped through a window, he was collared by Officer McCarthy, who relieved him of a razor and put him in the lockup. Monday he was taken to Palmer and paid a fine of $5 for drunkenness.

O. E. Bradway Wins Butter Prize Again.

Bradway of East Hill received a telephone message from Spencer last evening that he had again won the handsome gold cup offered as a sweepstakes prize for the best butter shown at the Spencer fair. The cup is open to all competition, and Mr. Bradway won it two years ago by a comfortable margin; last year the first judging gave a tie between his butter and that of another maker; two judges then went over the various entries separately, and the result was a half point against Mr. Bradway. The cup will now be given into his keeping for another year.

THORNDIKE.

Band to Have New Uniforms.

Measurements were taken this week for the new uniforms for the members of the Columbian Band. These uniforms, 20 in number, will be navy blue, with maroon trimmings, and are to be made by Henderson & Co. of Philadelphia, at a cost of $200 They will be ready Oct. 4, when the band will go to Ware as escorts for Palmer Court of Foresters, who will attend the bazar which opens in Ware on that night. The band has several bookings, among which is the Eastern Hampden Agricultural Fair at Palmer October 6 and 7, and they will furnish music on the opening night of St. Anne's church bazar in Three Rivers in November. The money for the new uniforms was raised by subscription, donations being given by the citizens and business men of the whole town. The band has been criticised considerably of late because of their failure to give outdoor concerts the past summer season, they furnishing only one. Many of the citizens feel that if they are to support an organization of this kind it should make its appearance at least once each week. The members of the band state that the reorganization of the band was the cause of its non-appearance during the past season, and promise more concerts in the future.

OUR BOSTON LETTER.

if those who pour these tales into his ears could go from headquarters to headquarters they would see that, in the very nature of the case, there must be a limit to credulity. To-day Draper is sure of the nomination. Hall has got a majority of all the Boston delegates and actually has more than either Draper or Goetting. The latter has the four western counties solid, is sure of strength in Worcester, will make a strong showing in Boston and stands a good show of winning as a compromise in the end. The signing of the cards for reciprocity and tariff revision has set in so strongly that some 2000 names have been received already, at five cents per name for the canvasser, and the managers hope to get 100,000 names before the Republican convention. But with only 50,000 signers, that would make a protest against the high tariff which would be felt by the managers and would make very doubtful the wisdom of nominating Draper upon a platform repudiated over their own signatures by such a strong element of the party. It might lead to a bolt or the sure defeat of Draper. In the attorney generalship fight, Malone will win because he has the support of Senator Crane and has the delegates corralled already. Champlin will win because the machine and Senator Lodge want him. Sanderson will win because he is the ablest man and strongest personally. French is sure of capturing the prize because Malone, Champlin and Sanderson will kill off each other, leaving French as the sole survivor. Honest men make these statements and therefore they are true.

To-morrow at 2, at the Democratic headquarters, will be brought in the Diogenes lantern of the Democrats, probing the darkness in search of a gubernatorial candidate. Col. Gaston says that newspaper men have been the very worst of all men in the state this year because whenever a man has been proposed for the Democratic nomination the newspaper men have run at him with the question: "Are you a candidate for governor?" Of course the man could not say that he was and the Colonel declares that one good candidate has been frightened off by this means who would probably have accepted otherwise and been a good candidate. To-day no candidate in sight. Quincy has gone to New York till Saturday, which shows that he does not regard to-morrow's meeting of consequence enough to demand his attendance. Nobody is in sight who can defeat Col. Guild on the Republican ticket.

LANDON.

Speaking of inside tips, they are telling a story of the little boy and the Christian Scientist. The boy was complaining of an ache in his stomach, when the Christian scientist told him he wasn't ill at all—that he just imagined he was sick. "But I know better," said the boy. "I've got inside information."—Boston Herald.

Shall We All Die of Thirst?

After telling of the gradual drying up of the great lakes and rivers all over the world in an article in Chambers' Journal, J. T. Whitby continues: "Everywhere in our own country, as in others, water springs are giving out and water beds drying up, slowly perhaps, but surely. The increase of population and the modern system of drainage have of course a great deal to answer for, but much of the drought is undoubtedly caused by the rapid destruction of timber on all sides, for trees not only attract rain clouds, but preserve the moisture of the soil. While it is impossible for puny man to control the geological period through which we are passing and whose characteristics would be, according to some, the gradual disappearance of water, it may be inquired whether it would not be advisable to postpone that disagreeable moment of a world without water as far as possible by the better preservation of our woods and forests and the persistent replanting of trees."

Raw White Potato For Inflamed Eye.

The writer wishes to testify, from his own experience, to the efficacy of the raw white potato when used for irritated and inflamed eyes. It is used as follows, but care must be exercised not to let the juice of the potato come into contact with any cloth or clothing, which it will ruin by turning black. The potato to be used should be pared and then scraped with a spoon into small fragments and a little water added. This should be laid upon a cloth which has been placed over the eyes, and then the patient should open and close his eyes as much as possible so as to allow the liquid to have its effect directly upon the eyeball. The patient will find great relief in this effective but inexpensive treatment. Of course the patient must be and remain in a reclining position. Stanley R. Walbridge in Detroit News-Tribune.

Softening the Blow.

A young Virginia woman who was very ill was approached by her colored servant, who said, "Miss May, mah mothah dun had a cousin what had de same ailments what you dun got." "Is that so, Cora?" replied the lady. "Yessum," responded Cora, encouraged, "but mah mothah's cousin she died, 'deed she did." "Well, Cora," said her mistress, angry that she should tell her such a tale at such an inopportune time, "if that's all you have to say to me you can leave the room and don't come in again. I don't want to hear such stories." Cora was thoroughly frightened at what she had done and wished to ameliorate her ill chosen story, so she thought for a moment and, turning to go, said, "Well, Miss May, mah mothah tole me she died mighty easy."

Points About Pins.

Thorns were originally used in fastening garments together. Pins did not immediately succeed thorns as fasteners, but different appliances were used, such as hooks, buckles and laces. It was the latter half of the fifteenth century before pins were used in Great Britain. When first manufactured in England the iron wire of the proper length was filed to a point and the other extremity twisted into a head. This was a slow process, and 400 or 500 pins was a good day's work for an expert hand. The United States has the credit of inventing the first machine for making pins. This was in 1824. The inventor was one Lemuel Wellman Wright.

May She Ever!

Figure it out on a rose leaf and write with the brew of a lily that nowhere under the great blue dome is there a creature half so pretty as a Kentucky woman. She's prettier than an evening star in the shadow of a summer sunset, more inspiring than a thousand songs and as bewitching as a fawn tangled in the vines of a wilderness of roses. She's our hope, our romance, our vine and fig tree—the light which enables us to see a million miles beyond the north star.—Springfield (Ky.) Sun.

Moral Courage.

It is moral courage that characterizes the highest order of manhood and womanhood, the courage to be just, the courage to be honest, the courage to resist temptation, the courage to do one's duty.—Samuel Smiles.

"But, tell me," said the pretty girl, thoughtfully, "why is it you always send your poems to the editors by mail, instead of taking them down in person?" "Well, I'll tell you," responded the struggling bard. "When I send them by mail, I am likely to get a rejection." "Then you should subject them in person." "No, then I would likely get an ejection."—Chicago Daily News.

Their cordial parting.—The old friends had had three days together. "You have a pretty place here, John," said the guest on the morning of his departure. "But it looks a bit bare yet." "Oh, that's because the trees are so young," said the host, comfortably. "I hope they'll have grown to a good size before you come again. Then you'll see how much improved the place will be." And they shook hands with mutual affection and good will.

"And what do you think of our beautiful city?" asked the Chicago girl. "Your beautiful city," yawned the young man from New York, "reminds me of a bursted drum." The Chicago girl looked daggers, bayonets and hatpins. "What?" she flashed. "Our city reminds you of a bursted drum? Why so, sir?" "Because it can't be beaten." And she was so pleased she promised to say something real nice about New York.—Chicago News.

Distressing.—Mrs. Hetty Green was talking about the vicissitudes of housekeeping. "Accidents occur in housekeeping," she said, as distressing and horrible as any that occur in the world of finance. "A woman of Bellows Falls gave a party last year. Pie was served at the party, apple pie with the crust very prettily ornamented. The woman called the cook into the dining room. 'Mary,' she said, 'this crust looks very nice. How did you scallop it so beautifully?' 'With your false teeth, mum,' the cook answered."

Miss Sarah Louise Arnold, dean of Simmons college in Boston, told this story in a recent lecture: "A friend of mine, a teacher," said she, "was once surprised that one of her younger pupils could read. 'Where did you learn to read, Mary?' she asked. 'Nowhere,' replied Mary. 'I mean who taught you?' said the teacher. 'No one,' answered Mary. 'Why, some one must have taught you,' insisted the teacher. Then little Mary grew very earnest, and she said impressively: 'Why, teacher, I know'd my letters when I was born.'"

The little Polish girl, Sophia Zignio, four years old, who set her clothes on fire on Thursday of last week, and was so terribly burned, died Saturday morning. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon in all Saints' church.

Prof. C. A. Tuttle, accompanied by his wife and two children, have returned to Crawfordsville, Ind., after spending the summer in this state. Prof. Tuttle, who is at Wabash College as professor of economics has been doing some work at Cambridge, while Mrs. Tuttle and children remained at the home of her brother, Dr. W. W. Miner.

Tax Collector F. W. Farrar has advertised the real estate of the Hampshire and Worcester street railway for sale at auction, to satisfy a three-years' claim of the town of Ware for taxes. The amount unpaid is about $1000 Mr. Farrar says he has notified Receiver Taft of the delinquency and requested payment, but has received no satisfactory reply.

A case of diphtheria was reported in the family of Henry Marsh on Bank street Wednesday, the victim being his daughter Susie, 14 years old, and the house has been quarantined. This is the only case of the kind in town, but the board of health were notified early in the week of a typhoid fever case on West Main street. This was the case of a child and was brought from Connecticut.

The body of Mrs. Margaret G. Marsh, 69, who died in Boston Saturday, was taken to Ware Tuesday for burial. A funeral service was held at the home of her sister, Mrs. Sarah Gates, on Park street at 2 in the afternoon, Rev. Arthur Chase officiating. Mrs. Marsh is the widow of George T. Marsh, who died about a year ago in Baltimore, and was buried in Ware, where he and his wife formerly lived.

The annual inspection and parade of the Ware fire department will be held to-morrow afternoon. All the different hose companies with apparatus will assemble at Central Station, Water street, at 1.30 o'clock for parade, under the escort of the Second Regiment band of Springfield and the Lafayette drum corps. After the parade a test of the apparatus and between the companies will follow on Main street.

Elenora, the five-years-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Seymour, was run over about 6 o'clock last night by a team driven by Mrs. P. J. Nelligan. The wheels passed over her chest. She was taken to her home, where she was attended by Dr. W. W. Miner, who stated that the injury, while painful, was not serious. The child ran from the sidewalk directly in front of the team, and the accident could not be averted.

Mrs. Michael Houlihan, 52, died suddenly at her home on Pine street Saturday evening. She had been as well as usual during the day, attending All Saints' church in the morning. Her husband, who is a night watchman, left her sitting in the chair, and apparently well at 8 in the evening, but soon after she was found still in the chair, but no longer living. Dr. W. W. Miner, who was called in, pronounced death due to heart failure. Besides her husband, she is survived by three sons, Patrick and Michael of Ware and William of Boston; also one daughter, Nellie, at home. The funeral was held from All Saints' church Tuesday morning.

The Nose of Gold

[Original.]

Many years ago there lived in Denmark a youth who possessed a genius for research among the phenomena of nature. This young man, whom we shall call Maximilian, loved a girl named Julia, the daughter of a covetous old man, Jerome. So long as Max and Julia were simply playmates Jerome did not object, but when Max went to the university and returned during his course there, having taken great honors in mathematics, and showed plainly that he loved Julia, and Julia showed plainly that she loved Max, the old man objected. He was looking for wealth, not intellect, for his daughter.

"Max is mad," he said. "Why, he says the earth is a globe and revolves on its axis, that it is no bigger than one of the stars we call planets, that the earth and planets revolve around the sun, whereas any fool can see the sun and stars rise in the east in the morning and go down under the earth in the evening. I have no use for such an idiot."

Max told Julia to wait and returned to the university, where he found himself compelled to defend his strange views at the point of the sword. In a duel his nose was cut clean off. After that he was obliged to content himself with a gold nose, which he stuck on with cement and wore spectacles to secure it.

In due time Max was graduated and became an astronomer. He collected a quantity of instruments and took them to an island where he watched the motions of the stars. The people there came to regard him as a magician. This idea was fostered by his gold nose. Women especially were afraid of him and when he appeared would snatch their children away for fear he would turn them into cats and dogs.

One day a man who knew of Max's reputation went to Jerome and told him that Max possessed the power of divination, or sorcery; that he could turn whatever he liked into precious metals; that he had already turned his own nose into gold. The old man pricked up his ears. So long as Max did nothing more practical than give out his wild notions he was no match for his daughter; but if he could change things into gold, that was a different matter. He told Julia to go and find out if the report was true, intimating that if it was perhaps she might marry Max after all.

Julia made the journey and returned in due time.

"Well," asked her father, "is it true that Max can turn things into precious metals?"

"I don't know, father; his nose is of gold."

"It must be the devil," mused the old man. "Do you think he can turn my boots into gold?"

"He says he is turning darkness into light every day."

"That is nothing to me. Go and tell him that if he will turn my boots into gold he shall have you for his wife."

Julia carried her father's message to Max.

"Tell him," said Max, "that this day week I will marry you in his house. If he objects I will turn his eyes into gold."

When Julia delivered this message, Jerome paled. Gold eyes were no compensation for the loss of sight. Nevertheless he was very stubborn and would not give his consent. Six days passed. Julia made hasty preparations for the wedding. On the seventh day, which was bright and beautiful, Max drove up to the house. He was followed by a wagon containing queer looking instruments. Jerome looked out of the window and saw his would be son-in-law, his nose glistening in the sun, followed by persons bearing brazen circles, disks, tubes and spheres. Jerome trembled. Max had evidently brought the implements with which to shut out the old man's sight forever.

Max stood out where the sun could strike him and, looking up at the house, saw Jerome at the window. A bright spot was dancing about on the wall, and Max seemed to have the power to direct it. In a moment he brought it to bear on Jerome's eyes. With a shriek, the miser cried:

"I consent."

"Very good," said Max. "Then I withdraw the curse."

Jerome rubbed his eyes and, finding that he could still see, staggered to meet the astronomer and, falling on his neck, begged him not to make another attempt—that he should have Julia on his own terms. This was easy for Max to promise and perform, for he had simply filed a small plane on the tip end of his nose and burnished it. Catching the reflection of the sun on it, he had directed the vivid rays to the old man's eyes.

Preparations for the wedding having been made, there was nothing to do but send for a priest, who came, and the couple were married. Max asked the miser what dowry he intended to give his daughter. Jerome trembled, and going to his bedroom returned with a bag of gold. Then Julia got into the carriage with her husband, the instruments were put back into the wagon and all were driven to the observatory.

The real name of the subject of this story is Tycho Brahe. He made great improvements in astronomical instruments, and by his observations prepared the way for the grand discoveries of Kepler's laws of motion and gravitation. This much of the story is authenticated—that he lost his nose in a duel at the university, that he was an object of superstitious wonder to the people, and that he was considered by them a great magician.

THREE JURORS CURED

Of Cholera Morbus with One Small Bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Mr. G. W. Fowler of Hightower, Ala., relates an experience he had while serving on a petit jury in a murder case at Edwardsville, county seat of Clebourne county, Alabama. He says: "While there I ate some fresh meat and some souse meat and it gave me cholera morbus in a very severe form. I was never more sick in my life and sent to the drug store for a certain cholera mixture, but the druggist sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy instead, saying that he had what I sent for, but that this medicine was so much better he would rather send it to me in the fix I was in. I took one dose of it and was better in five minutes. The second dose cured me entirely. Two fellow jurors were afflicted in the same manner and one small bottle cured the three of us." "Yes, yes. I am perfectly willing to acknowledge that you are hardworking, honorable and trustworthy. Surely I have proved that by taking you so completely into my confidence in business matters. But that is not sufficient. The man who marries my daughter must have shown some striking evidence of business acumen before I give my consent." Mr. Brampton, banker and diamond merchant, wiped his glasses and sat back in the comfortable chair of his private office, dismissing the whole matter with a wave of his hand.

Eric Wilmanton, his confidential secretary, also tried to forget the matter, temporarily, but with less success. "He's such a self willed old gentleman," he sighed to himself, "that if he weren't Doris' father I should call him a stubborn old fool." This heretical train of thought was broken by the entrance of a clerk with a card. He took it. "Mr. Wilfred Norton Harrington to see you," he said. "I don't think he's a client of ours?"

"Harrington, Harrington," murmured his employer. "I don't recollect the name. Oh, yes, though I fancy he must be the son of that wealthy old Harrington of San Francisco who died a couple of months ago. I heard that the young man was going to settle in New York. Send him in," he added to the clerk.

The latter retired and presently admitted a tall, clean shaven man of about forty, dressed in a top hat and fashionably cut frock coat which did not seem to fit him.

"Mr. Brampton, I believe. I should like to transact some private business with you if you can spare the time," said the stranger.

"My secretary is entirely in my confidence," answered Mr. Brampton. "In fact, I depend on him a good deal, so you may speak quite freely."

Mr. Harrington sat down and placed a red morocco jewel case on the table. "I have no doubt you know of my father's death some two months ago, and also that I have purchased No. 8— Fifth avenue. I have my affairs pretty well settled now, but in looking over the jewelry left by my father I find that there are several things which I don't care to keep. Pearls, for instance, my wife has a superstitious horror of. She refuses to wear them and it would be ridiculous to keep them locked up in the safe." He paused for a moment and took from the case a magnificent rope of graduated pearls. "Here is a string of 175 pearls that I am willing to dispose of."

The other two bent over him with interest; they were indeed a handsome set.

"I think I remember being notified that your father was collecting these, some five years ago. I sent him a few, on approval, I fancy," said Mr. Brampton, at last, jotting down a conservative estimate of $45,000 on a writing pad, which he dropped in a drawer where his secretary could see the figures.

The latter took it, and wrote $50,000 beneath, and returned it.

"I have as many pearls now as I care to handle," the banker went on, "but if you will put a price on these I will see if we can make a deal."

"My wife insists so strongly on my disposing of them that I have decided to let them go at a price considerably below their value, $35,000."

The other two men looked at each other. "It is not a matter to be decided offhand," said Mr. Brampton, "but if you give me time for consideration, I think we can come to an agreement."

"If a few hours would be sufficient," suggested Harrington, "I should be very pleased if you would dine with us and we can settle the matter this evening."

"That is excellent," replied the banker as the visitor rose. "Good day."

"I suppose you would like to telegraph to San Francisco to make sure that everything is all right," said Eric when the door was closed.

"Yes. I'll wire the Pacific bank as a matter of form, but of course his receiving me in his own house will be really sufficient. Every one knows he's bought No. 8— Fifth avenue." Mr. Brampton wrote and dispatched the message immediately.

A satisfactory reply arrived before they left the office. Mr. Harrington had removed a considerable amount of jewelry from that very bank to his New York house about a fortnight before.

"If I can conclude this purchase satisfactorily it will mean a considerable turn over," said the banker as he left the office. "You lack real business instincts, Wilmanton, in being too cautious. I know you didn't like this man's appearance, and you would have let the matter go, very like."

"I shall be anxious to hear what kind of an understanding you come to this evening," said Eric.

* * * * * * *

At 10 o'clock next morning Mr. Brampton arrived at the office in an excellent frame of mind. "I have bought the pearls for $35,000," he said as he hung up his hat. "Those Harringtons are charming people. Of course I was the only guest, as they are still in mourning."

"How did you like the lady of the house?" asked Eric.

"She seemed a very fine woman, but just a trifle common. I thought she spoke with a slightly foreign accent, but I may have been mistaken. She seemed very anxious to get rid of the pearls, said they always brought her bad luck or some such foolishness, and so we concluded the bargain. Mr. Harrington promised to bring them around at noon, and I'll give him the check. By the way, there was a man in the telephone booth as I came through the outer office. Is anything the matter?"

"Yes, the building is being rewired, and for today they have put us on a party wire."

Mr. Brampton nodded, and they proceeded with the business of the day.

Shortly after noon Harrington arrived.

"Good morning," he said. "I trust that we can transact our business quickly, as my wife is waiting in a cab outside, and I am rather pressed for time."

"Certainly; the check is already drawn out," answered the banker. "Ring up the bank, Wilmanton, if you please, and notify them that Mr. Wilfred Norton Harrington is coming round to cash my check."

Eric shut himself into the booth in the outer office, and put the receiver to his ear. He was about to call "Hello!" when he heard a voice, which he recognized as that of Walters, a lawyer in an office below, saying:

"Is this Mr. Harrington?"

"Yes," answered another voice.

"Thought it was your voice, Wilfred. Just come from Frisco?"

"No, my wife and I made a flying trip to Europe on business, and got back a day earlier than we expected."

"Well, you kept every one pretty well in the dark. Have you opened up your new house yet?"

"No; but my valet and my wife's maid have everything ready. I am going up there as soon as I've seen my things through the customs."

At this point Eric broke into the conversation and persuaded Mr. Harrington the second that he had better present himself at the offices of Brampton & Brampton within half an hour, if he valued his property.

Then he rang up another number, and after a short conversation hung up the receiver and returned to the private office.

The others were a little impatient at his delay. "I think you will be received properly at the bank," Eric said politely.

He even went to the extent of fetching the visitor's hat and cane.

Mr. Brampton noticed the alteration in his manner. "I see your opinion of Mr. Harrington has altered now," he said presently.

"I suspend judgment for half an hour," laughed Eric enigmatically.

Some ten minutes later the door flew open and in rushed Harrington No. 2, accompanied by Walters, the lawyer, from downstairs.

In the scene that ensued the principal actors had the stage to themselves, except when the lawyer was called upon, while Eric sat back and enjoyed the excitement.

First the rightful owner of the gems raved at their loss, but was pacified when he found them intact; then the banker realized that he was $35,000 out of pocket and gave way to his feelings accordingly.

"Can't you do something instead of sitting there like a fool?" he shouted. "Telephone to the police to watch every railroad station and dock!"

"I don't think that's necessary," answered Eric quietly. "He and his wife, too, I hope, are already in their cells. Let's get a cab and go there. Perhaps Mr. Harrington can identify them."

In less than an hour Mr. Brampton was once more in his office chair.

"Well, I can see you've pulled this matter off pretty well, my boy," he said, wiping the perspiration from his forehead. "Now tell me how it happened, and what it all means."

"It was simple enough," explained Eric modestly; "the real Harrington had given the pearls to this man Tomkins, his valet, to put in the bank, just before he started for Europe, and also had given him orders to help this French maid to get the house ready for them on their return. Thus they were enabled to pose as Mr. and Mrs. Harrington and invite you to dinner to lull suspicion. I realized this from the conversation over the telephone, and called up the bank to have them arrested when they got there, in order to avoid the fuss of detaining him here till the police arrived."

"Well, you have saved me $35,000," commented Mr. Brampton.

"Would you describe that as a striking instance of business acumen?" questioned Eric timidly.

The banker remembered the conversation of the day before.

"Why, yes—er—no—that is—I give in, my boy. You've won her fairly."

"I've won," murmured the young man triumphantly; "won by a yard—of pearls!"

Sensitive About Names.

Three times the clerk made an ineffectual attempt to spell the name. Finally she gave it up and said, "How do you spell it, please?"

The customer with the polysyllabic name snapped out half the letters of the alphabet. "It's funny you couldn't get that," she added angrily.

"I knew she'd get mad if I asked her how to spell it," sighed the clerk. "They all do. No matter how odd a woman's name, she seems to think that everybody ought to spell it right off. Failure to do so is construed as a downright insult. Evidently no woman likes to answer to a name that stumps everybody else, and it is only when the girls behind the counter fall down over it that she realizes how impossible it really is. Then she takes her spite out on the poor clerks. Since I have learned that peculiarity of shoppers I generally guess at the spelling rather than make them angry."—New York Press.

Gifts at Baptisms.

Gifts to infants at their baptism are of ancient origin. Formerly the sponsors generally offered gilt spoons to the child. These spoons were called apostle spoons because the figures of the twelve apostles were carved at the top of the handles. Rich sponsors gave the complete set of twelve, while for those who were not so opulent four was considered the proper number, and poor sponsors would content themselves with offering one. In the latter case the handle of the spoon generally exhibited the figure of any saint in honor of whom the child received its name. It is in allusion to this custom that when Cranmer professed to be unworthy of being sponsor to the young princess Shakespeare makes the king reply:

Come, come, my lord;
You'd spare your spoons.

The mug or spoon and fork offering of the present day appears as a very debased survival of a really beautiful christening offering.

Clean Spectacles.

Oculists will agree that many persons who wear spectacles, although the lenses may be perfectly adapted to the needs of the eye, suffer much inconvenience and possibly ultimate damage simply through not keeping their glasses clean. Students and writers, lawyers and clergymen, business men and school children who use glasses rarely keep them clean, and from their cloudy and grimy state serious injury results to the eyesight. The glasses should be frequently cleaned with alcohol, which is preferable to water, and either tissue paper or chamois leather is better than the usual handkerchief.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Tumors Conquered Without Operations

Unqualified Success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in Cases of Mrs. Fox and Miss Adams.

Fannie Fox
Miss Luella Adams

One of the greatest triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the conquering of woman's dread enemy, Tumor.

So-called "wandering pains" may come from its early stages, or the presence of danger may be made manifest by excessive menstruation accompanied by unusual pain extending from the ovaries down the groin and thighs.

If you have mysterious pains, if there are indications of inflammation ulceration or displacement, don't wait for time to confirm your fears and go through the horrors of a hospital operation; secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound right away and begin its use and write Mrs. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., for advice.

Read these strong letters from grateful women who have been cured:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:— (First Letter.)

"In looking over your book I see that your medicine cures Tumor of the Uterus. I have been to a doctor and he tells me I have a tumor. I will be more than grateful if you can help me, as I do so dread an operation."—Fannie D. Fox, 7 Chestnut St., Bradford, Pa.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:— (Second Letter.)

"I take the liberty to congratulate you on the success I have had with your wonderful medicine.

"Eighteen months ago my monthlies stopped. Shortly after I felt so badly I submitted to a thorough examination by a physician, and was told that I had a tumor on the uterus and would have to undergo an operation.

"I soon after read one of your advertisements and decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. After taking five bottles as directed, the tumor is entirely gone. I have again been examined by the physician and he says I have no signs of a tumor now. It has also brought my monthlies around once more; and I am entirely well. I shall never be without a bottle of Lydia Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the house."—Fannie D. Fox, Bradford, Pa.

Another Case of Tumor Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"About three years ago I had intense pain in my stomach, with cramps and raging headaches. The doctor prescribed for me, but finding that I did not get any better he examined me and, to my surprise, declared I had a tumor in the uterus

"I felt sure that it meant my death warrant, and was very disheartened. I spent hundreds of dollars in doctoring, but the tumor kept growing, till the doctor said that nothing but an operation would save me. Fortunately I corresponded with my aunt in the New England States, who advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before submitting to an operation, and I at once started taking a regular treatment, finding to my great relief that my general health began to improve, and after three months I noticed that the tumor had reduced in size. I kept on taking the Compound, and in ten months it had entirely disappeared without an operation, and using no medicine but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and words fail to express how grateful I am for the good it has done me."—Miss Luella Adams, Colonnade Hotel, Seattle, Wash.

Such unquestionable testimony proves the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and should give confidence and hope to every sick woman.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all ailing women to write to her at Lynn, Mass., for advice.

The Antalgica
Or Vegetable Pain Reliever

was introduced to the public in 1848, since which time thousands of bottles have been sold each year to an appreciative public, which is a good evidence of its merits. It is adapted to so many ailments it should be in every household, for it cures all kinds of pains both internal and external. For Bronchial affections it is unrivaled by any article in the market. It is a sure cure for Cholera Morbus and Dysentery, if taken in season, also for Coughs. It is an effective remedy for rheumatic affections, stiff joints, swelled limbs, sprains, cramps, tooth ache and many other ills to which the flesh is heir. Try it and it will do you good. It is sold at 25c, 50c and $1 00 per bottle by The Quimby Pharmacy, LeGro's Drug Store and the proprietor,

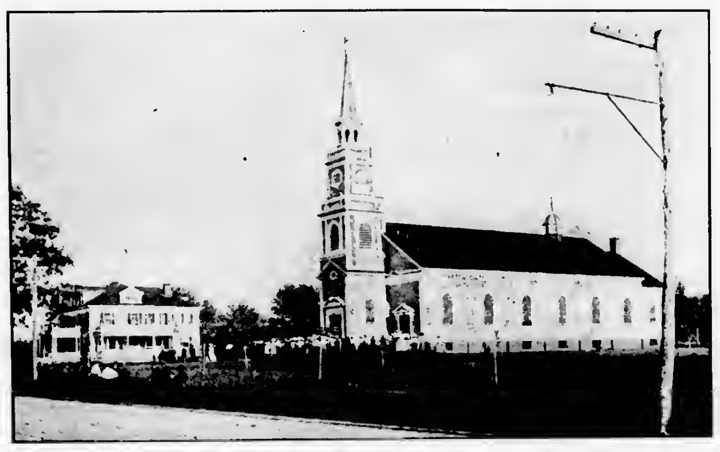
CHURCH IS DEDICATED.

Polish Catholics Now Have Own Place of Worship.

DUE TO EFFORTS OF REV. FR. LENZ.

Corner Stone Laid Sunday and Structure Dedicated With Large Attendance.

The new Polish Catholic church edifice, Saint Peter and Paul, was dedicated at Four Corners Sunday in the presence of about 1500 people, among whom were many out-of-town guests. In the morning shortly before eleven o'clock Bishop Thomas D. Beaven, assisted by Rev. Fr. Sheehan and Rev. Fr. Murphy, consecrated the church and laid the cornerstone. Following this was a pontifical mass under the direction of Rev. Fr. Chalupka, pastor in Webster, assisted by Rev. Fr. Reding, pastor in Northampton, and Rev. Fr Loveton of Ware. Other invited guests were Rt. Rev. Mgr. Harkins of Holyoke, Rev J A. Reardon of Ware, Rev. J V Campeau of Three Rivers, Rev Fr. Griffin of Mittineague, Rev. Fr. Trottier of West Warren, Rev. Fr. Fux of Ware, Rev. Fr Prsybq!ski of Westfield, Rev. Fr. Faza of Housatonic, Rev. Fr. Carey of Palmer and Rev Fr. McKeany of Bondsville. During the ceremony the Polish band of Thorndike played several selections.

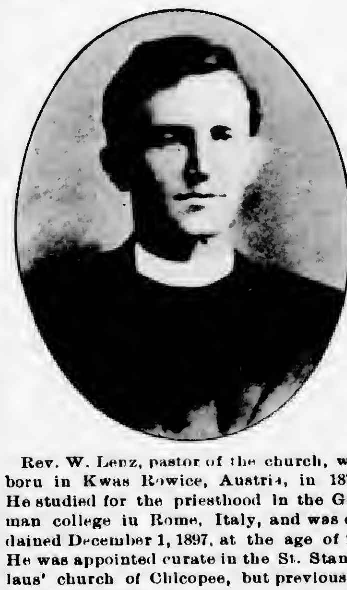


In the corner stone were placed a copper box containing a document upon which was inscribed the names of President Roosevelt, His Holiness Pope Pius X, Bishop Beaven and the selectmen of Palmer; also two newspapers, the "Kuryu Polski" of Westfield and a Springfield Union

Religious societies from Easthampton, Three Rivers and Thorndike were in attendance. In the morning a collection was taken for the purpose of buying a new pulpit, and the sum given was ample, but the exact amount has not yet been announced.

At 3 30 o'clock in the afternoon over 400 people were confirmed by Bishop Beaven, and the church was crowded to the doors

The construction of the new Polish church was begun in July, 1904, and it has been in use several months, although not entirely completed. The new edifice is ideal in its construction, and is a model of beauty. Its completion is due to the perseverance and untiring efforts of its pastor, Rev. W. Lenz The church has a seating capacity of 580 on the main floor and 50 in the gallery, besides the choir. The church is painted outside a rich shade of buff with cream trimmings. The interior is finished in natural wood, and the walls are beautifully frescoed It is heated by steam and lighted by over 100 electric lights arranged in clusters around Corinthian pillars. The donors of the stained glass windows are the following: Rev. W. Lenz, Tow Tozifa, Wencenty A. Roman, Dominik M. Molyka, Dzienwczita, Thorndike; Roza Dzrewezta, Three Rivers; Franceszek R Kosenscey, Z. Jorczak, Tow Stanistaire and Michot Z Molyka.



Rev. W. Lenz, pastor of the church, was born in Kwas Rowice, Austria, in 1873 He studied for the priesthood in the German college in Rome, Italy, and was ordained December 1, 1897, at the age of 24 He was appointed curate in the St. Stanislaus' church of Chicopee, but previous to his appointment as pastor of the new church in Three Rivers he was pastor of a church at Webster for a short time. Fr. Lenz is a man of pleasing personality, being over six feet tall, broad shouldered, and of a soldierly bearing. He is a man of marked ability and has already endeared himself to all with whom he has come in contact, regardless of denomination.

Prior to 1902 the Polish people attended the various Catholic churches in the town. The Polish parish now comprises about 1800

Belchertown Silver Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira E. Damon of Belchertown celebrated the 25th anniversary of their marriage Monday evening, guests being present from Chester, Lawrence, Bellows Falls, Holyoke, Chicopee and Florence. Mr. and Mrs. Damon have resided in Belchertown for the past 20 years. Mrs. Damon was Miss Jennie A. MacManegle of Holyoke, and was married to Ira E. Damon of Springfield, Vt, at Chicopee by Rev. Mr. Bellamy, pastor of the Baptist church. They have six children, Henry F., who lives in Lawrence, Walter in Holyoke, and Almon, Ira, Edna and Fred at home. Mr. and Mrs. Damon were the recipients of many presents, including a substantial purse of money and a clock from local friends and neighbors. During the evening music was furnished by the Orchestral Club, of which Almon Damon is a member, a trombone and piano duet by Edna and Fred Damon and graphophone selections by Mr. Worthington.

CATTLE SHOW WEEK.

Palmer Fair To be Held Next Friday and Saturday.

SEVERAL NEW FEATURES THIS YEAR.

Entries Already Coming In. Full Outline Of What Will be Offered Attendants.

The 53d annual exhibition of the Eastern Hampden Agricultural Society,—or the Palmer Fair as it has come to be known in recent years,—will be held on Friday and Saturday of next week. The usual order will be observed, the cattle being shown on Friday and the horses on Saturday, with dogs and poultry on exhibition both days, as well as the articles in the hall.

The exhibition promises to be of unusual merit this year. Cattle entries are already coming in, and a good showing is assured. Last year the poultry show was one of the largest in this section of New England, comprising nearly 400 entries of pairs, and the total was close to 1000 birds; this year it is expected that there will also be a large number. On this account and because last year more than half of the birds were entered the first day of the fair, the committee has decided that the poultry entries shall close on Monday of next week. Much work has been put into the dog show, and numerous fine animals are entered, with doubtless more to follow. It is on the whole, too early to make an accurate statement regarding the number of entries in the several classes, but the indications are good that they will be numerous and of good quality.

Extensive arrangements have been made to entertain the crowds which it is expected will attend, and to maintain the motto of the society, "Something doing every minute." Friday will be especially devoted to the youngsters, and all school children below the high school grade will be admitted free, as usual. A program of sports has been arranged for them, as follows:

200-yards race, boys under 12.
200-yards race, boys 12 to 15.
Laced-shoe race, boys under 12.
Laced-shoe race, boys 12 to 15.
50-yards race, girls under 12.
50-yards race, girls 12 to 15
Obstacle race, boys under 15.
3-legged race, boys 12 to 15.
Potato race, girls under 15.
Sack race, boys under 12.
Sack race, boys 12 to 15.
Hunting for coins in flour tub, for colored boys,

These sports will be in charge of E. D. Tufts, assisted by Dr J. F Roche, and will start in front of the grandstand at 11 o'clock. First, second and third prizes will be given in each contest.

Especially for the youngsters' amusement has been engaged Prof. Hobbs' dog circus, which will give a number of acts, including a loop-the-loop by the only dog in the world trained to this feat. The little fellow climbs a ladder and takes his place in a small car, which is then slid down a steep incline and makes a complete loop in the air before coming to rest again. This is not the only attraction, for there will be a stage performance of numerous acts.

The high school relay race will take place on Friday, with a banner for the winning team and solid gold medals for the members. There will also be a relay race between the ninth grades of Palmer, Thorndike and Monson, this having been arranged within a few days.

The Palmer schools will close all day Friday for the fair, and many of the other schools in this section are also to close that day.

On Saturday will be held a high school athletic meet, with these events:

40-yards dash.
100-yards dash.
220-yards dash.
440-yards dash.
Half-mile run.
Mile run.
Running high jump
Running broad jump.
Hop, step and jump.
Pole vault.

Gold first and silver second prize medals will be given in each event.

A new feature this year will be a tug of war between teams from various societies and fraternities in this section.

Lovers of racing will be glad to know that seven speed contests are planned, 2 17 and 2 28 classes, with a local trotter race, for Friday; and 2.21, 2 30 and free-for-all classes Saturday, with a local race for pacers.

Among the attractions engaged are the famous Valding Brothers, performers on the revolving trapeze; Diette & Morin, comedy acrobats whose work never fails to create a laugh; Sereno, an apparently boneless member of the human family; and the Sault Brothers, a couple of youngsters who give a mighty clever boxing exhibition. These, and Hobbs' dog circus, will give exhibitions Friday afternoon, and twice on Saturday, both forenoon and afternoon.

Music will be furnished both days by the Thorndike band, which will give concerts both forenoon and afternoon.

Along the Midway there will be a goodly number of attractions, as many have already engaged ground space.

Taken all in all, the Palmer Fair of 1905 gives promise of being one which will well repay visitors for their time, and provide them a variety of entertainment for the last two days of next week.

50 YEARS OF MATRIMONY.

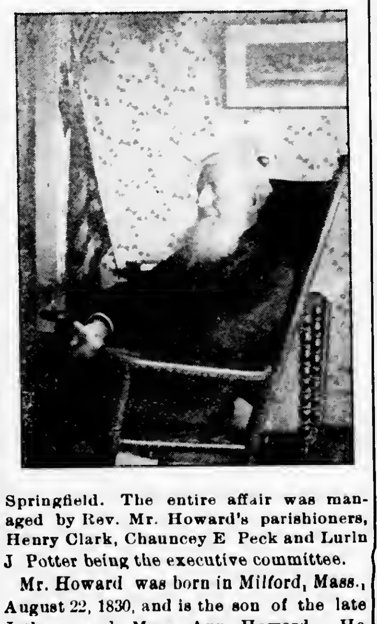
Wilbraham Couple Celebrate Golden Wedding.

REV. AND MRS. MARTIN S. HOWARD.

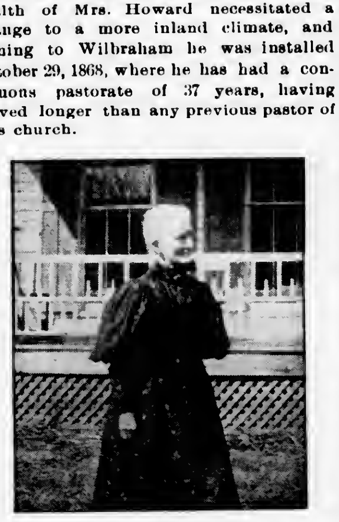
Given Reception by Townspeople. Has Been Church's Pastor 37 Years.

Rev. and Mrs. Martin S Howard of Wilbraham celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage Tuesday, the occasion being a most pleasant one. A reception was held from 2 to 5 in the afternoon in the chapel of the First Congregational church, of which Mr. Howard has been pastor for the past 37 years, and about 150 friends gathered to offer their congratulations.

The chapel was prettily decorated, the guests being received under an arch of laurel and golden-rod, on which were the dates September 26, 1855-1905 A bell of golden-rod was suspended from the arch, under which Mr. and Mrs. Howard stood. They were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. Howard of Amherst Agricultural College and by the reception committee, Mr. and Mrs. C. P Bolles, Mr and Mrs. C. L. Hubbard and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bliss. Prayer was offered by Principal W. R Newhall of Wesleyan Academy, and an original poem, "After Fifty Years," was read by Chauncey E Peck. An address of congratulation, "Fifty Years," was made by Charles C. Beebe, who presented Mr. and Mrs. Howard with $100 in gold. Letters of congratulation were read by Henry Clark. Ice cream, cake and coffee were served, and the rest of the afternoon was spent socially. The guests registered their names in a large book, and included a number from North Wilbraham, Ludlow, Hampden, Amherst, Longmeadow and Springfield. The entire affair was managed by Rev. Mr. Howard's parishioners, Henry Clark, Chauncey E Peck and Lurin J Potter being the executive committee.



Mr. Howard was born in Milford, Mass., August 22, 1830, and is the son of the late Jotham and Mary Ann Howard. He joined the church in Hopedale at the early age of fifteen, fitted for college at Mt. Hollis Seminary, Holliston, Mass., and graduated from Amherst in the class of '55. After leaving college Mr Howard taught for a time in South Dennis, Mass., and Sept. 26, 1855, married Miss Mary Adeline Carlton of Holliston. He was ordained as pastor of the Congregational church of West Yarmouth, Mass., November 20, 1856 After a successful pastorate of about three years he was installed over the Congregational church in South Dartmouth May 19, 1859. After four years' service in this field he became pastor of the Groveland Congregational church November 29, 1864, which position he retained till the feeble health of Mrs. Howard necessitated a change to a more inland climate, and coming to Wilbraham he was installed October 29, 1868, where he has had a continuous pastorate of 37 years, having served longer than any previous pastor of this church.



Mrs. Howard was born in Hopkinton, and was the daughter of Horatio and Lucinda Carlton of Holliston. She was educated in Mt. Hollis seminary, after which she taught for several years. Five children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Howard, three of whom are now living, Mary Elizabeth, supervisor of music in Wilbraham, Longmeadow, Hampden, Ludlow public schools; Edwin Carlton, principal of a grammar school in Dedham, and Samuel Francis, teacher of chemistry in Amherst state college.

Mr. Howard has published a large number of discourses, addresses, orations and poems, and has written largely for the public press. He was for many years correspondent for "The Pacific," a newspaper published in San Francisco. He has published a small volume entitled "Dawn and Eventide." Mr. Howard has always taken a deep interest in town affairs, serving for a time on the school board and fifty or sixty terms on the examining board of Wesleyan Academy. In all moral and social movements Mr. Howard has kept himself abreast with the times, being identified with all organizations tending to elevate the tone of the communities where he has had his field of labor, and as a member of temperance societies and similar unions has been ever active in such lines of work whenever opportunity has offered. Both Mr. and Mrs. Howard are held in the highest esteem by not only their parishioners but by people of all denominations.

Farm Buildings Burned.

The buildings on the farm occupied by Aimee Chabot in Brimfield, about three miles from Palmer, were burned Saturday morning. The fire started in the barn from an unknown cause, and the two barns and house were totally destroyed. Some of the furniture in the house was saved, but the contents of the barns were lost, including five hogs. The loss is estimated at about $3000, partly covered by insurance.

PALMER NEWS.

FIFTEEN-FOURTEEN-THIRTEEN.

A Tale of Two Travelers and the Springfield Street Railway.

A Palmer professional man and a county official with a residence in Monson were the victims of a fifteen-fourteen-thirteen shuffle on the Springfield street railway one evening recently which permitted them to spend an hour contemplating the setting sun and the beauties of Ludlow from the top of the fence near the spot where the cars meet in Ludlow. The professional man had an engagement at his office for 7 o'clock; the Monson man had an empty stomach and dreams of a hot supper on his arrival home. They took the six o'clock car from Springfield and settled down to an exchange of experiences in numerous directions. Numerous stops were made along State street hill and further east, so that nothing was suspected when the car delayed a little longer than usual, until suddenly it began a crawfish movement and then a twisting which finally landed it on the other track while a car with two green lights on the corner and "Palmer" in big letters on the sign on the dash slid by at express speed without even a wink. The two Eastern Hampdenites had taken the extra car which is put on in Springfield at the rush hours of the evening, and there was no suggestion of the conductor that passengers for points beyond Ludlow would do well to make a change when it sidetracked to let the regular go by because of the antiquated equipment of the extra and its failure to make time. The conductor was very polite however, offering to carry the through passengers back to Indian Orchard to wait until the next car to Palmer; but they considered that the top of the Ludlow fence was just as soft as any similar spot in the Orchard, and roosted and smoked and cussed and thought things until the arrival of the car which landed them in Palmer at 8 o'clock. They are prone to remark when the manner of their undoing is mentioned, and their language is plain—but unprintable.

Death of Miss Jessie Hyde.

Friends of Miss Jessie L. Hyde, a former teacher in the Palmer high school, will be pained to learn of her death at her home in Southbridge Monday morning, from hemorrhage of the lungs. Miss Hyde had been in ill health for about a year, but was able to be about all the time and took a carriage ride with her sister the day before her death. She retired Sunday night feeling the same as usual apparently, but aroused the family about 2 o'clock, and a physician was summoned, but she died soon after.

Miss Hyde was born in Southbridge August 10, 1875. She attended the public schools and graduated from the high school. She entered Smith College in 1894, and was graduated in 1898, with high honors. She then took a position as assistant teacher at Washington County Academy, East Machias, Me., and was there two years, after which she took a position in Gardner Academy. In 1901 she came to the Palmer high school, where she remained three years, making many friends in town. In the summer of 1904 she became afflicted with a throat trouble and went to her home in Southbridge, and had been there since.

Miss Hyde is survived by her parents and two sisters, Mrs. Dudley H. Clarke and Miss Alice E. Hyde of Southbridge. The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon from the house.

Brimfield Grants Franchise.

The railroad commissioners gave a hearing yesterday morning on the petition of the Springfield and Eastern street railway company for permission to extend its tracks into the town of Brimfield, as under the law, the selectmen could not approve the location unless the commissioners had first approved the extension of the road into the town.

Ex-Senator T. W. Kenefick was counsel for the company and opposition was made by Fred C. Hinds in behalf of the Hartford and Worcester, who have previously been granted a location in Brimfield. Mr. Kenefick stated that the Springfield and Eastern company wished to build a line from Monson, just south of the Palmer line, through Brimfield to the Sturbridge line. Mr. Hinds stated that the Hartford and Worcester grant of location in the town does not expire till November, 1906, and that the construction of the line in Brimfield would begin next year. He was afraid that the Springfield and Eastern wanted locations on the same streets as his company, and this would make trouble, as the highway is only 50 feet wide. Mr. Kenefick admitted that the two tracks would have to be laid on the same highway, but as it is 66 feet wide, the track could be put on the other side of the road from the Hartford and Worcester track, or it could be put on private land. Selectman Charles Tarbell of Brimfield was present and said that the town meeting had heard the matter and gave its vote unanimously for the Springfield and Eastern after the side of the Hartford and Worcester company had been given to the voters.

At the close of the hearing the commissioners stated that the petition would be granted in order that the Brimfield selectmen could proceed.

Freight Wreck at Warren.

A broken journal on a freight train caused a wreck at Warren early this morning which obstructed both tracks for about two hours. The 7.42 accommodation train from the east was about 30 minutes late in reaching Palmer. No one was hurt in the wreck, the only damage being to the rolling stock and track.

Electric Schedule for the Fair.

The street railway will operate its usual holiday schedule for the Palmer Fair next Friday and Saturday. Cars will run on half hour time on all lines after 8 o'clock in the morning of both days, with cars from Three Rivers and Bondsville direct to Palmer.

No Accommodations for Tramps.

The lowering temperature o' nights has begun to drive the hoboes to something beside the shade of a tree for a night covering, and the first installment drifted into Palmer Tuesday night. There were four of them, William Powers, Peter Sullivan, George Smith and John Roberts. They were taken before the district court on Wednesday morning and sentenced to 30 days each in the house of correction for vagrancy. Under the new law towns which care for tramps are obliged to furnish them with baths, clean nightshirts and other luxurious surroundings which that class is not accustomed to, and without these accommodations towns have no right to treat these traveling gentry as tramps. Palmer has not yet gone into the hotel business on any such scale, and hereafter all who apply for lodgings at the town expense will be treated as vagrants and arraigned as such in court the next morning.

Historical Society to Meet.

The October meeting of the Palmer Historical Society will be held next Tuesday evening at half past seven in the main room of the high school building. At this meeting Mr. Cross, the president, will give an informal account of his visit to Richmond and vicinity during the months of June and July, and will illustrate his account with blackboard maps and relics gathered from the battlefields which he visited. The change in the place of holding this meeting is made in order that more ample seating accommodations may be provided for those who are not members of the society but may wish to attend. Members of L. L. Merrick post, G. A. R., the Woman's Relief Corps, and C. W. Cross camp, Sons of Veterans, together with the members and friends of the historical society, are cordially invited to be present at this, the first meeting of the current year.

Descendants of Edward Allen of Nantucket, 1690—1905.

The above is the title of a book by Orrin Peer Allen of Palmer, just issued from the Journal press. It is an octavo of 123 pages, with 24 illustrations and a full index of about 1800 names. The book is the result of labor during the spare moments of the past ten years. The introduction gives the origin of the Allen name, with a brief account of the long line of Alan dukes of Brittany, and the Allen families in England and Scotland, followed by the genealogy of the family in this country. The book will be found valuable and full of interest to all who bear the Allen name. The work has been well patronized by the descendants of Edward, as well as by the largest libraries and historical societies of the country, and has been received with many expressions of commendation.

Fenner—Allen.

Miss Josephine M., daughter of J. C. Fenner of South Main street, and Frank N. Allen were married at 6.30 Saturday evening at the home of the groom's father, H. M. Allen, on Foster avenue. Only relatives and intimate friends were present, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. W. A. Moore. Miss Elsie Wright of Amherst was maid of honor, and Walter Fenner, brother of the bride, was best man. The bride wore a traveling gown of blue broadcloth. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's father on South Main street, after which Mr. and Mrs. Allen took the 9.27 train for the east, for a short visit with friends in Brookfield and Spencer. The reservoir of the Palmer Water Company does not meet the expectations of that company. It does not fill up as was expected, and though there is an abundant supply of water for domestic purposes at present, something must be done to increase the quantity before cold weather sets in. Among other propositions the taking of water from Maloney's pond is mentioned, running a pipe from that to the reservoir, thus keeping both continually full.

An unpleasant sight on Main street Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday forenoon was an elderly man, well dressed and wearing a silk hat, in an advanced state of intoxication. His apparent respectability and good breeding were in marked contrast to the condition into which he had lapsed.

Four Brimfield coon hunters were brought into the district court Monday morning on a charge of drunkenness. They were found guilty and paid a fine of $5 each. The case of one other "drunk" was continued until Nov. 6. John Olsen, for drunkenness, was fined $6, but was unable to pay and was committed.

Judge Kenefick has rendered his decision in two civil cases which were tried some time ago. In the case of Frank McGuire against Joseph Birskie, judgment was found for the plaintiff in the sum of $275. In the case of William Foley against Dr. R. E. Camfill, judgment was for the plaintiff in the sum of $44.67.

The town farm building committee met Monday evening and accepted the plans for the barn, arranged the specifications for the building, and arranged for receiving bids, it being voted that only tax payers of the town should be eligible to bid. The town will furnish all the material, of every description, and the bids will be only for doing the work.

The racing spirit is ripe among the boys of the various school grades just now, and the ninth grade of the Palmer and Thorndike grammar schools have arranged for a relay race of a mile to be run at the Palmer fair next Friday. The Monson ninth grade heard of the proposition and challenged the Palmer boys to let them contest, which they have agreed to. Earl Cordner is captain of the Palmer team.

Miss Hazel Huntley of Springfield, formerly of Palmer, and a graduate of Mt. Holyoke College in the class of 1905, has been appointed resident assistant vocal instructor at the college, and she will be the alto soloist for the Sunday morning service at the chapel, which is an innovation at the college. Miss Huntley has an excellent contralto voice, and is well known in musical circles in Springfield.

Sunday will be observed as "Rally Day" by the Congregational Sunday school with special services. Mr. Hamilton S. Conant, general secretary of the Massachusetts Sunday School Association, will speak at 10.45 in the morning on "Religious Education Through the Bible School," and in the evening at 7 on "Enlarging the Bible School Field." All are cordially invited to attend either or both services, especially the fathers and mothers of the Sunday school scholars.

Auto drivers who are accustomed to take street corners at as high a speed as possible find trouble in negotiating the double turn at the corner of Church and Pleasant and School streets, on the way to Worcester. The distance between the two turns is only about 50 feet, and after swinging from Church into Pleasant street at high speed the turn into School street comes too soon to be undertaken, hence all of this class of drivers proceed along Pleasant to Pearl street before they cross over to Park and on to Worcester.

The first meeting of the season of the Palmer Woman's Club will be held next Friday at the residence of Miss Etta Truesdell on North Main street. Miss O. M. E. Rowe of Worcester will speak on "Relative Values." Those who heard Miss Rowe last year will recall her lecture with pleasure. Anyone contemplating membership in the club this year should hand her application for membership to the secretary, Mrs. Ezekiel, or Miss Robinson at the library, so that they may have the pleasure of the first lecture of the club season. Club members will please note the change in the place of meeting.

The coming of the English Grand Opera Co. to Springfield Oct. 20—21, giving three performances, is looked for with great delight, as it is the greatest company in the country and visits the large cities only. The company includes 150 people, orchestra of 50 men, three conductors and such artists as Gertrude Rennyson and Margaret Crawford, Joseph Sheehan, William Wegener, Marion Ivell, Winifred Goff, Rita Newman. With such an organization of artists the productions can only be artistic, and this is why Henry W. Savage's English Grand Opera Co. plays to crowded houses everywhere they go.

There will be a match game of golf to-morrow afternoon between the Ware Golf Club and the Bondsville Country Club on the home links.

The King's Daughters' Circle held a meeting last Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Warren Fisherdick. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George Gunn.

Dr. H. A. Smith and O. A. Parent have returned from their western trip and both report a very enjoyable trip. Although they both went on the G. A. R. excursion they did not see much of each other as Dr. Smith spent some of his time in Kansas visiting his sister, while Mr. Parent went as far as Spokane and Seattle, Wash.

At the quarterly conference of the M. E. church, held last Thursday evening after the prayer meeting, E. E Ryther, Mrs. Warren Fisherdick and C. D. Holden were elected a committee to see about the best way of spending the $50 which was recently given to the church by the King's Daughters' Circle, for the purpose of making repairs.

C. L. Holden & Sons' store was closed all day Wednesday in order to finish the inventory preparatory to the change in the firm. C. L. Holden will retire from business, L. R. Holden will carry on the shoe, underwear and hosiery departments, and C. D. Holden will carry on the grocery, dry goods, clothing, hardware, crockery and carpet departments.

Always liberal to Churches.

Every church will be given a liberal quantity of L. & M. paint. Call for it.

4 gallons Longman & Martinez L & M. Paint mixed with three gallons linseed oil, will paint a house.

W. B. Barr, Charleston, W. Va., writes, "Painted Frankenburg block with L. & M., stands out as though varnished."

Wears and covers like gold.

Don't pay $1.50 a gallon for linseed oil, which you do in ready-for-use paint.

Buy oil fresh from the barrel at 60 cents per gallon and mix it with L & M.

It makes paint cost about $1.20 per gallon. Sold by Asahel Wheeler Co., Boston; W. N Flynt & Sons, Monson; John Wilson, Three Rivers; F. A. Gurney, Wilbraham; W. E. Stone & Son, Palmer.

Monson News.

WILL GET FRANCHISE.

Springfield and Eastern Road Will Build Monson Extension.

The adjourned meeting on the hearing of the Springfield and Eastern street railway's petition for a franchise through Monson to Brimfield was held in Memorial Hall in Monson Monday night at 8 o'clock, and the attendance was even larger than at the meeting a week previous, probably 400 voters being present.

The meeting was called to order by Selectman McCray, who announced that the company had expressed a disposition to build as far as the store of H. Howe & Co. There were a number of speakers, but the petition for the franchise to Brimfield was entirely ignored, the discussion being confined to the extension to the Wales road. Harrison Howe could not understand why the company was willing to build part way and not the whole. Judge Kenefick, counsel for the road, explained the company's position in regard to extra power required, and stated it would require additional feed wires, which would mean heavy expense. E. R. Sisson thought that the building of the road to the corner store would not go far toward the accommodation of the people south of the store, and stated that he thought at least 25 people more than at present would use the line daily if it were extended to the Wales road.

Samuel Closson scored the road for the accommodations given the public in Monson, and gave illustrations of how the cars were overcrowded. Edward D Cushman spoke in favor of the desired extension, and thought in order to keep in good faith with the public here the company should build as asked to; until it did this he would not be in favor of granting them further privileges. Wilson M. Tucker believed the company should build the full extension and hoped to see others built in town, and that the way would be made clear to grant the franchise petitioned for.

Thomas J. Sault gave some valuable information in regard to building bridges and methods of strengthening these now in use. D. B. Needham made a motion that the proposition of the company be not accepted, and a rising vote was taken, about one-half the voters present rising and the other half not voting either way. The vote was declared unanimous. Chairman McCray stated that this action of the voters as he understood it amounted to instructing the selectmen not to grant the petition unless the extension to the Wales road was built.

Representative Norcross was called upon to speak. He thought it rather an inopportune time to be called on, after a vote had been taken negative to the desires of the company, but gave a little outline of the granting of the original franchise and the building of the road, and thought that Monson people ought to be grateful that a road was ever built in the town, even as far as the Reynolds bridge. The road was constructed while Mr. Norcross was chairman of the board of selectmen, and he spent a great deal of time in looking after the work. However, he thought it would be a wise plan for this extension to be built, and believed that some time this company would be looking for a franchise to build to Stafford, Ct. He thought the company planned to build this extension when the road was stopped at the Reynolds bridge, but it was given up for various reasons, such as the delay in securing a bridge, etc., and that since that time the company believed it would not be a paying investment.

At the close of this meeting the selectmen conferred with General Manager Purinton and the road's counsel, Judge Thomas W. Kenefick, and they agreed to build the line to the Wales road as desired, provided they could get the franchise through Brimfield to Fiskdale. Since that time the franchise has been drawn up, and given to the railroad company under an agreement to build to the Wales road provided the franchises are sanctioned by the railroad commissioners, a hearing on which was held in Boston yesterday. It is understood that the company proposes to build both to Brimfield and the extension to the Wales road at once, if the hearing in Boston is favorable.

Both the selectmen and the railroad company are agreed that it will be better for both parties to have a separate bridge, in crossing the stream at the Reynolds bridge.

Academy Notes.

Maguire, '07, has left school.

Miss Nye, '06, has been kept away from school this week because of illness.

The Philo meeting, postponed from last week, will be held this evening at 7.

The girls of '07 have voted to carry banners to the relay race at Palmer next Friday. It is hoped that the other classes will decide to follow their example.

The senior class has chosen these officers for the present term: President, Howard Page; vice president, Miss Pendergast; secretary, Miss Hannigan; treasurer, Ralph Purinton.

The athletic association has chosen these managers of the different teams for the season: Relay track team, W. E. Hynes; football team, H. E. Page; basketball team, A. H. Griggs. Howard Page has been elected captain of the track team, to succeed James Faulkner, who has left the school.

The relay team is fast getting into condition, and the prospects for a winning team also seem bright. The candidates themselves seem quite confident of victory. The squad has been decreased daily, until the men from whom the team will be chosen are Page, Hynes, Rourke, Miller and Norcross.

Mrs. F. E. Cady and daughter have returned from a several weeks' visit with relatives in Chicopee.

Ernest L. Johnson has resigned his position here and accepted one in a florist's establishment in Springfield.

The registrars of voters will meet in Memorial Hall on the evenings of Oct. 18, 24 and 28 at the usual hours.

The subject of the sermon at the Congregational church Sunday morning will be "A Christian's Inheritance."

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Norcross of North Main street left yesterday for a visit with relatives at Utica, N. Y.

Miss Blanche Cushman, Miss Hattie Cushman and Mrs. S. F. Cushman spent a few days in Boston this week.

The usual large number of Monson people enjoyed the stockholders' ride to Boston Tuesday and Wednesday.

Dwight and George Ellis have gone to Lowell, where they will take a course of study in the Lowell Textile School.

Mrs. Ella King is moving from H. N. Butler's house on Harrison avenue to H. C. Norcross' house on Cushman street.

Mrs. Charles S. Stiles and Miss Nellie Mayhew of Dorchester, former residents of this town, visited friends here this week.

Allen J. Buffington has resigned his position as treasurer of the Monson Social Club and Ernest Reese has been elected in his place.

Miss Agnes Kelly of Washington will give a free health lecture to women in the Methodist church next Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

A Sunday school and preaching service will be held at the Silver Street chapel Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. N. M. Pratt will preach.

Contractor Nelligan of Ware is putting in the new concrete walks about Hammond Place, which adds greatly to the appearance of the grounds.

The work on the macadam road on South Main street is progressing rapidly and will be pushed as fast as possible until the appropriation is exhausted.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Merchant and son Allen have returned to their home at Providence, R. I., after spending several days with C. L. Peck and family on Main street.

A social dance will be held at the Quaboag Country clubhouse next Tuesday night. All members of the club in Palmer and Monson who dance are requested to attend.

The Ladies' Circle of the Universalist church will hold a regular meeting with Mrs. W. L. Ricketts next Thursday afternoon at 2 30 o'clock, and a large attendance is desired.

George L. Fuller has his new green house ready to stock, and has received a stock of plants and small ferns for centre pieces. He has just received his first fall shipment of carnations and roses.

The many friends of Dr. C. W. Jackson will be pleased to know that he is improving so rapidly that he will leave the hospital Oct. 4, and after recuperating a few days will return to Monson.

M. G. Gavin & Co. held their opening of fall and winter millinery to-day, and it will be continued through to-morrow. They are also showing a good assortment of neckwear, belts and gloves.

Extensive alterations are being made at the Universalist parsonage. A portion of the old building in the rear is being torn down and will be rebuilt. A bathroom will also be installed in the new part.

William C. Moulton has opened his blacksmith shop and automobile repair shop on the Palmer road. J. B Elbridge, a well-known blacksmith of this place, has taken a position with Mr. Moulton.

There are on exhibition in the store of H. Howe at South Monson, two squashes raised by Herbert Blodgett, the larger of which measures 61 inches—over five feet—in circumference, and weighs 86 pounds.

The mothers' and teachers' club will meet in the chapel of the Congregational church next Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The subject will be "Children spending money" and will be in charge of Mrs. George L. Cushman.

The Ladies' Circle of the Universalist church have elected the following officers: President, Mrs. H. F. Miller; vice president, Mrs. Harry Bradway; secretary, Mrs. Lillian Chapin; treasurer, Mrs. W. L. Ricketts; directresses, Mrs. W. J Ricketts, Mrs. C. R. Buffington and Mrs. Moore: flower committee, Mrs. C. R. Buffington. The women will give a hash supper in the church vestry Tuesday evening, Oct. 10th.

A small hand hose reel has been placed in the Heimann & Lichten straw factory, which has been supplied by the board of engineers with 300 feet of hose. The carriage is of a size which will allow its being drawn about in the interior of the factory, and yet is strong enough to be of service at fires elsewhere. It will also be convenient for the firemen to get this hose for any fire in that locality instead of going to the engine houses, which are some distance away. Several of the firemen are employed in this factory, which should also be an advantage, in case fire should start in any of the buildings during the working hours.

BELCHERTOWN.

The Williams place on New street will be sold October 6.

Mrs. F. D. Walker and son Dudley have been guests of relatives in Springfield.

Rev. J. B. Adkins will exchange pulpits with Rev. R. C. Bell of Granby Sunday.

Misses Ida L. Shaw and Julia B. Smith have secured positions as teachers in Wells, Me.

Misses Ella Stebbins, Grace and Edith Towne will represent the Congregational church at the Sunday school convention at Salem next week.

WALES.

Special inducements are made to school children to attend the Palmer fair and the children should turn out in full force. Palmer always has a good fair and it merits the attendance of Wales people.

John N. Bissell, 78, died at his home on the Stafford road last Saturday of heart disease. He had lived in Wales many years and was highly respected. He was a carpenter and builder by trade and had been employed by nearly every family in town. He leaves a widow, one son, Ernest Bissell of Springfield, and one daughter, Mrs. Ida Walbridge of Wales.

Miss Clara Moulton of Brimfield called on friends in town Wednesday.

Mrs. E. C. Switzer and family have moved to Westford, Ct.

Next week is the Stafford fair and the mill will shut down the second day to give the operatives an opportunity to attend.

WARE.

Runaway Boys.

Two boys, giving their names as Charles and Harry Clark of Worcester, about 13 and 10 years of age, came to Ware Wednesday evening and asked for supper and lodging at the home of James Reilly. Supper was given them, and Mr Reilly then informed the overseers of poor. Mr. Casey, chairman of the board, met the boys at the Mansion House. They told him they had been on a visit in Windsor Locks, Ct., and were returning home when they lost what money they had, about $3, in Palmer. They claimed to have walked from there to Ware, and that they had people in Worcester. While Mr. Casey was telephoning to Worcester in an effort to verify the story, the boys went to the basement and succeeded in finding an exit in the rear. It was later learned that they spent the night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William McBride on East street, and were given money enough to go to Spencer, where they could walk to Worcester. As Mr. Casey could gain no satisfactory information by telephoning to Worcester, it is thought that the boys ran away from home, and did not give a truthful account of their travels.

More Diphtheria in Town.

Two cases of diphtheria in the family of Charles Lemaitre, druggist, on South street, were reported to the board of health Tuesday. The house has been quarantined, and the South-street school, where one of the children attended, was fumigated. Yesterday the house of Philias Berthiaume on Williams street was quarantined, as Dr. William Pariseau reported two girls, aged 10 and 6, to be sick with the disease, though not seriously. Neither one had been in school for over a week, which somewhat allays the fear of a general outbreak among the children in the old South-street building. The home of William Thrasher of West street was quarantined yesterday by the board of health on suspicion that there was a case of diphtheria in the house. The youngest boy, Chester, is thought to have the disease. The boy attended the 3d grade of the South-street school.

Francis Thibeault.

Francis Thibeault, 30, died at his home on Storrs street last Friday after a six-months' illness with tuberculosis. Mr. Thibeault was born in Champlain, N. Y., and had lived in Worcester and Springfield before moving to Ware. He enlisted in Boston at the time of the Spanish War, serving three years in the army, a part of the time in the Philippines, where it is thought he contracted the disease which caused his death. The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at 2 in Mt. Carmel church, Rev. J. T. Sheehan officiating. The bearers were Otis Holden, Frank H. Rood of the J. W. Lawton post, William N. Newcomb, Edward T. Hampton, Frank Hanum and Herbert Bates, members of the Sons of Veterans. About 150 members of Ware council of Artisans attended in a body. Burial was in Mt. Carmel cemetery.

Miss May Gleason.

Miss May Gleason, 22, died at the home of her father, Thomas C. Gleason, on Eddy street Saturday morning, after a long illness of tuberculosis. Her mother died ten years ago and since then she had kept house most of the time. Besides her father, she leaves five brothers, John, Thomas, Joseph, William and Francis, all living at home. The funeral was held Monday morning in All Saints' church, Rev. J. Riordan officiating at the high mass. The members of the auxiliary of the Hibernians attended in a body. During the services a solo was sung by Miss Nellie G. Carroll. The bearers were John English, John Donaldson, Michael Hurley, Robert Harrington, Bernard J. McCarry, of Ware and Frank Henry of Westboro. Burial was in St. William's cemetery.

Labossiere—Fedette.

Miss Luzia Labossiere and Aime L. Fedette of Springfield were married in All Saints' church Wednesday morning by Rev. John H. Murphy. The bride was attended by Miss Dubreuil of Worcester and the groom by his brother, Frank. A reception was held at the home of the bride on Morse avenue after the ceremony, which was largely attended by friends and relatives. The bride has been in the store of A. Bryson & Co. for a long time, and the groom is a printer, employed in Holyoke. After a wedding trip in New York Mr. and Mrs. Fedette will reside in Holyoke.

Rev. and Mrs. O. J. Fairfield and Mrs. James Edmonds are attending the meetings of the biennial convention of Unitarians in Atlantic City.

The annual parade and inspection of the fire department will be held to-morrow afternoon, and in the evening the usual dance will be held in the town hall.

The body of Miss Julia Lyon, who died in Springfield, was taken to Ware Saturday morning, a funeral service being held in All Saints' church. Miss Lyon was an aunt of Mrs. Thomas Haley and Mrs. Andrew Campion.

The Real Love Letters of a Real Woman.

The Boston Journal has just begun the publication of one of the most unique and interesting series of letters that have ever appeared in print. The title of the series, "The Real Love Letters of a Real Woman," is a very accurate index to the collection of missives which passed between a Boston woman and a man of Maine. They are the real letters of a real woman written to a man to whom she wished to be married, but to whom her family objected. The letters cover a period of several years, during which the man and woman were separated, but always with the intent of eventually becoming man and wife.

Without being over-sentimental they have sufficient of the dramatic side to make them quite the best reading of the year, and in their combination of pathos, sentiment and wit, they tell the story of a romance entirely unusual and wonderfully interesting.

The Journal has acquired the exclusive right of publication and they will be found in no other paper.

We Open the Fall Season with Magnificent Stocks of the World's Best Merchandise.

In every department complete lines are ready. Stocks are more extensive and complete than any ever before assembled in any store between New York and Boston. Not only have larger and better assortments been provided, but wherever betterment was possible in quality or style, it has been brought about. At the same time by taking advantage of every opportunity that superior buying facilities bring us we are enabled to offer greater values than ever—values positively unapproached elsewhere.

All the Best Fashions in Women's Autumn and Winter Garments.

In making our selections for the present season we examined the lines brought out by many makers. Only those garments which measured up to the highest standards were chosen. Garments that fit well and look well—that are made from the best of materials in the most approved manner known to the tailor's art. We have gathered a superb assortment—a diversity of styles that will enable the most fastidious to choose with satisfaction. And while giving the most painstaking attention to quality, style and assortments, we have provided values that will stand without equal.

Pyrography

Pyrography as a fad is said to have had its day. Formerly it was high priced and extreme in design. To-day Pyrography as an art of beauty and instruction has increased three fold. Great care is taken in the matter of designs. Schools are taking it up. Nothing surpasses it in training the eye and hand. At the Art Embroidery department are shown many new designs. Outfits at 98c and hundreds of pieces at 25c make the art of Pyrography inexpensive to learn.

The New Queen Quality Shoe Fashions

Originality in design is one of the features of Queen Quality Shoes which keep them at the front every season and give them the exclusiveness so much desired. While beauty of design and finish is sought by every means, it is never allowed to interfere with the perfection of fit, durability of materials and excellence of workmanship which are the chief requisites of good footwear.

The "College Boots" brought out in the Queen Quality Custom Grade are the one distinct hit of the present season. These are shown in a superb variety of lasts and patterns, with new heel and edge effects, which with their low tops produce a stunningly smart effect. They are particularly desirable in the new Gun Metal Calf. This is a superior leather in every way—soft, comfortable, polishes beautifully, does not scuff or peel, looks well until worn out and possesses exceptional wearing quality. . . . Queen Quality Boots, $3 Custom Grade, $3.50

DR. KENNEDY'S FAVORITE REMEDY

Breaks no Hearts, Excuses no Crimes.

Dr. David Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is not a disguised enemy of the human race; where it cannot help, it does not harm. It is composed of vegetable ingredients and does not heat or inflame the blood but cools and purifies it. In all cases of Kidney troubles, Liver complaints, Constipation of the Bowels, and the delicate derangements which afflict women, the action of Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY is beyond praise. Thousands of grateful people voluntarily testify to this, in letters to Dr. Kennedy; and with a warmth and fullness of words which mere business certificates never possess. It makes no drunkards—excuses no crimes—breaks no hearts. In its coming there is hope, and in its wings there is healing. We challenge a trial and are confident of the result. Your druggist has it. ONE DOLLAR a Bottle. Bear in mind the name and address: Dr. David KENNEDY, Rondout, New York.

Young Hopeful—"Father, what is a 'traitor in politics'? This paper says Congressman Jawweary is one." Veteran Politician—"A traitor is a man who leaves our party and goes over to the other one." Young Hopeful—"Well, then, what is a man who leaves the other party and comes over to ours?" Veteran Politician—"A convert, my son."—Boston Transcript.

"John Henry," said the patient wife, "if I ever marry again I shall marry a Russian." "Well, what's the trouble now?" John Henry wanted to know. "When you came in last night," explained the patient wife, "you went to bed with your hat and shoes on, and you hung your coat on the gas fixture and carefully placed your necktie and watch under the bed. A Russian can at least retire in good order."

The bridal wreath is usually formed of myrtle branches in Germany; it is made of orange blossoms in France as well as our own country; in Italy and the French cantons of Switzerland it is of white roses; in Spain the flowers of which it is composed are red roses and pinks; in the islands of Greece vine leaves serve the purpose and in Bohemia rosemary is employed. In German Switzerland a crown of artificial flowers takes the place of the wreath.

One summer a country house was so overrun by ants that the owner, after destroying a large ant-hill near the house and collecting the numerous pupae for poultry feed, laid sticky fly paper before the door of the house in such a manner that the ant could not enter without crossing it. In the morning he found his poultry feed gone and the fly paper covered with sand, dry grass and pine needles, over which the ant had passed "dry shod." The ant-hill had also been rebuilt during the night.

Our Boston Letter

It tells about

Political Matters From Numerous and Varied Standpoints.

BOSTON, Sept 27, 1905.

Claims of the different Republican candidates the day after the caucuses are simply preposterous. It is not questioned that the men who make them honestly believe that they have reason to expect the support of the delegates they seem to rely upon, but the total of their assertions is mathematically ridiculous. It seems to be true that Draper has a clear majority of the delegates, but his claim of 1100 out of the 1612 is as clearly subject to severe pruning as are the claims of Hall's manager that he has 647, or the claims of the rival candidates for the attorney generalship. It seems to be probable that Hall has many delegates in Boston who are not conceded to him by the Draper managers. The only practical question now is whether they will stand up for Hall. If Hall had carried a majority of Boston, they would have stood out in the open and have been counted for him, but there is a great deal of desire on the part of delegates to get upon the band wagon. At least, they want to be with the majority of their own town or city. That makes the Hall strength in Boston more uncertain than it would have been if a few of the wards had gone the other way. As it is, many delegates are claimed for both Hall and Draper. The morning summary of 332 for Goetting to 200 for Hall is not accepted for a moment by the Hall men. The colonel has not been seen here to-day and his claims must receive consideration later. But he seems to have made a creditable showing considering the strong opposition of the machine and the fact that he has not been able to bring out Senator Crane to his support.

As to the attorney generalship, Malone believes he has so many that only one ballot will be necessary. Champlin claims over 700. Sanderson's manager, Scott, puts out his belief that Sanderson will be the choice of the convention. Francis Hurtubis Jr. claims for French some 550 delegates. Such conflicting claims only convince the public that there is a great deal of bluffing, or a great deal of concealment. One fact appears evident in making these claims, that candidates are counting delegates whom, before the caucuses, they were assured would be for them. The one exception to this, in part, is Sanderson, whose manager has given out in detail today a statement of the votes in many places in Middlesex county which are claimed for Sanderson. It is intimated that the Sanderson claim for Worcester may have to be shaded a little, even by the Sanderson men. But that is the only discount which is admitted possible in the Sanderson claims. As there are two Middlesex candidates, the first essential for each is that he defeat the other. Hence the great eagerness of both Sanderson and Champlin to show that the other has failed to carry his own county. There are 355 votes in the county. Sanderson claims 224 and gives Champlin 123 Champlin claims 225 and divides the remainder between Sanderson, French and Malone. To clinch the situation, the Champlin managers put Sanderson down to fourth place in the total vote, evidently so as to prevent any doubtful men in other counties from going to him. How far such tactics will work and how far they will react, and how far they are absolutely honest, remains to be tested by the vote of the convention. At any rate, as it looks to-day, there will have to be a ballot for lieutenant governor and at least one for attorney general, and perhaps several. Malone will have to provide hotel accommodations for his delegates if he is to win, as the situation looks this afternoon.

Meanwhile the tariff situation may make trouble. The committee of 100 of the Boston Chamber of Commerce is evidently well heeled, for its advertisements offering five cents for a guaranteed name apiece to the demand for free iron ore, coal, hides, lumber and wood pulp, and for general tariff revision and for reciprocity with Canada, has been distributed widely among the newspapers in all parts of the state. Canvassers have also been set to work all over the state. Signatures are coming in by thousands. It is also said that there are many refusals to sign. This is pointed to, not as a cause of discouragement, but with gratification, for then the argument will be made, when the names are presented, that the demand was not signed carelessly, but only by those thoughtful and progressive voters who really believe that it is time for a change in the tariff and that reciprocity is now the only policy which will restore prosperity to the industries of New England. It is said that some first-class Republican names are obtained to the demand, and, judging from some which are on the advertised list, as well as from private conversation with strong Republicans, this seems very probable.

Therefore, supposing that the committee of 100 accomplishes its purpose of getting 50 000 to 75,000 signatures, all of guaranteed Republicans, and comes to the state convention with this showing, the question will be whether it will tend in any way to deter the convention from nominating Draper to stand upon a platform which he does not personally indorse. Foss counts upon the sobering effect of such a situation to deter the convention from selecting Draper and that is the hope he has for the nomination of Hall. But one of the veterans in politics, speaking to-day of that situation, observed that such a consideration would not have the slightest effect upon the convention, that they would have been selected to vote for a particular candidate, namely, Draper, and that any inconsistency between the candidate and the platform would not trouble the convention in the slightest. And he spoke after long experience in politics.

It looks, from inspection of the field on the Democratic side, as if they had some candidate for governor in mind, but were keeping him safely secluded from the public eye in order that he might not be forced by inquisitive newspaper men to say that he is not a candidate for the nomination. The Democratic state convention will occur next week Saturday, the day following the Republican convention. Therefore, it is highly important that a candidate be available, and for the second place, as well as for the first. The Democrats are talking seriously of defeating Draper, whom they have no doubt will be the Republican nominee. Who their man will be with whom they will make the attempt does not appear at this writing. It seems evident that Gen. Miles is not a party favorite for the head of the ticket, and there is no reason to expect that he will be the nominee, nor is there any evident reason to expect that ex-Mayor McNamee of Cambridge will be the man. He has his own city behind him, but nothing further, as far as the returns show to date.

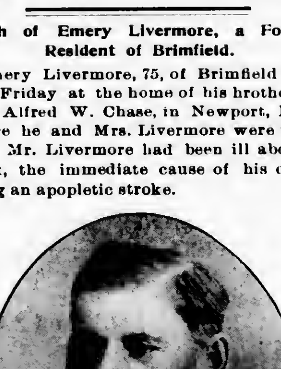
Gov. Douglas seems to be in excellent health these days. He was as chipper at the council meeting to-day as if he were only 40 years of age, and if he refuses to run for another term on account of his health, it would seem as if he were in as good condition as last year. But Mrs. Douglas is supposed to be the power behind the throne and there is not the slightest prospect that any effort will be made to induce him to change his mind.

On Monday evening the Twentieth Century Club held a house-warming in its new clubhouse at No 3 Joy street. This is one of the old aristocratic residences of Boston made over for modern uses. It is adjoining the house formerly occupied by the late Alpheus Hardy, which has been taken as a permanent home by the Massachusetts Civic League. The head worker of this league is Joseph Lee. He has bought the house at his personal expense and it will be used for this public purpose, in connection with other civic organizations. There is a sort of joint arrangement with the Twentieth Century club whereby the club's elevator is used for both houses, and the league house gives accommodation to the library of the club The Twentieth Club is the foremost institution in the city, indeed, in the United States, which makes for progress in civic lines of betterment of the public and social life of the people. It serves the public unselfishly and constantly in a large variety of ways. It has had a prominent part in a study of the tenement house problem in Boston and it rendered Mayor Collins large service in promoting the city policy in making more comfortable and attractive the lives of the lowest poor. On the other hand, it is constantly adding to the usefulness of many persons in the upper grades of life. It is giving attention to biblical study, to village improvements, and to other things which contribute to the well-being of society. Profs. Tyler and Genung of Amherst college will be among their lecturers the coming winter, and these men from the inland college stand right abreast of those from Harvard who are employed in similar service. The club is awake to the needs of the community in many ways and the new club house will enlarge its opportunities for serving the public.

LANDON.

Death of Emery Livermore, a Former Resident of Brimfield.

Emery Livermore, 75, of Brimfield died last Friday at the home of his brother-in-law, Alfred W. Chase, in Newport, R. I., where he and Mrs. Livermore were visiting. Mr. Livermore had been ill about a week, the immediate cause of his death being an apoplectic stroke.



Mr. Livermore was born in Warren August 21, 1830 When about 18 years old he went to Brimfield to work for John Prouty. After a few years he entered the employ of John Wyles, taking charge of his home estate, and held the position for 27 years. He was married February 15, 1854, to Miss Mary A. Bond of Warren, and their golden wedding, celebrated last year, is pleasantly remembered. Mr. and Mrs. Livermore lived at two different times at the home of Samuel A. Hitchcock, the founder of Hitchcock Free Academy, to keep house and care for him.

Mr. Livermore, who had been in failing health for the past two years, had nevertheless retained the use of his faculties, and was one of the few left of those from whom information concerning the important events in the history of the town 50 years ago could be obtained. He was one of the citizens who contributed toward the cost of the Academy building, and always took a keen interest in all town affairs.

Besides a widow, Mr. Livermore leaves a daughter, Miss Jennie E, a teacher in Springfield. The funeral was held from his late residence in Brimfield Sunday afternoon, Rev. Samuel Eaton officiating.

Caucuses Are Held.

Get SCOTT'S Emulsion

When you go to a drug store and ask for Scott's Emulsion you know what you want; the man knows you ought to have it. Don't be surprised, though, if you are offered something else. Wines, cordials, extracts, etc., of cod liver oil are plentiful but don't imagine you are getting cod liver oil when you take them. Every year for thirty years we've been increasing the sales of Scott's Emulsion. Why? Because it has always been better than any substitute for it.

WILBRAHAM.

Death of Thomas A. Marshall Jr.

Thomas A. Marshall Jr., 34, died at the home of his parents in East Wilbraham Tuesday night after about a year's illness with pulmonary tuberculosis. By trade Mr. Marshall was a barber, having conducted a shop in North Wilbraham for a number of years. About three years ago he went to Westfield where he followed his trade for about 1½ years, and later went to Springfield About a year ago he was compelled to abandon his trade on account of ill-health, and moved his family to the home of his parents in East Wilbraham. He was the son of Mary H. and Thomas A. Marshall Sr., and was born in Monson. He was married to Miss Annie Lyons of North Wilbraham September 29, 1897. He leaves, besides his widow and parents, two sons, Howard and Leonard, two brothers, John of Boston and Robert of Cambridge, and three sisters, Mrs. Herbert Calkins of Monson, Mrs. Carlos A. Alden of North Wilbraham and Mrs. Perlin E Nichols of Springfield. The funeral was held this afternoon at 2 in the East Wilbraham chapel, and burial was in the East Wilbraham cemetery.

Prof. James Madison Chapman, who for the past 12 years has had charge of the department of public speaking in Miami University, Oxford, O, has taken up the work of the same department in Wesleyan Academy. Mr. Chapman was for many years at the head of a similar department in New Hampton, N. H. He is a public reader of long experience, and a teacher of strong personality.

THREE JURORS CURED

Of Cholera Morbus with One Small Bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Mr. G. W. Fowler of Hightower, Ala., relates an experience he had while serving on a petit jury in a murder case at Edwardsville, county seat of Clebourne county, Alabama. He says: "While there I ate some fresh meat and some souse meat and it gave me cholera morbus in a very severe form. I was never more sick in my life and sent to the drug store for a certain cholera mixture, but the druggist sent me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy instead, saying that he had what I sent for, but that this medicine was so much better he would rather send it to me in the fix I was in. I took one dose of it and was better in five minutes. The second dose cured me entirely. Two fellow jurors were afflicted in the same manner and one small bottle cured the three of us." For sale by the Quimby Pharmacy, Palmer.

Victory for West Warren Second Hands.

A game of ball was played between the second hands employed in the cotton mills at West Warren and the overseers Saturday afternoon, resulting in a victory for the former by the score of 19 to 10. Both sides played good ball up to the sixth inning, when the score was 5 to 5. In the sixth inning Miles and Love of the overseers made a double play, after which several errors were made with the result that the second hands got in seven runs. In the evening about 8 o'clock nearly all the overseers and second hands, about 30 in number, went to the No 3 boarding house, where a turkey supper was served by Caterer Frank A. Keith, at the expense of the overseers. The score by innings:

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Mothers Are Helped

THEIR HEALTH RESTORED

Happiness of Thousands of Homes Due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Mrs. Pinkham's Advice.

A devoted mother seems to listen to every call of duty excepting the supreme one that tells her to guard her health, and before she realizes it some derangement of the female organs has manifested itself, and nervousness and irritability take the place of happiness and amiability.

Mrs. Ph. Hoffman

Tired, nervous and irritable, the mother is unfit to care for her children, and her condition ruins the child's disposition and reacts upon herself.

The mother should not be blamed, as she no doubt is suffering with backache, headache, bearing down pains or displacement, making life a burden.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the unfailing cure for this condition. It strengthens the female organs and permanently cures all displacements and irregularities

Such testimony as the following should convince women of its value:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:
"I want to tell you how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me. I suffered for eight years with ovarian troubles. I was nervous, tired and irritable, and it did not seem as though I could stand it any longer, as I had five children to care for. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended and it has entirely cured me. I cannot thank you enough for your letter of advice and for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me.—Mrs. Ph. Hoffman, 100 Himrod Street, Brooklyn, N. Y."

PALMER CATTLE SHOW.

Association Greeted With Clear Sky First Day.

AN UNUSUALLY BIG CROWD OF PEOPLE

In Attendance. The Best Show For Years. Numerous Fine Attractions on Midway.

The Eastern Hampden Agricultural Society opened its 53d annual fair this morning under most auspicious circumstances. The weather was very fine, the day being an ideal one for a cattle show. The air was just bracing enough to keep the large crowd moving about and taking in all the various attractions. The "fair" weather to-day was certainly gratifying to the officials of the society; but the fact that the weather report promises such a pleasant day for to-morrow is a matter that causes by far greater gratification. The society has seemingly had its share of hard luck in the many years that have passed, and now it seems evident that the weather man is doing his best to make up for his previous shortcomings. To-day's fair was well attended for an opening day, there being a much larger crowd than usual.

The crowd began to make its appearance early in the morning, spending its time in watching the exhibitors bring in their various exhibits and the fakirs set up their booths. As they noticed the large array of exhibits come pouring in, they realized for the first time this year the hard and thorough work that the men in charge have been doing for the past few months. They realized the wisdom and foresight that has been exercised, and the minuteness which has been given to every detail. This early crowd was constantly augmented by every car from the surrounding towns all day long; crowds also came in on the steam cars, the generosity of the cattle show officials being well shown by the vast number of school children in evidence.

To mention all the various and varied exhibits, and to give them their merited praise would be impossible in our time and space; yet they certainly demand some mention, even if scant. The cattle exhibit was very large, animals of all breeds, sizes and descriptions and from many parts of the state being in evidence. The judges began work early and had to use their best discretionary powers to pick out the prize winners. The line of poultry on exhibition was an unusually good one. Fowls, handsome fowls, full-blooded fowls, were to be seen on every side. In fact there was such an excellent showing of the barnyard stock that the ribbon winners had to be of the finest breed. The canine exhibition under the grandstand is such as to please the fancy of the most expert dog fancier. The dogs are receiving a good deal of attention, and they surely merit every bit of it, as a proof of which there are several dogs there which have already received prizes at many of the dog shows throughout the state. The hall exhibit offers its usual diversity of fruits, vegetables and fancy work. There is to be found here an exhibition that will consume a large portion of one's time to examine with an degree of thoroughness.

The midway is in evidence this year, but all the questionable and objectionable games of chance have been eliminated. But their elimination has not spoiled the attractions that this section usually has for a large proportion of the attendants. In addition to these side attractions, this year will be found many other enjoyable lines of entertainment. There will be seen on both days Hobbs' Dog Circus, Valding Brothers, revolving trapezists; Diette & Morin, comedy acrobats; Sereno, the boneless man, etc. This morning the athletic sports and contests provided to show the prowess of the juvenile contestants afforded much entertainment for the spectators. In the afternoon the relay race between several of the grammar grades drew much attention, and proved a good diversion from the usual program.

To-morrow will be horse day, horses being on exhibition instead of cattle. All the attractions of to-day will be continued to-morrow, with the addition of the wonderful and mystifying "tank" act, the act that attracted so much attention and created so much wonderment at the Stafford Fair. To-morrow will be the day for the high school athletics, and if they furnish much interest and excitement as did the relay race between these schools did this afternoon, the prospect for good events is very bright. The Columbian Band of Thorndike will again be present to dispense music. With the bright prospects for a good day, with the many and varied forms of amusement, it certainly looks now as though to-morrow will be the banner day of the Eastern Hampden Agricultural Society, and with this view in mind, the officials are making plans to entertain its largest crowd of years.

Hampden Posted for Game.

Property owners in the town of Hampden have posted notices prohibiting hunting or trespassing upon their premises, which action has been taken for the purpose of protecting game birds. The residents of the town have felt for some time that some such action as this must be taken or that partridge and quail would become extinct in that locality. Hunters from surrounding towns have for several years been making their headquarters in this village, ransacking the woods for game, and there are scarcely any birds left. In the future all the premises will be closely guarded, and all persons who may be found trespassing will be prosecuted.

Ware Man Injured.

Steven McBride of Ware was slightly injured by being thrown from a team on Warren hill road Sunday afternoon. He was accompanied by Herbert Goodwin. A runaway horse drawing a carriage dashed into the team, and Mr. Goodwin leaped in time, but Mr. McBride was thrown out, and received slight injuries. The harness and carriage were damaged by the collision. The occupants of the runaway team got out to pick grapes and left the horse which belonged to William Tobin, liveryman, unhitched.

Belchertown Fair.

The annual Belchertown fair and cattle show will be held Wednesday, October 11. The Central Vermont railroad will sell round trip tickets to Belchertown on that date at the following reduced rates: Palmer, 45 cents; Monson, 60 cents; Three Rivers, 35 cents.

Superior Court Entry.

Among the list of entries at the superior court in Springfield this week is that of Herbert A. McFarland of Wales against Charles F. Crawford of Wales for injuries received in an assault, $1500.

WEDDED A HALF CENTURY.

Monson Couple Celebrate Golden Wedding Wednesday.

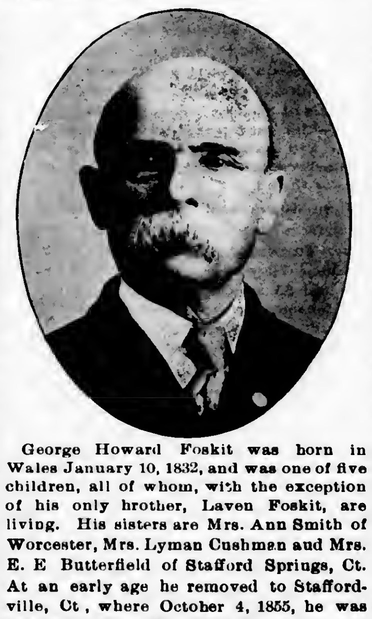
MANY FRIENDS CALLED DURING DAY.

Owing to the Ill Health of Mr. Foskit The Occasion was a Quiet One.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. Foskit observed the 50th anniversary of their marriage at their home on Bridge street in Monson Wednesday. As Mr. Foskit is in poor health the occasion was rather quiet, but many friends called through the day to offer their congratulations. Mr. Foskit has always been a prominent man in the town, and has a host of friends who would have called had his health permitted.



George Howard Foskit was born in Wales January 10, 1832, and was one of five children, all of whom, with the exception of his only brother, Laven Foskit, are living. His sisters are Mrs. Ann Smith of Worcester, Mrs. Lyman Cushman and Mrs. E. E Butterfield of Stafford Springs, Ct. At an early age he removed to Staffordville, Ct, where October 4, 1855, he was married to Mary Elizabeth Winter.

In 1862 Mr. Foskit was elected captain of a company of volunteers, and was mustered into service with this company at Hartford, Ct., August 19, 1862, in Co. D, 25th Conn. Volunteers. He saw active service in the Port Hudson campaign. He received an honorable discharge from service August 26, 1863. After he returned home from the war he lived at Staffordville, Ct., until 1867, when he moved to Monson, where he has since lived, with the exception of five years, during which time he was superintendent of the Ellis mill at Orcuttville. Mr. Foskit was superintendent of the branch mill in Monson for five years, and was for a number of years employed in the Merrick & Fay straw shop.

Capt. Foskit, as he is known, served the town of Monson as selectman for a period of about 12 years, and was holding office at the time he was stricken with paralysis in November, 1892. He is a member of Marcus Keep, G. A. R. post, and has been commander several times. Of a very active, cheery disposition, his familiar face has been much missed about town since his illness. He is able to be about the house, and takes short walks out of doors on pleasant days, and receives many callers.

Mrs. Foskit enjoys excellent health, and is one of 11 children, three sisters and one brother living. They are Mrs. A. L. Howard of Stafford Springs, Ct., Mrs. D. P. Smith of North Brookfield, Mrs. Henry A. Bugbee of Monson and Frank Winters.

Corner Stone of Ludlow Church Laid.

The corner-stone of the new St. Andrew's chapel was laid at Ludlow Saturday afternoon by Rev. Alexander H. Vinton, bishop of the disocese, in the presence of a large number St. Andrew's mission was started in 1904, there being an apparent opportunity for the organization of an Episcopal church in Ludlow, Rev. W. T. Dakin of Springfield was placed in charge of it, going to Ludlow Sunday afternoons. In June, 1904, by appointment of the bishop, Rev. Charles E. Hill took charge of the mission under the supervision of Mr. Dakin, and has continued the Sunday services with excellent results. On St. Andrew's Day, November 30, 1904, the first class of 18 was presented to the bishop for confirmation. On March 5, 1905, the project of raising funds for the building of a suitable chapel was started. Plans were drawn, and on the evening of June 1, the people voted that they would make the same effort to raise funds next year as this, and so the building of the chapel was assured. August 14 a meeting was called at which the mission was legally organized and its constitution and by-laws adopted, which qualified the mission to hold property and the contract for the new building was let, to be built on the lot on the corner of East and Hampden streets, the gift of the Ludlow Manufacturing Company. Ground was broken September 5. The mission at present numbers about 50 earnest communicants, and embraces a Sunday school, a choir and an efficient St. Margaret's guild for women.

Hampshire and Worcester Street Railway Sold.

The Hampshire and Worcester Street Railway, with lines operating in Ware, Gilbertville and West Brookfield, was sold at auction Saturday noon at the company's barn in Ware. The purchaser was A. F. Choate of Boston, who represented the American trust and loan company of Boston, the bondholders of the road. The bid was $5000 over and above all incumbrances.

There were about 80 people at the auction, including 10 interested parties, but Mr. Choate's bid was the first and only one made. Attorney George S. Taft, receiver of the road for about eight months, was at the car barn during the auction.

D. E Pepin will act as superintendent of the road, and for the present no change will be made in the operation of the cars.

1000 MILES IN AUTO.

Palmer Physician and Wife Take Trip to Michigan.

WERE ONLY EIGHT DAYS ON ROAD.

Massachusetts Roads Are Good, Western Roads Bad, But Trip on Whole Delightful.

Dr. and Mrs. D. B. Sullivan of Bondsville, who left September 18 for an auto trip to Mrs. Sullivan's former home in Saginaw, Mich., have arrived safely at their destination, and a copy of the Saginaw Courier-Herald received at this office gives the following account of their thousand mile trip:

The journey was made in a light runabout, an eight horse-power car. The start was made Sept. 18, and they arrived in this city just eight days later. When seen yesterday the doctor and his wife were enthusiastic over the outing, which was like no other they had ever had before. The route followed was along the line of the New York Central, the Boston and Albany, around the lake shore to Detroit and thence to Saginaw. There were few hindrances, weather conditions being excellent and the machine doing its duty splendidly.

"On the whole the roads were good," said Dr. Sullivan. "Through Massachusetts to Albany they were fair, from there to Albany rather poor, to Syracuse more than ordinarily good, to Buffalo splendid, to Cleveland good, to Toledo fair and the same to Detroit. From Detroit we came by the way of Pontiac, Holly and Flint and found the roads in a very fair condition."

"We had no accidents and only punctures," interposed Mrs. Sullivan. "They don't count as accidents," said the doctor. "I did not register the number of miles but it must have been between 900 and 1000."

"It's the only way to travel and see the country," said Mrs. Sullivan. "I was fascinated with our experience. Through almost the entire journey there was something interesting to see. The scenery in the Mohawk valley is perfect and through the Berkshire hills is grand. It rained a little on two days but that did not bother us at all. It was no discomfort but rather extremely exhilarating. The rain was warm and left no unpleasant effect when we did get wet."

"We started out with the intention of making the trip leisurely, but along the road several other touring parties joined us who were trying to make time and—well, it became catching, so we kept along with them into Buffalo, and there was little difference in the time of arrival of any of us."

The hundred miles from Detroit was reeled off in less than six hours, and from Flint to Saginaw required only two hours, according to the doctor's record.

"A person meets with many peculiar experiences on a trip of that kind," said Dr. Sullivan. "For instance, in one place in New York state a force was grading the road and had plowed the entire width of the thoroughfare. I couldn't straddle the furrows because they would have interfered with the differential, so I ran about two miles with the wheels on the furrows. It was slow work and required careful steering."

"A peculiar thing one notices when first touring the country," continued the doctor, "is the effect hills have upon the imagination. Several times before reaching a particularly prominent rise of ground I would say, 'We never can make that,' but afterwards the ascent would be found comparatively easy.

"Our car arrived here nearly as good as when we left. The only difficulty I have noticed is that one of the springs is somewhat out of shape."

Dr. Sullivan and his wife will leave next week for Chicago. From there they will return to the East through Indiana and Ohio and expect to reach home the latter part of October.

Annual Inspection of Ware Fire Department.

The annual inspection and parade of the Ware fire department was held Saturday afternoon, drawing a large number of people to the main streets.

In the afternoon at 1 30 all the companies assembled at the central station on Water street, and under the escort of the Second Regiment band of Springfield, the parade started at 1.45. The line was as follows: Police escort, under Chief Fitzgerald; Second Regiment band, T. V. Short leader; prudential committee in hacks, Frank P. Clark, Felix Bombard, James Anderson, John H. Schoonmaker, treasurer; engineers; foremen of companies; Co's 1, 2, 3 and 4; hook and ladder No. 1; steamer No. 1; apparatus, hose 1, 2, 3 and 4; Lafayette drum corps; Otis hose company; Otis apparatus; G. H. Gilbert hose company; Gilbert apparatus. The line of march was through Water street, West, Vernon to West Main, through Main to East Main, Chestnut, South, Main to North, Pleasant, and back to Main.

Following the parade the usual hose team racing took place on Main street. The officials were: Starter, James Harrison; timers, Dr. A. A. Auger, F. J Browning. No 4 won the contest in 27¼ seconds, running 350 feet, coupling to hydrant and connecting four lengths of hose. No. 2 was the company to make the best run, but made a slip on the first coupling, it being 1 07 seconds before water came through the pipe. No. 3 also had difficulty getting water in 1.17¾ seconds. No. 1 made a good run, getting in 24½ seconds.

In the evening a social dance was held in the town hall.

Probate Court Business.

At a session of the probate court in Springfield Wednesday, the following business of a local interest was transacted: Administrations decreed in estates of—Ann Robinson, late of Wilbraham, Chauncey E. Peck of Wilbraham administrator; Andrew W. Conant, late of Palmer, Lewis A. Conant of Palmer administrator; Annie F. MacPherson, late of Monson, Mary A. MacPherson of Monson administratrix; Howard O. Royce, late of Wales, Ozro P. Royce of Wales administrator; Fred W. Shaw, late of Monson, Freelon Q. Ball of Monson administrator; William L. Webber, late of Holland, Elia J. Webber of Holland administratrix; Susan Tupper, late of Monson, James B. Tupper of Monson administrator; Aurilla Brunelle, late of Palmer, Joseph Brunelle of Palmer, administrator.

Wills proved in estates of—Frederick C. Swenson, late of Holland, William C. Swenson of Holland executor; Henry O. Nelson, late of Monson, Julia M. Nelson of Monson executrix.

FOR A THIRD TERM.

A. D. Norcross of Monson Nominated for House.

REPUBLICANS OF 1ST HAMPDEN DIST.

Name Him by Acclamation. Will Probably be Candidate for Senator Next Year.

The First Hampden Republican representative convention was held in the district court room in Palmer Wednesday afternoon at 3 15. Representative Arthur D. Norcross of Monson was unanimously renominated by acclamation.

Dr. R. V. Sawin of Brimfield was chosen permanent chairman of the convention and W. H. Anderson of Monson clerk. W. M. Tucker of Monson and Charles L. Waid of Palmer were chosen a committee on credentials and reported delegates present as follows: Palmer 8, Monson 7, Brimfield 2, Wales and Holland one each. After the report of this committee, nominations were in order and Judge H. A. McFarland of Wales secured the floor. He said that two years ago Palmer had nominated a Monson man as a candidate, who was elected and did good work; the next year Monson had placed in nomination the same candidate, who was again elected and did better work; this year he was to place in nomination the same candidate as the choice of all the towns of the district, in fact a candidate-at-large, who next year he predicted would be the Republican candidate for senator, and then moved that Mr. Norcross be nominated by acclamation. The mention of Mr. Norcross' name was received with applause. The motion was seconded by E. B. Taylor on behalf of the Palmer delegates and by W. M. Tucker on behalf of the Monson delegates, and when put was unanimously carried.

It was voted to have the district committee fill any vacancy that might occur by reason of the death or withdrawal of the candidate, and it was voted that the district committee for next year consist of the chairmen of the town committees in the several towns of the district, with the chairman of the Palmer committee as chairman of the district committee.

Representative Norcross has served the district with exceptional ability for the last two years. He has gained prominence in the House by his close attention to the work and his fitness for the same.

FOOTBALL.

Wesleyan Plays Good Game.

The Springfield high school team was played to a standstill at Wilbraham Monday afternoon by Wesleyan Academy. Neither side scored, but it was a practical victory for Wesleyan. While Springfield rushed the ball more yards than the Academy, the ball was in Springfield's territory more than in that of the Academy. The nearest that either side came to scoring was to get the ball on its opponent's 15-yard line. The entire game was the cleanest kind of football. The line-up:

Wesleyan Academy.	Springfield High School.
Ward, l e	r e, Lombard
Whalen, Hall, Thompson, l t	r t, Wright
H. Schultz, l g	r g, Glynn
Roelke, c	c, O'Connell

Low Rates.

On September 15th, and daily until Oct. 31st, tickets will be on sale via the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway to principal points in California, Oregon and Washington, from Palmer at rates from $49 90 to $50 75, according to railroads used to Chicago. Tickets will permit of liberal stop-overs at various western points, and are good in all tourist cars. Corresponding reductions are made to a great number of other points in Western States, and tickets can be purchased from your nearest railroad station to destination. Through train service from Chicago to principal points in the west assist persons traveling to make the trip without change of cars. Tourist cars daily. For further information apply to Geo. L. Williams, New England Passenger Agent, 368 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

Golf.

An interesting contest between the Bondsville Country Club and the Ware golf team took place on the Bondsville links last Saturday afternoon. The Ware team was victorious by two points, the score being seven to five, Nassau system. Convery scored three points to the good from his opponent, Mr. Wood, C. Holden two from Mr. Lincoln; these were the only points made on the Bondsville side. On the Ware side Mr. Wetherby, who also took Mr. Bridgman's place, scored three points against L. Holden and F. S. Gordon, and Mr. Booth took two from E. Hayes, making a total of seven. The Bondsvilles expect to give a return game in the near future.

The Journal.

FRIDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 6, 1905.

PALMER NEWS.

Meeting of the Historical Society.

The first meeting of the Historical Society after the vacation season was held in the high school room Tuesday evening, when a good-sized audience assembled to enjoy the interesting talk of Prof. Cross about his vacation visit to Virginia during the past summer.

Mr. Cross spent some three weeks in Richmond and vicinity, devoting much time going over the sites of the ever-memorable Seven Days' Battles, which are still well defined by the surviving earth works which remain as when vacated by the contending hosts, save that in many instances they are now overgrown by trees. He gave a graphic and deeply interesting account of his tramps from point to point, visiting the old houses that survived the shocks of battle and are still tenanted by those who resided there in war time and saw much of the conflict from a point of safety, or were personally engaged in the rebel army. Ghastly evidences of the awful strife still exist on every hand; unburied remains are often found to-day in the ravines and dingles, and in one negro's melon patch Mr. Cross gathered up handfuls of human bones beside the ripening crop. In one of the Union cemeteries he visited there repose in one spot covered by a carpet of green twelve thousand unnamed dead, a sad remembrance of the awful strife once enacted there. All over these fields one can gather up the bullets, pieces of shells and other evidences of carnage. Nearly all the remaining houses of the vicinity bear the marks of bullets and shells as well as the old trees which yield a harvest of lead and steel when cut down and converted into fire wood.

Mr. Cross gave many pleasing accounts of his intercourse with Virginia gentlemen; his meeting with Col. Taylor of Richmond will be introduced as a type. The Colonel received him most cordially, saying he was pleased to meet a gentleman from the North, and welcomed him to Richmond. He said he with others who fought in the Confederate Army had became reconciled to the present status, but he added, "Mrs. Taylor, like a majority of the other Southern women, has not yet become reconstructed, for the women remain more at home and do not see enough of the outside world to eradicate the old war feeling." Mr. Cross says he found Mrs. Taylor a very pleasant lady even in the presence of a Northerner, but he did not seek to ruffle her feelings by any direct allusion to anti-bellum days.

In his intercourse with the surviving officers of the Confederates, Mr. Cross found that while they had a most profound respect for the memory of Gen. Robert E. Lee, they only sought to palliate the course of Jefferson Davis; while the common soldiers with whom he conversed had no use for Jeff. Davis, and singular as it may seem they expressed great respect for President Lincoln. Mr. Cross brought back many evidences of his visit in the shape of bullets, shells, etc., which he had on exhibition and with which he illustrated his remarks. He also illustrated the most interesting points of his visit by outline maps on the blackboard.

The account was listened to with the keenest interest by all and was most thoroughly enjoyed. O. P. ALLEN.

Aftermath of Stafford Fair.

Palmer caught a portion of the results of the Stafford fair crowd Wednesday night. A Fitchburg man who does not care to have his name mentioned but who is well known in town was jostled in the crowd getting on the special train for Palmer at Stafford that evening, pushed about and knocked over on his hands and knees; when he managed to regain his equilibrium he was minus what money he had with him, something like $2. He is subject to heart trouble and the treatment he received brought on an attack, and it was necessary to call a physician when Palmer was reached.

On the train coming up was a man who passed through the cars and seemed to pick out with careful scrutiny certain individuals, to whom he offered a drink from a bottle. Several accepted his invitation, and it was noticeable that every one of them was in a dazed condition when Palmer was reached, and scarcely able to tell where they were or where they wanted to go. One man whose wife was with him was brought to by a half dozen sharp slaps on either side of the face, administered with no mean power and an admonition to come to and find out where he was at, which he immediately did. Knock-out drops are supposed to have been the cause, but so far as known the object of the man with the bottle, whatever it was, failed of accomplishment.

When the special train reached Palmer a crowd gathered in the waiting room and there was a crush around the ticket office. A cry of "Stop him!" was soon heard, but there was so much shouting and calling that little attention was paid to it until a man was seen to break from the bunch and make for the door, pursued by another. The man in the lead crossed the tracks toward Main street but was stopped by the fence, and lost his hat in the flight, but managed to get away. The pursuer announced that he had been relieved of his roll of bills, containing about $35, while he was purchasing a ticket; he felt them taken and made a grab for the fellow, but could not get a hold on him. The matter was reported to the police, but no clue to the thief could be had.

Hunting Season Opens.

The hunting season opened on Monday, and if the strings of game secured that day are any criterion, there will be an abundance of sport through the fall. There are plenty of leaves on the trees yet, but some good strings were secured, both of gray squirrels and partridge. There seems to be considerable numbers of the latter, which promises good hunting a little later when the conditions are more auspicious. The number of hunters out on Monday was legion. They were to be found at every turn and in almost every field and piece of woods. And they were not confined to local sportsmen, for by far the greater number came from abroad, either by team or trolley. One party which came by team resembled a war party more than one which was after game; the wagon fairly bristled with guns, and there were at least six hunters, besides a youngster of perhaps a dozen years.

The alien license law, which was supposed to put a stop to hunting by foreigners, particularly the Italians, who do much of it and destroy many song birds, does not seem to have been heard of in this section, for not only has there not been a single license issued, but not even an inquiry has been heard concerning one. It is evident that it has stopped all such shooting in this section or that little attention is being paid to it, and no one is ready to believe that the former proposition exists.

O'Leary—Curley.

A Judicious Inquiry.

A well known traveling man who visits the drug trade says he has often heard druggists inquire of customers who asked for a cough medicine, whether it was wanted for a child or an adult, and if for a child they almost invariably recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The reason for this is that they know there is no danger from it and that it always cures. There is not the least danger in giving it, and for coughs, colds and croup it is unsurpassed. For sale by the Quimby Pharmacy, Palmer.

LUDLOW.

Death of John E. Stevens.

John E. Stevens, agent of the Ludlow Manufacturing Associates in Ludlow, died suddenly from heart disease in his chair at the mill office yesterday afternoon. His death was a great shock to the employes of the corporation and to his business associates, with whom he has worked for nearly a quarter of a century. The growth of the Ludlow corporation during his administration is widely known, and it was through his influence that the early plans of the company toward bettering the facilities for education and recreation have advanced. Charles W. Hubbard, treasurer of the company, issued the following statement last evening: "In the sudden death of Mr. Stevens the officers and employes of the Ludlow Manufacturing Associates have lost a friend, one who has always been just and fair, kind and thoughtful, always a Christian and a gentleman. May his memory long be held in reverence by the people of Ludlow and the example of his life an inspiration to us all." The funeral services will be held in the Union church to-morrow afternoon at 2, and the mills will be closed on that day.

WARE.

Death of Father and Son.

News was received in town Sunday morning of the sudden death in Nashua of John Kelly, 42, son of Mrs. Michael Kelly of Bank street and a brother of William and Katherine Kelly, also of Ware. William Kelly, accompanied by Undertaker John T. Brosnahan, went to Nashua for the body. Mr. Kelly is survived by another brother, James, proprietor of the Marble Hall Hotel in Holyoke, and another sister, Mrs. D. E. Keefe of Springfield, with whom he made his home a good share of the time. The funeral was held in All Saints' church Tuesday morning.

His father, Michael Kelley, 80, died Wednesday afternoon. He had been in feeble health for some years, and his death, while sudden at the end, was not unexpected. Much sympathy is expressed for the family for their double bereavement. The funeral was held in All Saints' church this morning at 9

Street Railway Pays Taxes.

A check for $1102.39 was received last week by Tax Collector F. W. Farrar from George S. Taft, receiver of the Hampshire and Worcester street railway company, for the payment of taxes due the town of Ware for 1903, 1904 and 1905. Mr. Farrar advertised the railway property for sale last week, and the expense for the advertising was paid by Mr. Taft.

Coney, has been listed for trial on Friday of next week The plaintiff seeks to recover $50, an amount of salary for which he was appointed clerk by the board of overseers of the poor on June 27 for the month of July. The answer which was filed by George D. Storrs, who has been designated to appear for the town by Judge H. C Davis, town counsel, is a general denial, with an additional denial of the right of the board to appoint a clerk.

One Million Dollars in Grand Opera Productions.

In addition to the train load of scenery, properties and electric effects carried by the Savage English Grand Opera company, Manager Savage is said to have storehouses in New York, Boston and Chicago filled with enough complete productions of operas to supply a half dozen companies. During the ten years in which he has produced eighty-three operas in English, each work has had its own specially prepared production of scenery and costumes. It is estimated that the investment tied up in his grand opera productions all told would reach the total of a million dollars. This would be an average of $12,000 for each, a very modest sum. Modern grand opera productions cost more than the dramatic shows and generally rival the cost of elaborate musical comedies and spectacles "Parsifal" for instance cost over $125,000, while such work as "Tosca," "Othello," "Valkyrie," "Lohengrin, "Rigoletto," "Aida" and "Faust" require two or three times the outlay that was needed in former years.

AFTER FIFTY YEARS.

Poem Read at Howard Golden Wedding in Wilbraham.

The following poem, entitled "After Fifty Years," was written by Chauncey E. Peck of Wilbraham and read at the celebration of the golden wedding of Rev. and Mrs. M. S. Howard at Wilbraham Tuesday. In response to numerous requests for copies, Mr. Peck has had the poem printed in neat booklet form. The poem:

At the end of every journey,
Rest awhile beneath the shade;
Gather up the deep impressions,
Note the progress thus far made.

So we pause awhile at evening,
From the stir and stress of life,
To observe the Golden Wedding
Of our Pastor and his wife.

Not with heedless, careless footsteps,
Enter we upon the scene,
But with love and veneration,
Only fit for such a theme.

From that day and its far dawning,
Swift the fleeting years have sped,
Since in life's delightful morning,
These our honored friends were wed.

On their way of life the dew drops,
Bright with radiance of the sun,
Filled the waiting fields with jewels,
To be gathered one by one.

And the future far-off seeming,
Beckoned them to join their peers,
In the harvest fields of promise;
Thus began these Fifty Years.

Not for treasures quickly rusted,
Nor to hear the world applaud,
But for Him in whom they trusted,
Wrought these messengers of God.

He, to tell of the Redeemer,
Who was slain by sinners' hate;
She, to hold his hands up longer,
When the burden seemed too great.

He, to pour the oil of comfort
On the wounded hearts of men;
She, by gentle ministrations,
To relieve the smart of pain.

He, to hold the standard higher,
When the hearts of men were weak;
She, with zeal that did not tire,
Restful, helpful words to speak.

All such lives a benediction
In a world of toil and strife,
Leading up to high attainments,
On the mountain tops of life.

So together they have journeyed,
Through the length of fifty years,
Binding up the broken-hearted,
Changing into trust some tears.

And the days are not yet ended,
Nor is all their labor done,
In the fields of life, well tended,
Other harvest may be won.

Say not that our lives are barren
Of all motives worth the strife,
And that only weeds and brambles
Are the recompense of life.

We may live upon the mountain,
And the widest view obtain;
Or abide within the shadows
Of the fever-haunted plain.

We may speak a word to lighten
Some o'er-burdened heart of pain,
Falling on the thirsty surface
Like the needed summer rain.

All the hopes and aspirations
Of our lives are held in store,
By the kindly ministrations
Of the friends around our door.

Toil on then, and cheerful hearted,
For from every victory won,
We shall not from it be parted,
When the day of life is done.

Grand Opera in Springfield.

Henry W. Savage's representative made a flying trip to Springfield this week to arrange preliminaries for the coming second annual grand opera season, by the celebrated English Grand Opera Company. This superb organization charmed local music lovers last year with a grand opera festival at the Court Square Theatre, and all classes of opera goers will be pleased to learn that the big company, larger and more pretentious than ever, will return for three performances on October 20th and 21st. Mr. Savage has combined his "Parsifal" and English Grand Opera forces this year, giving him the finest company be has ever sent on tour in a repetory of masterpieces.

Manager Gilmore and Mr. Savage have engaged Mr. William F. A. Engel to look after the preliminary details of the engagement, and arrangements are now being made to open ticket offices in Palmer and other surrounding places, from which special cars will be run to Springfield during the engagement.

The opera selected will include three of the company's greatest successes. The engagement will open on Friday night, Oct. 20th, either with Puwcini's beautiful "La Boheme," that modern Italian masterpiece, or else Verdi's great Egyptian opera "Aida," one of the heaviest grand opera productions.

For the remaining performances, the matinee on Saturday will most likely be devoted to Wagner's sonorous "Tanhauser." For the closing performance on Saturday evening it is practically settled that there will be a complete performance of Gounod's "Faust."

With such a repetory, the coming engagement should prove the most successful musical event of the entire season. Mr. Savage's company contains over 150 people this year, and will have its own orchestra of fifty musicians under three conductors. It will come to Springfield with its special train of 12 cars containing the immense equipment for its entire repetory, that is to be given the following fortnight in Boston.

The sale of seats will open at the Court Square box office Wednesday morning, October 18th, and prices will be the same as last year, ranging from $2 to 50c. Mail orders containing remittance will be filled in the order received, as near as possible to location ordered.

"No," he said, impatiently, "I never could dictate my work. To dictate one must be able to forget the presence of the stenographer, and that is beyond me." Her eyes were full of earnest sympathy. "But could't you get a man stenographer?" she asked.—Town Topics.

How to Cure Corns and Bunions.

First, soak the corn or bunion in warm water to soften it; then pare it down as closely as possible without drawing blood and apply Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice daily, rubbing vigorously for five minutes at each application. A corn plaster should be worn a few days to protect it from the shoe. As a general liniment for sprains, bruises, lameness and rheumatism, Pain Balm is unequaled. For sale by the Quimby Pharmacy, Palmer.

WHY IT SUCCEEDS.

Because It's For One Thing Only, And Palmer Is Learning This.

Nothing can be good for everything.

Doing one thing well brings success.

Doan's Kidney Pills do one thing only.

They're for sick kidneys.

They cure backache, every kidney ill.

Here is Palmer evidence to prove it.

Mrs. P. J. Sullivan of Pearl street, says:—"While I never had occasion to use Doan's Kidney Pills myself, my husband used them and they did him a lot of good. He had a weakness of the kidneys and heavy aching pain in his back for a long time. I have seen him so lame and sore across his back in the morning that he could not get out of bed without assistance. He tried other remedies but they did not do him any good. He got Doan's Kidney Pills at LeGro's drug store, used four boxes according to directions and they removed the lameness and righted the kidney secretions."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S.

Our Boston Letter

It tells about

Draper's Claims as Compared With Those of Hall and Goetting—Other Political Matters.

BOSTON, OCT 4, 1905.

Writing two days before the Republican state convention, the present outlook will soon be only history whose interest will be extinguished in large part by subsequent facts, save as the actors in the scenes wish to reminiscence and fight over, in the light of the event, their preconvention battles. This has been pre-eminently a campaign of claims and the battles is still on to the full. To begin with, at the top of the ticket is the Draper claim of 1080 delegates on the first ballot. As matters stand to-day, this claim must be largely discounted. It seems beyond question that Draper and his friends have claimed from the start a great many delegates who are now proved to be for either Hall or Goetting, even though the claim for Draper was honestly made in the first instance. So much specification is given, and it comes from all parts of the state, that it cannot be passed over as wholly inaccurate. Hall's column seems to be constantly growing, while Goetting has, by the statement of himself and his friends, decidedly more than are conceded by Draper. Hall and Goetting point to many instances where changes are made from the announced result. But ever since the morning after the caucuses, the Draper headquarters have simply stuck by the imposition, not giving out details. While it cannot be said positively that their figures are not sound, the probabilities are so much against them as to amount to a practical certainty and the delegates are justified in concluding that the Draper side is not nearly as strong as was claimed on the morning after the caucuses. One thing justifies taking the Draper estimate with caution, and that is the vote of 382 for Goetting to 200 for Hall, for Hall is the opponent Draper has most to fear and if he were made of least account, it might help to strengthen Draper accordingly. But there is no reason to suppose that Goetting has nearly as many as Hall.

The contest has got so far to-day that the anti-Draper forces predict that he cannot possibly be nominated on the first ballot and that if he does not win then, he cannot at all—which is a reasonable conclusion. It is said that the Hall and Goetting forces do not overlap each other in any instance, but that it is found in many places that they do overlap Draper, so that there need be no deduction from the sum of the Hall and Goetting strength in order to learn the anti-Draper strength. Some Republicans who are strongly anti-machine want a fight to be made in the convention from the very outset against all the pre-arranged preliminaries, even the selection of permanent chairman and the nomination of the committees, so that the convention may do as it pleases from start to finish. But it has long been the rule, in both Republican and Democratic conventions, that the state committee should arrange the details in order to give the convention ample time for the transaction of important business, without wasting time on the details.

After the convention, it will be interesting to learn what impression was made by the Republican signatures to the demand for putting iron ore, coal, lumber, hides, and wood pulp on the free list and for reciprocity and tariff revision to the extent of giving only so much protection as is needed for the sake of labor. The advertisement of the committee of 100 has been spread broadcast over the state. Little cards have been distributed with the pledge upon it, and canvassers have been at work through the state getting names. The verification of the genuineness of the signatures and of the Republican standing of the signers occupies time and the result of the work is not given out. But a great many dollars have been spent on the undertaking and at last accounts, its promoters were satisfied.

Regarding the attorney generalship, there is a profusion of claims, and it is a fair conclusion that every candidate believes honestly that he has many more than he really has. Malone believes that he will be nominated on the first ballot. Champlin believes that he leads Malone. French looks forward to strong support and the situation for Sanderson is highly encouraging. The last named seems to be doing less claiming and to have a larger appreciation on the part of the bar, as a whole, than any other candidate. It seems to be the fact that each candidate is having assurances of support from those who have a different first choice that he will be their second choice. This complicates the situation materially. It is yet anybody's fight and the night before the convention will have much influence upon the outcome.

Saturday will come the Democratic state convention. To-day the tendency is clearly toward Gen. Charles W. Bartlett. No other candidate is named just now, all talk of others having ceased. He says that he has not decided and that he has nothing to say for publication. This evidently means that he expects, and that he will be nominated and will accept for otherwise they would not leave the matter so uncertain. This is the view which obtains at the Democratic headquarters and the impressions there are usually correct. The second place is still open and some strong man is wanted who will give Gen. Draper a hard rub. The Democrats believe that they can beat him. One thing has been settled, and that is that Frank K. Foster will not be the nominee. He was once on the ticket, but his course since then, by which he has not always stood by the straight party nominees, and has made it seem advisable to select some other candidate. The man to oppose Draper must be one whom the anti-Draper Republicans can support, for there is where the votes must come from.

But the mass of voters in the state should not lose sight of the great corporation contest which is in preparation for the next session of the legislature. It broke out in the Republican caucuses, the question being whether the street railways should defeat Senators Cummings of Norfolk, Harding of the Cape and Clark of Middlesex in consequence of their opposition to the Shaw-Gaston combination at the state house last winter. Fortunately each of these valuable senators carried his caucuses and seems assured of his election Now comes what promises to be the biggest contest aside from that over the state ticket. James F. Shaw, street railway magnate, is candidate in the Essex district which Moody Kimball represented this year with over 3500 majority. But Representative Schofield of Ipswich, Democrat, has entered the field against him and he issues a statement which will be pretty sure to bring him many Republican votes against a Republican candidate who represents in his person the most objectionable form of corporation control in the state. Schofield has been selectman for years and has been a member of the House four years, being elected by Republican votes every time in a town and district which is overwhelmingly Republican. And he is a sturdy Democrat through it all and is highly respected as such. He says: "If elected, I will use every honest effort to represent the best interests of the state and of the people of my district, regardless of party. I have always believed that he 'who serves the people best serves his party best,' and as a member of the House of Representatives for the past four years, I have aimed at all times to live up to that belief." Shaw, representing corporations, might exert as much influence outside of the Senate as inside, and it is a question whether he promotes his cause by being a candidate. He has never had any legislative experience.

To-day there was a session of the commission on industrial and technical education of which Carroll D. Wright is chairman. It was the time set apart for the opposition. No one appeared in person. Henry Abrahams, secretary of the cigarmakers' union, wrote a letter against any industrial schools, saying that they were wanted by the employers who want to make their employes work long hours for small wages. Frank K. Foster sent a letter asking for a hearing for the Massachusetts Branch of the American Federation of Labor after its annual meeting in Pittsfield October 9, and Secretary Daniel J. Driscoll wrote to the same effect. The commission will give a hearing at the state house Oct. 24 in consequence of this request. They propose also to have hearings in Worcester, Fitchburg, Springfield, Pittsfield, Lowell, Lawrence, Lynn, Brockton, New Bedford and Fall River. Then they will digest information, decide upon their findings and prepare their report to the Legislature.

Delegates to the state convention are expected to come down from the West in consequence of the excursion rates which are accorded to them. But it is not probable that the Republicans will be able to return the same day. Doubtless the Democrats will. Republicans had better come prepared to pay the hotel bills.

The Twentieth Century Club had a formal opening of its new home on Monday evening. The regular series of club luncheons for Saturday afternoons has been arranged for October and among the subjects will be the commercial and industrial progress of the South, the effect of the acquisition of electric roads by steam roads, and the results of Harvard College observatory in Peru during the last four years.

September Crop Report.

In its crop report for September, out today, the Mass. State Board of Agriculture includes an article on "Commercial Pork Making and Pig Raising in New England," by A. A. Southwick, farm superintendent at the Taunton Insane Asylum. This report will be sent free on application to J. Lewis Ellsworth, secretary State Board of Agriculture, State House, Boston, and those wishing it may have their names placed on the mailing list for future issues.

In this article Mr. Southwick says: "The question might be asked why we should engage in this industry in Massachusetts and New England generally, and the only answer can be, because there is an unlimited demand for this immense and growing industry. Another reason is that our climate seems to be an ideal one for the thrift and general health of this class of animals. True many will say the hired help problem must be solved before we can branch out very much in carrying out an idea which would probably be considered an experiment with most farmers. To the doubting minds we would say, make a beginning and the problem will solve itself."

Discussing the question of breed Mr. Southwick advocates the bacon hog for New England, the west producing the lard hog in immense quantities. The Yorkshire and Berkshire breeds are the best examples of bacon hog, the only possible objection to the latter being the fanciful one of color.

The summer care and shelter of swine is next taken up. Three acres of grass and one of rape will feed a carload of pigs, from fifty to fifty-five throughout the season. Shelter arrangements are of the simplest, but are fully described. Do not feel obliged to feed these hogs, says Mr. Southwick, unless convenient, and you have the offal to dispose of.

The writer lays great emphasis on the importance of the influence of heredity in pig raising. Good natured mothers are a necessity and pigs from their litters should be saved for breeders, especially if they are good ones. Select the boar from a litter whose ancestors are noted for the good qualities that should be combined in the perfect hog. Look for one that is as good over the hips as over the shoulders. You will not find this kind plentiful.

Diseases are taken up at considerable length and cleanliness insisted on as the great preventative.

The breeding of show animals and thoroughbreds is touched on somewhat briefly and the improvement of the farm from keeping swine also noted.

As for accommodations, says Mr. Southwick, start with what you have, and if you are prospered you will feel encouraged to arrange more comfortably. Many hints as to the laying out of a well arranged plant are given and the comparative advantages of one or two very long buildings and a number of smaller ones systematically arranged discussed at length. Marketing also receives its share of attention in the article, the proper time and weight being discussed.

In closing Mr. Southwick says: "I look for increasing interest along this profitable line of farming, although I appreciate the strong hold of the two rival industries,—dairy and poultry farming. There is room for all of them and plenty of chance for improvement."

New York Excursion.

An excursion will be run to New York City via the Central Vermont railroad and the steamer City of Lowell, on October 17. The round-trip fare from Palmer, Monson, Belchertown and Three Rivers will be $3; tickets good only on train leaving Belchertown at 6.53 a.m., Three Rivers 7.10, Palmer 7.20 and Monson at 7 31; good returning to leave New York not later than October 23. Berth accommodations on steamer are very desirable, and are provided to their limit without extra charge. Staterooms are $1, $1 50 and $2 each according to location, and may be reserved in advance upon application to W. J. Phillips, ticket agent, New London, Ct. The excursion enters New York Harbor, via East River, the finest approach to the city, passing through Hell Gate, under Brooklyn Bridge, in sight of the Bartholdi Statue of Liberty; also passing along the piers of the large Ocean Liners, where the large ocean steamers will be seen in full view. Passengers on this excursion arrive in New York by daylight, avoiding hotel expenses.

Some Seasonable Advice.

It may be a piece of superfluous advice to urge people at this season of the year to lay in a supply of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It is almost sure to be needed before winter is over, and much more prompt and satisfactory results are obtained when taken as soon as a cold is contracted and before it has become settled in the system, which can only be done by keeping the remedy at hand. This remedy is so widely known and so altogether good that no one should hesitate about buying it in preference to any other. It is for sale by the Quimby Pharmacy, Palmer.

DEER AND MOOSE IN MAINE.

Law Off Oct. 1—A Big Season!

The season of 1905 gives every promise of becoming a record-breaker in the amount of big game which will be sacrificed to the sport of the hunter. From all over Maine, from the wilds of Aroostook County and far down in the wilderness of the Washington County region, down to the nearer Rangeleys and the border land of New Hampshire, come tales of hordes of deer and numerous moose, awaiting the advent of the sportsman. Two deer and one moose are the allotted quota by law, for every non-resident who visits Maine protected with his $15 license; and it is very seldom that one reads an account of a returned hunter, who has not secured his legal allotment of deer at least, and judging from the moose market this year, the big game hunter with a good eye, a steady arm, a trusty rifle and a Maine Guide, or a thorough knowledge of the region which he traverses has a "long shot" chance of making good on his quarry. Maine covers a vast territory and the hunting grounds are scattered throughout the state. Around the shores of Moosehead Lake and scampering over the Islands are numerous deer. The Rangeley Region, known to every follower of Isaac Walton, is also a prolific game territory. Mt. Kathadin is the rendezvous of the moose and every year some likely specimens of the lordly animal are carried from here. Away down in the Aroostook Region the sportsman will enjoy himself to his heart's content; like the other portions of Maine's hunting section suitable camps have been erected here for the accommodation of the sportsman, and reports from the guides in this particular section, state that thirty moose within the last month were seen close to the camps.

Already the sportsman who enjoys hunting smaller game or bird shooting is in the Maine wilderness. Partridge, woodcock, plover and pheasants are very plentiful in sections of this state and the hunter with a good dog who seeks these haunts will find rare sport. October 1st, when the law is off on deer and moose, then the great influx into the game region will occur. Guides are preparing for a record breaking season, and the adventurous sportsman who feels strenuous enough to tackle something bolder than a moose, if reports are accurately recorded, will find adversaries in the shape of shaggy bruins among the berry patches and orchards of Washington County. Besides deer and moose there is an endless variety of quadrupeds, awaiting the sportsman in the Maine woods Rabbits, mink, squirrels, hedgehogs, foxes and any quantity of fur-bearing animals will be found in the northern section.

Maine has been well termed the "Sportsman's Paradise." Surely he cannot want for deer or moose, he knows where to seek larger game, and the endless variety of smaller animals and birds will surely satisfy the hunter who is steering in this direction. Write to the Boston & Maine Passenger Department, Boston, and receive free one of the beautiful booklets telling in detail the various sections of this prolific game paradise and how to reach it, and profusely illustrate with pictures of camps and hunting scenes.

Made Him Homesick.

When the first Turkish minister, Mele Mele, came to Washington, a grand ball was planned in his honor. Hundreds of invitations were sent out, and nearly everybody who received one came, for there was much curiosity to see the important Turk in his native dress. Particularly were persons anxious to examine the splendid dress turban which had been described and talked about, made, as it was, of plaster of paris, yet looking like the finest muslin. When the evening arrived, Mele Mele seemed to be the only one who was not having a good time. He stood looking as if he did not know that everybody was admiring him and altogether was very much bored till suddenly he caught a glimpse of a big negro woman who was assisting in serving the supper. Instantly he rushed up to her and, throwing his arms about her neck, gave her a good kiss, explaining that he could not help it, she reminded him so much of his best and most expensive wife, and, while the company thought it a very odd thing to do, everybody could understand that he was a homesick man and nobody minded it in the least.

The Pity of It!

A certain lady of wealth living in the north of Ireland was recovering from a serious illness and one morning called for an egg, which she ate with much enjoyment. As she passed back the cup and plate to her nurse she said, "An egg is a delicious thing." Then, with much melancholy. "What a pity," she added, "it is so common among the poor."—London Globe.

WORKING WOMEN

Their Hard Struggle Made Easier—Interesting Statements by a Young Lady in Boston and One in Nashville, Tenn.

Miss Frankie Orser
Miss Pearl Ackers

All women work; some in their homes, some in church, and some in the whirl of society. And in stores, mills and shops tens of thousands are on the never-ceasing treadmill, earning their daily bread.

All are subject to the same physical laws; all suffer alike from the same physical disturbance, and the nature of their duties, in many cases, quickly drifts them into the horrors of all kinds of female complaints, ovarian troubles, ulceration, falling and displacements of the womb, leucorrhœa, or perhaps irregularity or suppression of "monthly periods," causing backache, nervousness, irritability and lassitude.

Women who stand on their feet all day are more susceptible to these troubles than others.

They especially require an invigorating, sustaining medicine which will strengthen the female organism and enable them to bear easily the fatigues of the day, to sleep well at night, and to rise refreshed and cheerful.

How distressing to see a woman struggling to earn a livelihood or perform her household duties when her back and head are aching, she is so tired she can hardly drag about or stand up, and every movement causes pain, the origin of which is due to some derangement of the female organism.

Miss F. Orser of 14 Warrenton Street, Boston, tells women how to avoid such suffering; she writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I suffered misery for several years with irregular menstruation. My back ached; I had bearing down pains, and frequent headaches; I could not sleep and could hardly drag around. I consulted two physicians without relief, and as a last resort, I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and to my surprise, every ache and pain left me. I gained ten pounds and am in perfect health."

Miss Pearl Ackers of 327 North Summer Street, Nashville, Tenn., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I suffered with painful periods, severe backache, bearing-down pains, pains across the abdomen; was very nervous and irritable, and my trouble grew worse every month.

"My physician failed to help me and I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I soon found it was doing me good. All my pains and aches disappeared, and I no longer fear my monthly periods."

Lydia E Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the unfailing cure for all these troubles. It strengthens the proper muscles, and displacement with all its horrors will no more crush you.

Backache, dizziness, fainting, bearing down pains, disordered stomach, moodiness, dislike of friends and society—all symptoms of the one cause—will be quickly dispelled, and it will make you strong and well.

You can tell the story of your sufferings to a woman, and receive helpful advice free of cost. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

BEST FAIR IT EVER HELD.

Verdict on Eastern Hampden Cattle Show.

FINE WEATHER AND FULL EXHIBITS.

Cattle, Poultry and Dog Displays of Large Merit; Big Midway; Everybody Pleased.

The 53d annual fair of the Eastern Hampden Agricultural Society was the best in its history. This is stating the exact facts in a few words, and nothing can be added to the statement except to explain in detail why the fair held last week was the best the society has had. It excelled in everything which makes a fair attractive, even in weather. The first day was Friday and the weather was so exceptional that most people will remember it. There was a breeze all day which had more than a suggestion of autumn in it, but it kept the sun from making the visitors at the fair uncomfortable and was not chilly enough to mar the pleasure of the thousands who gathered upon the park. It was children's day, and all who have not yet reached the dignity of the high school were admitted free. Over 2000 took advantage of the liberality of the society and made a happy day of it. Not the least of the pleasure of their elders was obtained in watching the young people. They took part in sports especially arranged for them.

The first day, as usual, was cattle day. The cattle show was a grand one. The pens were filled with fancy stock, both quantity and quality contributing to make a fine show. The entries numbered over 250 animals. The judges began work early and had a busy day of it. There were the usual contests for cattle, and the entire program relating to them was carried out without a hitch. At 11 o'clock the athletic contests for the school children began, and the summaries will show how the various contests resulted. The crowd which witnessed these contests confirmed the officers of the society in their opinion that this feature of the program is an attraction to be retained. The sports and the winners were: Three-legged race, boys under 12, Rice and Parkhurst of Palmer, Tannebring and Saunders, Faulkner and Johnson; laced-shoe race, boys under 12, Smith, Bellew, Roche; wheel barrow race, Rice and Cordner, Fountain and LaPlant, Hunt and Blanford; sack race, boys under 12, Brouilette, Mumford, Smith; sack race, boys 12 to 15, Saunders, Brouilette, Fountain; sack race, sack tied over head and body, Brouilette, Mumford, Smith; 50-yards race, girls under 12, Minnie Hamilton, Katie Mayor, Sarah Walsh; 200-yards race, boys 12 to 15, Cordner, Ashe, Ross; 200 yards race, boys under 12, Cole, Faulkner, Greene; potato race, girls under 15, Daisy Root, Eda St. John, Annie Doherty; 50-yards race, girls 12 to 15, Daisy Root, Eda St. John, Ethel Jacques.

It was quite noticeable that the hall exhibits received unusual attention this year. Both floors were well filled most of the time both days, and the displays received general commendation. The upper floor was given over, as usual, to fancy goods and fine arts. There was a large exhibit of painting in oil and water colors this year, and the various exhibits were closely examined and commented upon freely. Upon the lower floor was a display of fruits and vegetables which won much praise.

The poultry show was as large as had been expected. This department has had a wonderful growth of late years. The number of birds was large and the quality excellent. The society will have to provide larger quarters if this show continues to improve as it has in the recent past. The dog show also deserves especial mention this year. It was held beneath the grand stand as usual, and attracted much attention. Some very fine animals were shown, and while the number did not compare with the large bench shows, good judges expressed the opinion that in quality the Palmer show ranks very high. All these attractions drew well both days.

In no department has the society made greater progress than in the midway. The gay and festive fakir is a wonderful animal, but he is human and appreciates human treatment. There is not a doubt that the midway next year will show the effect of the tact with which the fakirs were handled this year. This is an important feature of every successful fair, and the crowds which passed among the tents constantly on both days were proof that no mistake is made in giving this section careful attention. There were no gambling devices and the state police, who were present, found nothing to interfere with. It was the aim of the managers this year to admit nothing to the midway which there would be any necessity of closing because of complaint on the part of any visitor, no matter how critical, and no fakir whose privilege was managed exactly as he represented it was closed up; two or three who represented one thing and started something shady were quickly discovered by the officers of the society, who kept a close watch on the midway, and made to close up at once. At the upper end of the midway was a large tent in which was given an interesting vaudeville entertainment. One feature of this show was the man who was buried alive. He occupied a coffin several feet below the surface of the ground and tubes were arranged through which the visiting multitude could view this performer. Why this act should prove attractive no one has attempted to explain, but it does and that is sufficient for the manager. The baseball babies and the African dodgers were much in evidence and lunch booths and eatables and drinkables of all kinds met the eye at every turn. Fortune tellers plied their trade briskly and the tintype man gathered nimble dimes. The Ferris wheel was a favorite feature and was well patronized.

The second day dawned as bright and clear as the first, but the nipping breeze was absent. It was an ideal holiday and thousands appreciated it. The attendance the second day was about the same as the first, it being estimated that about 10,000 people attended during the two days. This was horse day, in accordance with the time-honored custom, and the horse show occupied the forenoon. It was a good one, but not so many animals were shown as in the cattle department. The attractions of the first day were all present and the forenoon was a busy one. In the afternoon there were athletic contests again, which were run off between the heats of the horse races. The horse racing this year was very good. All the classes were well filled and there was good sport each day. Those who filled the grand stand were entertained between the heats by the stage performance, which was a good one.

The athletic contests of Saturday, the winners and times were: 40-yards dash, won by Barrett of Ware, time, 4¾; Page of Monson, second. 100-yards dash, won by Ryan of Ware, time, 10¾; Page of Monson, second; Barrett of Ware, third. Half-mile dash, won by Adkins of Belchertown, time, 2.11¾; Green of Palmer, second; Hatch of Monson, third. One mile run, won by Green of Palmer, time, 4.40; Miller of Monson, second. 220 yards dash, won by Ryan of Ware, time, 33¾; Page of Monson, second. 440-yards dash won by Hellyar of Palmer, time, 58s; Hynes of Monson, second. Pole-vault, Barrett of Ware and Harrington of Ware, tied, both vaulting 7 ft. High jump, Adkins of Belchertown, 5ft 1in.; Ryan of Ware, second.
